For people who are hung up on wood:

A new way to hang up a ceiling.

If you like the warmth that a touch of wood gives you, Armstrong has a ceiling idea you're going to love.

It's a new way to give a unique, handcrafted look to a suspended ceiling.

The usual way to put up a suspended ceiling is to hang a white metal grid by wires from your old ceiling and then lay the ceiling panels right on top of the grid.

But that's where the new Armstrong gridriser comes in. Made of walnut-grained steel, it raises the panels three-quarters of an inch above the grid.

The result is a ceiling that has striking dimension—beautifully accentuated by the richness of wood.

Another beautiful thing about the new gridriser is that it works with any one of Armstrong's handsome, practical ceiling panels. And there are 14 different designs to choose from.

The ceiling panels in this room are called Sahara Temlok®. They're brand new, too. Their white surface has been deeply embossed and accented with sand tones to create a bold, rustic effect.

A brand-new ceiling panel and a beautiful new way to hang up a ceiling. Both at your building supply dealer. Both from Armstrong, the people who make ceilings worth looking at.

Free color booklet! It'll tell you all there is to know about Armstrong Suspended Ceilings—show you the various designs and how to install one. Pick up a copy at your building supply dealer. Or write to us, and we'll send you the booklet and the name of the nearest dealer who can show you this new ceiling. Armstrong, 6901 Sun Street, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, 17604.

THE CEILING MASTERS

Overlooked for 56 years— this important Gauguin sculpture can be yours free

...with membership in The Sculpture Collectors Limited and no obligation to buy anything now or ever

For more than half a century after Gauguin's death in 1903 this magnificent life mask was not publicly exhibited and not even known to exist except by a few experts—until it emerged from a private collection and was auctioned at a New York gallery as the head of a tattooed male Tahitian."

Now recognized by scholars as a self-portrait, the mask was recently acquired by The Sculpture Collectors Limited and for the first time a number of castings have been pulled from Gauguin's original terra cotta. This work of art is not available except with membership in The Sculpture Collectors. It is not for sale, and more will be cast after these are spoken for.

But at this time, the Gauguin mask can be yours as a gift—with an entirely new kind of membership that never obligates you but privileges you to acquire fine original sculpture by outstanding living artists, at prices well below those commanded by dealers and galleries.

You become an art collector and patron

The Sculpture Collectors Limited makes all this possible by going directly to the creative source, the artist: themselves, commissioning original works exclusively for members. In much the way the Medicis selected their Michelangelos and Raphaels, your membership admits you to a community of patrons of contemporary sculptors—and makes you an immediate beneficiary of their talents.

All commissions are awarded by the Curator guided by a distinguished Board of Advisors (art historians, critics, collectors, appraisers). Selections are based on artistic merit and potential market value.

Every work offered a signed original

Every work is signed, then individually hand-cast in a new material—Foundry-Stone. Each piece will be cast in an edition strictly to meet the needs of the membership. These originals will not be offered for sale outside the membership—however, members may resell to other collectors with no restrictions of any kind.

At least once a year you will be advised of new offerings—any of the works appeals to you and you would like to see it in your home—you are invited to live with it for a 30-day trial period and you still retain the right to decline it.

Original sculpture a sound investment

Our quarterly offering will feature three exclusive, original works by outstanding American and European sculptors such as Salvador Dali, André Minaux, Isamu Noguchi, Keiko Moti, Krishna Reddy and others—all artists whose works have been appreciating rapidly. Yet, their prices to you are as low as $25 and more than $40.

Each work of art will arrive accompanied by a complete portfolio containing an authentication of originality, a biography of the artist and a critique of the work by an eminent scholar. Each work is handsomely mounted on a wood or stone base designed to present your original most effectively.

Lifetime membership just $10

Only $10 makes you a lifetime member of The Sculpture Collectors. Immediately upon joining you receive your free gift of the Gauguin mask. And membership brings you still another benefit: a complimentary subscription to a lively and authoritative sculpture journal, illustrated in full color—The Foundry Mark. It is designed for people who are knowledgeable about art, but not necessarily expert.

Your membership begins with a gift—and can lead to a lifetime of pleasure and profit collecting art. To enjoy the adventure of owning original sculptures by contemporary masters, simply mail the coupon. You need send no money; we'll bill you for your $10 lifetime membership dues after your gift arrives.

Sooner or later, almost every toothpaste gets around to comparing itself to Crest.

And for good reason. Crest's ability to fight cavities has made it far and away America's leading toothpaste.

You know, it's kind of nice to be the one toothpaste everybody tries to measure up to.

Maybe you should see how your toothpaste stacks up to Crest.

For instance, you might check to see if it has the American Dental Association's Seal of Acceptance. You can be sure Crest does.

What's more, Crest has shown it reduces cavities even where the water has fluoride in it.

In fact, it's estimated that Crest has caused millions of cavities not to happen. We could go on, but you get the point.

So have checkups, watch treats, and brush after eating with Crest.

It's one great cavity-fighter.
Every inch of it.

Give your family the warmth of financial security.

We mean life insurance, of course. Like a cozy fireplace, it provides a special comfort all its own.

Right now New York Life supplies the warmth of financial security to some five million policyowners and we'd be pleased to have you join this growing group. We think we have a lot to offer.

Take dividends, for instance. New York Life is a mutual company. So every penny of our dividends goes to our policyowners. How have our dividends been? Well, we've been paying them since 1845. What's more, last year's dividends were the biggest ever, bringing the cost of protection for millions of our policyowners to an all-time low.

Interested? Your New York Life Agent can tell you more. He's a full-time, career life insurance Agent. A good man to know. Ask him over for a fireside chat.

The only way to be sure your family receives the maximum benefits from your possessions after you're gone is to make plans now. And estate planning, simply put, means analyzing your assets and making the legal arrangements needed to safeguard them and pass them on to the right heirs—with the least trouble (or shrinkage). Yet few people today understand the intricacies of an estate planning program—and the price of misunderstanding comes high.

Estate planning is for the rich.

1 Not so. Even if your total resources are modest, you want to be absolutely certain they'll go to those you intend to have them. With estate planning, you also protect your estate from being reduced sharply by high taxes, and you minimize often-painful delays of probate. Perhaps most important, estate planning is a form of long-term money management.

"But," you say, "I don't have an estate. What's the use?" Evidently you don't realize that you probably are "rich" enough to plan your estate. Take the case of a 35-year-old, $12,000-a-year salesman with a fair-sized company. These could easily be his assets at death today:

Equity in his home	$13,500
Group life insurance through his company	$24,000
Personal life insurance policy	$10,000
Savings account	$ 1,400
Company profit-sharing plan	$ 9,000
Pension plan death benefits	$ 1,600
Inherited antiques	$ 4,500
Personal property (car, hi-fi, outboard motor, power tools)	$ 6,000
Net worth:	$70,000

By age 55 or 60, this salesman's equity in his home, plus his group insurance, personal property, pension, profit sharing, and savings (including stocks, bonds) very likely could increase $100,000—and he would be worth $170,000. Certainly, that's an estate.

There's plenty of time to plan later.

2 It makes no sense to delay estate planning until you're older, or until you're seriously ill. The time to start is when you assume family responsibilities—especially when you acquire a home, life insurance, a savings account, employee benefits, and other property.

Begin by listing and analyzing your assets. Then get your objectives clearly

FAMILY MONEY MANAGEMENT

Peter Lindberg, Editor

MOST COMMON MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT ESTATE PLANNING

in mind. For whom do you want to provide security after you're gone? How? With an attorney's legal advice, map out a framework for your estate so your career and estate can grow together. In your 30s, all you may need is a simple will, plus proper life insurance beneficiary arrangements. But if you wait until you're 60, after you've accumulated sizable capital, you can miss several ways to save.

By owning everything jointly, we don't need an estate program.

3 Just the opposite is true. Many people believe that since the survivor automatically receives full title to a jointly held home, bank account, stocks, and other resources, the estate is tax-free. Yet in the eyes of the federal government and many states, "joint-tenancy" property belongs to the spouse who died first. The survivor (usually the wife) must prove that she actually contributed financially to the acquisition of the holdings. Without adequate proof of this, all assets are included for federal estate tax purposes. Later, the assets become part of her estate and are taxed again when they pass on to the children. Thus an estate can shrink alarmingly.

But suppose the wife dies first. Her husband may have to pay an estate tax on his own assets—unless he can dig up old records to prove they were acquired entirely with his own funds.

Joint ownership also can convey property to the wrong person. If a widow remarries, her property and money may go to the second husband or his children when she dies, rather than to the children of her first marriage. Or suppose a man and his wife are in a car accident and he dies shortly after he does. If there are no wills, and no children, the entire estate may go to her relatives.

On the other hand, if both have wills, joint tenancy property generally is not considered part of the probate estate. This can save executor's and attorney's fees, and other expenses, and can speed settlement of the estate. However, state laws differ on survivorship rights and community property, so legal hassles still could ensue. Remember, too, that under joint tenancy a widow has to assume the many burdens of family financial management.

My life insurance is enough of an estate plan.

4 Many people, especially young couples, rely on life insurance at first to "take care of everything." But chances are your holdings eventually will include equity in a home, stocks, bonds, and other property—and you must make provisions for them.

True, insurance proceeds paid to a named beneficiary do not have to pass through probate. But it's a widely held notion that life insurance is not subject to federal estate taxes. Often it is, and lumping life insurance proceeds in with other property can boost an estate into an unexpectedly high tax bracket.

Choosing the right option on a policy is part of estate planning, too. Should it be paid to the widow in full, or in installments? One popular device is to make life insurance payable to a trust. Under this flexible program, a trustee—usually your commercial bank—is named to manage the insurance proceeds after death for heirs unaccustomed to handling large sums.

Probate can be bypassed easily.

5 It's possible, but not easy—and certainly you need professional advice on this point. In some states, probate costs can be sidestepped by putting all your assets into a Living Trust while you're still alive. But most people find it virtually impossible to place everything they own into a trust, so some property would have to go through probate anyway.

Of course, your widow could steer clear of probate court if all family assets were jointly held. But she'd run up against state inheritance taxes and estate tax problems, as we've indicated, and that calls for sound legal aid.

Just what is probate? Every will must come before probate court to be made legally effective.

Continued

There the executor presents the will, the witnesses— and a list of those who might be affected if there were no will (to give them a chance to challenge its validity). When the judge is satisfied that the will complies with state laws, he admits it to probate. The executor then starts filing tax forms, paying debts, taxes, and administrative costs, and distributing your property as you instructed. Periodically he reports to the court, filing an accounting and listing the assets.

Usually, the cost of settling a moderate-size estate—including fees for attorney, executor, appraiser, and court expenses, but excluding federal and state taxes—runs between six and eight percent of gross assets. Depending on state laws and the complexity of an estate, the probate routine may take from six months to several years. Even so, the disadvantages of avoiding probate often outweigh the possible savings.

6 You can't avoid estate taxes. Generally that's so. But you can minimize them under current federal tax laws.

That's because today's federal estate tax applies only after you make two major deductions—the first $60,000 of your assets, and a “marital deduction” (which generally is half the net estate).

Take the typical $160,000 estate of engineer James Warren, to be passed on to his wife and later to their children. The federal estate tax after the $80,000 marital deduction and $60,000 exemption would be $1,600 on the remainder.

Upon Mrs. Warren's death—if she had received all the property—the children would pay $20,140 in federal tax alone. The estate, however, could be arranged so that Warren leaves half directly to his wife and half in a Testamentary Trust, where his assets are managed for her. Then the tax would be $1,600 at his death and only $1,600 at her death—a saving of $18,540. (Tax liability also may be eased through direct gifts by a taxpayer during his lifetime, since these gifts reduce the taxable estate.)

Remember, too, that virtually all states levy inheritance taxes. But on larger estates these usually are minor compared to the federal taxes, though small estates often are affected.

7 Estate planning is too costly, cold, and impersonal. It normally costs you nothing to consult your bank or life insurance agent about setting up your estate program. Their recommendations then generally are passed on to an attorney who draws the will and handles legal details. For making an ordinary will, attorneys charge around $50, depending on location. Annual trustee's fees often amount to something like half of one percent of the value of the trust property. On a $50,000 trust, then, the annual fee would be about $250.

You may have heard that a trust arrangement is impersonal. To some it may be, but objective, unemotional handling of your money can be an advantage in carrying out your directions. Still, chances are you and your heirs will deal with a single trust officer at a bank. You'll often find he can be a sympathetic adviser on family problems, as well as on financial matters.

And when a bank, rather than a relative, is your trustee and executor, it can boost your income through wise investments, save on taxes and administrative costs, protect your family's interest in a business, and collect debts.

If you try to save the executor's fee by naming your wife or a relative as executor, the complexities of settling your estate could create expensive havoc in your family—especially since your wife or the relative probably won't know how to keep estate taxes to a minimum. In any event, you need a competent lawyer who can work with you, or with your bank if it is named trustee.

8 Trusts are too complicated. A trust is merely an arrangement by which you transfer assets to a person or institution to manage for you or your heirs. You alone spell out the conditions to guide the trustee.

When you place funds in a Living Trust, for example, you can watch the trust in action and judge the effectiveness of your estate plan. After you die, the trust can be continued for other members of your family. Under either a Living or Testamentary Trust, the trustee follows your written directives in paying out funds to your spouse or children.

Even with a modest estate, almost anyone can have a tailor-made Testamentary Trust put in his will. For Living Trusts, many banks have no minimum and take on trusts of $25,000 or less. Usually, however, there's a minimum commission.

Many banks operate Common Trust Funds through which small trusts are managed economically. Money from a group of individual trusts is pooled into a large fund, with each becoming a “participating trust.”

9 A trust isn't flexible. Actually, a trust may well be the most pliable device in estate planning. With a Living Trust, you can either make the income payable to yourself while you're alive, or have it reinvested for your family's future benefit. In an emergency, you can arrange to withdraw part or all of your money. To a Life Insurance Trust (Section 4, preceding page) or Living Trust, you can add stocks, real estate, an inheritance, or anything else of value.

A Testamentary Trust, like a will, can be changed any time before your death. A Living Trust (and most Life Insurance Trusts) can be revoked or not, as you choose; in the revocable and more flexible type, you retain the right to alter the conditions of the trust agreement, or continue it unchanged until death. While this trust is “outside” your estate and will not pass through probate, Uncle Sam generally considers it subject to an estate tax. But it can be designed to qualify for the full marital deduction, and thus save the tax on half your assets while eliminating the “second tax” when your wife dies.

Suppose you feel you don't have enough assets yet to create a trust? Then you can rely on a combination of a sound will and life insurance options.

10 Once I've made a will, I don't have to worry. Not true. All of your current resources may not be covered in the will—retirement and profit-sharing benefits, for instance, or a Living Trust. (Although if all the family property is owned jointly by you and your wife, with the right of survivorship, a will may not be needed.)

Generally, you should review your will at least every three years—and any time you acquire property, receive a bequest, have a baby, or experience some other major family change. Of course, a wife also should have a will to supplement her husband's. This is important, particularly in case of common disaster.

Always be sure your will is coordinated with your life insurance and other property you'll leave outside the will. Keep a set of instructions attached to the will, showing where pertinent financial papers can be found; also list your insurance agent, broker, and bank trustee.

Why have a will at all? Without one, your estate would be managed by an administrator appointed by a state court. Your property would be distributed according to state laws, which might not reflect what you intended for your wife, children, or parents. ■

HOW TO MAKE THE PUNCH ON OUR COVER —AND MORE

Fast and refreshing perfectly describes our cover Ruby Fruit Punch. It's a tangy blend of three favorite fruits—cranberry, apple, and lemon—set sparkling with ginger ale. If you prefer a hot and heartening drink for your holiday entertaining, brew Instant Russian Tea the fast way. Just add boiling water to three packaged beverage mixes, and you'll have home-brewed flavor in seconds. A party drink that's fun to prepare is the 1-2-3 Easy Party Punch. In three quick steps, a festive beverage is ready to serve.

Photograph: de Gennaro

Ruby Fruit Punch

Place one 1-pint 12-ounce bottle (3½ cups) chilled ginger ale, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and a few orange slices in punch bowl. Add 1 quart chilled cranberry juice cocktail and 1 cup chilled apple juice (or substitute 5 cups cranberry-apple drink); stir to blend. Makes about 16 servings.

1-2-3 Easy Party Punch

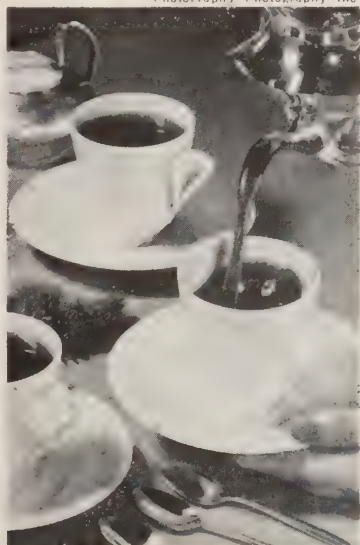

A fast, refreshing punch; double it for a crowd—

Thaw one 6-ounce can frozen orange juice concentrate; pour into a pitcher. Stir in ½ cup light corn syrup and one 1-pint 12-ounce bottle (3½ cups) chilled ginger ale. Pour over ice in small punch bowl. Garnish with orange slices and whole strawberries. Makes 10 servings.

Instant Russian Tea

In saucepan, combine ½ cup orange-flavor breakfast drink powder, ⅓ cup instant tea powder, ¼ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons (½ of a 3-ounce envelope) pre-sweetened lemonade mix, ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon, and ⅛ teaspoon ground cloves. Add 8 cups boiling water; stir. Pour into teapot; serve immediately. Makes 10 servings.

News from General Mills

Every year is a new beginning.

Now they're even writing books on new ways to show you care. We think some of the old ways are still good: When a man comes home to hot apple pie or his favorite spice cake, when a child yells, "Come on gang—brownies!", when a new neighbor tells her husband, "They've asked us over for dessert!"—you're saying something without words. Why not make it a New Year's resolution—Say it with food!

How to be an educated consumer—No. 2 Watch for specials. A special is a store's way of inviting you especially to visit their store that week. So they cut the price on a product—sometimes to a point where they make no profit on it. When you see a product in another store priced higher than one store's special, don't think you're being overcharged.

That store probably has a different special of the week. You, as an educated consumer, build your meals around your store's good specials, buy extras for cupboard or freezer when you see a good price—and recognize, at the same time, that the total quality of your store's service, the across-the-board fairness of its price, are more important values than one or two eye-catching specials.

Penny pinchers come in handy this bill-paying time of year. Like:

5. Bisquick waffles (with 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning) as a base for turkey à la king. (Any turkey left?)

6. Stretch one package of Betty Crocker Yellow Cake Mix, baked in 13 x 9-inch pan: Toast sliced cake under broiler, serve with jam and morning coffee; top squares of cake with applesauce and cinnamon sugar for dessert; or make thin cake-and-jelly sandwiches for lunch boxes.

Budget-beauty Make a meat loaf mixture using one pound ground beef. Spread in a 9-inch pie pan and bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Now spread while hot with mashed potatoes (4 servings of Potato Buds). Top with shredded cheese and bake until melted—just a minute or two. And there you are—party-pretty, penny saving, too.

Why do we advertise cereals to children?

Mothers ask us sometimes. One reason is because the child who picks his own cereal or thinks of a particular cereal as a friend is more apt to eat it without fussing. Cereal and milk provide energy, protein, vitamins, minerals, a lot of good things children need. And the child who eats his Cheerios, Trix, Lucky Charms or any of his favorites every morning is forming a good breakfast habit that will help to keep him healthy all his life.

What every woman should know about menstruation.

Monthly periods can affect a woman's well being. The body loses precious iron. This can lead to anemia. A 5 foot 2 woman needs twice as much iron as a 6 foot man. Vitamins can't replace iron in your blood. But Geritol can!

Geritol contains 7 vitamins for nutrition, plus enough iron to build up iron-poor blood. Just two Geritol tablets contain twice the iron in a pound of calf's liver. Geritol gets essential iron into your bloodstream fast. So, if monthly iron loss is making you anemic, take Geritol, liquid or tablets, every day.

SAVE ON OFF-SEASON CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING

This is by all odds the best time of the year to be shopping for central air conditioning for your house. Manufacturers must keep their production lines busy and right now they are less than swamped with orders for equipment.

Air conditioning contractors are looking for work, too. Instead of being pressured by many families who want to buy air conditioning because it's suddenly 90 degrees in the shade, they have time to carefully plan an installation that will do the best possible job for you.

Contractors are in a position to give you their most competitive prices. They can schedule the installation when their crews are in your part of town, and they can even afford the time to use your work as a "fill in" when the installers are not needed for heating season emergencies. You can usually save as much as you would by taking an off-season vacation. So as a smart buyer, you're in the best possible bargaining position right now—just as your contractor is in a position to give you his best, unhurried service.

There's another very good reason for buying now. Central air conditioning is not just for those torturously hot days. If you buy now, you'll be able to switch it on the first unexpectedly warm day in spring.

And when you do, you'll be getting all the other benefits of your new system in addition to just lowering the temperature. For example, you'll be controlling the humidity so that you're comfortable on cool muggy days. All summer, this same humidity control can make the clothes in every closet seem fresher, eliminate mildew, make every square foot of your basement usable, and even dry the towels and washcloths faster.

You'll have fewer worries all summer long, too. You won't be as concerned about prowlers because your house can be completely locked up whenever you choose. And you can leave the house for an afternoon or an evening without having to outguess a thunder-shower. Yet, your closed house won't be hot and stuffy when you return.

As a permanent home improvement, central air conditioning is one of the smartest investments you can make. The equipment has a life expectancy as long or longer than that of any other product in a house.

And, if you sell, you get back a larger percentage of the original cost than with any other home improvement project—just as a fully equipped car has a better trade-in value than a stripped-down model.

Financing is usually very easily arranged also. Most air conditioning contractors will be able to offer you a choice of plans. Some are so anxious to do the work in the off season that they will delay payments until it is time for you to use the system. Other leading agencies also look favorably at home improvement loans of this type.

Just what do you do right now? The first step is simple. Call at least two contractors of brand names you know and tell them you're interested in discussing central air conditioning. Both will want to make appointments to survey your house, establish the equipment you need (if you have ducts for warm forced air and adequate electrical service, you may already own half an air conditioning system), and then talk about price and installation.

Take plenty of time to absorb what your contractors tell you and to compare their estimates, which you'll want to get in writing. When the contractors present their estimates, ask them if the equipment is certified by the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute. The A.R.I. tests equipment of most manufacturers and certifies its dependability and capacity—and provides a seal on the equipment rating the capacity in standard British thermal units per hour. With this information, you'll know definitely how to compare the contractors' proposals, because all the brands are rated the same way.

The next big step is choosing between the contractors. In addition to considering prices quoted and capacities recommended, you'll want to weigh the warranties offered and the reputations of the contractors and the brands they offer. After carefully analyzing all these factors, you may find that the low bid isn't the best bid.

Once you've made your choice, ask the contractor for a written contract spelling out the details of the work to be done, the equipment selected, and a schedule for the installation work.

When your installation is complete, make sure you receive a copy of the warranty and a homeowner's manual—and keep them both where you can find them. The manual will answer many questions that will come up later on, and it will help you operate your system most efficiently.

Next step? Flip the button from off to on when the time comes. It may be that first warm day or it may be when you and your guests begin to get a bit uncomfortable during a large party. Then promptly forget all the discomforts of last summer. Within only a few days, your whole family will be asking why you waited so long to install central air conditioning. ■

Cold-weather starting and driving make extra demands on many components of your car. More than 50 percent of all starting failures occur during the four winter months of December, January, February, and March. This figure is even more meaningful when you consider that car use during this time of year is limited mostly to necessary trips, and pleasure or vacation driving is minimal.

CARS IN YOUR FAMILY

Duane L. Gregg, Automotive Editor

FOUL-WEATHER DRIVING

HOW TO START, DRIVE, TURN, AND STOP YOUR CAR THIS WINTER

The battery is said to be the cause of 70 percent of all starting failures. If this is true, it's only because improper functioning of any element in the starting system puts an extra load on the battery and decreases its efficiency.

The battery and its components must be in top shape for winter starting. A fully charged battery is only 65 percent effective at 32 degrees, and this figure drops to 40 percent at zero. And winter driving adds to the load because of harder starting, use of heater and defroster, and more hours of driving with lights. Have the battery checked thoroughly to be sure it is fully charged and all elements of the charging system are functioning properly. If the battery shows any signs of weakness or has been in service over 26 months (the national average life of a battery), you're smart to replace it. A few service calls to start the car, plus a few quick charges, will often add up to more than the cost of a new battery.

Be sure battery cables are in good condition and that no corrosion is present on battery post connections. An almost invisible power-robbing accumulation can form on 12-volt batteries, so you're wise to clean the connections thoroughly and apply an anti-corrosion material even if excessive corrosion is not present.

A good ignition tune-up should top the list of things to be done. If spark plugs and distributor points have been in service 10-12,000 miles, or show signs of wear, they should be replaced. If the car is several years old, the coil should also be checked—a hot spark is a must to start a cold car!

The fuel system should come in for its share of attention. Fuel filter and carburetor air cleaner should be cleaned or replaced as necessary. Dirty or gummy carburetors and the automatic choke mechanism should be cleaned and adjusted for maximum performance. Cleaning is easily done with one of the spray-can cleaners or by adding a cleaner to the gasoline—a complete carburetor disassembly and overhaul isn't necessary. The fuel pump diaphragm is less pliable in cold weather and may fail unexpectedly. A pressure check is advisable on fuel pumps that have been in use several years.

Engine oil is very important to quick starts. Cold, heavy, summer-weight oil can double the power required to start the engine. In addition, heavy oil does not provide proper cold-weather lubrication and can result in engine damage.

Consult your car owners manual for information about the weight oil recommended for your local weather conditions and your driving needs. In most cases you'll find that 10W30 or 5W40 oils will be recommended. If most of your winter driving is of the typical stop-go type, have oil changes on a time rather than mileage basis (every 30-60 days isn't too often).

If your car is just about due for a lubrication job, have it done now. It's good insurance against salt, slush, and water getting into vital suspension and steering parts.

The cooling system, while not imperative to winter starting, is very important to keeping the car on the go. Antifreeze solution should be checked both for condition and for freezing protection afforded. The safest course is to install new antifreeze yearly. However, if the solution shows no signs of deterioration and you are a low-mileage driver, you may choose to use it a second season. In so, be sure to add a can of rust inhibitor to the solution (preferably the same brand as the antifreeze to assure compatibility). In any event, all radiator and heater hoses should be checked for leakage and signs of deterioration. For complete information on antifreeze and its use, see the November, 1968, issue of Better Homes and Gardens.

The entire braking system should be checked. This should include a check of the condition of the linings, wheel and master cylinders, and brake lines. In addition, the self-adjusting mechanism (used on most cars since 1963) should be checked to be sure it is providing balanced braking action on all four wheels. Uneven braking action can lead to unexpected skidding on slick surfaces.

STARTING A COLD ENGINE

If the engine turns over but does not fire, it's usually because of improper starting procedure or lack of fuel. Check your owners manual for proper procedure. Most manufacturers recommend depressing the accelerator partially (this sets the automatic choke and fast idle), then turning the ignition switch to the start position. If the engine doesn't start in to 15 seconds, turn the key off and wait a few seconds before trying again. Don't pump the accelerator.

If there's a strong odor of gasoline, the engine is probably flooded. Press the accelerator to the floor and hold it there while turning the engine with the starter in five-second bursts. Longer grinding can damage the starter and weaken the battery to the point that it may then get the blame for starting failure. If you have time, it's a good idea to let a flooded engine sit for five to ten minutes between starting attempts.

If the engine turns over but does not fire, there's a good chance of gas line freeze-up, and about the only hope is heat to thaw the ice. You can usually accomplish this by placing a heat lamp or large light bulb near the fuel pump and gas line. To prevent freeze-up use a good-quality gasoline, keep gas tank as near full as possible (reduces moisture condensation in tank), and add a can of gasoline deicer at the first indication of moisture in the gasoline.

AIDS FOR STARTING BALKY CARS

Booster battery and jumper cables—Store the booster battery in a warm place to assure maximum power. Always hook up to car battery in parallel (positive terminal to positive, etc.). If the terminals are not clearly marked or you're not sure which is which, don't attempt a hookup. On cars equipped with alternators (most cars produced since 1963), improper hookup of a booster battery sends current back through the diodes and regulator, and can burn out both units. The proper hookup is equally important when getting a starting boost from another car's battery. Also for maximum power and minimum battery drain, all accessories and lights should be turned off and the engine of the helping car should be running at a fast idle or faster while attempting to start the stalled vehicle. Remove the jumper cables as soon as the balky engine is running.

Battery boosters—These small chargers can be plugged into regular house current and the charger cord inserted into the cigarette lighter receptacle. They won't do much for a dead battery, but will keep a good battery in top starting shape and will usually boost a weak battery enough to get it going. There are also several types of electric battery warmers available. They plug into regular household current and keep the battery warmed to about 80 degrees for maximum efficiency. Even a 75- or 100-watt bulb placed near the battery will usually help it deliver needed power.

Engine warmers—Some fit into the oil dipstick tube and are plugged into household current to keep the oil warm. Others are installed in the cooling system to keep the engine coolant warm.

Starting fluids—These are sprayed or poured directly into the carburetor. Most of them are composed mainly of ether and should be used sparingly and carefully. Always replace the air cleaner before attempting to start the engine to eliminate the possibility of an underhood fire caused by back-firing engine.

One of the newest starting aids is a small atomizer that installs inside the air cleaner above the carburetor throat. When you're ready to start the engine, a push of a dash-mounted button injects heated, vaporized gas directly into the carburetor for quick starts.

For the car owner who has everything, there's a remote control starting accessory. While you're having a second cup of coffee, just push a button (conveniently located in your house) and your car will be started automatically. When you're ready to use the car it will be running and ready.

If all other methods of starting fail, you may be tempted to push or pull the car to start it. Before resorting to this, check your owners manual carefully. Push or pull starting can cause extensive damage to many automatic transmissions because the fluid pump will not deliver adequate fluid for lubrication.

From a safety point of view, either method is foolhardy. With an automatic transmission, relatively high speeds must be reached before the engine will be turning over at speeds necessary for starting, and the person driving the propelling vehicle—not you—will be in control of speed and braking.

If the car being started has power brakes and/or power steering, the power assistance is gone when the engine isn't running. This doesn't mean that they're inoperative, but the action will be stiff and sluggish—a very real danger in the event of an emergency situation.

WARMING THE ENGINE

A working engine will warm up faster and produce less oil contaminants. Most factory engineers recommend a minute-or-two warm-up, then driving at moderate speed until the engine is thoroughly warm. Never "race" a cold engine. If the car will be subjected immediately to heavy traffic or high-speed driving, a more thorough warm-up is a must for safety as well as the engine's well-being.

KEEPING ON THE GO IN ICE AND SNOW

Just getting the car started doesn't mean you're on the go. If you live in an area of heavy snowfall, you'll need snow tires or chains. Conventional snow tires provide assistance in snow, but the help is mostly to acceleration. Tests show they provide about 50 percent better traction on snow and up to 36 percent improvement on ice. Stopping distances are somewhat improved but by a much smaller percentage. (These figures are for tires in good condition.) A new set of conventional tires is better than a set of worn snow tires. Also, radial ply tires (even with conventional tread) provide excellent traction on snow and ice—but we suggest checking local ordinances before using them on marked snow routes.

Metal-studded tires offer even better pulling and stopping traction and are now approved for use in all snow-belt states for prescribed times of the year. The ultimate in snow tires are the metal-studded radial or fiber glass belted tires. They provide excellent traction and stud retention.

Reinforced tire chains still offer the best solution as far as stop-and-go power is concerned. Like snow tires they offer more improvement in starting traction than in stopping. Chains should be kept in top condition to avoid breakage and the possibility of costly damage to the car.

Underinflated tires do not provide better traction. A properly—or even slightly overinflated—tire retains its profile and actually "digs in" better on snow than a low, mushy tire. On ice, the center portion of the tread on an underinflated tire cups up so that the only real traction is on the outer edges of the tread. Also, a low tire has less sidewall stability and can induce skidding.

Several small bags of sand in the trunk of your car will provide extra weight, and perhaps a slight increase in traction. Note we said several small bags, and distribute them throughout the trunk . . . Extra weight added in one area of the trunk can disturb the weight balance of the car Continued

ORANGE SALAD CUPS

Almost too pretty to eat—but too good not to!

3 large oranges, halved
½ cup diced pears
¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries
1 cup Kraft Miniature Marshmallows

Remove pulp from orange halves; chop. Combine with remaining ingredients. Spoon into hollowed orange halves. Chill. Garnish with additional maraschino cherries and mint leaves, if desired.
6 servings.

SHINE SLAW

Peachy slaw—all "sunnied up" with juicy peaches.

2 cups shredded cabbage
1-lb. can sliced peaches, drained
½ cup sliced celery
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cups Kraft Miniature Marshmallows
Miracle Whip Salad Dressing
Combine cabbage, peaches, celery, green pepper, marshmallows and enough salad dressing to moisten; toss lightly.
6 to 8 servings.

MELON MALLOW MOLD

A salad spectacular—spectacularly easy to make.

1 3-oz. pkg. lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 10-oz. pkg. frozen melon balls
1 cup Kraft Miniature Marshmallows

Dissolve lemon gelatin in water. Add melon balls; stir until fruit separates and mixture thickens. Fold in marshmallows. Pour into 1-quart mold; chill until firm. Unmold; garnish with parsley, if desired. 4 to 6 servings.

enough to cause handling and steering difficulties, and too much weight in the rear can actually compound the problems of a rear-end skid.

Other items for the trunk include a shovel and several two-to three-foot lengths of metal lath or expanded metal. When placed under the rear wheels, the metal lengths will often provide enough traction to get you on your way. A word of caution: never allow anyone to stand directly behind the wheels when you use these devices—they can be thrown out with great force. A recently announced aerosol product provides up to three times more traction to help get you unstuck from ice or snow. Just spray it on the tires as directed. The increased traction will last several miles on ice or snow-covered roads, much less on dry pavement.

If you have to drive on slick surfaces, remember the fundamentals of slick driving.

Steer wheels in the direction of a skid. After applying the correction, expect a lesser secondary skid. It will be in the opposite direction, so correct accordingly. Avoid sharp or sudden steering.

Use brakes sparingly and apply them in a series of short jabs—never slam them on hard or hold them on. Don't shift into a lower gear until the car is almost stopped. Downshifting, unless expertly executed, causes skids.

Accelerate lightly—rapid acceleration breaks traction, and spinning wheels make a slick surface even slicker. Avoid sudden changes in speed. The natural instinct is to let up on the accelerator rapidly in a skid. Don't. Rapid deceleration can result in an even worse skid. Of course, the best skid control is prevention. Throughout the winter you should test the road before driving at any speed, and keep testing as your trip progresses. A wet surface by day will quickly turn to ice as the sun sets. Bridges ice over first because of the cold air under them. Shadowed areas may hold ice when the rest of the road is clear. Temperatures in low areas tend to be colder so that water on hills may become ice in valleys. Be on guard when the temperature is just about freezing: wet ice at 30 degrees is twice as slick as ice at 0 degrees.

The testing procedure is simple. Wait until traffic is clear behind you, slow down, then accelerate sharply. If ice is forming, the rear wheels will spin harmlessly. This method is less likely to put you in a skid than if you jab the brakes to test. Also, you maintain split-second control as you eliminate shifting your foot from gas to brake, then back to gas.

Glare ice creates an impossible driving situation. Find the nearest haven and stay there until the condition clears, or until the road is treated with salt or cinders. Remember that during and immediately after a heavy storm, road crews usually treat intersections and grades first, so be especially cautious on the straight-aways.

If you're stuck in deep snow, a rocking motion back and forth offers your best chance of getting on your way. This involves making rapid shifts from forward to reverse. If the car has an automatic transmission, don't shift while the engine is racing. Keep an eye on the temperature indicator. A car that's not moving while working will heat up fast even in cold weather.

Above all—recognize the limitations of your car and its tires. Don't tear them up trying to do the impossible. ■

Stylist Margaret Schroeder selects seat fabrics to go with color chips for the 1963 General Motors cars.

Who listens when GM's Margaret Schroeder says women want more in car interiors than just pretty colors?

Fisher Body does.

That's why they perform 40 weeding-out tests on every fabric that ultimately ends up in over 3 million GM cars!

Of course, it doesn't take a design expert like Margaret to pick out blue fabrics that go with blue cars. Anyone could do that. But it does take her kind of training to understand the engineering-related items also. For instance, seat construction, ease of entry and exit, human dimensions and many more things. She handles her work like the professional stylist she is. But beyond that, just because she's a woman, she makes sure car seats are upholstered smoothly to avoid possible snags. And that the interior will look good to a fussy mother-in-law even after hauling the kids all over town! Margaret's skillful woman's touches are important reasons why so much of the buy is in the body. And Body by Fisher makes GM cars a better buy. Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac.

General Motors Symbol of Quality

WHY ARE YOU SO TIRED?

ARE YOU REALLY WORKING TOO MUCH?

There are only two reasons why healthy people get tired, and they seem to be, at first glance at least, completely contradictory. The first reason (and the most obvious) is that you may actually be doing far more of everything than you should. For example, it could be some grueling physical activity which leaves your muscles weary; or a helter-skelter work schedule; or a repetitive mental task which you've carried on too long. Each of these is good cause for a real case of exhaustion.

But, surprisingly, overexertion isn't the major reason for fatigue. Medical experts say that the overwhelming majority of tired people become so not because they do too much—but rather because they do too little. The truly remarkable fact is that the more you do, the more energy you can possess to do even more. It is no secret or no new doctrine that most of us possess vast, untapped sources of energy. The trouble is that we don't know how to make the very best use of it.

WHAT RESTRICTS YOUR ENERGY?

There are limits to your energy potential, of course. Nobody should have to tell you that if you don't eat right you're going to get tired before you should, or if you don't sleep enough you can't expect a great deal of vitality in your life.

Your individual constitution and the metabolic workings of your body, which you inherit, also play a role, but a minor one. It's true that you must learn the pace at which you can reasonably drive yourself without precipitating an illness, but far too many persons function far below their capacity.

Your age also is a factor. As you grow older, your energy is slowly spent on the good fight against various emergencies of an emotional and physical nature. Every stress leaves an invisible scar, and your body pays for surviving a stressful incident by becoming a little more tired. Consequently, it's not surprising that most 18-year-olds have more natural energy than persons, say, 60 or more. But, at any age, most people can put much more pep into their lives.

HOW DO YOU RUN OUT OF ENERGY?

Consider your body as a gigantic energy-producing furnace. This is governed by a sensitive thermostat in the brain. The thermostat is set with a wide margin of safety, so that your energy output is usually shut off long before it's actually necessary to prevent exhaustion.

For example, medical scientists know that powerful body chemicals, hormones, and enzymes can set the thermostat higher or lower. Inadequate fuel for the furnace, in the form of weak muscles, low metabolism, and poor blood circulation, can cause the alarm center in the brain to turn off your energy production much sooner than it actually should, leaving you unexpectedly weary.

This is a perfectly normal result of physical (or physiological) fatigue, the garden variety of tiredness brought on by working your muscles hard. All you need is rest and sleep to revive you.

But, often, rest and sleep do not refresh an exhausted person. Then the possibility of sickness (or pathological) fatigue should be considered. This is often an early warning sign of certain diseases or infections. Fatigue of this sort may appear suddenly, and, as a rule, it is severe. Frequently, too, it is accompanied by true muscular weakness. It is this type of fatigue that should send you, as briskly as possible, to your doctor.

Pathological fatigue may be the forerunner of any number of medical problems: tuberculosis, anemia, rheumatoid arthritis, hepatitis, undulant fever, infectious mononucleosis, and heart disease. In a wide range of glandular diseases, fatigue is a sure diagnostic clue.

Fortunately, pathological fatigue is normally easy for your doctor to diagnose. With personal knowledge, or through various tests, he can quickly determine the underlying cause of pathological fatigue, often before it breaks into a full-blown illness. He can, that is, if you go to him soon enough.

Don't be shy about telling your doctor how tired you are—he's heard the complaint many times before. In fact, more patients tell him of chronic fatigue than of any other distress, excepting headache. As one doctor put it: "Fatigue is so common that failure to mention it in an office visit makes me suspect that the patient is holding back."

Yet physiological and pathological fatigue, important as they are, are not the major causes of that tired feeling. There still remains another type of fatigue which has its origin in the mind.

IS IT "ALL IN YOUR HEAD"?

This third type of fatigue often defies the physician's skill. It's called psychological fatigue or "nervous exhaustion," and the majority of tired patients (as high as 60 percent, some doctors claim) suffer from it. The immediate causes of nervous exhaustion could be financial worries, unsatisfactory working conditions, anxieties about health, a monotonous job, undue strain at the office, emotional upsets at home and in business, fear of losing a job. It also could be the outer sign of deep-seated conflicts, anxiety, tensions, secret fears, and guilt—that clamp down on a person's spirit and shatter his will.

These destructive emotions can set the thermostat of your body and mind lower, much lower, depriving you of your vitally needed energy, and often leaving you tired before you start. But there are also constructive emotions—such as pleasurable excitement and determined will power—which can move the thermostat up, allowing greater production of energy. In other words, you do have a good deal of control over setting the thermostat that governs the amount of energy you possess—if you can successfully govern your emotions. Your first step is an understanding of psychological fatigue.

WHAT IS PSYCHOLOGICAL FATIGUE?

First, you should understand the varying degrees of psychological fatigue. For example, some persons may suffer severe depression, a serious mental malady deserving prompt and expert psychiatric treatment. Their loss of energy has stopped them cold, like a ship frozen in ice. The vessel will remain there indefinitely unless freed by dynamite (possibly electric shock therapy) or some unusual psychological experience. Usually, not more than two percent of psychologically fatigued persons need this kind of help, but those who do should not delay seeking professional help.

Nor should those individuals whose lives (perhaps completely unknown to them) are little more than a drifting

The first dishwasher detergent for dry-hards.

Dry-Hards are tough-to-clean foods—like fruit pie, oatmeal, meat fats, eggs, sauces—that dry and cake and stick. And stick. And stick. To plates. On forks. Filming glasses. Electrasol, fortified with 20% more active cleaning ingredients than other leading dishwasher detergents, really removes Dry-Hards. Lets your dishwasher give you cleaner, brighter, film-free dishes.

Test proves fortified Electrasol's superiority against Dry-Hards. Plate with Dry-Hard paste of blueberry pie, oatmeal and egg baked on for ten minutes at 330°F came out looking this way when washed in another leading dishwasher detergent.

Same Dry-Hard plate—but cleaned in Electrasol, fortified with 20% more active cleaning ingredients than other leading brands. Try Electrasol. It removes Dry-Hard soils, prevents them from drying into spots on dishes, glasses and silverware.

It started out as a simple peanut.

Like most products or ideas, peanuts started out plain and simple. And in most cases they would have remained that way but for the lively competition of nationally advertised brand names. The kind of competition that's turned the peanut into all the things it is today.

Brand names are what manufacturers call their products. You see them on every package. These product names compete with one another. Try to offer more. More variety. Satisfaction. Consistent quality. Value. And they let you know about it through advertising. Let you know the facts. And if they don't live up to what they say they don't have their names for very long.

When brand names compete, products get better.

FAST IDEAS

If you don't have time for do-it-yourself projects—this issue is for you! All these projects are fast because of some new material or product or technique that makes the job easier for the home handyman—or even possible for the first time. We'll also demonstrate how to short-cut your cooking, using the best of today's convenience foods and those special tricks only good cooks know. So, pick your project and fly with us!

Product Guide for fast ideas, page 28

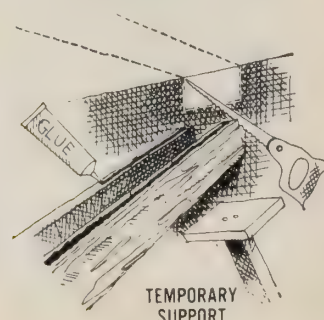

Right: This three-dimensional wall treatment may remind you of a jigsaw puzzle but it's easy to put together. First cut wallpaper into rectangles and squares, using contrasting patterns for sides and tops of cubes. Take the measurements from the paper and cut different thicknesses of plastic foam to match. Then apply wallpaper to cubes. Last step: secure the cubes to wall surface with adhesive.

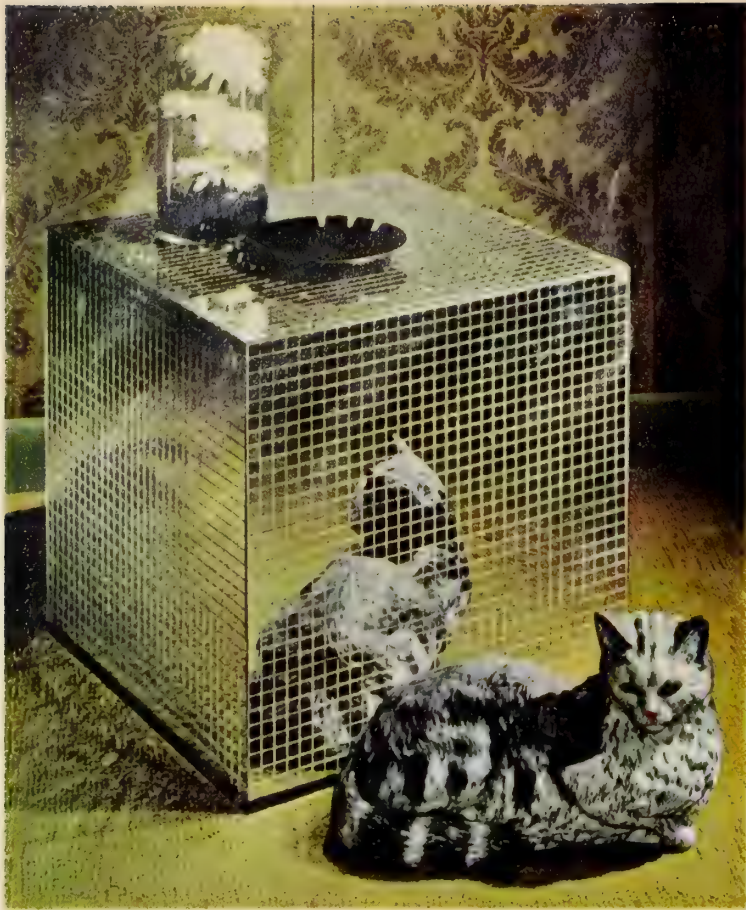

Left: You can assemble this art wall in short order—and never have to straighten a picture. Start by painting stock picture molding and dyeing rope. Nail molding through plaster to studs, fasten rope to stock hooks and to pictures. You can change paintings, or move the entire gallery, without damaging wall.

Bottom Left: Add warmth and architectural interest with what looks like rustic hand-hewn beams. Actually they're plastic foam, so you can do the job in an evening. Measure and mark locations, then cut beam to desired length with a sharp kitchen knife or saw. Apply quick-drying adhesive to the back side of the beam. Then place beam in position and hold in place with nails, or wedge with a temporary support till glue is dry.

FAST IDEAS

Consider the cube—and its infinite decorative potential. Start with a box—one you buy unfinished or make yourself. Then transform it in a trice with tricks like these:

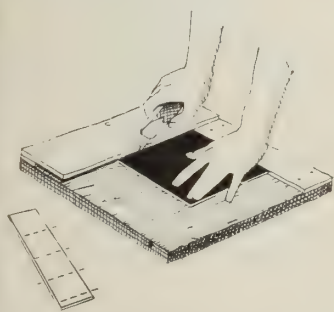

Above: With pressure-sensitive wallpaper, you can quickly turn an ordinary 18x18-inch-square cube into an elegant extra table. First shellac the raw wood of your cube. Then cut the wallpaper into 6x6-inch squares. Apply the squares in an alternating pattern, as shown here, for added interest.

Left Above: Cover a cube in reflecting glory. All that glitter goes on fast because the minuscule mirrors come in handy 16x18-inch sheets. Apply with special mirror mastic. Then finish off with a stainless steel rim around the top edge. Miter the corners and attach with epoxy.

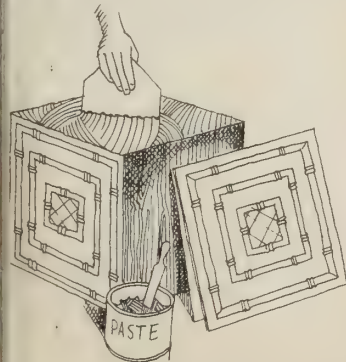

Left: Presto! You can make a cube look like a chip off the old block by using iron-on plastic laminate. First cut pieces of laminate to fit the six sides of the cube. Separate piece from backing. Place electric iron setting at cotton, or about $\frac{3}{4}$ full setting, and apply to a two-foot-square area of the laminate. Press this about 25 seconds, then proceed till you complete the whole side. Immediately, using a damp cloth, wipe and apply pressure to cool the adhesive so it sticks and sets. Complete the remaining sides of the cube in this same fashion.

How: A cube can even play chess if you treat it right. Simply apply alternating black and white vinyl floor tile to the four sides. For the top, cut black and white tile into two-inch squares (use a jig for uniformity). All the tile can be applied with floor tile adhesive.

Light: Don't be fooled by the exotic look of this Oriental bamboo cube. Western know-how makes it simplicity itself. All you need is an unfinished cube and five 12x12 floor tiles. Apply tiles to cube with adhesive, and accept compliments.

Right: Standout black stripes account for the excitement of this den, guestroom wall. You don't paint them on, you staple them on. Start by painting the wall a white white. Now take standard 8-inch boards and cover with shiny black vinyl, stapling it to the backs of the boards. Attach the boards to the wall with adhesive—and stand back to admire the spectacular effect you've created.

Left: Your drapery-pole headboard can be ready by bedtime, if you paint poles and finials with quick-drying spray lacquer or enamel. First cut a 1x6 board the width of the bed. Attach poles to board, using two screws per pole. Next, position 1x6 on frame; mark where attachment holes of frame meet the 1x6. Drill and bolt in place. Attach chains to drapery poles with screw eyes.

Left: Make a tired counter top look confetti fresh, fast, with a new two-part paint-on finish. First rough-sand existing surface. Apply base coat with brush or roller, sprinkle with water, then scatter on chips. Let dry about five hours. Brush off loose chips and paint on a sealer coat. When it's thoroughly dry, apply two coats of clear finish, allowing two hours between applications.

FAST IDEAS

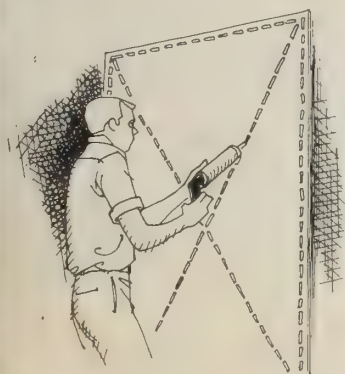

Left: Acquire a smashing area rug in a hurry with carpet samples and glue. Assemble an assortment of samples or remnants—the more colors, textures, weaves, and heights, the better. For backing, use canvas in the size you want, leaving a four-inch heading for hemming. Arrange samples in a striking pattern and glue down. Fold the heading underneath and hem with tough cotton thread.

Extreme Left Below: Garden-variety pepping-stones make short work of this sturdy table. For the base, stack seven concrete rounds, 12-inch diameter, 2 inches thick. The top is a 6-inch-diameter round, 1½ inches thick, with exposed aggregate surface. Fasten the rounds together with adhesive. Here the table is set on a small deck of laminated 1x3s on edge, set on concrete supports.

Left Below: Create a flower bower with store-bought bedspread and matching draperies. Cut out individual flowers from draperies, apply spray adhesive to the wrong side of fabric, and place at random on case-front curtains. Paint alcove in background color of bedspread. In lieu of an alcove, simulate a headboard with molding and paint.

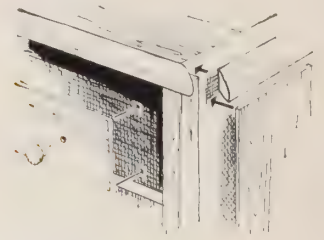

Right: Fire away with a caulking gun, and you can put up a paneled accent wall in about an hour. Make a dotted line of bonding adhesive around the perimeter of the panel and an X across the center. Then press panel in place against the wall surface. To complete the job, tack up a strip of "quarter-round" or other molding along the edge.

FAST IDEAS

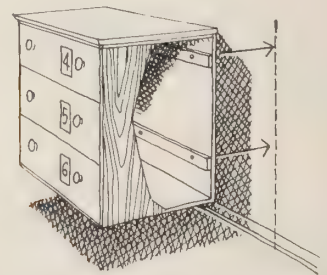

Get a head start with unfinished furniture. Then add these finishing touches:

Left: In a couple of evenings, you can make a simple chest look special. Use stair tread molding around top and bottom, corner bead molding at corners, $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch plywood for end panels and drawer fronts. A $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch plywood base replaces the legs, porcelain knobs go on after painting and antiquing.

Right Below: Quick-drying paint makes this wall-hugging storage unit an exceptionally speedy project for a child's room. Before you start painting, remove the drawers from two unfinished chests. Now paint them in alternate colors, the bright-

It's a snap to turn a one-drawer steel file cabinet into storage for storybooks, school assignments, records—or a decorative mobile stool or table. Simply mount plate-type casters on bottom corners of cabinet. Cut bird, blossom, and butterfly motifs from adhesive-backed burlap. Peel off paper backing from cutouts and apply to sides and top of the cabinet.

In an evening, you can dress up your kitchen with this smart and serviceable cornice shelf. It's a perfect way to show off your spices and prize pewter. Start with an unfinished cornice. Fasten a half-inch plywood shelf to the top and a fluorescent fixture to the underside. Paint with quick-drying paint. When it's dry, attach shelf to wall with long screws.

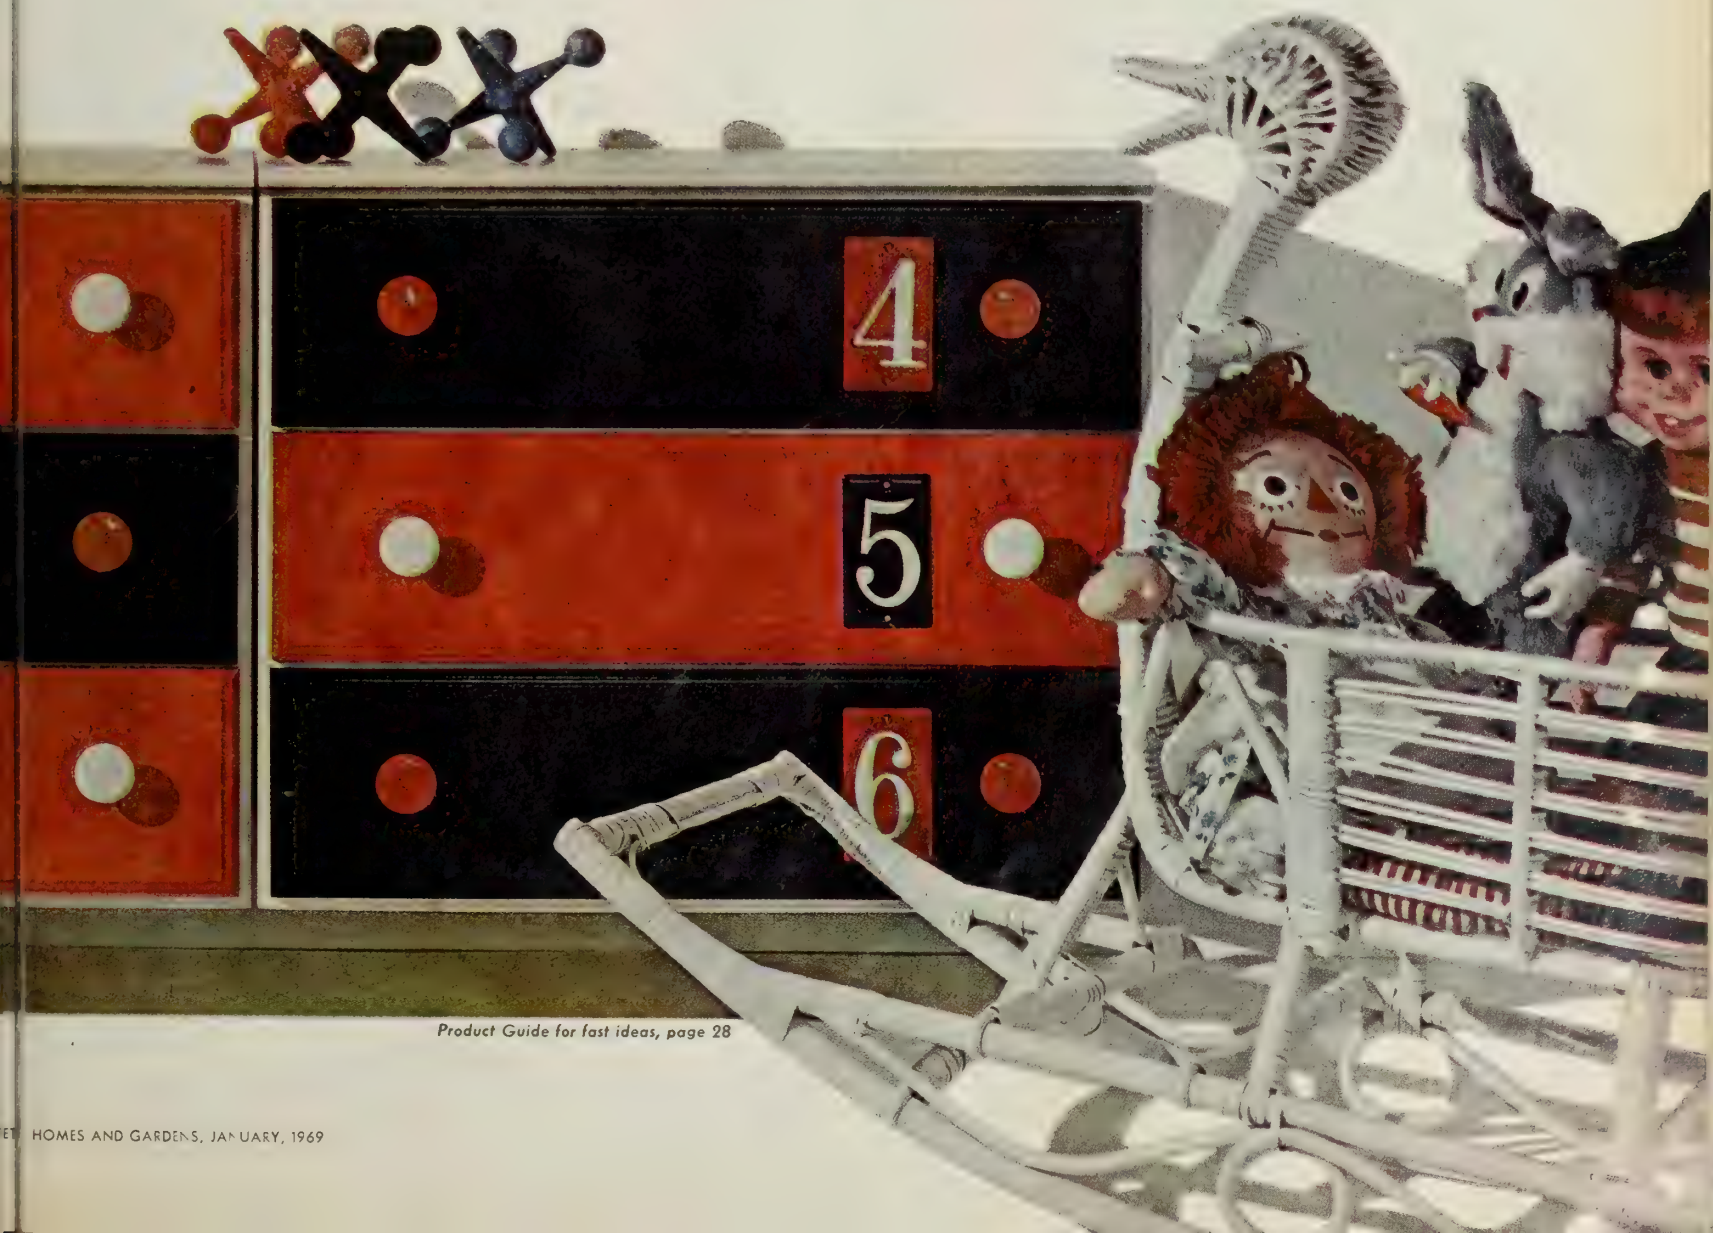

the better. Measure and drill holes in the 1x2 strips of wood at the back of the chests. Attach chests to wall with long wood screws. When paint is thoroughly dry, replace the drawers in the chests. Attach big, bold numerals to the drawers with small screws.

Ight: Combine an unfinished parson's table with pressure-sensitive foil paper and you'll have an endlessly useful odd table in practically no time. Start by giving the table a coat of clear shellac sealer to help the paper adhere. Cut the paper to fit the four sides of each leg, and apply. Next step: cut paper the thickness of the table, plus an inch—so you can overlap a half inch on top of the table and a half inch under the top. The last step is to cut a piece of the paper the exact size of the tabletop, and apply.

Left: With ready-carved trim, you can quickly make a run-of-the-mill door look regal. The variety of motifs, shapes, and sizes available today makes it easy to work up a distinctive design. To achieve the wood-grained effect, apply stain, paint, or antique finish with brush, cloth, or spray. Glue or nail the moldings in place (use adhesive if your door happens to be hollow core).

For the handsome door at left, you'll need three medallions, each 7 inches in diameter. Miter quarter circles at the corners to fit straight strips. For the door above left, use a 7x15-inch rectangular plaque in the center and surround with strips that come in 24- or 36-inch lengths and 1½- and 2¾-inch widths. To duplicate the door above right, use rows of 15-inch squares.

Right Below: In a weekend, you can make your deserving dog's life a lot brighter with an elegant A-frame house, complete with wall-to-wall carpeting. To build it, you'll need nine perforated metal angle strips (the kind used for shelving) cut to 36-inch lengths, plus some ¾-inch plywood. Hinge one side panel to provide easy access for cleaning. When winter comes, add the last side panel to make the house snug and warm. Cover the floor with plush but practical indoor/outdoor carpet tiles.

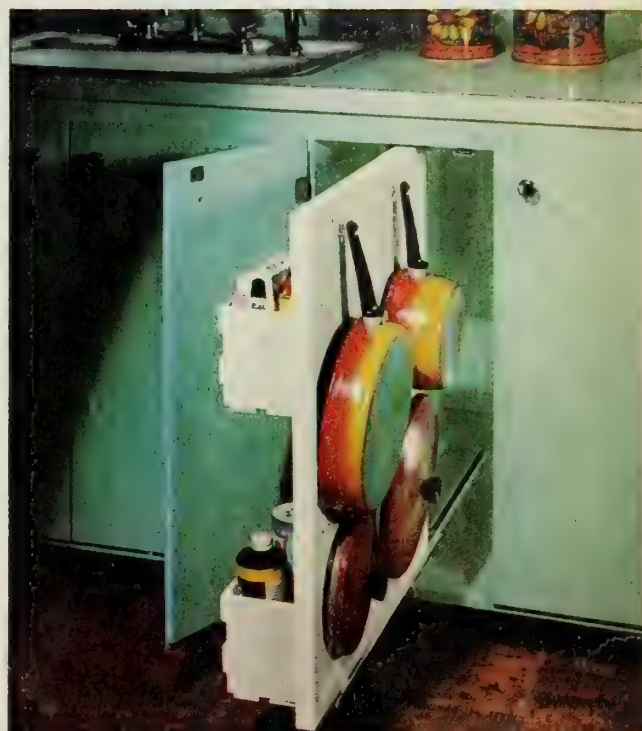

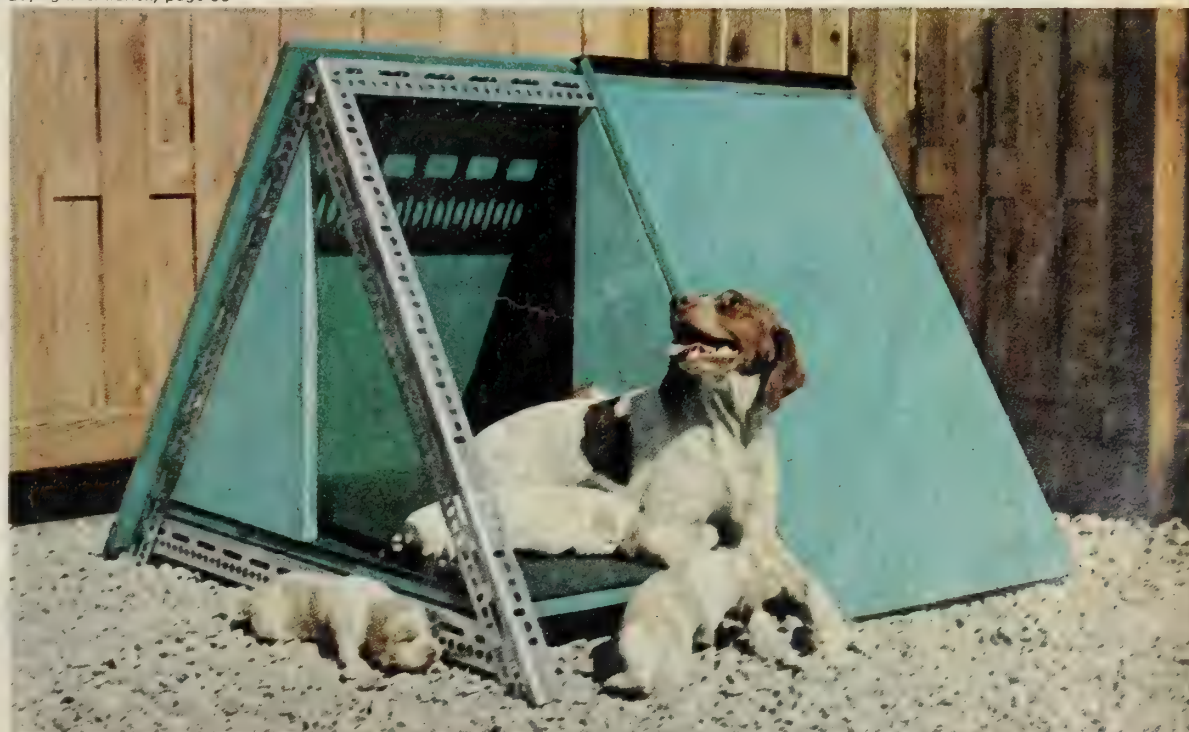

Right: Create a colorful window-wide mobile with felt triangles, squares, and circles. First cut out cardboard shapes desired. Glue felt pieces to each side of the cardboard. Then line up alternate colors and shapes on fish wire and tie in a row on a brass rod. Use this same technique for the matching valance.

Center: Add storage space on the double with this compact kitchen cabinet organizer. Fasten an extension slide on the bottom, a wood guide at the top. Frame perforated hardboard with 1x¾-inch pieces, then screw to extension slide. Add shelves on one side of the board with ½-inch plywood ends; ¼x1½-inch batten strips. You can tailor the overall dimensions to suit your space. Paint the unit to complement your kitchen color scheme, or use colored hardboard.

en if you think you're all thumbs, you easily perform all sorts of decorative tricks with plastic tape. Try these five as for starters:

Left: Want to dramatize a drab door? Work out a smart basket-weave motif with two sizes of plastic tape. First, paint the door any color you like. Then select two contrasting colors of tape, one 1/2 inch wide, the other 1 1/2 inches wide. Measure and mark the door in any pattern that strikes your fancy. Start in one corner and unroll tape carefully as you weave the strips over and under, in a basket-weave design.

Right: Bright idea for travelers! Positively identify your luggage with colorful plastic tape. Try initials, brilliant bands, or scale flowers. Pull off when you use and create another design—the tape leaves no marks on luggage.

Below: Adding a shuffleboard to your recreation room is child's play when you work with handy plastic tape. Use 1 1/2-inch tape for the shuffleboard design and contrasting 3/4-inch tape for the king-numerals.

Now: Why not put flowers on the table for your next picnic? And while you're at it, sprinkle a few posies on the benches. For stems, place strips of 3/4-inch tape in desired positions. Apply several strips of 1 1/2-inch tape side by side for leaves, flowers, butterflies. Then cut tape to the desired shapes with a razor blade or craft knife.

At: "Turn on" a floor lamp with tape. A green thumb is required to grow the flamboyant long-stemmed beauties. Use some 3/4-inch plastic tape in a variety of glowing colors. To achieve the burst effect of the blossoms, cut the tape into different lengths.

FAST IDEAS

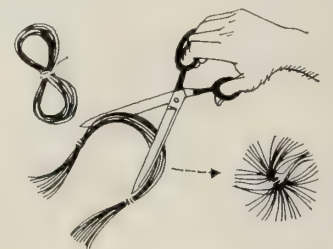

Left: Tailor a closet in one afternoon with prefabricated stacking drawers and bi-fold doors. First remove the sliding doors from a standard bedroom closet. Pile up as many drawers as you need—interlocking mortises hold the units together. To support drawers and shelves, toenail plywood panels to floor and ceiling. (Or attach tension spring units to top of side panels; mount in place.) Fasten shelves and drawers to panels.

Far Right Below: Parlay a pile of boxes into a handsome storage unit. Each box is made of $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch plywood (or use pressed paper) 18 inches high and 18 inches deep. Using two designs in pressure-sensitive paper, cover some of boxes on the outside, others inside. Spray paint surfaces not covered with paper.

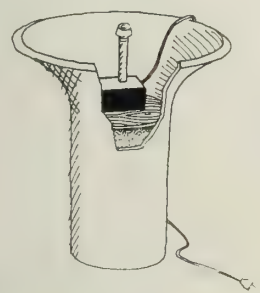

Near Right: Work wonders with a window shade, using a speeded-up version of hand embroidery. You fashion the flowers from whole skeins of embroidery floss. Measure so top flowers are about ten inches above bottom edge of shade (coarsely woven shade is best). Clip entire skein of embroidery floss at each end for flowers, then cut in half again, making four sections. Tack one section in place, then put second portion at right angle over first and stitch to shade. Spread ends to make a circular flower. Keep end in place with glue. Tack horizontal row of floss above hemline at base of shade.

BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS, JANUARY,

ght: Here's an ingenious way to give our garden a splashy focal point. Start with a trio of ceramic planters. The largest (35 inches tall) holds the fountain. Cut a platform from one-inch lumber to match the inside diameter of the planter seven inches below the proposed water line. Caulk around platform, cover with per glass cloth, and brush with liquid sin. Excavate a 10x5-foot area four inches deep, frame with 2x4 redwood boards stained charcoal gray, and fill with crushed white rock. Set planters and fountain in place. Center fountain ray unit and plug in.

FAST IDEAS

Stitch up a stunning flower garden in record time! The speedy secret of our stitch-by-number technique: those intricate-looking posies are done on your sewing machine, with regular mercerized thread. Start by stitching our perennials on burlap or linen to frame as a group. Then try these motifs on more ambitious projects, from bedspreads and dust ruffles to slipcovers and screens.

The first step is to transfer the pattern to a background fabric. For appliques, choose fabric with body (like felt) so it will move easily under the needle without crumpling or puckering. Pin or baste flowers corresponding to numbers in the pattern onto your background fabric.

Now set your sewing machine for full-width satin stitch according to your manual. (If appliqueing by hand, use stem stitch or outline stitch as indicated for machine sewing.) Set number of stitches per inch at 20, then start sewing at slow speed to outline outer edges of flowers. For contrast, enrich a dark applique with a lighter shade thread; use a darker shade thread on light applique. (The bobbin thread can be any color.) Sew a variety of stylized stitches for center line on all leaves and on both Dogwood and Black-eyed Susan petals. For a shaded effect, like that in the Roses, Carnations, and Wild Flowers, use both light and dark thread. To finish, press petals with steam iron or damp cloth on the wrong side.

Left: Turn a door into a king-size bulletin board for your child's room. It's easy when you use indoor-outdoor carpet tiles and spray adhesive. Just spray adhesive on the back of the tiles and apply the tiles to the door in any pattern you choose. We offer three basic designs as thought-starters. For the one in the photograph, use two rows of charcoal gray and one row of alternating light and dark blue tiles which have been cut into three-inch widths. To cut the tile, use a sharp knife or scissors.

Left Below: All it takes to transform a fireplace into a focal point is a few hours' time and some lightweight synthetic plaques that look for all the world like intricately carved wood. The plaque molding needs no cutting, so you can fit the pieces into place in a couple of hours. For a standard-size fireplace, use two sizes of plaques in different finishes. Start by painting the brick black. Then place four 11x26-inch golden chestnut plaques lengthwise, four upright. Anchor the corners with weathered black 9x9-inch square plaques. Now hang a game bird plaque in the same golden chestnut finish above the fireplace.

Above: Add fast color to your terrace, steps, or patio with brick-collared nursery flats filled with blooming annuals. You can get the 16x20-inch flats of bedding plants in full bloom through your nurseryman. Surround and conceal the wooden sides of the flats with dark gray concrete bricks (size 2x4x8 inches).

How to: This divider fits right into today's mobile living. You can move it easily around the house—or unscrew the shelves and fold it flat for a long-distance haul. To make it, cut seven 16x72-inch panels from three sheets of 48x96-inch plywood that's $\frac{3}{4}$ inch thick. Cut shelves from the 1-inch leftover plywood. Cover panels with vinyl-coated paper. Join screen panels with 1x1 $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch butt hinges. Now fasten triangle shelves from behind panels with wood screws.

Light: Create a beautifully coordinated effect with the help of decorative tape. It's screen-printed in a wide variety of designs, and it's applicable just about anywhere. Here it's used on a ready-made screen, a tablecloth, sofa, and pillows. Simply sew the tape to the fabric. Spray adhesive to apply tape to screen.

Left: In about 60 minutes, you can make a burlap screen look smashing. Cut a circular stencil out of cardboard. Lay the screen on a flat surface. Then mask around the stencil with newspaper, and spray-paint your circles on the screen.

Now: Spruce up a room with dash-stripes of velvety nylon ribbon. Use a snap with today's variety of trouble-saving tapes. For the window shade, use a pressure-sensitive tape; for table cover and slipper, apply a heat-sensitive tape with a hot iron. Before applying tape, draw light guidelines or, in the case of fabrics, tack in place with a few basting stitches.

Right: Here's a surprisingly easy way to dress up your bathroom. That lustrous paneling is prefinished and has slots in the grooves to receive shelf brackets. Shelves are prefinished, too. Attach 1x2 furring strips on 16-inch centers. Apply panels with nails or adhesive. (Seal with silicone caulk where paneling meets tub.) Last, slip brackets in place and put up the shelves.

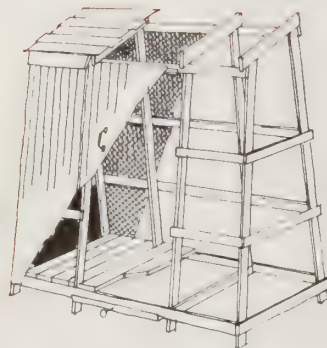

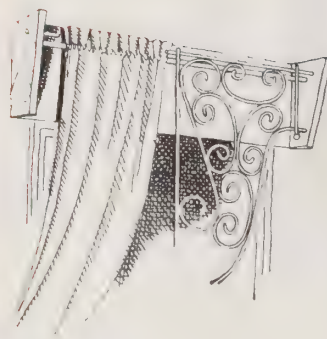

Right below: Play up your bathroom with plaid! Install fascia over tub and hang two supersize towels lengthwise on shower rod with clip-on hooks. Make cafe curtains from a pair of face towels—clip selvage edge of towel width to cafe rod. Accessorize towel bars with matching plaid and solid-color towels.

Left: Turn a brass headboard into a rococo cornice. Construct a plywood backplate with side projections and fasten to wall at ceiling height. Attach a $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch brass rod and shirr on draperies. Then unscrew and remove side posts from headboard, invert, and secure to the plywood backplate.

Left Below: This new-shape storage shed gives you lots of space, needs no finishing. It's built of weather-resistant redwood and striped translucent fiber glass panels. Start with the wood framework. Apply beveled siding for roof, 2x6s for floor. Trim front fiber glass panels and cut ends to fit; for back and front, drill holes and nail precut panels in place. Use standard aluminum angles to make the door removable.

Whether you're a busy homemaker or a working wife, you'll welcome these ten easier-than-ever appetizer, salad, entree, and dessert recipes. They've been chosen especially for your bustling hurry-up world!

Photographs: Snook

Cran-Mandarin Toss (Right)

*French salad dressing mix jellied cranberry sauce
mandarin oranges*

Prepare 1 envelope creamy French salad dressing mix according to package directions, adding $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon grated orange peel; chill. In large salad bowl, toss together 8 cups torn mixed salad greens, and one 11-ounce can mandarin orange sections, drained. Cut 1 chilled 8-ounce can jellied cranberry sauce into cubes; add to salad and mix gently. Pass dressing. Makes 8 servings.

artichoke hearts
flaked tuna*

Combine one 1-pound can whole green beans, drained, one 15-ounce can artichoke hearts, drained and quartered, one $6\frac{1}{2}$ - or 7-ounce can tuna, drained and flaked, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sliced pitted ripe olives, 2 tablespoons sliced pimiento, 2 tablespoons anchovy fillets, and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup Italian salad dressing. Toss lightly. Serve in lettuce cups. To each serving, add 3 or 4 drained canned tomato slices. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

blue cheese—cream cheese
pimiento cheese spread—deviled ham*

Cut tops from 3 large green peppers; remove seeds and membranes from shells; discard stems. Finely chop tops to equal 2 tablespoons; set aside. Fill each pepper cup with a dip: Spaghetti Dip: combine 1 cup dairy sour cream, the reserved chopped pepper, and 4 teaspoons dry spaghetti sauce mix. Bacon-Blue Dip: Combine 4 ounces blue cheese, crumbled, one 3-ounce package softened cream cheese, 1 tablespoon dry white wine, and 1 teaspoon instant minced onion; beat till fluffy. Stir in $\frac{1}{4}$ cup dairy sour cream and chill. Before serving, stir in 4 strips bacon, crisp-cooked, drained, and crumbled. (Or use $\frac{1}{4}$ cup bacon-flavor protein bits.) Deviled Dip: With electric mixer, blend together one 5-ounce jar pimiento-cheese spread, one $4\frac{1}{2}$ -ounce can deviled ham, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes, 1 teaspoon instant minced onion, 4 drops bottled hot pepper sauce. Chill. Serve with corn chips and vegetable kabob dippers: green pepper diamonds, whole mushrooms, paper-thin cucumber slices, cherry tomatoes.

GREAT DATE DESSERTS

What better way to climax a meal than with a delectable date dessert? This richly sweet, exotic fruit is good so many ways: in cookies, cakes, candies, sauces, or all by itself. Here we show three new ways to star dates—you'll want to try them all.

Photographs Photography Inc.

Date Rice Fluff

A quick dessert for date fans—

- 1 3- or 3¼-ounce package vanilla pudding mix
- ½ cup packaged precooked rice
- 1½ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup snipped dates
- ½ teaspoon shredded lemon peel
- ½ cup whipping cream, whipped

In medium saucepan, combine pudding mix, rice, and salt; gradually stir in milk. Cook according to directions on pudding mix package. Stir in dates and lemon peel. Cover and chill; stir several times while chilling. Just before serving, fold whipped cream into pudding mixture. Pile in sherbet glasses; garnish with sliced dates. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Date-Nut Ice Cream Pie

This make-ahead festive pie is an easy way to delight guests at a bridge party—

- 1½ cups vanilla wafer crumbs (38 wafers)
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 1 cup snipped dates
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup water
- ½ cup chopped pecans
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened

To make crust, combine vanilla wafer crumbs and butter or margarine. Press into 9-inch pie plate; chill. In saucepan, combine dates, sugar, and water. Heat to boiling; simmer 5 minutes. Add pecans and lemon juice to hot date mixture; chill. Spread half of date mixture in crust; cover with half the ice cream. Return to freezer to freeze ice cream. Repeat with remaining date filling and ice cream; freeze. Remove from freezer 5 minutes before serving.

Orange Date Torte

A tangy citrus glaze enhances the flavor of this moist date cake—

- 1½ cups snipped dates (½ pound)
- ¼ cup hot water
- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup buttermilk
- ½ cup chopped California walnuts
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons orange juice
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine dates and hot water; set aside. In mixing bowl, cream together the 1 cup sugar and the butter or margarine. Beat in eggs and orange peel. Sift together flour, soda, and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with buttermilk. Beat well after each addition; stir in date mixture and walnuts. Pour into a greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan; bake in moderate oven (350°) for 35 to 40 minutes. Remove from oven and prick cake with wooden pick or meat fork. Combine the ½ cup sugar and the orange and lemon juices; stir to dissolve; drizzle over warm cake. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

PRIZE TESTED RECIPES

QUICK COOKING WITH PUDDING OR PIE FILLING

Chicken Aloha (Above)

This month's winner—chicken with pineapple pie filling—

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1 cup chopped celery | $\frac{1}{2}$ of a 1-pound 6-ounce can |
| 1 green pepper, cut in thin strips ($\frac{3}{4}$ cup) | pineapple pie filling (1 cup)* |
| 2 tablespoons cooking oil | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water |
| 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup | 2 tablespoons soy sauce |
| | 2 cups cubed cooked chicken |
| | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup slivered almonds, toasted |

In a saucepan, cook celery and green pepper in hot oil till tender-crisp. Stir in soup, pie filling, water, and soy sauce. Add chicken. Cook, stirring occasionally, till hot. Serve over hot cooked rice. Sprinkle almonds over each serving. Makes 6 servings.

*Use remaining pie filling as topper for cake or ice cream.

Creamy Waldorf Salad (Below)

A lemon-lime flavored version of a classic favorite—

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 6-ounce package lime-flavored gelatin | 2 cups diced apple (about 2 medium apples) |
| 1 can lemon pudding | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped walnuts |

Dissolve gelatin in 2 cups boiling water. Stir in $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups cold water. Chill till almost set. In mixer bowl, combine pudding and chilled gelatin; beat 2 minutes with electric mixer. Stir in apple and walnuts. Pour into 8-cup mold; chill 4 to 5 hours, till set. Garnish with poached apple slices, if desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Kent, Connecticut*

Double Butterscotch Crescents (Below)

Here's a flavor bonus for butterscotch fans—

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 4-ounce package butterscotch pudding mix | 2 teaspoons salt |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups milk | 5 to $5\frac{1}{2}$ cups sifted all-purpose flour |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine | 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted |
| 2 envelopes active dry yeast | $\frac{2}{3}$ cup brown sugar |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup warm water | $\frac{2}{3}$ cup flaked coconut |
| 2 eggs | $\frac{1}{3}$ cup chopped pecans |

Prepare butterscotch pudding according to package directions, using the $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups milk. Remove from heat and stir in the $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine. Cool to lukewarm, stirring once or twice. Dissolve dry yeast in warm water; stir into cooled pudding. Beat in eggs and salt. Gradually add just enough flour to make a moderately soft dough. Turn out onto floured surface and knead 5 to 10 minutes, till dough is smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; turn once to grease surface. Let rise in warm place till double, 1 to $1\frac{1}{2}$ hours. Punch down; divide into four parts. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Stir together the 4 tablespoons butter, the brown sugar, coconut, and pecans. Roll one part of dough out to a circle 12 inches in diameter. Spread with one-fourth of the brown sugar mixture. Cut into 12 triangles. Starting at outside edge, roll each triangle to its center point. Place, point down, on greased baking sheet. Repeat with remaining dough and filling. Let crescents rise till almost double, about 45 minutes. Bake in moderate oven (375°) for 12 to 15 minutes, till browned. Cool on rack. Makes 4 dozen rolls.

WHY ARE YOU SO TIRED?

experience from one much-needed rest quickly to another. Although studies have shown that less than one-fifth of chronically tired persons face such a psychoneurotic fate, they too need at least practical psychiatric help.

But eight out of ten tired persons burdened by emotional problems suffer only mild nervous exhaustion. They're comparable to a ship that has run aground because of stormy weather, or has struck a sand bar because it is overlaid. A shift in the sand, a change in the tide, or the unloading of the cargo enables them to proceed again on the voyage of life. And, more often than not, they can become unstuck through their own efforts.

A century ago, nervous exhaustion was considered to be a weakness of the nerves—and the cure was prolonged bed rest. Now, doctors know that the nerves are not in any sense diseased and rest cannot help.

Today's doctors also know that good, hard, efficient work, whether physical or mental, never in itself produced one single case of nervous exhaustion.

WHY ARE SOME PEOPLE NEVER TIRED?

Energetic persons have learned to cope successfully with the four major causes of lost energy. They are:

● Boredom—This is far and away the leading cause of common fatigue. Boredom could be the result of an unchallenging job, or too few friends to stimulate meaningful social activities, or repetitive personal patterns and habits which fail to move you to exciting action.

● Fear—It is one of the most difficult causes to admit. Everyone likes to believe that he is strong enough to face and fight unpleasant situations. But it's not so, for most of the chronically fatigued.

● Worry—Worriers are either living with the mistakes of the past or with the uncertainties of the future. Really gifted worriers do both. The only solution is to live in the present.

● Indecision—Few people have such good judgment that their decisions are always right—but those individuals with great energy act as if they cannot be wrong. They make their decisions, right or wrong, when situations call for them—and they have faith in each decision.

Another significant fact about exceptionally energetic people is that they really have no idea why they are immune to fatigue. Vaguely, they attribute their energy to an unusual constitution, or a regimen of some sort, or to "keeping fit." Yet a large proportion of them are of average—or even less than average—strength or health, and they pay little or no attention to keeping fit. Only one thing is certain: The action they put into their lives creates even more energy for further action. This revealing clue can help you take full advantage of the unleashed energy you possess.

HOW TO GET MORE ENERGY!

First of all, we'll assume you are in good health. Let's say you've been to the doctor and he has checked you over thoroughly—and pronounced you physically sound. Yet you're still tired.

This means you'll have to take stock of the manner in which you're living. Honestly evaluate all your activities for the past week. Most men tend to sound busier than they really are. They exaggerate the activity demanded by their occupation, by jobs around the house, by their social life. An honest audit of your work may point up a surprising amount of time spent just sitting around—talking over coffee, watching TV, really doing nothing.

For a woman who keeps house, there's no doubt that her day is filled with an endless variety of activities, ranging from deadly dull (washing dishes or clothes) to deeply significant (teaching her children). The weariness most women suffer is genuine, and it usually stems from those repetitive housework tasks which are physically exhausting and only negatively important (family life would stop dead in its tracks if they weren't done). Here the solution lies in regulating daily housework so that self-renewing energies can be diverted to lighter activities that are more productive, more relaxing, and more interesting.

Whatever your role, begin your pursuit of more energy now. It may not be easy. Yet if, even protesting every step of the way, you make an honest effort to find greater energy through greater action, it's a good bet you'll find it. ■

WIN MONEY FOR YOUR RECIPES

FAST OR FANCY FRUIT SALADS

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE to share a fast or a fancy salad idea that features fruit. Enter your favorite fruit salad today and you might be an August winner. Two Cooks-of-the-Month will receive $50 each. Four Runners-up will receive $25 each, and 12 Honor Roll winners will receive $10 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured on the Prize Tested Recipes pages next August. All 18 winners receive a framed Better Homes and Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Hints to Help You

Fast Fruit Salads could include fruit served with a special dressing or mixed with greens. Use fresh, frozen, or canned fruit to toss, arrange, mold, or freeze for your August masterpiece. Add nuts or spices for extra flavor. Hints:

*citrus slaw avocado-carrot toss pineapple snow salad peach-nut salad
berries with melon balls*

Fancy Fruit Salad might feature seldom-served fruits such as kumquats or common fruits used in a spectacular way. It could mean a glamorous fruit array or a fruit soufflé salad. You might use the shell of the fruit as a server. Hints:

cantaloupe elegante black cherry ribbon loaf spiced grapefruit cup frosted grape and plum toss peach-cream ring

QUICK ORIENTAL DINNER

Handy convenience foods let you short-cut this meal. Start with Sweet-Sour Shrimp—a combo of canned shrimp and frozen pea pods in a savory pineapple-soy sauce, served over quick-cooking rice. Add Layered Parmesan Loaf, featuring butter-parmesan-dipped refrigerated biscuits, and hot tea (the instant type, of course). Then serve delicate Brown-Eyed Susan Cookies, made from packaged biscuit mix, instant pudding mix, and chocolate-mint wafers, for the finale.

HAM DINNER ON THE DOUBLE

With the help of make-ahead foods, this dinner can be on the table in 15 minutes or less. Bake patty shells ahead, then warm in the oven while preparing the pea soup-ham-sour cream sauce for Creamy Ham Towers. Lime-flavored gelatin, applesauce, and lemon-lime carbonated beverage are all you need for Lime-Applesauce Mold; make it early in the day and chill till dinner time. For dessert, serve Quick Tortoni Cups—a freeze-ahead ice cream special.

Creamy Ham Towers

6 frozen patty shells, baked

- 1 can condensed green pea soup
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water
- 2 cups cubed cooked ham
- $\frac{1}{3}$ cup sliced ripe olives
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 2 tablespoons snipped parsley
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup dairy sour cream

Warm patty shells in slow oven (325°) for 5 minutes. Meanwhile, in medium saucepan or skillet, blend together soup and water; heat to boiling. Stir in ham, olives, pimiento, and parsley. Cook over medium-low heat till mixture is heated through. Stir in sour cream; heat through but do not boil. To serve, spoon ham mixture into warm baked patty shells. Makes 6 servings.

Lime-Applesauce Mold

- 1 1-pound can applesauce
- 1 3-ounce package lime-flavored gelatin
- 1 7-ounce bottle lemon-lime carbonated beverage (about 1 cup)

Combine applesauce and gelatin in saucepan. Cook and stir till gelatin dissolves. Cool to room temperature. Gently stir in carbonated beverage. Turn into a 3-cup mold. Chill till firm. Makes 6 servings.

Quick Tortonì Cups

- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened
 - $\frac{1}{2}$ cup slivered almonds, toasted
 - $\frac{7}{8}$ -ounce milk chocolate candy bar
 - 2 tablespoons chopped maraschino cherries
 - $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon brandy flavoring
 - $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon grated orange peel
 - $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- Stir together all ingredients. Pile into 10 individual paper bake cups in muffin pans. Freeze till firm. Top each with a maraschino cherry flower. Makes 10 servings.

Sweet-Sour Shrimp

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup chicken broth
- $\frac{2}{3}$ cup pineapple juice
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup vinegar
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 7-ounce package frozen Chinese pea pods, thawed
- 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ -ounce cans (about 2 cups) shrimp, drained
- 2 to 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups hot cooked rice

In saucepan, blend cornstarch and sugar; stir in chicken broth. Add pineapple juice, vinegar, soy sauce, and butter or margarine. Cook and stir till mixture comes to boiling; cover and simmer 5 minutes more. Add pea pods and shrimp; heat through. Serve on hot cooked rice. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Layered Parmesan Loaf

- 1 package refrigerated biscuits (10 biscuits)
 - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
 - $\frac{1}{4}$ cup grated parmesan cheese
- Dip biscuits in melted butter or margarine, then in cheese. Arrange, overlapping, in 2 rows on baking sheet. Bake in very hot oven (475°) for 8 to 10 minutes. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

Brown-Eyed Susan Cookies

- 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups packaged biscuit mix
- 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ - or 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ -ounce packages instant vanilla pudding mix
- $\frac{1}{3}$ cup cooking oil
- 2 eggs

Solid chocolate-mint wafers
Combine biscuit mix, pudding mix, cooking oil, and eggs; mix well. Drop from teaspoon onto ungreased cookie sheet. Top each with a chocolate-mint wafer; press to flatten. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 12 to 14 minutes. Makes about 31 $\frac{1}{2}$ dozen cookies.

Hunt's Tomato Sauce with Tomato Bits makes Wednesdays special

Because it makes 15-minute spaghetti sauce taste like it was simmered all day.

We put luscious little bits of our big plump tomatoes right into Hunt's sauce. Then we added our herbs and spices, and did all the simmering for you. So you can have a spaghetti sauce that looks like you added fresh tomatoes to it. And tastes like it simmered all day. But you can have it in 15 minutes. How's that for making Wednesdays special?

Hunt's simmered Spaghetti Sauce

- 1 lb. lean ground beef
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 2 (8-oz.) or 1 (15-oz.) can Hunt's Tomato Sauce with Tomato Bits
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teas. oregano
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teas. salt $\frac{1}{4}$ teas. pepper

Lightly brown beef in large skillet. Add onion and garlic and cook until tender; drain fat. Add Hunt's sauce, water, oregano, salt and pepper. Simmer 15 minutes. Serve over hot spaghetti. 4 servings.

Undercover Meatloaf

- 2 lbs. lean ground beef
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 egg
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup instant potato flakes
- $1\frac{1}{2}$ teas. salt
- 2 teas. Worcestershire sauce
- 2 (8-oz.) or 1 (15-oz.) can Hunt's Tomato Sauce
- 1 can refrigerated crescent rolls

Combine all ingredients except rolls with 1 can Hunt's sauce. Shape into 13" x 3" loaf in shallow baking pan; bake at 350°F., 45 min.; remove loaf to oven-proof plate. Separate rolls; place 6 across loaf; alternating triangles so loaf is covered. Pull remaining 2 rolls into long ropes; place around bottom of loaf. Bake 15 min. Pour on remaining Hunt's sauce last 5 min. 8 servings.

Chicken Risotto

- $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. pork sausage links, cut into chunks
- 1 frying chicken, cut up
- 1 small green pepper, chopped
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 (8-oz.) cans Hunt's Tomato Sauce
- 1 cup water 1 teas. salt
- 1 cup raw regular rice
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Brown sausage in large skillet; remove. In same skillet brown chicken. Add green pepper, onion and garlic; cook until soft. Drain fat. Add remaining ingredients except cheese. Cover and simmer 45 min.; stir occasionally. Sprinkle with cheese. 6 servings.

GOOD NEWS FOR MEN!

Here's a selection of new products especially chosen to help make your "Fast Ideas" projects go even faster.

Stick 'em up in a hurry with this latest glue gun device. It features trigger control, choice of three heats and four nozzles, and is designed for 60-second bonding of a wide range of materials. The hot-melt, waterproof adhesive hardens in seconds so no clamping is needed. This fast bonding feature does limit use to jobs that can be completed rapidly.

Makes short work of small cabinet making, upholstering, mending, and caulking. Can be used to bond most porous materials such as leather, paper, wood, fabric, and plastics.

Model 250 Thermogrip electric glue gun $22.95 in hdwe. depts. Consumer Products Center, USM Corporation, 221 Oley St., Reading, Pa. 19601.

Zip through tough cutting jobs with this rugged rod saw. It even lets you cut materials you thought were uncuttable.

The super-tough blade is composed of hundreds of tungsten carbide particles fused to a slender wire rod. The resulting round hacksaw blade will cut ceramic or quarry tile, the hardest steels, masonry, marble, slate, glass, and the tough new plastics. Not intended for normal hacksaw use on soft metals such as brass or copper.

As part of our testing, we cut off the jagged, broken edges of an expensive bud vase. The result, a shorter but usable vase. The blade fits any standard hacksaw frame.

Remington Rod Saw $2 in hdwe. depts. Remington Arms Co., Bridgeport, Conn. 06602.

Get professional-looking riveting jobs every time with this new riveter and its unique expanding rivets.

As pressure is applied, the rivet stems expand to assure a snug fastening every time, even in oversized holes. This expanding feature also reduces the number of rivet sizes you will need to keep on hand—four sizes replace 14. And the installed rivet has a finished appearance on both sides.

Can be used for all blind or exposed riveting. The four-way tool head accepts all four rivet sizes for riveting 1/16- to 1/2-inch material.

Vaco Pow'Riveter $4.95 in stores. Vaco Products Co., 510 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610.

Wall-covering removal job coming up? Slip this special roller cover on any standard nine-inch paint roller and speed up the job.

Just dip it in a warm water/soap solution and roll it over the wall covering to be removed. Hundreds of small teeth perforate the wall covering, and simultaneously the sponge sections force water through the perforations to soften the paste. In about five minutes, paper will peel off in large sheets.

Works even where paper is several layers thick, painted over, or plastic coated. Does not damage wall surfaces.

Perf-A-Roller $4.98, 7-inch version $3.98 in paint depts. or from Warren Pressure Rollers, 3015 Southwest Dr., Los Angeles, Calif. 90043.

Slick things up around your house, car, or workshop with an application of this multi-purpose lubricant.

It's an all-weather lubricant for use on rubber, metal, wood, glass, and plastic. Also provides excellent protection against rust and corrosion. The lubricant has dozens of automotive lubricating applications and excellent for preventing battery terminal corrosion. Around the home, it slicks up drawers and windows and lubricates and prevents rust on garden and sports equipment.

Because we are so eager for you to examine this 5-volume treasury

Keep one book of favorite recipes free ...plus a check for 10¢ to $1,000!

"What's this?" we can hear you exclaiming. "I get to keep, free of charge, one of the cookbooks in your five-volume set of favorite recipes just for examining the set? And you're going to send me a check for my trouble besides? Maybe even as much as $1,000? Is this any way to run a publishing business?"

But we think our offer makes sense. Put yourself in our shoes and see if you don't agree with us.

Suppose you were a leading cookbook publisher who had sifted through your collection of 400,000 outstanding recipes by America's best home cooks and chosen 4,000 of the most interesting and unusual of all — including hundreds of blue-ribbon prize-winners from state and county fairs?

Suppose you published these 4,000 prized recipes in a treasure box of 5 volumes with large readable type and vivid color photographs?

How could you convince cooking enthusiasts everywhere that this is no ordinary hodgepodge of recipes, but a priceless collector's item that could serve as a lifetime fount of cooking inspiration?

You'd make an offer so tempting that any woman who loves to cook just couldn't resist sending for the set. You'd figure that once she saw these books, paged through them, cooked from them — she'd never be willing to part with them.

That's why we're making what may seem like an impossibly generous offer. Past experience has shown it's the best way to get this set into the hands of women who will love it most.

All you do is detach and mail the numbered reply card bound in here. The number on your card (no one else has it) matches the number we've allocated to a check we're holding for you. A check drawn on the First National Bank of Louisville, Kentucky, for a "surprise" sum ranging from $.10 to $1,000. We'll send it to you as soon as we receive your card claiming it.

Along with your check, we'll send you our 5-volume Favorite Recipes of America Treasure Box. (Unless you don't want us to, in which case you can still claim your check by mailing the coupon instead of the card.) And once you start browsing through this almost inexhaustible library of wonderful cooking ideas, you'll see why we were so eager for you to examine it.

From state and county fairs, we've gotten prize winners like Crumbly Apple Pie, which won for Mrs. J. W. Blount of Peru, Kansas, a Grand Prize at the Chataqua County Fair. The Chicken and Curried Rice Casserole of Mary Lee Moyers, Hamburg, Arkansas, which won first place in the county "Miss Fluffy Rice" contest. Cottage Cheese Biscuits, Mrs. Florence Popoff's winning entry at the Monterey, California, County Fair.

The wives of governors and presidents have graciously contributed recipes which have delighted their distinguished guests. Mrs. Roger Branigan, wife of the Governor of Indiana, tells how she makes her famous Mrs. Branigan's Casserole, all bubbly and fragrant with hamburger, onion, and cheese. Mrs. Hulett C. Smith, wife of the Governor of West Virginia, gives you her special way of making Mrs. Smith's Vinaigrette Salad Dressing, with its intriguing little bits of scallions, capers, chives, and ground pepper floating in vinegar and oil. Mrs. Paul Fannin, wife of the Governor of Arizona, lets us in on her secret of making chocolate chip cookies.

The wives of military officers turned out to be a particularly rich source of great recipes. Because these gallant gals must follow their husbands to posts all over the world, they get lots of opportunities to swap recipes — and learn how to do wonders with whatever's available. Mrs. A. R. Mason, Williams Air Force Base, Arizona, shows how she adds interest to asparagus stalks by covering them with a fluffy cheese soufflé and baking them. Mrs. Joseph W. Fitzpatrick, Fort Knox, Kentucky, turns ordinary pork chops into an exotic delight by cooking them with lemon peel, cinnamon, and—of all things—cherries.

Home economics teachers contributed their most favorite dishes of all, the ones they prize above all others when they cook at home for their own families and friends. Mrs. Vaudene Pruitt of Mercedes, Texas, gave us one of the most interesting ways of cooking baked ham we've ever seen, coated with and swimming in onions, celery, mustard seed, sweet pickle relish, parsley, Tabasco sauce, apricot preserves, and a few other secret ingredients. Jean Ray of Savannah, Georgia, has come up with a simple, quick way to add excitement to frozen peas — she cooks them with sections of orange and a little orange juice.

Each volume is beautifully printed, bound to lie flat on your kitchen counter, with a happy calico check washable binding that resists splattering and splashing. Volume I covers Desserts and includes party beverages and special holiday desserts. Volume II covers meat, including seafood, poultry, outdoor cookery, and game. Volume III covers Salads, and includes dips and appetizers. Volume IV has Casserole dishes and includes breads and top-of-the-stove dishes. Volume V, on Vegetables, includes fruits, relishes, jams, jellies, and preserves, many of them blue-ribbon winners. Together the 5 volumes form a handsome boxed cooking library that could provide all the fool-proof recipes you'd ever need for a lifetime of marvelous home cooking.

To receive all 5 volumes and your surprise check for 10¢ to $1,000, just mail the card. Browse through all 5 volumes and try some of the recipes. Then if you decide to keep the entire set, it's yours for just $4.95 plus postage and handling, then $4.50 a month for two more months. That's about 3 recipes per 1¢ — a pretty good bargain in any woman's language. Or you may return 4 volumes without paying or owing anything—and, as we promised, keep one volume anyway, as a token of our appreciation for giving the set a fair trial.

SPEEDY SOUP SUPPERS

A delicious hot supper or lunch is no farther than your freezer or pantry shelf when you keep canned soups on hand. It's fun to "invent" a new soup—blend two kinds together, add herbs, cheese, or bacon bits. Float something crisp on a cream soup—like croutons or popcorn. Each of the recipes below is a quick two-soup special.

Photographs: Scott

Potato-Pea Potage

Popcorn or cereal snacks make dandy "floaters"—

1 can frozen condensed green pea with ham soup	1½ soup cans (2 cups) water
1 can frozen condensed cream of potato soup	4 ounces sharp process American cheese, shredded (1 cup)

In saucepan, combine all ingredients. Cook and stir over medium heat till heated through. Makes 4 servings.

Quick Shrimp Chowder

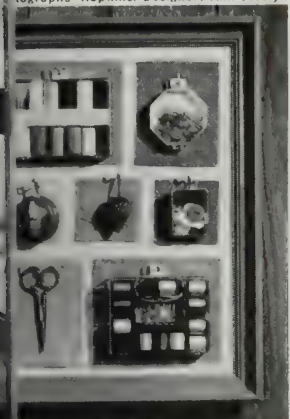

No one will guess you took a shortcut here—

1 small onion, finely chopped (½ cup)	1 can condensed clam chowder
1 tablespoon butter or margarine	1½ soup cans (2 cups) water
1 can condensed cream of celery soup	1 4½- or 5-ounce can shrimp, drained
	1 tablespoon snipped parsley

In saucepan, cook onion in butter or margarine till tender. Blend in remaining ingredients; simmer about 5 minutes to blend flavors. Makes 4 servings.

"Why didn't you make me this before?" It's so easy, why not?
All you do is top a baked potato with this easy guacamole:

Mix a ripe California avocado, peeled and mashed, with 1 tbsp. onion soup mix from an envelope, ½ tbsp. lemon juice,
and 2 tbsp. sour cream.
That makes almost a cup.
Cover and chill it.

The half-hot, half-cold taste's

And listen.
When you're serving avocado potato, skip the fact the fruit's full of 14 minerals and 11 vitamins.
The taste's too great to need that health-talk.

TWO HOT COFFEE SPECIALTIES

Just plain coffee is one of the world's favorite and most sociable beverages. But it also lends itself to a variety of exotic hot drink specialties. These two coffee fix-ups add an elegant—but simple—final touch to any dinner party. Try them, too, when you invite a few friends in for after-the-theater (or after-the-game) refreshments.

Cafe de Belgique

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup whipping cream 1 stiffly beaten egg white
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon vanilla Strong hot coffee

Combine cream and vanilla; beat till soft peaks form. Fold into beaten egg white. Fill each of 4 coffee cups about $\frac{1}{4}$ full of cream mixture. Pour in coffee. Serve at once. Pass sugar; sweeten to taste. Makes 4 servings.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Spiced Mocha

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup whipping cream $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon instant coffee 6 tablespoons chocolate powder syrup
1 tablespoon sugar Hot coffee

In a small mixer bowl, combine whipping cream, instant coffee powder, sugar, cinnamon, and a dash of nutmeg; whip till stiff peaks form. Put 1 tablespoon of the chocolate syrup in each of 6 coffee cups. Fill cups with hot coffee; stir gently to mix. Top with a generous spoonful of the spiced whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

A LIVING ROOM THAT GREW

Even a small addition can do wonders for the way a house works. The owners of this two-bedroom home needed more space for entertaining, plus sheltered outdoor living. So they built out to the rear with a 9x24-foot extension of the living room, and added a 16x19-foot deck beyond that.

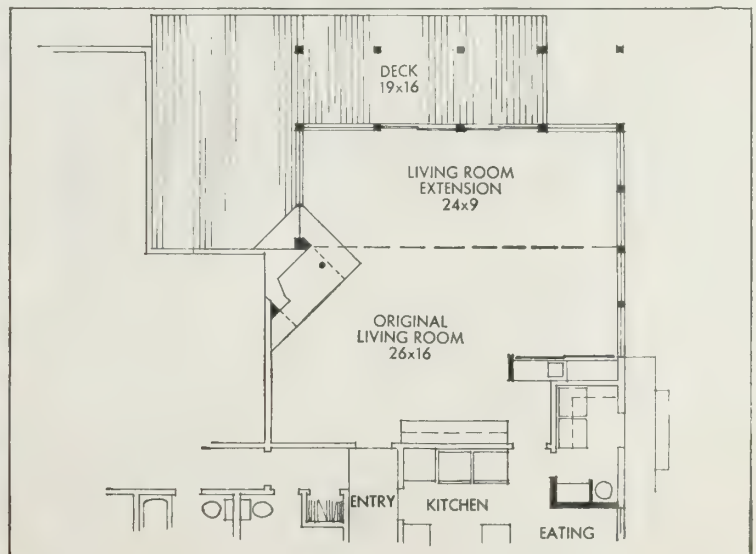

Photographs: de Gennaro. Architect: Paul Sterling Hoax, A.I.A. Source: Barbara Lenox

Above: The new space begins at the left edge of the rug and continues on outside through the sliding glass doors. The plaster ceiling goes out, too, then dips for maximum protection against rain and glare. Four-by-four-inch posts out there give the deck a colonnade effect.

Below: Looking in the opposite direction, you can see the original living room. Note how the fireplace is tied into the addition with a raised, wraparound hearth. The enlarged room is big enough for several different furniture groupings, as you'll see on the plan below.

Plan: That dotted line indicates where the addition begins. At one end of the room, the owners have plenty of space for formal dining—which supplements the informal eating area in their remodeled kitchen. A bar and storage wall make the enlarged living room even more usable. The hearth hooks around outside to provide a planter for the patio.

in the bedroom. That's beautiful.

Aren't you smart. After we told you that you could put this Outdoor/Indoor carpet in the kitchen, on the terrace, in the playroom, the basement, the laundry, you went ahead and put it in the bedroom. You wanted to show it off.

A carpet of 100% HERCULON* olefin fiber is that beautiful. That luxurious. Like fine broadloom, without the cost (as low as $4.95 per square yard).

Lots of texture, in deep rich colors. So you put it in the bedroom. Now, how about the dining room?

(The chaise is in upholstery fabric of HERCULON. That's beautiful too!)

QUICK HOT BREADS

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Hot Sesame Sticks

Seasoned salt flavors these lazy-day bread sticks—

Spread one side of 6 slices white bread with softened butter or margarine. Lightly sprinkle buttered side with seasoned salt. Cut each slice bread, crosswise, into three strips. Arrange, overlapping, in 2 rows in a 12x7½x2-inch baking dish. Sprinkle sesame seed over all. Bake in hot oven (450°) for 10 minutes or till lightly browned.

Onion Parmesan Bread

Another time, wrap in foil and heat on the grill—

Combine ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese, ½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, and ¼ cup finely chopped onion. Slice a loaf French bread in half lengthwise. Spread cut surfaces of bread with Parmesan-onion mixture. Place on baking sheet; bake in moderate oven (375°) for 15 to 18 minutes or till bubbly and brown. Cut in pieces. Makes about 10 servings.

Mustard Rye Ovals

Zippy flavor goes well with bowls of steaming soup—

Cream together ½ cup butter or margarine, softened, and 2 tablespoons horseradish mustard. Spread on one side of 12 to 14 slices rye bread. Place bread, buttered side up, on baking sheet; bake in moderate oven (350°) for 20 minutes.

YOUR PLANNING GUIDE TO JAPAN

In this jet age, "mysterious, inaccessible Japan" is no longer so mysterious and hardly inaccessible. Immediately on your arrival, its fascinations are apparent. In neon-blinking, sky-scrapered Tokyo, you see kimono-clad elders clapping along in wooden getas. Through the honking horns of traffic along wide boulevards comes the plaintive cry of the soba peddler, pushing his cart, hawking his hot noodles.

Outside Tokyo, you'll drive along narrow roads shaded by giant umbrellas of cryptomeria trees or blooming apricots, into hills and valleys punctuated by spas and hot springs. Super-fast trains will rush you past hillside rice terraces, trim as golf courses, dotted with the bright happi coats of farmers and tea pickers.

When to go. Tokyo's climate is like Washington, D. C.'s, but most of Japan is in the north temperate zone, with weather like our midwestern states. The popular travel seasons are spring and fall. Expo 70 (Japan's World's Fair) will open in April, 1970, at Osaka.

How to get there. Fastest way, of course, by jet. Japan Air Lines, Northwest, Pan American, Canadian Pacific, and TWA have regular flights. Round trip Economy Class from New York is $960; from San Francisco, $722. "Off-season" rates prevail between November 1 and December 30, with round-trip fare from N.Y. $222; from the West Coast, $684.

The sea route takes 12 to 14 days from the West Coast. Numerous freighters such as the Mitsui-O.S.K. Lines have sporadically from West Coast ports; more comfortable and predictable are luxury liners operated by P&O Lines and American President Lines.

Be sure to investigate package tour bargains of the airlines and tour agencies. For trip planning details, also see your travel agent or write: Japan National Tourist Organization, Dept. HJG, 45 Rockefeller Plaza, N.Y., N.Y.

Where to stay. Two words of advice: Look ahead—two to three months ahead for a Tokyo hotel, less elsewhere. Large hotels in Japan are as complete in services as anywhere in the world. Their rates average $17 (plus 10 to 20 percent service charge) for a double with bath. Enrich your visit, though, by staying one or two nights in a ryokan or inn. On arrival, you remove your shoes, don a yukata (cool kimono), and relish traditional Japanese amenities—constant attention by kimonoed servants, a hot bath, dinner at a low table in your own room, a private terrace view of an immaculate Japanese garden, and comfortable foam-rubber bedding on the floor. Rates run $7 to $17 per person with private bath, dinner, and breakfast included.

What to see and do. In Tokyo, you'll want to see the moat-enclosed Imperial Palace; the Tokyo National Museum and Folkcraft Museum; the bustling Ginza, alive with shops, bars, nightclubs, and theaters. Be sure to see a kabuki performance. And take in the ritual of the fat sumo wrestlers at the Kuramae Kokugikan, fencing and karate exhibitions at the Kudan Budokan, or judo at Kodokan in Suidobashi.

In nearby Kamakura, the 700-year-old Daibutsu (Great Buddha in bronze, 42 feet high) is a truly remarkable shrine. There's also Fuji-Hakone-Izu National Park, with Mount Fuji and other heights for climbing or viewing; pearl divers at Mikimoto's Pearl Island.

Kyoto, cultural center of Old Nippon, has literally thousands of sacred Buddhist temples and Shinto shrines. Much of Kyoto's charm is in wandering, exploring tiny lanes, visiting lacquer, silk, or pottery factories (the city is a craft paradise). At night, dine at one of the languid Kamo River restaurants and be entertained by the geishas' woe-ful songs, accompanied on the mournful samisen. For an introduction to Japan's living arts, visit Gion Corner and watch geishas demonstrate flower arrangement, sing, and dance. You'll also see the classic Bunraku, celebrated adult puppet plays with music and song.

North of Tokyo is Nikko of the ornate Toshogu Shrine and spring and fall medieval festivals. A short distance beyond is mistily beautiful Lake Chuzenji and Kegon Falls. If you've time, an Inland Sea outing is a delight, with the floating red Itsukushima Shrine at Miyajima and Hiroshima's Peace Memorial Park as highlights.

How to get around. Your best way is by trains, which go everywhere—and fast! The new Tokaido Super Express from Tokyo to Kyoto covers 350 miles in 2 hours, 50 minutes, costs $18 each way, and is an unforgettable experience in luxury train travel. For longer trips between islands, fly Japan Air Lines. Rental cars are available, but driving is on the left and always chaotic. Check the many motor-coach tours. Japan Travel Bureau's efficient English-speaking guides can plan any independent or group tour you'd like—even visits to Japanese homes.

Travel papers. You'll need a passport and visa; an International Driving License if you rent a car; proof of current smallpox vaccination.

Language. Street signs are in Japanese calligraphy, so always carry your hotel card (printed in Japanese) to help you return. Many younger Japanese speak a little English and are glad to help you. Food presents few problems. Water and milk are reliable everywhere. Outside cities, peel fruit and vegetables or avoid them unless cooked. Kobe beef is famed in the Orient, and chicken and all kinds of seafood are favorites. American European restaurants are plentiful in large cities, but sample freely the Japanese cuisine—whether in short-order tempura bars or such elegant establishments as the Fukudaya in Tokyo or Junjinya in Kyoto.

Shopping. Japan is a shopper's paradise. Visitors get a 20 percent tax exemption so ask for the special record-of-purchase form on your arrival in Japan.

NEW FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY AT DISNEYLAND

Imagine it's 200 years ago and you're a passenger on a small boat picking its way carefully along a dark and treacherous stretch of coastline on the Spanish Main. Suddenly pandemonium breaks loose. The air resounds with the roar of cannons and the crackle of muskets. A band of pirates is attacking a town and you're right in the middle! The rogues are everywhere—taunting the town council, auctioning off the women, plundering the shops. One rum-swilling buccaneer sprawls precariously on a bridge; another lies snoring with a pig.

You can imagine all this, or you can actually go to see it at—not too surprisingly—Disneyland. You've already been to Disneyland? Well, maybe you have and maybe you haven't. If your last visit was before 1967, there's a great deal you haven't seen.

Pirates of the Caribbean is just one of the many dazzling new attractions in Disneyland, making it doubtful anyone will ever consider the first visit here to be his last.

The "New Tomorrowland" section of the park thrusts you into an exciting future world. In Adventure Through Inner Space, a magic microscope "shrinks" you for an eerily realistic—almost psychedelic—trip through the molecular structure of a single snowflake crystal. The climax arrives as you enter the atom and confront the pulsating nucleus. Flight to the Moon simulates a trip through outer space. You vibrate with blast-off, rise with weightlessness, converse with a lunar explorer, survive a meteoric shower, and experience a realistic re-entry.

America the Beautiful proves domestic travel can be equally exciting—as a circular movie screen takes you from the Florida Keys to Sun Valley, from New Orleans to New England. Other aspects of New Tomorrowland include The PeopleMover, Tomorrowland Terrace, and the Carousel of Progress.

Over in Fantasyland, It's A Small World charms adults and enchants youngsters with a watery excursion that presents the children of the world performing their own songs and dances in colorful native costume.

Back on Disneyland's famous Main Street, you can relive Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln as a life-size model of the Great Emancipator quotes excerpts from his speeches.

Fascinating as Disneyland's newer attractions may be, they haven't diminished one iota the popularity of the older attractions. Crowds still flock to the Jungle Cruise, Matterhorn Bobsleds, Alice in Wonderland, Submarine Voyage, Nature's Wonderland, Tom Sawyer's Island, Swiss Family Treehouse, and Mr. Toad's Wild Ride.

Can you do it all in a day? Maybe—if you're in good enough shape to move at a brisk trot from 8 a.m. to midnight or 1 a.m. (summer hours). But don't try. Devotees of Disneyland recommend a split session with a nap or rest at your motel between. Besides letting you catch your breath and rest your feet, an early evening return presents an entirely different aspect of the park as the Magic Kingdom turns on its thousands of lights. What's more, much of the free entertainment doesn't get under way until evening. You can dance or listen to music that ranges from folk rock to the fox trot. And a summer evening rarely passes when Disneyland doesn't have a name entertainer.

Ticket books purchased outside the main gate are the most convenient and economical way to take in the park attractions. They all include admission to the park and cost as follows:

	10 Tickets	15 Tickets
Adult	$4.75	$5.75
Junior (12 thru 17)	$4.25	$5.25
Child (3 thru 11)	$3.75	$4.75

For further information on the park write Disneyland, Anaheim, California. Regarding nearby lodging and other tourist information, write Anaheim Area Visitors and Convention Bureau, Dept. BHG, 800 West Katella Ave., Anaheim, California 92802.—Jerry Reedy.

SIGHTS AND CRAFTS IN PERU AND ECUADOR

tives and their artifacts are still the most popular attractions in Peru and Ecuador. A gentle Peruvian started it 57 years ago when he told American archaeologist Hiram Bingham about the hidden city where he grew splendid crops using a terraced irrigation system built five centuries before. When Bingham climbed 3,000 feet up the cloud-veathed mountainside from the Uru-mba Valley, he gazed in astonishment at one of the most fabulous sights in the world: Machu Picchu, the isolated lost city of the Incas.

Today it's a one-hour jet flight from Lima to Cuzco, then a three-hour train ride to reach Machu Picchu. Each night, about 30 visitors stay in the tiny inn to enjoy the scene in the lonely splendor of moonlight.

Quite near this famous ruin are others in the Sacred Valley of the Incas, including the Tibetan-like city of Cuzco itself, once the Inca capital until it was forced to accept Spanish colonialism. Cuzco is also the place for bargains in alpaca, the wool of that odd Andean animal which is rather like a cross between a camel and a lamb. A pure white bedspread-sized alpaca rug costs only $50.

No less fascinating, and nearly unknown to most travelers, is the 1,000-year-old burial ground of the pre-Inca Chancay Indians about 50 miles north of Lima. There are supposedly 100,000 graves here. They stretch as far as the eye can see. Archaeologists are still digging in this dusty wasteland where unearthed skulls, their teeth still intact, grin eerily. You can buy artifacts like an intricate ceremonial vessel from the nearby Indians for as little as $10.

A three-hour plane ride from Lima to the jungle town of Iquitos, and thence by speedboat 50 miles down the Amazon, brings you face to face with the least-spoiled of the friendly tribes—the Yagus, whose men use seven-foot blowguns with hair-splitting accuracy.

At Otavalo, Ecuador, 70 miles north of Quito, is a Saturday "quiet" Indian market renowned throughout South America not just because the women bargain in silence, but because of the brilliant tapestries woven by the handsome, gentle Otavalans. You can buy a two-foot-square tapestry for as little as 75 cents. Handloomed wool scarves sell for $1.

But both countries are far more than symbols of a bygone culture. Peru is Pisco sours (a cross between a daiquiri and a whisky sour), gold-encrusted cathedrals built by the Spaniards, gracious houses with ornately-carved balconies, narrow cobbled streets. Ecuador is Quito—a lively city 9,000 feet high and surrounded by snow-capped mountains and the world's most exciting deep-sea fishing at Salinas, on the coast.

You fly to Peru and Ecuador on Braniff International, APSA, and several other airlines (about $250 round-trip, economy class, from Miami). For more information, see your travel agent, or write South American Travel Organization, Suite 516, Dept. BHG, 100 Biscayne Blvd., Miami, Florida 33132.

SOUTHERN FLORIDA'S SUNNY GULF BEACHES

You'll find little of the "Gold Coast" better on Florida's western shores. Today, as in bygone years, this is still wide-open country of unspoiled, unbelievably white beaches, of palmetto jungles and mysterious islands formed of tangled rocks, of sunsets that melt into the sea. The Gulf is warm and buoyant; its gentle surf has piled riches in shells on the shimmering silver sands. The sun is tropical and blinding, but soft breezes keep you comfortable even in the summer. Here are some of the best beaches:

Marco Island, a new, planned vacation-home community, has a magnificent stretch of sand for guests at the Marco Beach Hotel. More than three miles long, the beaches are never crowded, for there are also tennis courts, a golf course, a swimming pool, bathing in quiet waterways, and year-round fishing.

Rates are surprisingly low, especially in off-season: $18 for a double room in May, June, September, and October; $20 in July and August. Luxurious cottages with kitchens run $35 and up from April to Christmas.

Naples offers seven miles of fine beaches, plus five golf courses, a fishing pier, boat marinas, and beautiful displays of tropical flowers and birds at the nearby Caribbean Gardens. You'll find resorts in all price ranges, and many of them offer baby-sitter services.

Sanibel and Captiva Islands, linked to the mainland near Fort Myers by a causeway, make you think you're in the South Seas. Sanibel is world famous for its 400 varieties of shells, great fishing, and lovely beaches. The Sanibel Shell Fair is held in March.

Longboat Key, outside Sarasota, has many excellent resorts right on the Gulf, but there are no public beaches; the nearest, Manatee County Beach, is on Anna Maria Key just north of Longboat, and it's excellent. Be sure to see Sarasota's Ringling Circus Museum, too.

St. Petersburg offers a fine string of beaches: St. Petersburg Beach, Tierra Verde, and Treasure Island. Take side trips to the Sunken Gardens of St. Petersburg, and Cypress Gardens for the world-famous Water Ski Show.

For more information write: Florida Development Commission, Dept. BHG, 107 Gaines St., Tallahassee, Florida 32304.—George Bush.

THE BEST OF ITALY BY CAR

Where will the waiter peel an orange right at your table—and smile while he's doing it? Where will you hear a maid singing out her lusty soul while she's dusting your room?

Only in Italy. That's why so many experienced travelers keep coming back to this sunny country of blooming lemon trees, ornate palaces, and ancient shrines—a land so filled with theatrical beauty and love for life that even loafing is an adventure.

Italy has everything: snow-capped mountains, cypress-clad hills, the bluest seas, medieval villages and swinging beach resorts, the tastiest in food and drink, the hottest sunshine and the most refreshing shade, great art everywhere you turn. Above all, Italy has a special tranquillity, a sense that time goes on forever and that you're part of it.

It's amazing to discover you can enjoy all this dirt-cheap—especially on a fly-drive package. For example, a two-week Alitalia Airlines tour ($360 per person) includes your round-trip air fare from New York to Milan, free use of a small car for 620 miles (based on two persons traveling together), and 13 nights in a choice of 38 new motels (most with private bath) all over Italy. There's a similar three-week Alitalia fly-drive trip, with 20 nights in motels, for $440.

Your best, least-crowded times to go are spring and fall; you can just about count on pleasant, warm weather from early April well into October.

Allow at least three days each for Rome and Florence, and another two or three for Naples and its environs. You'll want to spend two days in Venice, and at least part of a day each in Milan and Pisa. Add driving time through the delightful countryside between these cities, and that about rounds out a two-week trip. Just don't try to see everything—enjoy yourself at a relaxed pace.

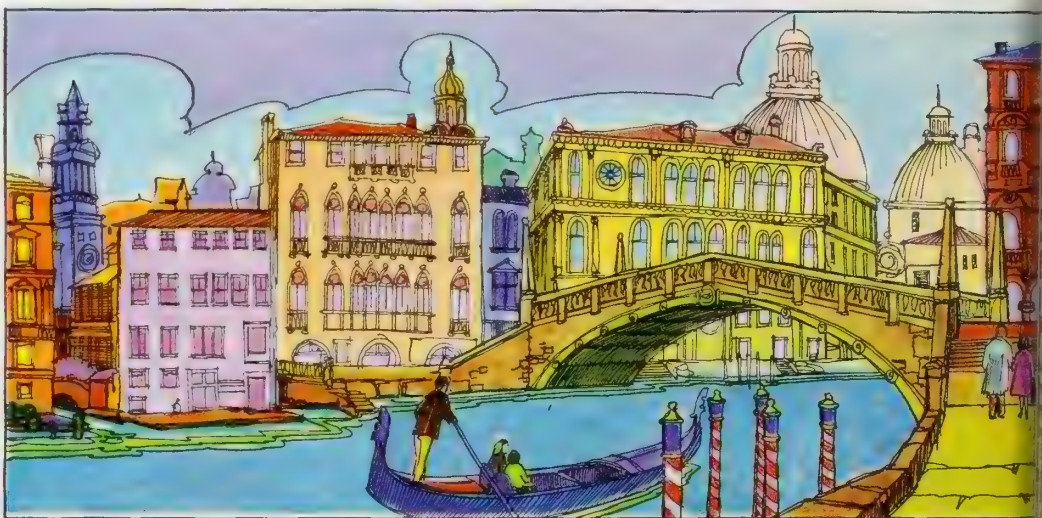

In Rome, you'll visit the Colosseum, the Roman Forum, the lovely Trevi fountain that's waiting for your wishing coins, and St. Peter's Basilica—so huge and yet so perfectly proportioned that when you think you're right on top of it, you're still half a mile away.

Behind the walls of the Vatican, you can explore the Pope's glorious gardens, home of the pizza, you'll tour Pompeii, resurrected from Vesuvius' ashes (some houses are so well preserved, you suspect the people of 2,000 years ago still live within). By speedy hydrofoil, you'll skim to the nearby island of Capri, pink with oleander, scented with jasmine, bustling with local fishermen and "jet-set" folk.

While in Italy, you'll shop for high-fashion jewelry, exquisite leather goods, art reproductions, ceramics, and colored Venetian glass. For meals, you'll enjoy the inexpensive "trattorias," with bare walls and sturdy tables, where mamma expertly cooks your order and papa and the children serve it. And don't worry if you can't read the menu—Italians love to be helpful; even if nobody speaks English, they will show you the food to choose from.

Be sure to dine now and then in the favored open-air restaurants, not much more expensive (an average meal around $3) in magnificent settings like the Piazza Navona in Rome, the Piazza della Signoria in Florence, and the tiny harbor of Santa Lucia in Naples.

then walk down an ancient buried street lined with pagan and early Christian tombs below St. Peter's.

To take this special, almost unknown Vatican tour, write to a group of English-speaking nuns (Foyer Unitas, 30 Via di Santa Maria dell' Anima, Rome), giving your expected dates. Then as soon as you arrive, phone 65-16-18.

In Pisa, you'll see the Leaning Tower, of course, and in Venice you'll cruise canals lined with shining palaces, then catch your breath in an outdoor cafe on the Piazza San Marco while life surges around you.

In Florence, you'll marvel at Michelangelo's David, most famous of the masterpieces in this lovely city that's simply bursting with sculpture and great paintings. In Milan, you can see the world's most famous opera, and from Naples, Since car use—beyond the basic 620 miles (1,000 kilometers) included in the Alitalia tour—costs six cents per kilometer, allow about $100 extra for the additional mileage necessary to cover Milan, Venice, Florence, Pisa, Rome, and Naples. However, with four of you traveling together, you get 2,000 free kilometers, and for six or more, you get a minibus with unlimited mileage.

On the average, figure the total cost of such a two-week tour, including meals and sight-seeing, at about $600 to $700 per person. The three-week Alitalia tour with arrival by air in Milan and departure from Rome (thus cutting you extra driving mileage), will run about $100 more. For trip-planning details, see your travel agent or write: Alitalia Airlines, Dept. BHG, 666 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10019.—George Bush.

A HOME OFFICE IN MINIMUM SPACE

Who says a home office has to look businesslike? Untangling the family checking account is much less a chore in a spirited setting than a somber one. Put some zing into the background—with pattern or texture—and in place of the conventional desk—how about a drop-leaf or Parson's table? Solve your storage needs with wall shelves and personalize your "office" with mementos.

Right: Boggled down with budget balancing? Put yourself in a happier frame of mind with an attractive work area. Cover the walls with a sprightly print and introduce a sleek Parson's table for writing. Staggered shelves can serve for storage and also add to the background design. And for cat-napping after your fight with the figures—how about a day-bed in lightly scaled wicker?

Below: Texture played against texture sparks this understated study just off the master bedroom. Cork-covered walls, tufted carpeting, beamed ceiling, and crushed velvet upholstery provide textural interest. Shuttered windows—still another variation in texture—foster a feeling of seclusion important to every study. In this case, the shutters also block out an unpleasant view.

Photographs: de Gennaro. Designer: Susan Raffee. Source: Pauline Graves

Decorator: L. Jarmin Roach, A.I.D. Source: Pauline Graves

Below left: Take the chill off that home study with a few of your favorite things—a painting, needlepoint pillow, antique candle sticks. Then press a drop-leaf table into desk service and add seating pieces of the non-studious type—perhaps an Italian design pull-up chair or a graceful Windsor chair as shown. A wall cabinet can answer the need for storage space.

Below: If you're an Early American buff and have furnished your home with pieces from this period, be sure your study corner reflects this style influence. For an authentic background, install paneling in a dado effect and paper the area above. Then select furnishings to reinforce this Colonial look—such as a slat-back chair, hurricane lamp, an old wooden bench.

What's your oven doing after dinner tonight?

GENERAL ELECTRIC OVENS WILL CLEAN THEMSELVES.

The dirtiest job in your kitchen has been taken over by GE's new built-in with the double P-7® ovens. Cook messiest meal, then set the control to "Clean." The ovens clean themselves plus the oven racks, top and bottom. It's all done electrically.

And the easy-to-clean, seamless surface unit has a brand new feature. It's the "Cooktop 'N Grill," a combination broiler and griddle that handles every thing from steaks to pancakes.

Add a handsome ventilating hood that houses the pushbutton surface unit controls, and you've got the perfect built-in cooking center, whether you're planning a new kitchen or replacing old units.

It's the range that lets you off early.

You will seldom need service on a General Electric range. But it's nice to know we're nearby.

Cou, Tucson, Ariz. 85716.

Custom fit for any dress you make guaranteed on this precision adjusting form—or no cost!

Isocrat of Dress Forms

Professional precision adjustment form (DuPont) gives body material great flexing and power.

Put your measurements into size computer—lock—form becomes YOU.

Adjusts to regular, half sizes . . . many variations 8 to 20 (also model 20 to 50).

Shoulder raises, lowers. Each bust expands, contracts, raises, lowers.

Waist narrows, widens, shortens, lengthens. Hips widen, narrow, raise, lower.

Form gains, reduces with you—adjusts to other family members.

Strong steel stand—and form—take apart easily—away in drawer.

You're without a dress form—just trying this (at your risk) can change your life.

Form guarantees a custom-fit expensive look for dress you alter or make—or no cost. Yet it costs you money so fast it often pays for itself the second time used.

Custom fit form saves hours adjusting and fitting cloths—up to 50% of sewing time. Saves struggling, twisting, turning—trying to get right fit. It saves ripping out seams for a new alteration, or just because your skirt didn't look properly the first time.

Perfect for beginners. Here is why all of this

THE SECRET OF CUSTOM FIT

Do you like every dress you alter or make for its custom-fit expensive look? . . . Do you smile—inside—at the money and time saved—at the end of embarrassment of poor home-made clothes—or the success of your custom making attempt.

Secret is custom adjusting of standard pattern to your differences (there's only one you). You pin the pattern to an exact duplicate of this adjusting is simple and easy.

With this custom-fit life-size dress form becomes YOU—with YOUR waist—YOUR shoulders—YOUR neck—YOUR bust line—YOUR hips.

It's because in each body area an ingenious computer "dials" your correct inch measurements. A Tab (like a tape measure) slides through under the area answer window. When your measurements appear in each window, just clip lock position. Automatically the DUPONT NEO-prene processed body material has already adjusted each body area—to become YOU! Custom fitting of patterns to you has become as easy as it was difficult.

A LIFE-SAVER FOR BEGINNERS

Use the hardest part of home sewing is making adjustments—exactly what ADJUST-O-MATIC is so simple.

It begins easily make hems—adjust hem—alterations so perfectly, store-bought fit like made-to-order. You save the $3 to before to fix a shoulder line—shorten a hem in a waist line. You're more satisfied with your clothes fit.

Fitting in this form is so easy you quickly form dresses into new. Too tight or too loose—too small dresses fit again. You easily alter, remold, remodel your own dresses, coats, skirts. You begin to make your own simple then more complicated ones. Later, you design your own styles, and all on this form

DOES MORE THAN ANY OTHER FORM

This master pattern-maker's form has every possible professional dressmaker trick and short cut built right into it.

It's unlike any other form. To adjust there's no maze of wire and bolts to struggle with. Simply slide, adjust and clip lock. It's pinnable—throughout. No gaps down front or side or around neck give difficulty.

Scientifically placed guide lines let you know when your dress is perfectly centered on the form.

The light steel stand is so adjustable, raises or lowers precisely to any point 4' 2" to 5' 6" (add length of your head from neck up to measurements of any form). It's handsome, rubber-tipped, gives steady support. It assembles, takes apart easily.

The inventor has built a lifetime as master pattern maker for leading pattern companies into this form.

All his life — he designed dress forms — some of the world's most expensive — to give custom fit to the very rich.

But he built this custom dress form for you — to adjust more precisely than any other — do many dressmaker tricks others can't — yet cost a fraction of the others.

LUIGI CELLA DRESS FORMS

Holds
U.S. Patents
#2922555,
#3140021,
#3140022,
#3140022.

Work with this form anywhere. Lap, table, chair. Want to work on shoulders—back—underarm seam—front—waist—hips? Presto! One hand lifts form off stand. Without ever getting up from your chair you can take ADJUST-O-MATIC apart and work in sections.

Every adjustment—each contour line—the height range—the angle of the darts—posture angle of the form—all have been checked and rechecked by fashion fit leaders, home dress-making authorities and fashion editors.

AMAZING NO RISK OFFER

Instead of bulky, heavy cast-iron framing and body, ADJUST-O-MATIC uses DUPONT NEO-PRENE processed body material. Shipped direct to you disassembled it costs a fraction of ordinary forms. There are several parts to each section—only 15 in all. To assemble, adjust or take apart each step is simple and fun with clear can't-go-wrong directions.

When you try it for 30 days without obligation you'll realize why it's so amazing. Full refund if not delighted.

All ADJUST-O-MATIC costs is $5.49 yet it has many features dress forms costing six times more do not have. Try at our risk. Reserve yours today.

Intercom system
 Great fun for children of all ages and a sound safety device for home! Two-way intercom with transmitting and receiving works clearly, easily. No complicated buttons, tools or out-of-reach speaking cord reaches from one room to the other. $1.00 + 5c postage. Order from Remco House, 164 Greenland Avenue, Miami, Florida 33147.

Footings in the tub
 The treads stick right to the tub bottom for important safety. And they're a pretty addition to the bathroom decor: avoid green stems, with blue, pink and white blossoms. Made of really resilient, rubber-texture material. Self-sticking; a cinch to install. Directions included. $3.98. Breck's of Boston, N12 Breck Street, Boston, Mass. 02210.

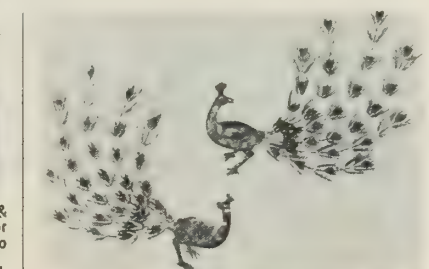

Adding machine
 Save time and trouble with this precision-engineered, German-made machine that will help you with household figures. Great for office extra and school work. Adds and subtracts up to 7 digits. Shows clearly. Metal. 5" x 6 1/2". With cover. $24 ppd. Order from Meredith Separator Company, Dept. BH1, 310 W. 9th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64105.

Your child must memorize all his multiplication tables to pass in NEW MATH

TWO WEEK FREE TRIAL
 Just send name—no money!

teach all the tables from 2's through 12's as easily as the words of a song!

Help your child do better in arithmetic—especially in the New Math—by getting him these new multiplication records. Modern Math teachers insist on children memorizing their tables. Now even children of pre-school age can easily learn all the tables from 2's through 12's simply by playing these records.

No urging needed from parents. Children love these records. Each table has its own catchy tune and jingles. And the man on the record quizzes your child so the tables stick in his memory. He must know his tables to learn long division, fractions and decimals.

Send No Money. Just send coupon and the records will be mailed to you postage prepaid. If returned within two weeks after receipt, you owe nothing. If kept, pay only $9.95, price in full. Bremner Records, Dept. D-7, Wilmette, Illinois 60091.

School Principal writes: "Your records have a unique teaching approach and a good one. Our pupils are taking new interest in their tables. Excellent as a home-tutoring aid."

A. Blair Owens, Principal, Lewiston Elementary School, Lewiston, Pa.

Parent writes: "All three of my children used your records and in 6 weeks had learned all the tables from 2's through 12's. Best investment I ever made."

IRON WALL PLAQUES
REDUCED $1.99 EACH

CREATE THE ULTIMATE DECORATOR TOUCH
OVER YOUR FIREPLACE—MANTEL—COUCH OR BUFFET WITH DRAMATIC HAMMERED IRON WALL PLAQUES

What Savings! Hammered Iron Plaques of this type usually sell for $10 each or more in fine stores. Imagine owning these genuine hammered Iron Wall Plaques for only $1.99 each. (At these big savings minimum order is two owls.)

This is a brilliantly exciting way to dramatize your home or office. The latest decorating rage, each is a masterpiece of craftsmanship. Their feathery plumage and graceful bodies are exquisitely worked in delicately wrought, hammered metal; finished in vibrant blue and accented with flourishes of gold. The total effect is one of such breathtaking beauty that they will be the focal point of beauty in your home. Unfortunately it is impossible to reproduce the full breadth of their three dimensional "sculptured" bodies from the small black and white illustration here. Only when you see them gracing your home can you fully appreciate the drama they bring to every setting.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

We urge you to order your Wall Plaques now, while the supply lasts.
Because of our volume purchasing, we can offer these decorator masterpieces to you for the amazing low price of only $3.98 postpaid for two owls on full money back guarantee if you are not absolutely delighted. The Sculptured plaques are approximately 12" high and are 10" wide on their leaved branches. Together they cover almost 4 square feet of wall area. So hurry, order now, this offer will not be repeated this season in BETTER HOMES & GARDENS.

Lionel de Rothschild, England's master plantsman, set out in 1918 to create the world's most perfect Azaleas. Naturally he started with the finest then available — the famous Knaphill strain which already represented more than fifty years of careful breeding and selection. As the most superior hybrids bloomed, he selected and crossed two parent plants from each color group, destroying all but the few plants that met his exacting standards.
 The end result of de Rothschild's infinite patience is the Supreme Hybrid Azalea, offered exclusively by Wayside Gardens.

Just one of 1,800 magnificent subjects you'll see in the beautiful new Wayside Catalog — now it costs you nothing!

Only a Century of breeding could have produced this Supreme Hybrid
 Azalea

Wayside's new 1969 Spring Catalog is the finest yet! Never has there been such a selection — over 1,800 rare, lovely and unusual subjects from every part of the free world.
 Magnificent prize roses... exotic lilies...
 rare bulbs... hardy perennials... superb shrubs and trees... many items you won't find anywhere else! Each rigidly tested in America's most carefully supervised nursery.
 Along with hundreds of large, true-color illustrations, the new 208-page Wayside catalog contains clear, accurate descriptions of every selection, plus more helpful and practical cultural information than most garden books!

Hy-X

ONLY HENRY FIELD'S HAS IT!...
Extraordinary New Tomato
GREAT FLAVOR, EASY TO GROW

Less Foliage...More Tomatoes!

Our customers have written us hundreds of enthusiastic letters about HY-X. HY-X plants don't get big or gawky, but grow so compact and sturdy you needn't bother to stake them. Very prolific, too. HY-X starts early, bears abundantly 'til frost. The fruit is deep scarlet, globe shaped, full of firm yet tender "meat," not just a lot of water and seeds. HY-X won't sun scald or crack. And it grows well 'most anywhere, even in semi-arid regions too dry for ordinary tomatoes. We want you to be a HY-X fan too, so right now we're making a most generous offer... more than 100 seeds for only 10¢! That barely covers our postage and handling costs, so don't pass this up—get yours now!

MY GRASS IS NO. 1

by Mike Senkiw
It's true the things people are saying about Amazoy Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass (Reg. T.M.). It grows so thick and luxurious that walking on it is unforgettable... like walking on a thick, pile carpet.
Your Zoysia lawn drives out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It stays green and beautiful in blistering heat, when other grasses burn out. It cuts mowing by 2/3... It's perfect for summer homes and "problem" areas.
There's no need to rip out your old grass. Plug in Amazoy Zoysia Grass and let it spread into beautiful turf that never needs replacement. It will neither heat kill or winter kill... Merely go off its green color after heavy frosts and regain fresh new beauty every Spring—a true perennial! Every plug fully guaranteed to grow in any soil in your area.

To end lawn problems, send for free interesting facts and prices about Amazoy incl. pre-season bonus offer. No obligation. Mail coupon to:

"If it will make you feel any better, I don't understand half of this gobbledygook myself."

Resolving to renew resolutions abandoned 360 days ago, I am reminded that January, like the proverbial road to hell, is paved with good intentions.

According to the experts, the day will come when all purchases are made with charge cards, and paychecks are automatically deposited in the bank. What the experts don't know is that this system has long been practiced—and very nearly perfected—at the Hillis home.

Giving our Rosemary a driving lesson, I was reminded of a robin teaching her young to fly. I guess an automobile to a teen-ager is what wings are to a bird.

Jogging, the current fad for the middle-aged man, is providing great exercise (and exciting diversion) for all the dogs in our neighborhood.

The government recently cracked down on another patent medicine whose results didn't live up to its promises. Ma Hillis said the same standards ought to apply to some preachers, many salesmen—and most politicians.

There's at least one thing to be said for those Nehru jackets. Nobody needs to tell you to keep your chin up—you couldn't lower it if you tried.

Impatient with some student leaders advocating anarchy, Uncle Dodd says they must be mighty late in maturing most youngsters go through a total anarchy stage at about age 13.

Congressman Nick Hanfler wonders if Americans are ready for the difficult decisions confronting them on those new long-weekend holidays: Whether to overeat, overwork, or overplay.

Fred Anderson won a handsome new electric watch—the kind that hums—in his firm's sales contest, and promptly returned it for a more traditional timepiece. "Great disappointment to my grandchildren," he said. "No tick-tock."

To my comment that the better the weather, the better I feel, Dad Hillis replied: "The better you feel, the better the weather."

Mom Hillis used to say that "an early-morning rain is like an old man's dance—it never lasts," but that was before she attended a senior citizens' square dance.

Divorcee Elaine Cowan maintains the long maxiskirts can't last because they defy the spirit of the times—the buyer gets more for her money.

We once jotted down the dates of the first southbound flight of geese and the first spring wildflower. Now, muses Dad Hillis, our minds brim with telephone numbers, zip codes, and social security digits.

Observing our ten-year-old Judy has taught me how nature grooms us to cope with waiting. We grow accustomed to it in childhood—when, every January, Christmas looks years away.

Scratch a hippie these days and you'll probably find, says Bob Henry, that he appreciates it.

We Hillises don't mark our sad anniversaries. "Time runs on like a river, not in circles like a whirlpool," Grandmother Hillis used to tell these kinsfolk who wanted to linger over past sorrows.

But Chris and I do remember anniversaries of triumphs—such as the one eighty years ago when Bud got his first roller skates on his fourth birthday.

Early in the bitterly cold morning we walked to the sidewalk, where he buckled on his skates. Then he started off, pointedly ignoring my proffered hand.

Three feet away he fell. Hard. When I started to help him up, he pushed himself to a precarious balance and, again ignoring my hand, started forward once more.

"Let me hold you till you get the feel of it," I said. "Want to learn how, myself," he muttered.

Twenty minutes later his knees and palms were bleeding, and his eyes were watering from the cold and a few silent tears—but he had learned how to skate.

That's a triumph parents remember. And now when he falls occasionally in more serious endeavors, I feel like punching my downhearted son with an elbow and saying: "Roller skates."

I don't, of course. I'm sure Bud would only consider it another example of how dumb parents can be.

Who'd ever think of planning a bedroom around a 150 year old quilt?

This happy girl for one. Ethan Allen for another.

A woman who brought her great-great grandmother's quilt to our Ethan Allen gallery thought we might scoff at her idea. She wanted to redecorate her bedroom, using the quilt—with its exquisite colors—to set an overabundance of "heirloom" charm. We thought it was a splendid idea, and set out planning with her this beautiful room. To begin, we suggested the simplicity of American Traditional furniture in mellow, aged pine. Timeless and authentic, pine creates a nostalgic mood that complements—or detracts from—the beauty of the quilt. Notice the accessories, used for muted effect only. And how we created broad areas of color... grand reflections of those in the quilt. Have an heirloom you'd like to feature in your room? A cherished painting? Or treasured china piece? If so, come talk to us at our Ethan Allen gallery. We're not just furniture salesmen...but skilled home planners...anxious to help.

And, we have over 2,000 beautiful American Traditional designs to help with. All open stock. All "in style" forever.

You'll find them all pictured in color in complete room settings, along with many important do's and don'ts on decorating, in our new 9" x 12", 336-page Ethan Allen Treasury. You'll also see our many lamps and accessories. For your free copy, stop by your nearest Ethan Allen gallery.

☐ Please send name of my local Ethan Allen gallery, where I can obtain a free Treasury.

☐ I enclose $2.50. Please send the 336-page Treasury direct to me.

FILL OUT YOUR 1040 tax form LIKE AN EXPERT

Few of us would call our annual income-tax-figuring marathon a form of recreation. Yet there's no reason why it has to cause such grinding misery each year for so many taxpayers. To ease this special brand of pain and suffering, we asked Drew Tillotson—tax attorney and author of the Better Homes and Gardens "Step-by-Step Income Tax Guide"—to spell out how the 1040 form should be attacked. Whether you do your own return or get it ready for someone else to handle, this advice should save you both tax money and headache remedies!

GETTING READY

First, allow yourself ample time to do a thorough job. Haste usually results in mistakes that will cost you even more time (and perhaps money). If you can, arrange things so you have a quiet, interruption-free atmosphere. Finally, give yourself plenty of elbow room to spread out your papers and files.

► What you'll need. To do the best job, you should have started a year ago, accumulating tax information in a "1968 Tax Return" file. If you've done this—or are lucky—the following "raw materials" will be at your fingertips:

1. Your last year's (1967) federal and state tax returns, and your 1967 preparation papers.

2. All of your 1968 bank records—i.e., ledger statements, deposit slips, and canceled checks.

3. Your 1968 payroll check stubs.

4. W-2 forms received from your employer. You'll also need any 1099 forms received from banks, savings and loan associations, and dividend-paying corporations; these show interest and dividend income earned during the year.

5. Any receipts for deductible items not paid by check. You'll want your drug receipts, and a diary or similar evidence to support travel and other business-expense deductions.

6. A copy of the 1968 IRS tax return instructions, and a set of 1968 tax forms (which you should have received by mail). Note: You'll need all of the above numbered items (except blank tax forms), whether you do your own return or have someone else prepare it. There's simply no way of your avoiding a recheck of your own raw materials.

► Reviewing your 1967 returns. Begin by looking over last year's return and your tax preparation papers. Check the income items you reported—and exactly how they were reported. Then study your 1967 deductions to see what you claimed and how you calculated these items. This helps you start "thinking taxes," and alerts you to similar 1968 income and deduction items. Besides, you may have "carry-over" items from 1967 that will affect your 1968 return. For example, perhaps you had an unused capital loss, or some excess charitable contributions that couldn't be deducted fully in 1967. These may be "carried over" and claimed on your 1968 return if they qualify.

► Figuring your income. On a worksheet, list your 1968 income by categories (salary, interest income, dividends, or rental income). If your only income is salary or wages, this will be easy. Just jot down your W-2 form income.

If you have dividends and interest income, be sure to use the exact amounts shown on the 1099 forms sent by your bank or dividend-paying corporation. IRS gets a copy of each 1099 form, and naturally will be a bit curious if you use a different amount. Of course, you should verify the 1099 form amount from your own records. If there's an error, be sure to get a corrected 1099 form. And any 1099 forms from mutual fund investments deserve special attention, since they generally include capital gains as well as dividend income; be sure that you show this breakdown correctly on your worksheet.

Remember, too, your bank deposits represent a permanent record, and can be used to show any other income that you've deposited during the year. Tax tip: It's a good idea to describe the source of all the deposits on your deposit slips, whether they're income or not. Later on, it's easier to identify and classify your income items. More importantly, IRS may treat unidentified deposits as income—a disastrous result if any of those were actually loan deposits or other non-income items.

If you have numerous income items, you probably ought to get some wide-column accounting paper to use as a worksheet. Just label the top of all the columns with your own income categories. Then go through your bank deposits and jot down the amount of each deposit in the correct column. After this, total each column to get your gross income in each category. If you remembered to deposit all your income, this worksheet then shows all your gross income for tax-reporting purposes, and makes an excellent tool for filling out your tax return.

Be sure to save these worksheets from year to year. If you're ever audited, you can use them to show IRS exactly how you arrived at your gross income. Without them, you may find it impossible to reconstruct how you computed the income you reported.

If you sold any assets during the year, you may have realized a capital gain or loss. Your income worksheet will, of course, show the sales price you received. But you also must determine the cost basis of the assets sold. That's because only the difference between the selling price and the cost will be taxable gain or loss. Figuring your cost may be sticky, especially if you bought the asset many years ago and haven't kept good records. However, it has to be done. Also, you will need the dates you bought and sold the asset, plus any expenses of the sale. Tax tip: If you don't now, start keeping an accurate, permanent record of the cost of all assets you acquire.

► Computing your deductions. For most taxpayers, this is the hardest part of the tax return. The answer? Organize yourself well before doing the return.

First, prepare a worksheet from your canceled checks. Again, some wide-column accounting paper is ideal. Just as you did your income worksheet, label the tops of the columns with the deduction categories (taxes, interest, contributions, or business deductions). If you like, add some columns for personal and household items; then you'll have a detailed picture of your 1968 expenditures. Now go through your canceled checks and enter the amounts. If necessary, add some brief identification in the correct column. Then total each column shown on the worksheet to get your total checkbook deductions.

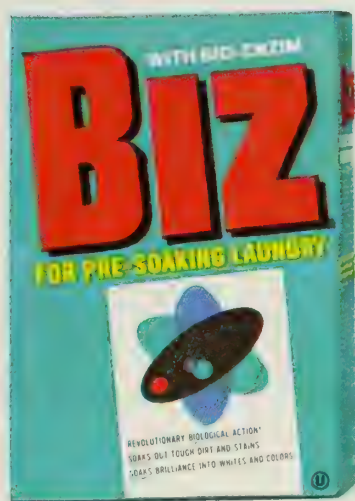

To complete your 1968

Biz soaks out stains and dirt which no other pre-soaker can.

Test it yourself and see...

“Biz is better”

Procter & Gamble's new pre-soak invention.

Housewives who tested
Biz against another laundry pre-soaker prefer Biz almost 2 to 1.

Housewives all over America conducted tests in their own homes. Given unidentified samples of Biz and the other pre-soaker by an independent testing organization, housewives used both on their own laundry problems. The results are conclusive:

Biz is overwhelmingly preferred! Housewives volunteered these preferences. For tough stain removal, Biz was preferred by almost 2 to 1. For whiter clothes, by almost 3 to 1.

Biz is the most effective pre-soaker you can buy! Biz soaks out stains which no other pre-soaker can. Biz has Bio-Enzim — a combination of stain and dirt removal ingredients, including enzymes that break down stains and dirt biologically so you can easily wash them away.

Prove to yourself that Biz is better. Test Biz yourself and you'll see that Biz gets out stains that the other pre-soaker does not. Tough stains like dried-in mushroom gravy, grape juice, blueberry pie filling, coffee and many more. Yet Biz is safe for all washable fabrics and colors — even delicate lingerie. Take the Biz challenge and go soak your clothes in Biz. You'll see for yourself. Biz is better! Biz soaks out stains and dirt which no detergent, no bleach, or no other pre-soaker can remove!

deduction analysis, add to worksheet those deductions paid by check. Usually, drug expenses fall in category. So would any losses suffered during year. In addition, your employer may have withheld charitable contributions on your paycheck stubs. Be sure to indicate the kind of deduction.

If you borrowed money from savings and loan association or credit union, the interest paid may have been charged directly against your mortgage account. Look over your passbooks for these deductions, since there won't be a check to remind you. Also, you may be entitled to an interest deduction for payments on installment plans; your IRS instruction book details on computing this deduction.

For mortgage loan payments also require some special treatment. Your monthly payment includes not only interest, but principal repayment—and in many cases, house insurance and estate tax payments as well. You'll probably need a statement from your mortgage lender showing the interest and estate taxes paid during the year. Put these amounts on your worksheet, rather than total monthly mortgage payment.

In your "taxes" column, be sure you've included any 1968 estimated tax payments that were made in January, 1969. Obviously, these tax payments wouldn't be in your 1968 tax checks.) Then label the estimated tax payment (Example, 2d. qtr. 1968 Estimated Payment). And don't forget recording any state income tax withheld from your paycheck. Your canceled checks should reflect this item, but your employer should have withheld the state tax that's been withheld on your W-2 form.

Unhappily, most of us pay for some deductible items on which no check or other evidence is available. Sales tax and gasoline tax deductions are good examples. To help ease this problem, IRS has prepared guidelines that automatically indicate your allowable deduction. To use the gasoline tax table, you only need to know the total miles driven during the year. If you didn't record your mileage reading at the beginning of 1968, use other indicators, such as your repair or service records. Then note your computation on the worksheet. The sales tax deduction also is automatically calculated for you, except that you're entitled to claim (in addition) the sales tax on any automobile purchased during the year. These figures, too, should be shown on your worksheet.

Once you have all your deductions on the worksheet, your next step is to break down the items in each deduction column. Under your "medical" column, you may have entered payments made to a number of different doctors, as well as your medical insurance payments. Make a list now, showing the name of each doctor and the total amount paid to each. This list should include a figure for medical insurance, too. When you're through, put together a similar list for the rest of the worksheet columns.

At this stage, you may want to check your deductions against the following table, which shows the average 1966 tax deductions claimed by all taxpayers. Caution: This table doesn't mean you're necessarily entitled to deductions within the indicated range. If you're audited, you still must be able to prove each deduction you claim.

News from General Mills

♥ Unhappy Valentine? ♥

Many a grownup can remember when Valentine's Day was the day the other children got the Valentines. That's why some mothers we know send Valentine Cookies to school for everyone in the class. Put names on them—it helps! There's a good Gold Medal recipe for Valentine Hearts in our Betty Crocker Cookbook (we think evaporated milk, tinted with food coloring, makes the best quick paint; decorate before baking).

Pick a Pineapple

Like pineapple? Most people do. Perhaps that's why we've had such a wave of enthusiasm from our home-testers about the fresh-fruit flavor of the new Betty Crocker Dole* Pineapple Mixes. There's Pineapple Chiffon, light 'n sweet, Pineapple Layer Cake, rich 'n moist, and smooth Pineapple Frosting Mix. Pick yourself a pineapple—today.

Make your own antiques

Like this conversation piece for the kitchen, "Collectors Casseroles"—one of six beautiful plaques that you can now produce for your home or for gifts with the Craftmaster National Heritage Kit. (Craftmaster is a new member of the General Mills family.) Available where toy and hobby items are sold.

How to be an educated consumer—No. 3

The educated consumer likes to try new products. She doesn't wait to hear about them from the neighbors. She keeps her eye out for new things—reads the package carefully, buys one, serves it to her family. If they like it, she has found a good thing. When she buys it again, the manufacturer knows she likes it and can go on making it. If she doesn't like it, she doesn't buy it any more—and the lack of repeat purchases is the manufacturer's cue to take it off the market. That's how an educated consumer helps make business decisions. We appreciate your help at General Mills.

February always seems such a friendly month. Cold outside, warm and happy in the kitchen, so many good excuses for a party.

♥ For February parties you might serve a Cherry Chip Cake with creamy Cherry Frosting (two Betty Crocker Mixes) for you-know-whose birthday.

♥ Make macaroni pie for Valentine supper. The recipe's on our Macaroni and Cheddar package. Arrange thin tomato wedges to form hearts.

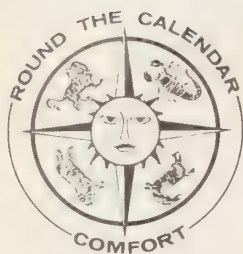

♥ Serve warm spicy Date Bars, made from our mix, to the after skating crowd. Add 1 teaspoon cinnamon to date filling.

♥ Or go a little crazy with a winter picnic. Warm up with hot tomato bouillon from a thermos (half and half tomato juice and beef bouillon with a hint of horseradish). Take along hearty homemade chili con carne. And for dessert, winter fruits, our cheesy Whistles and Buttons served with cider. Suddenly, spring is on its way.

And so's our new booklet, "Signs of Spring!" It's full of ideas, menus and recipes—a Lincoln Log, St. Patrick Soda Bread, April Fool-you's and Easter Brunch. Send 10¢, name, address and zip code to Betty Crocker, General Mills, Inc., Dept. 495, Minneapolis, Minn. 55440.

Now is the time to buy Central Air Conditioning for Round the Calendar Comfort

Here are some very good reasons for you to buy a central air conditioning system right now—during the off-season.

1 Manufacturers of air conditioning equipment don't stop production during the winter, so their inventories are high, and they're anxious to make as many deliveries to your contractor as possible. And many offer contractors price incentives for off-season sales.

2 The contractors who install central air conditioning need to get work to keep employees busy during the slack period. They can schedule your job efficiently—without the pressure of hot weather orders—and give you a better price.

You'll get a better installation job, too, because they'll have the time to plan the equipment you need and to work without rushing.

3 You'll miss too much if you wait until hot weather. If you buy now, you'll be able to use it from that first, too-warm spring day. With central air conditioning, you never have to be a little bit uncomfortable; you can use it as you use a furnace. (You don't wait until you're chilled to the bone before you turn on heat.)

4 Financing is easy to arrange. Many air conditioning contractors offer delayed payment plans in order to encourage you to buy now. With these, you get the savings of off-season installation, but don't start paying until you start using the new system. Or you can get a home improvement loan from your bank or other source.

5 Air conditioning is a good investment now—and any time. Along with all the 'Round the Calendar Comfort' you'll get, you'll have made a lasting investment.

Chances are you'll get very close to 100 percent of your investment when you sell—and your house will compete with new houses with central systems. So if you've been holding back because you think you might move, don't delay any longer.

And when you switch your new system on, you can forget about dampness problems. You'll be dry even on the muggiest days, all fabrics in your house will feel drier, closets will seem fresher, and there won't be any dampness in your basement.

In addition, you'll have summer's dirt and dust locked out, along with potential burglars and prowlers.

BUY EQUIPMENT CERTIFIED WITH THIS SEAL

Be sure to ask your contractor if the equipment he sells carries this seal. It is provided by the national trade organization of equipment manufacturers, the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute, and certifies both the dependability and capacity (in British thermal units per hour) of most equipment.

If you buy equipment with this seal, you can be sure it will perform as the manufacturer rates it. Because ratings are standard, you can compare price and capacity between two or more brands with complete assurance.

To Homeowners Who Do Not Have Central Air Conditioning: In this and future issues of Better Homes and Gardens the leading manufacturers of central air conditioning equipment and components listed here will use the "Round The Calendar Comfort" symbol to remind you of the advantages of central air conditioning. They urge you to install central air conditioning now while prices are lower . . . while dealers can schedule your installation without delay. Read the advertising of these manufacturers, then consult the Yellow Pages for the names of dealers. "Round The Calendar Comfort" is sponsored by these manufacturers in the interest of helping their dealers help you arrange for central air conditioning now.

should have a 1968 tax form handy for reference.

If a professional prepares your return, here's what he'll need in order to fill out your 1968 federal and state returns efficiently:

1. Copies of your last year's returns. (If he prepared your 1967 returns, he should have copies in his files.)

2. Your 1968 tax return package from IRS. He needs the gummed "piggyback" name-and-address label provided here for your 1968 return.

3. Your W-2 forms and all 1099 forms for interest and dividends received. Be sure to include tax data you received from any mutual fund.

4. The names of dependents you're entitled to claim.

5. Your worksheets and summary lists showing your 1968 income and deductions. With these summaries, you're assured of a much more accurate tax return and full advantage of tax benefits. Besides this, the cost of having your return prepared may be reduced considerably. Tax tip: If you're in doubt on any deductible item, don't just shrug your shoulders and ignore it. Ask your tax adviser—you may be pleasantly surprised to find you're entitled to the deduction.

Now for the actual preparation. Check over the gummed name-and-address label on your 1968 tax return package. See that it correctly shows your name, address, and social security number. If this "piggyback" label is correct, peel it off and put it in the indicated space of the return form you're going to file. Don't put this label on your work copy unless you're going to file a photocopy. If the "piggyback" label is wrong, correct the errors—especially in the name, address, and social security number information—on the label itself. Make absolutely sure your social security number is correct, too. The IRS computer processing program is keyed to social security numbers—and if yours is wrong, you're in for trouble getting it straightened out.

Next, fill out the spaces for your occupation, present employer, prior year's address and similar data. Check the correct box for your filing status as well. If you don't, you're asking for an audit, because the tax rate schedule you'll use later to compute tax won't jibe with your incorrectly marked status.

Now fill out the section on exemptions. If you have dependents not living with you, supply all the information required on the back side of your 1040 form. Forget this, and it's very likely the auditor will be calling you.

And while your exemptions are fresh in your mind, multiply the number of your total exemptions by $600, and enter the total at line 11c. You now can forget about exemptions.

► Reporting your gross income. Always do this part of the return before claiming your deductions. It's more orderly, and some of your deductions (like medical expenses and charitable contributions) are limited to a percentage of adjusted gross income. Besides, your sales-tax deduction is based directly on adjusted gross income.

To figure your gross income first get the "gross wages" amount from your form W-2 and insert it on line 5. While your W-2 form is in front of you, enter the amount of tax withheld at line 17. You're not done with your W-2, but don't forget to attach the proper copy to the 1040 form you turn in. If you have more than one employer, or if your spouse works too, merely total the gross wages and tax withheld shown on all W-2 forms received. Tax tip: If you had more than one employer during the year, too much social security tax (F.C.A. tax) may have been withheld. If so, you can claim a credit for any excess on line 11. See the IRS instruction book for details.

Once your wages have been reported, turn to the back of your 1040 form, where you report all other gross income received during the year. First list your dividends (name company and amount). Use the amounts shown on the 1099 forms you got from the dividend-paying corporation. With these items, put all mutual fund stay home.

Everyone dreams of living in a place where it's always perfect, but never humid; where the air is fresh and clean and pleasant. There is such a place and it's nearer than you think. It's a place that's the sort of comfort you can enjoy in your own home with a modern heating-cooling Total Home Comfort system using Honeywell controls. You control all four elements of comfort—heating, cooling, humidity and air cleaning. All automatically. You don't spend a lifetime chasing perfection around the world and never find it as perfect.

CARIBBEAN GETS TOO DARN HOT. But not your home. Not the benefit of summertime cooling that comes with central air conditioning. You'll never get it, even in a heat wave. Your house will be a cool retreat in a sizzling world. With central air conditioning, you're well on the way to Total Home Comfort.

EVEN MEXICO GETS SNOW. But with a modern, completely automatic heating system you won't find a chilly spot in your home—ever. More than one Honeywell thermostat can be installed so that you achieve individual temperature control of separate areas of your home.

JAMAICA? SOMETIMES TOO HUMID. Humidity can be controlled to banish summer soggianness and prevent scratchy-throat winter dryness. (And to stop your furniture from coming apart at the joints, too!) Automatic humidity control is a very important part of Total Home Comfort.

pollution is a problem you don't have to live with. A Honeywell Electronic Air Cleaner will remove up to 95% of the airborne dust, dirt and tobacco smoke that circulates around your home, and up to 99% of the pollen. You'll see the difference in cleaner rugs, drapes and furniture. And for allergy sufferers, it's just like moving to a house by the sea. Clean air is an essential part of Total Home Comfort.

And there you are. Living in a climate that's closer to being perfect than any place on earth. A dream? Pinch yourself and you'll find you're awake—and in your own home. Why not go first class?—and feel comfortable about it.

Just clip and mail us the coupon. Or call your heating/cooling contractor. You'll find him in the yellow pages.

Your water affects the results you get from your dishwasher. It can leave spots, streaks, dulling film. Finish is the only dishwasher detergent that has different formulas for water problems in different areas. Only Finish matches its formula to your water. Nobody else bothers. Why do we bother? Try Finish and see how spotlessly clean your silver, glasses and dishes can be. Your grocer has the right Finish formula for your area.

distributions. These probably include capital gains and non-taxable distributions, as well as dividends. But as you'll see, these "non-dividend" items are pulled out later on the tax form.

If there's not enough room on the form, list your dividends on a separate sheet and attach this to your return. Then in the dividend space on the 1040, just state "Schedule attached." The dividends total should, of course, be shown on the tax form as well as on the separate schedule.

Finally, your dividend exclusion (up to $200 if you're filing jointly) and your mutual fund capital gains and nontaxable distributions are subtracted on the indicated lines to get the taxable dividend figure.

► Reporting your interest income. Follow the tax return form, and you shouldn't have any problems here. Use your 1099 forms for the amounts you must report; if there's not enough space, attach a separate sheet. Another reminder: Municipal bond interest is tax-exempt on your federal return, so don't report it. However, U.S. bond interest generally is fully taxable on your federal return (but not on your state return).

If you are a typical taxpayer, you now have reported your entire gross income. All you have left to do is total your dividend and interest income at line 8 on page 2, and carry the same total to line 6 on page 1 of the tax form. Then you're ready to go to the sections on "Adjustments to Income" and "Itemized Deductions." But if you have additional income, you'll have to fill out the appropriate schedules for business income, capital gains, and the like.

Time-saver: Many taxpayers have no capital gains except from their mutual funds. This once was a tax-reporting nuisance because a separate Schedule D (for capital gains and losses) had to be prepared for this single item. Now IRS lets you report mutual fund capital gains directly on your 1040 form without having to fill out a Schedule D. Merely report 50 percent of your mutual fund capital gains in the "Miscellaneous Income" space on page 2 of your return, and label it "Cap. Gain Div."

► Adjustments to income. Did you have sick pay, job-related moving expenses, employee business expenses—or are you making payments to the Keogh Plan retirement fund? If so, these items are deductible as

"Adjustments to Income" page 2 of the return. For instance, if you have deductible employee travel and business expenses, attach a 2106 form to your return to claim these expenses. A 2106 form is fairly easy to use, and should guide you automatically to a correct deduction.

The total of the "Adjustments to Income" items should be carried to line 8 on page 1 where it's subtracted from your gross income. The resulting balance carries the formidable title of "Adjusted Gross Income"—and this figure is used to compute your sales-tax deduction, and your medical-expense and charitable-contribution limitations.

► Itemizing deductions. Here where your carefully prepared worksheets and summary list really help. (And do take time right now to make sure you're better off itemizing than claiming a standard deduction.)

Begin with medical and dental expenses. Just follow the line-by-line instructions on the form, and you should have no trouble. Tax tip: Half your medical insurance premiums up to $150 can be deducted despite the normal three percent limitation. The remainder of your medical insurance premiums must be included in the list of other medical expenses, which is subject to the three percent limitation.

Attach your itemized list of medical expenses to the return. If you don't, you're apt to find yourself facing the audit man. There's no need, however, to itemize drug expenses. Only the total is required. Of course, if you're audited, you'll still have to prove all the drug expenses you claimed.

Charitable deductions. Just list them—unless you're claiming non-cash contributions like a gift of corporate stock to your church. If so, check your instruction book for the additional data you'll need. Again, if you forget to attach any required information, you forfeit your chances of an IRS audit.

Some other charitable contributions generally are not paid by check, so you may not have receipts. (Contributions to door-to-door fund drives are good examples.) Go ahead and claim an estimated amount for these expenses. But be reasonably conservative, because you're very vulnerable on the type of deduction if you're audited. If you don't have re-

Can Iron-Poor Blood Make You Tired?

Yes! Especially if you're a woman between 15 and 50.

As a woman, you may lose much more blood-iron every month than you replace through the foods you eat. It is this loss of blood-iron that can leave you looking and feeling tired. Put extra iron in your blood by taking Geritol.

The great majority of tired people don't feel that way because of iron-poor blood and Geritol won't help them. But millions do have iron-poor blood and you could be tired for that very reason and need Geritol.

Feel Stronger Fast

Just two Geritol tablets, or two tablespoons of Geritol liquid, contain twice the iron in a pound of calf's liver, plus 7 vitamins. Geritol-iron enters your bloodstream fast, carrying strength throughout your body. So, if iron-poor blood is making you feel tired, take Geritol. You'll feel stronger fast.

LIQUID TABLETS

on the form to list all your charity deductions, attach a separate schedule.

Taxes paid are the next deduction category. Your worksheet should show real estate and personal property taxes you paid. Some states treat car license fees as a personal property tax; if yours does, deduct those fees here, too. Your gasoline tax can be claimed by using a table printed in the IRS instruction book. Generally, you need only your total 1968 mileage to figure this deduction.

Claim the sales-tax deduction by using the IRS "guidelines" for your state. To use these "guidelines," found in your IRS instruction book, all you need are your adjusted gross income and the number of persons in your family. Don't forget that you can add any sales tax paid on a new car to your guideline deduction. (If you do this, indicate it in a footnote to page 2 of your return. Otherwise, IRS may think you didn't use the guideline, and an audit could result.) Of course, if you can prove that you paid more sales tax than the guideline allows, you can claim the higher amount.

The state income tax deduction deserves some special explanation. Your worksheet should show state tax withheld during 1968, as well as any estimated state tax payments made in the year. In addition, include in your deduction any final payment made on your 1967 tax return when it was filed in 1968. But if you received a state-tax refund during 1968 for tax overpaid on your 1967 return, you must reduce your deduction by the amount of the refund (or report it as miscellaneous income).

Your interest expense deductions should be easy to figure. The main item probably will be interest paid on your home mortgage. But don't overlook interest paid on installment-plan purchases. See the IRS instructions for details.

Miscellaneous deductions are entered next. Then total all your deductions and enter the amount on both page 2 and page 1 of your return. Be sure you include each deduction category in the total. It's easy to overlook an entire category because of the cluttered arrangement of the tax form. To compute your taxable income, turn to the front of the 1040 form and follow the line-by-line instructions.

► Computing the tax. If nothing else, make sure you use the right tax-rate schedule for your tax status. IRS reports that thousands of taxpayers use the wrong table—with disastrous consequences. Suppose your taxable income is $12,000, and you file a joint return. Your correct tax liability (including the new 10 percent surtax) is $2,429.50. If you mistakenly use the "separate return" tax table, the tax soars to $3,042.25, an increase of more than $600. If IRS fails to catch this, your carelessness can be expensive.

Any tax credits, such as investment credit or retirement income credit, should be computed now. These credits generally require complicated special forms, and you may need help preparing them. After deducting such tax credits, you must add any self-employment tax you owe to arrive at the total tax liability. Usually, if you're an employee covered by social security, you can ignore self-employment tax.

At this point, you should record any previous tax payments during the year. If you've made 1968 estimated tax payments, enter this total. Be sure to include your final 1968 estimated payment, which you probably didn't pay until January 1969. And exclude your final 1967 estimated payment made in January 1968, since you already got credit for that on your 1967 return.

One final tip on estimated tax payments: Suppose you had an $800 overpayment on your 1967 return, which you applied on your 1968 estimated tax of $4,000. Your canceled checks will show only total payments of $3,200 ($4,000 less $800). Yet you're entitled to credit for estimated tax of $4,000. Always double-check on this point to be certain you claim the full amount of estimated tax that you're entitled to. Now total all tax payments and subtract from your total tax liability. If your payments are less than your liability, you must pay the balance when you file. Hopefully, though, you may have overpaid your tax. If so, you can claim a refund, apply the overpayment on your 1969 estimated tax, use the overpayment to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

Before you prepare the filing copy, have someone else—possibly your spouse—go through the return and verify your arithmetic. Math errors probably cause more difficulty for taxpayers (and IRS) than any other single problem. All good professional tax return preparers insist that their work be checked for mathematical accuracy before the return is considered ready for filing, so why should you do less?

Once the penciled work copy of your return is finished and checked, the filing copy should be prepared and signed by all family taxpayers. Unsigned returns are often received by IRS, and cause problems.

And before you call it quits, put your work copy and your worksheets in a "1968 Tax Return" file for safekeeping. Remember, your worksheets are as valuable as your work copy. They're the key to each item on your return, and should be in good enough shape to indicate exactly how you arrived at every figure. If you're ever audited and have to say "I'm sorry, I can't remember how I figured that deduction," don't expect much sympathy—or agreement—from the auditor.

Then, when your 1968 return is completely finished and filed, don't forget one more job—start a "1969 Tax Return" file.

Better Homes and Gardens 1969 Income Tax Guide

This year, don't let April 15 sneak up on you. Instead, use the 1969 edition of our Step-by-Step Income Tax Guide to save time—and money—preparing your 1040 form. To simplify your tax computing, it contains samples of all major forms—and takes you line by line through each one. With its detailed index and cross-referencing system, it pinpoints any information you need quickly and easily. In the guide, you'll also find the highlights of 1968 tax changes, from the tax surcharge to the new social security rates.

And even after you've finished with this year's taxes, you'll want to keep this guide handy. That's because it contains a special section of long-range tax advice from the editors of Better Homes and Gardens. With it, you can make your next year's tax battle far simpler—and very possibly save some extra money in the bargain.

By ordering your copy now, you'll be one of the first to receive this valuable tax aid. Send $1.35 plus 25c for postage and handling to: Better Homes and Gardens, Reader Service Dept. 5902, Des Moines, Iowa 50303.

- Vultures, once reputed to be plague carriers, actually serve as efficient sanitary squads.
- A ruby-throated hummingbird beats its wings at the fantastic rate of 50 to 70 times a second, while the ponderous pelican flaps its wings as slowly as 1.3 times per second.

Only the resources of TIME and LIFE could have produced THE BIRDS—could mobilize such a distinguished team of writers, photographers, painters, and researchers, and draw upon such a vast file of great photographs. The book gleams with 200 iridescent photographs, paintings, drawings and maps of which nearly 100 are in full color. The careful blend of pictures with vivid text makes THE BIRDS a delight to look at and read. But it is also a highly authoritative, carefully indexed reference work complete with bibliography of research and reading materials.

ROGER TORY PETERSON, who wrote THE BIRDS with the Editors of Time-Life Books, is the world's best-known ornithologist, inventor of the Peterson System of field identification which revolutionized bird-watching.

EXAMINE IT FREE. You are invited to accept THE BIRDS for free examination. Share it with your children and their teachers. Then you may, if you wish, return it within 10 days and pay nothing. Or you may own it for much less than such an expensively prepared and illustrated book would ordinarily cost, thanks to our tremendous printing and distribution capabilities—only $3.95 plus a small delivery charge.

You will then also have the opportunity of examining other volumes in the LIFE NATURE LIBRARY which will be mailed to you at the rate of one every two months and to keep them, if you wish, at the same low price. You may take a few or as many as you like and you may cancel at any time.

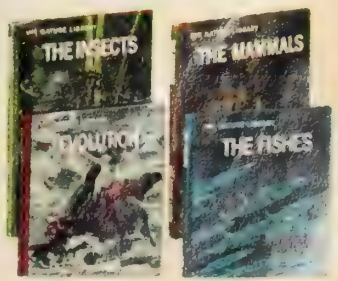

To receive your copy of THE BIRDS, simply mail the postage-paid card provided here or write to: TIME-LIFE BOOKS, Dept. 7101, Time & Life Bldg., Chicago, Illinois 60611.

In this age of wonder drugs and medical miracles, it's easy to think of your doctor as your first line of health defense. However in most illnesses, whether minor or major, your own body provides you with early warnings of trouble long before the doctor is ever consulted. In fact, you must usually decide whether these signs and symptoms are serious enough, or troublesome enough, to call your doctor's attention to them at all. Thus, your own common sense in judging what symptoms mean is actually your first line of health defense.

WHAT ARE SYMPTOMS, AND WHAT ARE SIGNS?

Sometimes the abnormalities that draw your attention are nothing more than changes in how you feel inside. There is no visible evidence of anything wrong. Such internally felt changes are called symptoms. You can't see symptoms (such as pain or nausea), but you know that they're there and that they're unusual. Signs of illness, on the other hand, are abnormalities which actually can be seen or demonstrated: bleeding, for example, or ankle swelling, or strange skin coloring.

Symptoms may vary from the very mildest of transitory headaches, on the one hand, to massive hemorrhage or alarming chest pain on the other—but they always occur for a reason. Like an alarm bell in the night, symptoms serve to warn you that some disorder is present, however insignificant it may prove to be. Thus they deserve at least momentary attention. Habitually ignoring recurring symptoms—or accepting them in an attempt to prove how strong and rugged you are—can be dangerous. You may come to accept them as “part of the normal” and cease to notice them at all, until some illness has progressed to the point of serious trouble.

These warnings are not necessarily indications of grave disorders. Your alarm system of signs and symptoms can be triggered as easily by a mouse as by a tiger. To find out which it is, check with your doctor when the alarm goes off.

HOW TO INTERPRET GENERAL SYMPTOMS

Many common symptoms are not specific at all. They fall into broad categories which don't indicate specific problems, but rather suggest general classes of disorders or illnesses that may possibly be causing them.

SYMPTOMS: WHEN TO CALL THE DOCTOR?

The headache is associated with a wide variety of disorders, ranging from the most benign and insignificant to the life-threatening. A mild, occasional headache, which disappears after a short nap or a couple of aspirins, generally reflects nothing more than nervous tension or temporary eye strain. You need worry only if it persists, becomes increasingly severe as time passes, or keeps recurring. Some headaches have a special significance. For example, headaches that are consistently present upon awakening could indicate the possibility of high blood pressure.

Other symptoms occurring at the same time may give you a clue as to the source of a headache. For instance, headaches often result as a side effect when an infection of some sort is present in the body. Many people develop a special, recognizable kind of headache any time their body temperature creeps even slightly above normal. Treatment of the underlying disorder—whether it be a case of tonsillitis, an abscessed tooth, or just a touch of flu—will usually relieve this sort of headache. The headache itself has no significance except as a warning that something else is out of order.

Severity, persistence, or recurrence of any symptom should alert you to consult your doctor without delay. Another general symptom, fever, is a good case in point. Almost invariably fever is a warning that infection or inflammation is present somewhere in the body, with the body temperature likely to climb the highest in the presence of bacterial or severe virus infections. But fever need not always indicate that you should hurry to your doctor. Many people occasionally have fleeting, low-grade fevers associated with mild infections—head colds, everyday virus infections, or stomach flu, for example. Such fevers in themselves need not cause panic.

Yet if you develop a high fever, or a fever that rises and falls in a pattern, or that persists for more than a day or two without any apparent explanation, don't delay calling your doctor. Always let him know when an infant or very small child (age four or less) develops a fever; infections in children of this age can flare up very quickly. In older children you can usually wait overnight, controlling an elevated temperature with a small dose of aspirin. But if the fever recurs in the morning, consult your doctor.

Another commonplace general symptom is nausea, which may result from some irritation in the gastrointestinal tract; from disturbances of balance (as in motion sickness); or even as a general reaction to the toxic effect of infection somewhere in the body. If an episode of nausea is mild, you can usually afford to procrastinate, since it may disappear in a short while and not recur. If it is severe and accompanied with vomiting, or if it tends to recur, something more serious may be going on and your doctor should know about it.

Pain is surely the most common (and often the most specific) of all the symptoms. People do not usually just hurt in general; when they have pain, they hurt in a specific way (that is, they have a sharp pain, or a burning pain, or a dull ache) and in a specific place. Often the quality and location of the pain will help identify its cause. Some kinds of pain obviously do not require instant medical attention: if your legs ache the day after a long hike, or if you have a painful black-and-blue mark where you bumped into a table, chances are that the trouble is self-limited and will take care of itself with time and rest.

Certain other kinds of pain should always be called to a doctor's attention without delay. Chest pain under the breast bone that doesn't fluctuate with breathing could mean heart involvement. Persistent or severe pain in the abdomen should never be ignored for long (it may indicate an infected appendix or gall bladder). Even if you feel quite sure you can identify some simple and harmless cause of your pain, consult a doctor anyway if it is severe, persistent, or recurrent. Your own diagnosis could be wrong.

WHAT'S DIFFERENT ABOUT SPECIFIC SYMPTOMS?

Coughing is almost always a specific sign of some irritation or disorder of the upper or lower respiratory tract. It means that infection, obstruction, or fluid accumulation is present somewhere in the air tubules or lungs. A persistent cough should never be ignored, especially if no recent chest X-ray has been made. Even a chronic "smoker's hack" caused by recurring irritation from tobacco smoke should be regarded as a possibly dangerous abnormality. Of course, a cough may persist while you are recovering from bronchitis or some other respiratory infection. But even then, if your cough seems to hang on for an unreasonable interval, request a careful medical examination to try to determine why.

Other specific symptoms include frequent urination and dysuria (painful urination), clearly related to disorders of the urinary tract; diarrhea or other deviations from normal bowel habits, suggesting disorders of the gastrointestinal tract; and joint pain or swelling, directing attention to the skeletal system. Such specific symptoms may seem more unusual, and therefore more alarming, than general symptoms. Don't panic. If the symptoms are mild, little harm can be done by waiting for a few hours, or even a day or so. But if the symptoms persist even in mild form, see your doctor.

Above all, don't be frightened away from the doctor's office because you are afraid some alarming symptom may forebode disaster. In most cases, your doctor's findings will be reassuring. If something is seriously out of order, postponing medical attention can only allow it to get worse.

WHEN DO SYMPTOMS SUGGEST SERIOUS DISORDERS?

Certain signs and symptoms indicating serious or immediate trouble do not sneak up on you. Rather, they are changes so obviously and drastically abnormal that they actually demand immediate medical advice.

Sudden unconsciousness for a brief interval, and sode of convulsions are examples of this sort of symptom. They suggest that something may be seriously wrong with the nervous system. Similarly, jaundice (yellowness of the skin) usually arises as a result of a potentially serious kind of disorder. Any unaccountable visual disturbance should be called to your doctor's attention without delay—you are too precious to take chances. Any unaccountable bleeding, such as blood in the stool, blood in the urine, or bleeding from the nose—can be an early warning of trouble that should be identified as quickly as possible.

Other symptoms to be investigated without delay are those commonly associated with cancer. In addition to unusual bleeding, be alert for other danger signals:

- Any lump or thickening in the breast, or elsewhere.
- Any sore that does not heal.
- Any persistent change in bowel or bladder habits.
- Persistent hoarseness or coughing.
- Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
- Any change in a wart or mole.
- Any sudden weight loss.

None of these symptoms, in itself, is proof of cancer, but any one can be a warning. Don't talk yourself into a false sense of security. Get medical attention because fear of one of these dangers may mean cancer—or, on the other hand, because the doctor may say it's "only a cold." When you are in doubt, it's always best to see the doctor.

Announcing: The end of the 4-cold family.

Nothing spreads through your family faster than a cold or the flu. And nothing spreads cold and flu germs faster than your bathroom glass. Somebody in the family picks up a cold, picks up the bathroom glass and before you know it everybody's got the cold. That's why you should get a Dixie Cup Dispenser for your bathroom. With Dixie Cups you don't spread germs, you throw them away. So if you want to help stop the spread of colds in your house, start with a Dixie Bathroom Cup Dispenser. It'll make your whole family feel better.

Smooth out family relations

There's irritation in every household.

Sore, chapped hands. Rough, dry skin. Even someone doing a burn from shaving.

Our family plan? Just introduce Dermassage to the crowd.

Dermassage treats every body to cool, creamy-white medication. It moisturizes and comforts Mom's sensitive skin. It smooths Sis' legs, elbows, and heels. It calms annoying itches. It cools and soothes Dad's sensitive skin before or after shaving.

Hospitals know all about Dermassage. The majority of them use it for patient skin care.

Bring home a dispenser bottle of Dermassage. And smooth over irritation in the whole family.

Soften often with medicated Dermassage Lotion. Or try super-moisturizing Dermassage Skin Cream.

A VERY COMPACT QUIET CENTER

Above: A friendly and functional library/home-office was skillfully carved out of just $9\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$ feet of floor space. Open bookshelves span one wall on the library side. The shelves begin 4 inches from the floor, are 92 inches high, and extend within a foot of the 9-foot ceiling. Statuary, glass, and other diminutive art objects are intermingled with books for added interest. Small-scale furniture fosters a feeling of spaciousness, as does the see-through cane of the pull-up chair. A patterned rug in a restful floral design defines the reading area.

Above: The office side of the room easily accommodates dual desk and chairs which, like the library furnishings, are slimly proportioned to work well within limited space. A tortoiseshell vinyl tile lines the walls, dado-fashion, and is repeated on the floor. An eye-stretching trick: beveled edge tile was laid on the diagonal and separated by small squares of solid black tile. The floor-to-ceiling window was simply dressed with tieback draperies and coordinated shade to flood the room with maximum natural light.

ever like this!

You've changed a lot lately. So has Sears! And here's one big change for the better—our Premier carpet with three fantastic improvements you won't find anywhere else.

We got rid of those bugaboos that made you leery of so many nylon carpets. Like static electricity. This carpet won't shock you after you walk across the room. We stopped quick soiling, too. Premier actually resists dirt. And improvement number three—the sun won't fade it. Premier stays bright no matter what.

Now the new nylon is here. It's thick, long-wearing 100% nylon pile. It's Premier. In 20 gorgeous colors, solids and tweeds. Come to Sears, Roebuck and Co. and see it or call for In-Home service.

Sears has the greatest floor show in town.

HOW TO OUTFIT A CLOSET FOR SPECIAL JOBS

Plan it right and you can turn an ordinary closet into a compact work/storage center. Here are seven examples of closets outfitted to put every inch of space to work. Decide which arrangements best fill your needs—then take inventory and assemble all the items you plan to store. Make space for large items first; fit others around them. Remember to include adequate lighting and wiring. And let yourself go on the decorating so your family will enjoy keeping things neat.

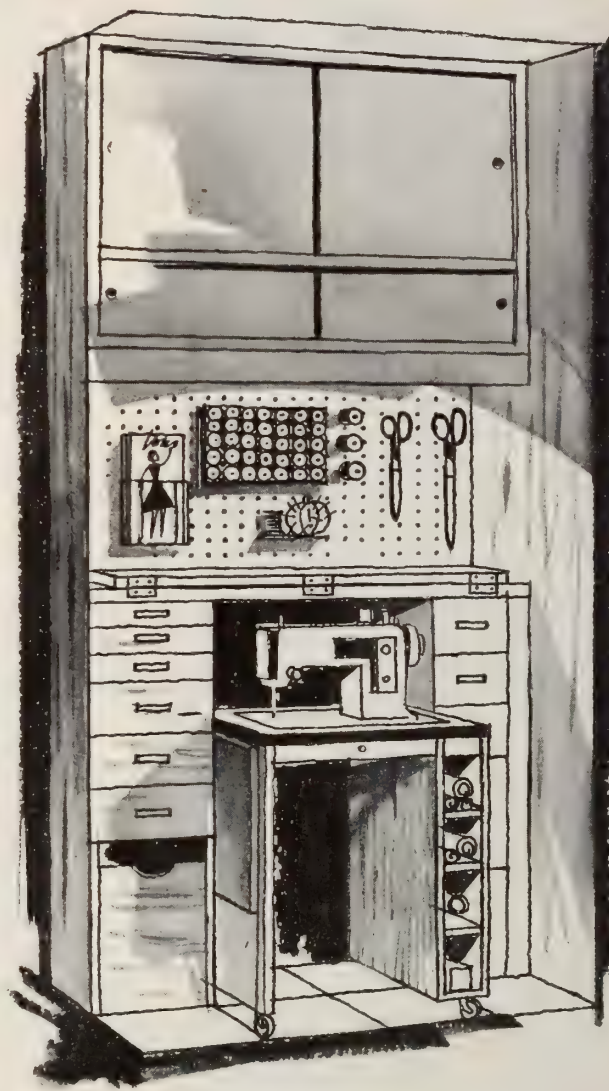

Sports Equipment Storage: Are golf clubs lodged behind winter coats? Sleeping bags vying with hats for shelf space? That's hardly sporting. Solution: convert a closet for your family athletes, or add one—in the garage, perhaps.

The sketch above shows one way to work space hard. We sectioned off special compartments down the side for balls, picnic gear, camping needs, tackle, skates, boots, helmets, games, gloves. The single file drawer contains road maps, licenses, camping guides; a locking one could guard your shells, knives, and other "keep safe" equipment.

If you wish, line up those rods, skis, rackets, bats, and bows along the inside of the closet door (not shown here). Improvise hooks, clamps, shallow racks, or elastic strips to secure these items. Or frame and hinge a separate perforated hardboard "hanging" panel in front of shelves.

To start, free your closet of its present contents. Then plot new sports spots: bulky items first, heavy ones below, young fry's favorites well within their reach. Diagram the shelves, figure all sizes, too. And plan the general location of small items before you saw or nail.

Sewing Center: You won't wait for rainy days to start sewing projects now! To shut out clutter while you're not working, simply close the door. Nest a ready-made cabinet sewing machine inside, or build a sturdy drop-leaf table like this roll-about. Another work top just above unfolds to twice its size; you might pad and slip-cover it for pattern cutting and pressing. Or hang a tabletop ironing board nearby on the door, plus a clothes rod or hook.

Make that work top more useful with recessed lighting above. Here, a 1x4 fastened below the wall unit shields a double row of fluorescent tubes. Oft-used tools and thread hang just below. If you use perforated hardboard for this job, be sure you frame the back with 1x1 strips before mounting on the wall so standard hooks will stay in place.

For other sewing needs, simply stack ready-made drawers. If you build your own, preplan the depth. Keep cards of buttons, hooks, markers, trim, and attachments handy—single-layered in a tier of shallow drawers. Patterns will need a deeper drawer to stand upright. The scrap bin just below is a castered wooden box.

Sooner or later, almost every toothpaste gets around to comparing itself to Crest.

And for good reason. Crest's ability to fight cavities has made it far and away America's leading toothpaste.

You know, it's kind of nice to be the one toothpaste everybody tries to measure up to.

Maybe you should see how your toothpaste stacks up to Crest.

For instance, you might check to see if it has the American Dental Association's Seal of Acceptance. You can be sure Crest does.

What's more, Crest has shown it reduces cavities even where the water has fluoride in it.

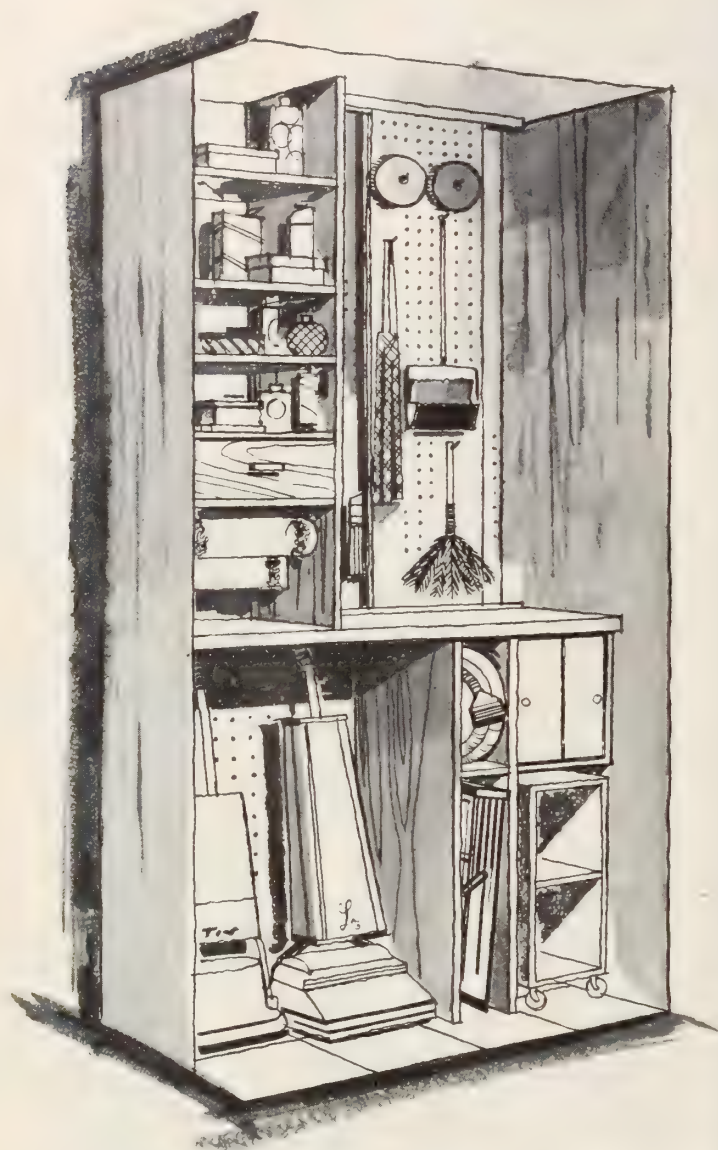

In fact, it's estimated that Crest has caused millions of cavities not to happen. We could go on, but you get the point.

So have checkups, watch treats, and brush after eating with Crest.

It's one great cavity-fighter.

Every inch of it.

The Yardstick.

Cleaning Gear Storage: Bewildered by bottles, bags, and brooms? Don't throw in the sponge—shelves, racks, hooks, and bins will solve your problem. But first, round up all your cleaning gear and take stock. Unless you're playing store, discard, combine, and give away. Toss out items never used and those that are obsolete. Then tuck weekly cleaning gear inside a plastic tote basket or rolling cart to save endless treks on cleaning day.

Next, in a soon-to-be (but now empty) cleaning closet, arrange your heavy equipment first—on or near the floor. Spot some hooks or a rack to hang vacuum hose without stretching it; clip long-handled items on the door. Plot space for bucket, rag bin, paper bag file, and a narrow niche for a light-weight stepstool. A drawer or a three-inch shelf holds pads, refills, razor blades. Or, section one drawer for shoe cleaners.

Group shelves compactly—and space them for bottles, cans, and jars. Then insert a service shelf, waist high, to relieve your kitchen counters of messy jobs like spot removing and shoe or metal polishing.

You'll find a wall-mounted metal soap dish or wire basket is just the place to park a dampened sponge. Hang a paper-towel holder, rag bin, vacuum attachments, squeegees, brushes, and dust pan on walls and tall panels. The panel shown here slides side to side in a 1/4-inch track mounted both on ceiling and work top.

Laundry and Ironing Supplies: Among household helpers that seldom rate a parking place are laundry supplies and ironing—plus mending box, clothes hamper, and a lot of other miscellany. Collectively, they represent long hours of labor; individually, small mounds of unsightly clutter.

Why not closet these orphans all together? You'll gain handyman honors if you include extra space for barbecue gear, picnic supplies, gift wrapping needs, flower-arranging gadgets, small appliances, and repair equipment.

To arrange and rearrange those open shelves in the sketch install standard metal shelf rests. Two small drawers hold sewing needs and iron-on patches. An open top and center slot encourage your family to use the generous-size mobile hamper below the work counter.

A built-in board is one sure way to keep ironing out of the living room. This unit piano-hinges to a cross brace extending 1 1/2 inches beyond the counter. If your closet's depth permits, slide your board under the counter on hardwood runs. Or use a metal pin to pivot the board so it slides sideways and tucks under the counter.

At a loss to find an ironing board like this? Amputate a wooden one, or shape one from 3/4-inch exterior plywood. Pad with inch-thick foam rubber, wrap and pin a cotton cloth; or, drawstring a heat-reflector cover. Hinge a folding leg below the center for added support. Continued on page 31

Why don't you become a professional Interior Decorator?

BY JANICE TRIMBLE

It's a high-income field where a woman is in her glory. The demand for decorating services is at a peak, and opportunities are unlimited...even if you use only part of your time. You can train at home without interrupting your regular duties.

ON'T THINK there is another profession today that offers more pleasure or greater rewards to a woman than that of interior decorating.

is the ideal place to put your natural love of beauty to practical use. You can prepare for one of the many attractive positions available or decide to go into business for yourself. Do you enjoy doing your own decorating? Have you ever helped a friend solve a decorating problem? Then you have the makings of success as a professional decorator.

Even if you've done no decorating, you can be one of many women with unsuspected talent in this direction—talent just waiting to be discovered.

You can now train for this work at home, on your spare time. No previous skills or experience are required for this training. Why not look into the many opportunities that interior decorating offers you?

A tremendously expanded field has opened up to be that only wealthy people employed professional decorators. That's no longer true. Increasingly large numbers of homemakers now rely on the services of decorators. They know that a decorator can provide beauty and individuality—and can often save them money, too.

Your work as a decorator is varied and interesting. It frequently takes you and your clients into plush showrooms and exclusive homes filled with treasures. You move in a world of fashion, creativity and ever-new challenges.

Designing and furnishing even a single room can earn you hundreds of dollars; larger assignments can earn you much more. Many women do extremely well in just part-time work; their own homes often serve as showcases for prospective clients.

But decorators are busy in many areas besides homes. Their talents are employed in decorating hotel rooms, business offices, building lobbies, clubs and institutions. That's why the profession has grown so enormously.

What the LaSalle Course teaches you

The LaSalle Course in Interior Decorating has been prepared by experts to give you complete and up-to-date preparation for this most exciting of modern careers. Lessons come to you by mail; they are as fascinating as the professional work itself. Much of the study material included is absolutely unique in a course of this kind. For instance, you get an attractive, simple-to-operate slide projector with color slides that show interiors as big as life on your wall. You also get professional sketching equipment, coloring materials, stencils that make it easy for you to draw room plans and furniture arrangements, and much more.

Step by step, you are shown how to develop your creative ability. You are taught the principles of color and design and the historic background of today's decoration. You are trained in the selection and use of furniture, fabrics, accessories, lighting. You learn how to achieve beautiful settings that will delight your clients and build your reputation. Even before you have finished the course, you will be able to apply your new knowledge to glorifying your own home.

At each step, you are given practical assignments which are then carefully reviewed by your instructors and returned to you. You are coached with thoroughness for your work as a professional decorator.

The LaSalle Course in Interior Decorating is backed by more than half a century of leadership in the field of adult education. More than 1,000,000 people have trained for success through home study with LaSalle.

Ty-D-bol® is the modern way to clean toilet bowls. It's the first automatic liquid toilet bowl cleaner that cleans and deodorizes continuously and automatically. You just clip Ty-D-bol upside down in the tank...so every time you flush, a carefully pre-measured amount goes to work to help remove rings, soften water and eliminate rust stains. Ty-D-bol leaves the water a clear, fresh blue. It's safe for rinsing and deodorizing soiled diapers. Economical too, with over 400 uses per bottle. Get Ty-D-bol. It works. You don't.

Ty-D-bol is harmless to skin, pets and septic tanks.

"Out-of-Season" Storage: Ultimately, disposable closets may put an end to the year-round shortage of closet space for out-of-season wear. In the meantime, there are many ways to pack more items in an existing closet. To store out-of-season togs alone, set aside an entire closet (if you're lucky enough to have an extra one).

Study the arrangement shown in this drawing. Then sharpen your tools, steel your patience, and set out to double the storage capacity of any closet in your home.

First, salvage that waste space near the ceiling. Move a standard shelf (and clothes rod) up—for storing off-season bulk: sweaters, snowsuits, blankets, beach wear. Then set the clothing rod for short and long garments with a vertical panel of $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch plywood. Add another rod below the one used for short togs.

Now, according to your needs, you can multiply and divide what seems to be a cavernous space below. We added space shelves for hats and shoes. The narrow ones hold gloves, scarves, knitwear, too. A fold-down shelf (optional) protects sweaters; drawer holds socks and undergarments. For hats, purses, and robe, add hooks galore along the side.

If you want to build a closet where none now exists in an attic—omit the door and just assemble shelves. Piles of colorful garment bags and stacks of matching boxes protect the contents from dust.

Home-office/Gift-wrapping Center: Maintaining your family records efficiently is now big business. Tax forms, canceled checks, bills, family health records, and important letters shouldn't be entrusted to a desk drawer here, a shelf there. What's the solution? Organize all your valuable papers in a closet-based home office. And while you're at it, reserve a little space for that elusive gift-wrapping gear, and see what you've accomplished!

Most family financial records will fit in these handy top-out drawers, as will your family health records. Across the top is storage spaced for books and boxes, with visibility provided by pinup lamps.

Light track hidden above the desk illuminates your work area, reduces eye strain. Chair (a pedestal type on wheels) is not shown, but stores under the desk when not in use. Compartments on the right are sized to hold a portable typewriter below, stationery or wrapping paper just above.

No more scrambled gift-wrapping attempts when all the needed supplies are in one place. At the right of the desk, movable dowels skewer an assortment of string and colorful ribbons. The bin at left holds rolls of paper, one of sturdy brown for out-of-town packages.

In the drawer, plastic boxes separate note pad, pencils, cards, shipping tags. Cork bulletin board on wall or door could display calendar and year-round chart of birthday anniversaries, scheduled events.

Hobby and Workshop Closet: Nobody claims you can squish a complete basement-style workshop into an upstairs closet. But if that's all the space you have to spare, look at amazing things you can do with it!

For example, you could mount a workbench top on a mobile scrap bin (get the locking type of casters, so your work surface won't roll away from you while in use). Fasten a vise in place, after making sure it will clear all obstacles when the bench is pushed in for storage.

Design the lower half of the unit to hold your workbench, a stool, and shelf space for portable power tools. Just above the stool, install some wide, flat drawers that we designed especially for sandpaper, rolls of tape, tubes of adhesive, and very small tools like punches.

Then set up the upper rear portion for shelves and cabinets to hold paints, varnishes, and glue bottles. To make your space even more useful, front these shelves with perforated hardboard on which you'll hang hammers, wrenches, saws, and other hand tools. The hardboard panels swing away on hinges so you can reach the cans and bottles behind them. It might also be a good idea to lock this section, to keep certain items inaccessible to youngsters. (This would be better than locking the whole closet, since it should be a hobby center the whole family can enjoy.)

Finally, extending toward you on both sides, build yourself some narrow shelves for nails, bolts, screws, tacks, and staples—stored in easy-to-see glass jars. Make sure you plan adequate lighting above, plus enough electric power outlets near your work surface.

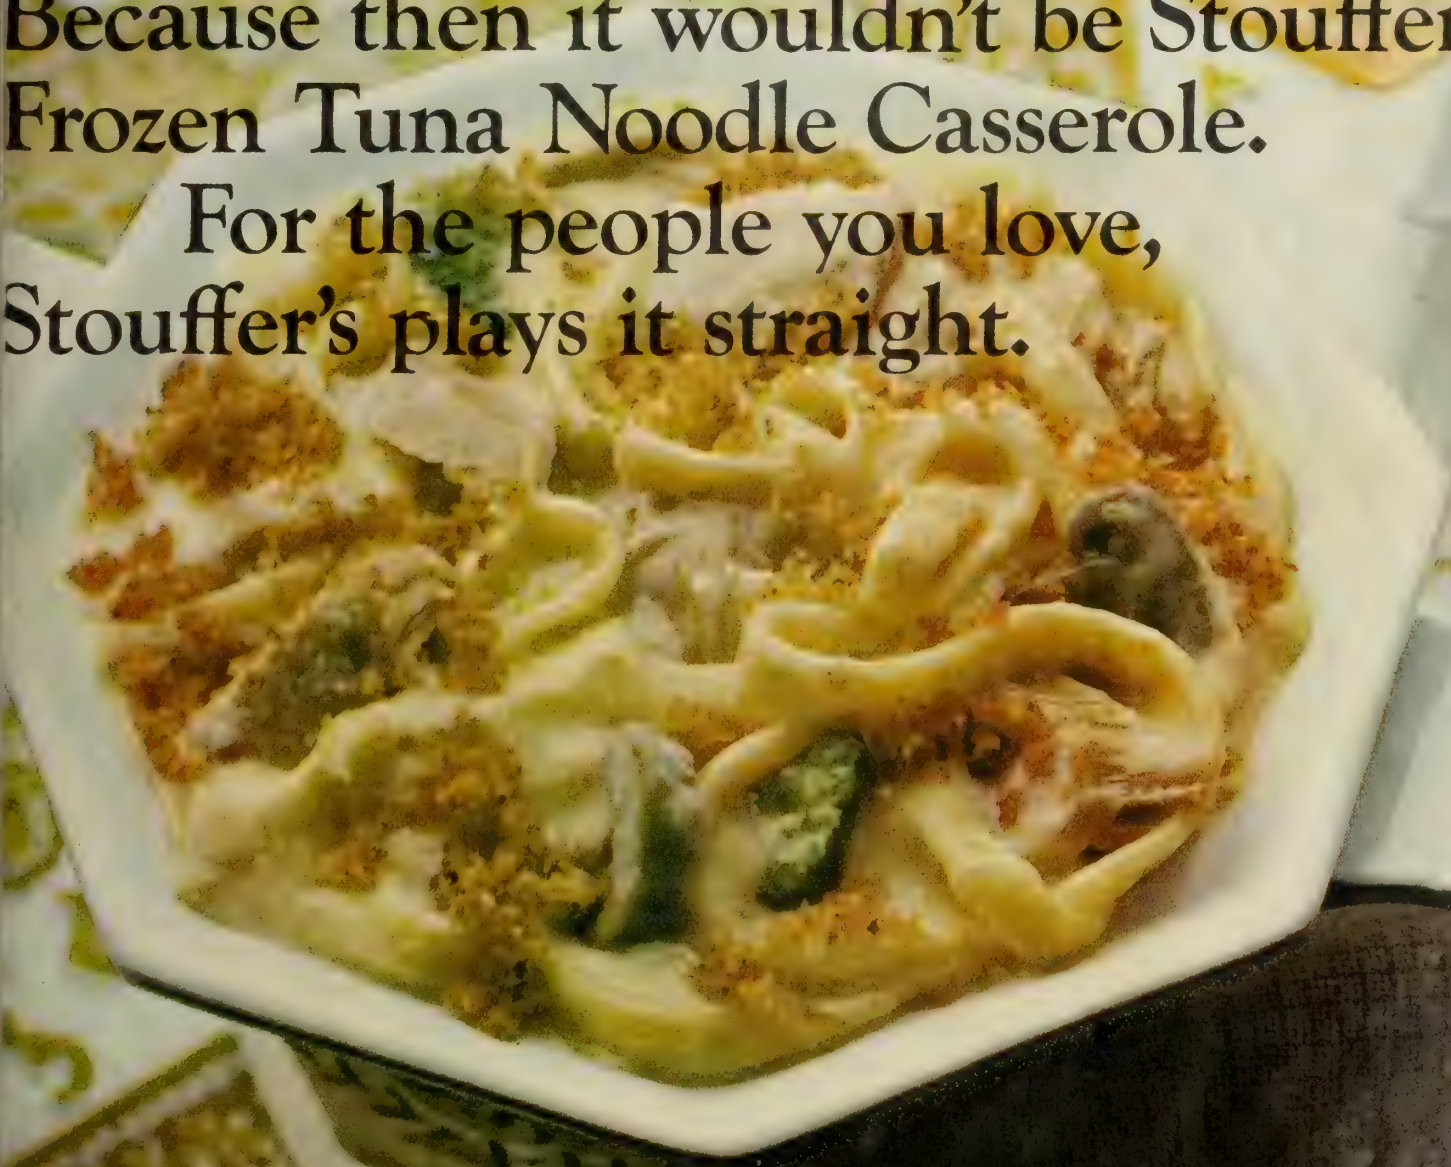

You still won't be able to rip up big sheets of plywood in this closet location, but you'll find it quite serviceable for most hobbies, modest carpentry projects, and various home repairs. And best of all, when the closet doors close, all your "mistakes" quickly disappear!

The Counter That Cooks.

Corning takes cooking out of the rut it's been in for over 100 years.

No coils, no burners, no grease traps. In fact, no crevices or ruts at all. Instead you cook on The Counter That Cooks.

A smooth, easy-to-clean PYROCERAM[™] surface that brings you Counterspace Cooking. (Because it's sealed, grease and spillovers have no place to hide.)

Turned off, the entire Counter That Cooks is usable counterspace. When it's turned on, it's a cook-top.

Hidden just beneath the surface are four electric heating elements. Each cooking area is indicated by a handsome sunburst design.

When the heat is on, the sunburst glows yellow. (See it under the saucepan?) The others not in use stay cool and safe.

But the real proof is in the cooking. The Counter That Cooks comes with a complete set of PYROCERAM Cookmates which are flat and polished to provide perfect contact with the cooking surface. This means that on any of the four thermostatically controlled cooking areas, the heat is distributed so evenly you may never use a double boiler again.

Like any counter, a wipe with a damp cloth makes fast work of most spills and cooking spatters. (That's something to think about next time you try to clean your old-fashioned stove-top.)

And that's how The Counter That Cooks takes cooking out of its rut.

Corning promises that for one year from the date of purchase any deficiency which occurs will be corrected free of charge, including parts and labor. Free parts will be provided for an additional two years.

Medical Fact: She Needs Far More Iron Than He Does!

Because she—like most women between 15 and 50—loses vital blood iron every month during menstruation and may not replace it with her normal diet.

If you do not replace this blood iron loss, your body just doesn't get the energy-giving oxygen it must have. You look pale . . . lose energy, tire easily . . . become so irritable that family and work become burdensome.

Take IRONIZED YEAST. It provides the iron you need to overcome tired blood—iron deficiency anemia . . . provides the iron so essential to good health and happy living. Best of all, of the millions of prescriptions doctors write for iron needs each year, including iron-poor blood, most are for the same kind of iron contained in IRONIZED YEAST.

Now, the great majority of women with these symptoms don't have iron deficiency anemia and IRONIZED YEAST won't help them. But for women who may lose vital blood iron through menstruation and not replace it, remember IRONIZED YEAST. It can help you regain your pep and vitality fast.

IRONIZED YEAST tablets are economical, too. You pay only for the iron you need . . . not for multi-vitamins and other additives that can't do a thing for iron loss. 60 Tablets only 98¢.

Do a Good Job Fast With These Proven Ideas

SIMPLE ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

No one but an electrician should tamper with your house's wiring system. But many small electrical jobs are safe, simple, do-it-yourself operations. You will never see—or feel—a spark if you know what needs to be done, and shut off current to the wires you're working on.

If you've ever replaced a fuse or tripped a circuit breaker, you know how to stop the power. Diagnosing the trouble is just as easy, though it takes more time. Let's follow the step-by-step process of elimination you'd follow if a lamp failed to light.

First check to be sure the lamp is plugged in and has a healthy bulb. Now the outlet. Try another lamp, or test the dead lamp in another outlet. If the outlet checks out, inspect the plug.

LAMP CORDS, PLUGS, SOCKETS

Defective plugs are the culprits responsible for most lamp blackouts. Start with the plug. If you see loose or broken wires, corroded or bent prongs, smashed insulators—replace them. Newer plugs make this job easy. To connect them, just cut off the old plug, shove the wire into a slot, and snap a lever that punctures the insulation and makes the connection.

Also inspect the entire length of cord. If it's damaged at all, replace it. This usually involves taking the lamp apart and running a new wire from socket to plug.

On most lamps, the socket can be removed by loosening a set screw and turning. All sockets have a metal housing that comes apart at the base—you'll see a dent with the word "press" embossed on it. Push with your thumb and the base should snap off, though a screwdriver may be needed. With the socket apart, you'll see the terminal screws.

If you're replacing the socket, consider updating it with a three-way version or one with a built-in dimmer. This one has a rheostat so you can dial the brightness. Both are interchangeable with conventional sockets.

This trouble-shooting process also applies to small electrical appliances. If you replace a three-wire cord, be sure to connect the third or ground wire to the proper terminal. It's usually colored green.

WALL OUTLETS

Newer electrical codes require three-prong, grounded receptacles in kitchens, bathrooms, garages, and basements. They're safer and more convenient than pigtail adapters. In some areas, however, outlets must be replaced by electricians, so check ordinances before you begin.

If you're permitted to do the job, first make sure the power is off. Remove the cover plate from the wall, and take off the two screws that hold the receptacle to the box. Now you can pull out the receptacle and get at the terminal screws on each side or rear.

You'll see a white wire connected to a silver-colored screw, and a black or red wire connected to a brass screw. Disconnect the wires and connect to the new outlet the same way—white to white, black to brass.

If the receptacles were properly installed to begin with, you'll see an uninsulated, silver-colored wire secured to the side of the box or one of its metal fasteners. This is the ground. Connect it to the green terminal of the new receptacle. If you don't find a third wire, and if your house wiring runs through metal conduit or flexible metal cable, tie the ground terminal to the box with a short piece of wire. If you don't have conduit or flexible metal cable, you'll need an entirely new wire to that outlet—a job for an electrician.

Surface wiring lets you add outlets yourself, though it won't increase a circuit's capacity. A variety of easily installed types plug into existing outlets and run along baseboards, serving as unobtrusive, permanent installed extension cords.

WALL SWITCHES

Replacing a defective switch or updating an older type is another simple job you can do if electrical codes in your area permit. Follow the steps above for replacing a receptacle. One difference is that some new switches have no terminal screws. Just straighten the ends of the old wires and push them into holes at the back of the switch. A pressure connector grips the wires.

You'll find a variety of switches to choose from. Silent switches look like conventional types, but don't click. Rocker switches can be easily activated with an elbow.

A dimmer switch is an excellent choice for areas where you'd like to vary the intensity of lighting. One type has "high," "low," and "off" positions. Others have knobs that let you dial light from off to full intensity.

For outdoor or bedroom lights, you can install delayed-action switches. Turn the switch off and the light stays on a few more minutes. Timer switches do the same job but for longer periods. They have dials you set for anywhere from a few minutes to several hours. Use them for fans, lights, or other items you'd like to turn off automatically.

DOORBELL REPAIRS

Low voltage makes doorbells and chime perfectly safe for trouble-shooting. If you have an older model, first check to be sure the dry cell battery is alive. Next test the button by unscrewing it and disconnecting the two wires. If the bell rings when they're touched together, you need a new button.

If it doesn't ring, go to the bell transformer. You'll find it connected into the house wiring near the fuse box. Check the fuse or circuit breaker to be sure current is flowing. If it is, the transformer may be defective. Test it with a scrap of wire that's bare at both ends.

On one side of the transformer you'll find two wires permanently connected. These go straight to the fuse box. Don't touch them. On the other side of the transformer are two terminal screws to which the bell wire is connected. Press one end of your test wire to a screw and rub the other lightly across the other screw. If the transformer is working, you'll see small sparks.

If the transformer checks out, see if current is flowing to the bell. Disconnect the wires and brush them together while someone presses the button. If you don't see sparks, replace the wires. If you see sparks, power is getting to the unit. Brush off the contact points and other connections, and check for loose or broken wires. Test again. If the unit doesn't work, you need a new one.

A PROMISING STEP FORWARD IN ASSEMBLY-LINE HOUSING

By Jerry Reedy
Special Assignments Editor

Visit a house construction site today and you might find yourself doing a double take—if not scrambling for cover. Instead of seeing workmen banging away with hammers, you may well view giant boxes swaying beneath cranes. The boxes are “modules”—the building blocks of a small, but progressive and growing segment of the housing industry. Stacked on top of each other or inserted in huge frames, modular components create housing in a fraction of the time required by traditional methods of construction.

At San Antonio's Hemisfair, for example, cranes put together a 21-story modular hotel for Hilton in only nine months. Conventional construction time for such a project is about a year and a half.

The mobile-home industry also joined the trend by creating stronger mobile homes and stacking them up in what became known as “instant housing.” In most cities, however, mobile homes have found this construction route tough, if not impossible, because of zoning ordinances, building codes, and loan restrictions.

Much new building technology has been employed only in large, multi-family public housing, or in experimental show-cases such as “Habitat” at the Montreal World's Fair. By contrast, single-family housing remains largely a board-by-board operation, with few innovators and even fewer innovations. At a time when housing is both scarce and expensive, the situation cries out for a solution.

Fortunately, a few have heard the cry. One such man is Jim Price, chairman of the board and co-founder with his brother of National Homes Corporation, the nation's largest prefabricator. National has been manufacturing prefabricated houses since 1940; this month the Lafayette, Indiana, concern rolled out Number 335,000. Tough and hard-driving, Price has two primary goals: to make National Homes the General Motors of the housing industry, and to put decent housing within the reach of everyone. He may just succeed.

In 1967, after riots in Chicago, Detroit, and Newark, Price approached the mayors of the three cities with a plan to build single-family townhouses on vacant land in the ghettos. Chicago was the first to accept, and the initial eight structures were set in place last August.

A typical approach? Not quite. Each four-bedroom unit is completely furnished, fully landscaped, and air-conditioned. Interior and exterior building materials were purchased from major manufacturers on the basis of quality, durability, and low maintenance. The simple yet smart exterior styling gives little if any hint of “public housing.” In back, each townhouse has a private patio, as well as access to a common recreation area with separate sections for adults and children. Grass, trees, and shrubs are included just as they would be in any good suburban development. Total price: $14,500.

When asked how he manages to produce a quality home at this figure, Jim Price spurns such words as “technology,” preferring to call it “know-how.” Whatever it was, the Chicago project allowed National workmen to perform virtually the ultimate in prefabrication: They completed each of the eight houses down to the last detail entirely within the factory and in compliance with FHA, VA, and Chicago's own stringent building code. And they did it in only ten days! Continued on page 133

At General Electric we believe in "matched components." So we make all the major parts of our central air-conditioning units ourselves. They fit together well, work together smoothly, and last.

Yet, today, many of our competitors are "assemblers," not integrated manufacturers. Even some of the largest buy at least one major component (such as the compressor) from somebody else.

We even buy a few parts from somebody else—our name tag, for instance. Our shipping container. And a handful of screws, fasteners, bolts, washers, etc.

But the critical components—the compressor, the cooling coils, the motor, things like these, we make ourselves for extra reliability.

A good reason the exclusive GE Climatuff Compressor has proved 99% reliable in over 100,000 installations.

"Matched component" reliability is one reason to buy GE.

Certainly, you could build a great new house with a budget running into six figures. Who couldn't?

But you can also do the job when your available dollars are limited. You do it by making every square inch of the floor plan count, by choosing materials that look good without needing costly ornamentation, by building a house that will capitalize on an inexpensive lot.

In short, you demand good design. That's what all of the houses on these seven pages have in common. They provide the things you expect from an ordinary house—enough bedrooms, enough bathrooms, enough windows and kitchen cupboards. But with the extra ingredient—good design—they offer a family so much more than an ordinary house could.

And in our March issue, we'll bring you eight more houses, just as great and just as affordable as these. Perhaps one of this series will turn out to be your next home.

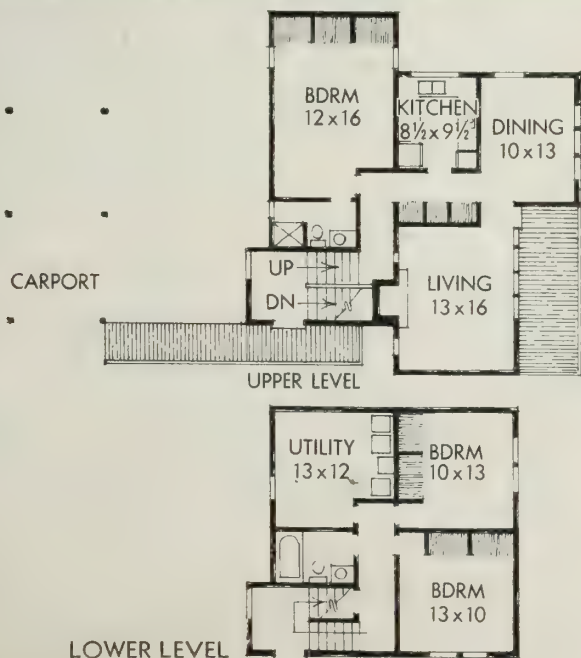

SEVEN SMART, AFFORDABLE HOUSES

A house that makes the most of a steep lot

Take a spectacular, sloping lot and fit a house, carport, and driveway to it—and you'll get a spectacular place to live. That's exactly what this handsome house is. Cross the bridge to the sheltered front door and walk into the mid-level entry. Then up a few steps to the main level—every room there is traffic-free. Or walk down a few steps to the two children's bedrooms and a utility room big enough to take care of all clutter activities.

Siding is cedar with a transparent stain. The four-, six-, and eight-inch-wide boards are placed at random. A tall light fixture makes a welcoming landmark—and signals the driveway's end. House and carport are 73x38 feet overall; living area totals 1,591 square feet.

Privacy and openness in the right places

Brick walls hide this house from the street, yet they also help relate the rooms to the outdoors. Front exterior (right) gets its welcoming look from the distinctive brick pattern and from the entry court gates at far right. At the side, those brick walls extend like giant fins to stop a view of the inside.

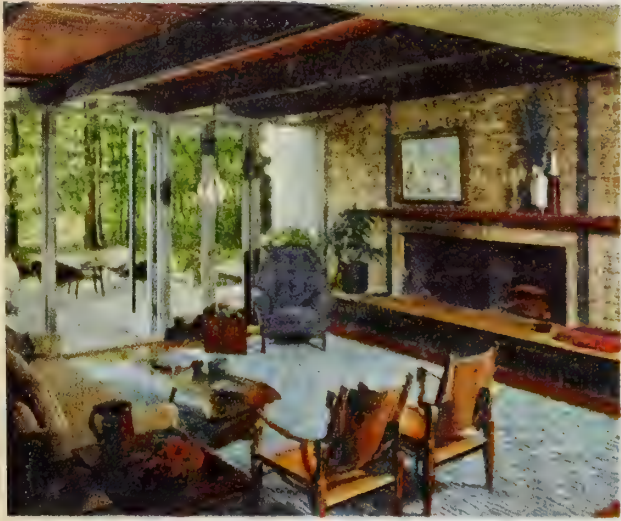

Carried inside, the walls divide the living areas and add interest and warmth. In the living room (left), the fireplace wall extends outside to shield the terrace. When the weather's right, just open those four tall doors to use the terrace and living room as one.

Floor plan shows how all traffic revolves around the entrance hall—guests are introduced to it by walking through the court.

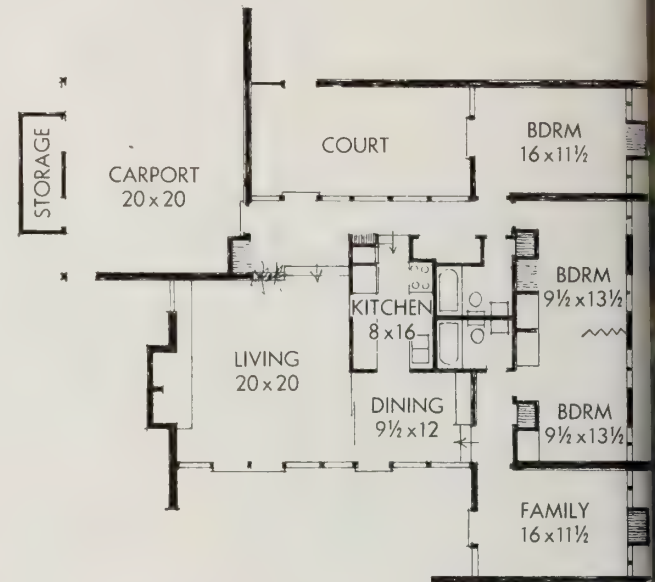

From the hall, the sunken living room is only a step away; the kitchen is close, too, and the bedrooms only a few steps farther. The efficient corridor kitchen can be as open or as closed as you like. Sliding screens open for an informal party so one counter can serve as a buffet. Or if the occasion is formal, the screens can be extended to divide the living and dining rooms until it's time to go to the table.

Including wall extensions, overall dimensions are 70x60 feet. Living area is 1,660 square feet. More on this house, page 112

Simplicity in a house pays off in a big way

The best and easiest-to-live-with design is often the simplest, and this wonderful house proves the point.

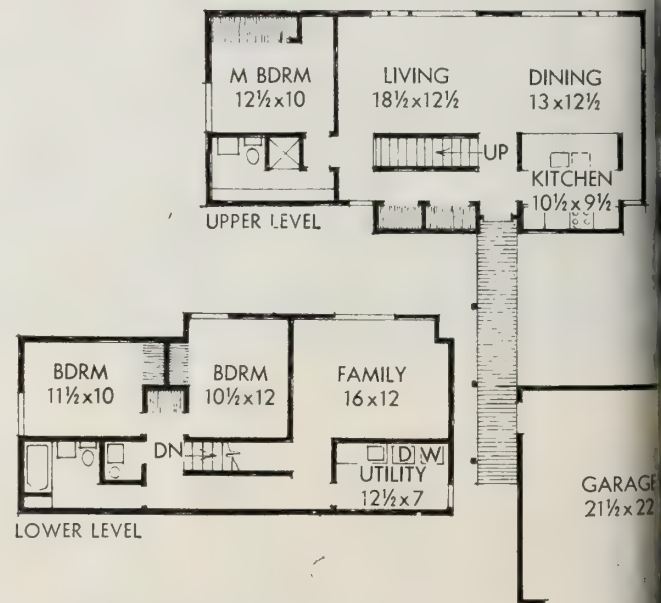

On the exterior, that plywood siding with 1x3 battens looks great without frills. And it needs only an occasional staining to keep up.

All through the house, every piece of material is as standard and everyday as the plywood. Costs stay low when you build this way.

The simplicity in the floor plan makes living in this house a breeze. Home from the supermarket, you needn't lug groceries far—because the corridor kitchen is only steps away. With 18 feet of counters and cabinets, you can put away everything in record time.

The two-walled stairway (left) links the two levels in a very handsome manner. The open treads don't break the view from this end of the stairs.

But the extra separation provided by two levels contributes to the peace and quiet of any family. Parents gain privacy above, children have independence (and responsibility) below.

The living/dining areas at the far left seem larger than they are because they join; both have large glass areas.

With the garage placed this way, the overall dimensions are 64x55 feet. The two levels of living area total 1,623 square feet. More on this house, page 111

A very special split-entry house

There's truth in the old adage that the most economical house is a simple box. A box though, isn't livable—unless it is as well-thought-out and as well-designed as this one.

It doesn't even look like a box, because floor and ceiling beams extend out front. The beams, with connecting vertical posts, contribute to the handsome, angular look—and the result is a very special 33x24-foot split-entry house.

The living and dining areas (left) are a zone for all seasons. You can move your living inside or out—the rooms and the deck function exactly the same way. There's a big plus in that deck for young families, too. Children play safely, where they're easily supervised.

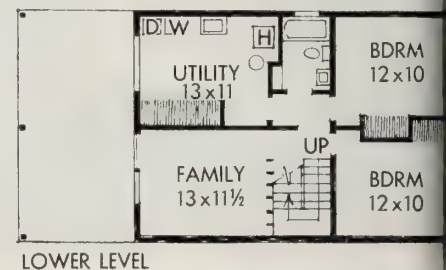

Another way this house shows its excellence is in the floor plan. Instead of relegating the lower level to basement-like space, this split-entry plan makes every square foot delightfully usable. Children's bedrooms are large and light-filled—and the kids have activity space in the family room, their own private bath, and easy access to the outdoors. Above, parents retain complete privacy in the master suite.

Overall, the house measures 44½x24 feet. Living area is 1,594 square feet. More on this house, page 128

A union of separate units

Separate and distinctive sheds comprise this unusual house. Each unit has its own cedar-siding exterior walls and cedar-shingle roof. Yet the sheds stand united around the flat-roofed kitchen and dining area.

Beyond the entry is the airy and workable dead-end galley kitchen. Skylights, with brightly hued wells, allow daylight to spill over the work area. At night, lights positioned inside the wells do a good job of illumination. Utensils are handy at the end of the kitchen; the other end accommodates a desk, refrigerator, and pantry. A plant room off the kitchen can hold a small jungle—or maybe you prefer a breakfast area, or a sewing nook. You pick the need.

Three bedrooms, buffered by baths and hall, provide a retreat from the active areas of the house. If the quiet of bedrooms is not enough for you, a bonus space, created by the sloping roof of the garage, is ideal for future construction of

A story-and-a-half of well-planned space

The unusual wood-shingled roof gives this house a snug, down-to-earth look that sparks up an ordinary setting. And its second floor offers very efficient space without making the house look too tall.

Double doors, flanked with glass, bid a warm welcome. And just inside, the entry—with its double closets—previews the convenience that extends all through the house.

The brick-faced, raised-hearth fireplace is the center of activity of the living area. Both living and dining rooms flow together around it. And outdoor living is just a step away through sliding glass doors on either side of the fireplace.

A look at the floor plan shows how much 1,945 square feet can do for you. Start with the two bedrooms on the first floor, if you like, and finish off the upstairs later on.

Heart-of-the-house location of the kitchen makes work go faster. The family room is easily supervised from just across the wide counter, and the dining room is as close as it can be. At mealtime, take your pick of places to eat—a quick snack at the counter, breakfast in the family room, or a formal, fire-side dinner in the dining room.

From tip-to-tip of the hat-like roof, this house measures 45x29 feet.

A house with surprise space inside

When a home is planned around a central circulation core, great things happen to the floor plan. Then add a good-looking, easy-care exterior, plus smart site planning, and you get all your money's worth.

A large gravel area in front of this house—which is located in the "new town" of Columbia, Maryland—lets you drive right up to either entrance. The recessed formal entrance is marked by the deck and steps at the left. The family entrance is behind the privacy screen on the right which also shields a patio just beyond.

The redwood tongue-and-groove siding was put on vertically and stained. The roof is brown asphalt shingles, and the trim was stained to match it.

Inside, the living room (left) shows how all the rooms radiate from the center. The fireplace soars the full height of both levels, and the studio looks down on this part of the room.

entry to the heart of the living room; the family can get here easily from two directions. Traffic in the rest of the house is confined to the area around the stairway—on both levels.

Upstairs, both of the children's rooms are small, but they have a common playroom between. It can accommodate toddlers' toys as readily as it could teen-agers' study desks. And the studio can serve as a work or hobby center for both parents. Or the whole clan can gather in the family room.

Floor space of the house totals 1,950 square feet.

HOW TO IMPROVE ON THE PERFECT ROSE

By Hamilton Mason, Garden Editor

The rose is one of the most perfectly formed flowers, so how can you improve upon that? Simple. Just plant more than one! And arrange your planting so the blossom colors of adjacent varieties blend or contrast pleasingly with their neighbors. The four 1969 All-America winners offer a wide range of types and colors of bloom, including white, lavender, pink, and scarlet. All are pictured on the following pages with other brand-new or recent introductions. Place your orders soon with local or mail-order nurseries so you can enjoy these great roses in your garden this summer.

Left: Velvety red and light pink form a stunning partnership in the garden. The deep red hybrid tea Proud Land is an exceptionally fine rose and is worthy of being the Rose of the Year for 1969. Its high pointed buds and five- to six-inch open blooms can be the feature point of any sunny spot in the garden. Vin Rosé, a new hybrid tea for '69, combines shades of light and dark pink with some coral shading in the open bloom. Petals are so numerous that they overlap each other when flowers are full blown.

Wave: Red and white roses contrast strongly, with each benefiting from the luminous quality of the other. Pascali, an All-America winner for '69, is about the whitest hybrid tea available today. Its long stems and foliage make it perfect for cutting. Heat Wave gets its name from the many Chinese-red flowers it produces in great quantities from spring through fall. Being a floribunda, Heat Wave produces flowers in candelabras of four or more blooms.

See on next page

Below: Golden orange and pink create an unexpected, but eye-catching combination. The pink floribunda Gene Boerner receives the 1969 All-America award for its exceptional shape and even color. Its free-flowering habit keeps it in constant bloom. The orangy blooms of Woburn Abbey, also a floribunda, appear in clusters of five or six all season long. Floribundas offer some of the finest landscape color for either hedge or specimen use, and also look well combined with hybrid teas in formal beds.

Below: The brilliant color switch between a warm scarlet red and a flashy yellow adds excitement to any spot in the garden. Comanche, a red grandiflora, displays its All-America (for '69) form with high-pointed buds and heavily petaled, full-blown blooms. Golden Prince (new this year) is a hybrid tea with non-fading yellow flowers. Both are sturdy growers with free-blooming habits, and they're great to cut for use in arrangements—even one blossom in a bud vase creates a picture.

Above: Lavender and white have a timeless quality that is especially appealing to the ladies. Angel Face is the name of the lavender floribunda which amply deserves its All-America Rose Selections award for 1969. The unusual color, classic shape, and delightful, heavy fragrance make this one a must for every garden. White Knight, a 1958 AARS winner and one of the three white roses ever to win this coveted award, is a perfect companion for roses of any color. The large white blooms are flawlessly formed.

Left: Bright pink and yellow pair off naturally for a most pleasing effect. New this year is the pink grandiflora Marie Antoinette whose medium- to large-size blooms are borne singly and in clusters. Each flower is fully double and of a deep rosy-pink. Summer Sunshine is probably the purest yellow rose there is. Its flowers are full and of good size, but it's the color that makes Summer Sunshine a prime candidate for combining with your other roses. Give your roses a sunny, well-drained spot, feed each month with rose food, water to keep soil moist, and spray or dust each week against insects and diseases.

Duane L. Gregg, Automotive Editor

You might think that buying and maintaining two cars is simply a matter of doubling the costs of the first one. Actually, it's much more complex than that.

To work out a practical approach to car ownership, you must take a variety of variables into account.

There are four major ways of scaling your two-car ownership. Let's

WAYS TO BUY AND SELL

1 PLAN 1A (1 new and 1 middle-aged—'69 and '65). New car every four years. 1st car becomes 2nd. 2nd is traded in.

What you have invested in cars (retail) before depreciation.	'69-$2956 '65-$1116 $4072
Average monthly operating costs (incl. deprec.) during ownership cycle.	'69-$ 118 '65-$ 82 $ 200

PLAN 1B (1 new and 1 middle-aged—'69 and '66). New car every three years. 1st car becomes 2nd.

Average monthly operating costs (incl. deprec.) during ownership cycle.	'69-$ 127 '66-$ 90 $ 217

These two similar options represent the most widely practiced methods of two-car ownership, because they combine the benefits of reliability and economy. Your first car should be trouble-free and reliable while it occupies first place. With the bulk of the depreciation factor out of the way, your properly maintained second car should continue to give you good service with modest repair bills.

Even after three years, your newer car may have no more than about 30,000 miles on it, and the one you are about to trade has not yet reached the heavy-repair-bills stage. If you follow Plan 1A and its eight-year cycle, your annual costs per car should be lower than in a six-year cycle (Plan 1B), because of a longer depreciation spread and lower insurance rates. But higher maintenance costs will partially offset this.

Dependability is a primary consideration. During your #1 car's fourth summer—just before it is relegated to #2 spot—will it finish that long family vacation trip without considerable repair expense? And will you wind up in a quandary about whether to fix (or trade) when you're just around the corner from new-model time?

Thus dependability makes a better case for the six-year cycle (Plan 1B), because your first car is never older than three years and should be up to all its tasks without major expenses. Your costs may total no more than an additional $17 a month to trade every three years (versus every four in Plan 1A). Stretching that extra year may not be worth it.

2 (1 new car and 1 fairly new—'69 and '67). Older car traded every other year.

Average monthly operating costs (incl. deprec.) during ownership cycle.	'69-$ 136 '67-$ 100 $ 236

This plan is based on a four-year cycle. Your new car is traded when it is four years old, having served half its time as your second car. Plan 2 is the best way to go if you need totally dependable transportation with both cars at all times.

In this plan, you have two automobiles that probably will be almost trouble-free during the entire time you own them, requiring a minimum outlay for repairs. Because your second car is only four years old at the end of its cycle, you've enjoyed the best miles it has to offer since you traded before any expensive repairs were due. The monthly cost, surprisingly, is only about $36 a month more than the eight-year cycle in Plan 1A, where the first car becomes the second car at four years and has four more years to go.

According to a summary statement in the government study, "... except in states where there is a substantial property tax on the value of a car, and except for financing charges, the decision to trade in a car or to keep it a while longer should be based on the owner's tastes and circumstances, rather than on the thought of increasing or decreasing cents-per-mile costs of owning and operating a car. As far as economy is concerned, he can make the decision with a clear conscience."

3 PLAN 3A (1 new and 1 old—'69 and '63). New car every other year. 2nd car driven until junk.

Average monthly operating costs (incl. deprec.) during ownership cycle.	'69-$ 136 '63-$ 82 $ 218

PLAN 3B (1 new and 1 old—'69 and '63. New car every 4 years. 2nd car driven until junk.

Average monthly operating costs (incl. deprec.) during ownership cycle.	'69-$ 111 '63-$ 82 $ 193

You trade your first car every two years, and drive the second one until there's not much left of it. The combination could include a '69 and a '60, which you are barely managing to keep operational.

While you do have the benefit of a good first car for long trips, business, and so forth, your second car is likely to be a constant source of headaches and possibly a safety hazard.

Don't underestimate the importance of reliability and your safety. When you are behind the wheel of your old second car, its safety and dependability are as important to you as they are when you're driving your newer one. These are critical factors you may be foregoing by holding on to that rapidly deteriorating "clunker?" Probably none, because each of them separately, consider the main factors that might influence final decision. The charts accompanying our owner-plans are compiled from figures furnished by the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, and Bureau of Public Roads. They are based on the operating costs of a standard sedan in the $3,000 price bracket, driven an average of 10,000 miles a year. They include depreciation, repair and maintenance, gasoline and oil, tires, accessories, and insurance. They do not include any financing or interest charges.

YOUR FAMILY'S TWO CARS

could shift to Plan 1 or Plan 2 and the benefit of two fairly new cars very little more money. If you trade your first car every four years and keep the old one, it costs you $205 per month for the combination; $223 if you trade your first car every other year. And you can rotate a one- and three-year old car on the six-year cycle in Plan 1B for only $217.

PLAN 4A (1 middle-aged and 1 old—'67 and '62). Older car traded every other year.

What you have invested	'67-$1847
in cars (retail)	'62-$ 464
before depreciation.	$2311
Average monthly operating costs (incl. deprec.)	'67-$ 100
during ownership cycle.	'62-$ 65

PLAN 4B (1 middle-aged and 1 old—'65 and '63). Older car traded every other year.

What you have invested	'65-$1116
in cars (retail)	'63-$ 608
before depreciation.	$1724
Average monthly operating costs (incl. deprec.)	'65-$ 88

Here you may have a combination of a '62, or possibly a '65 and a '63—older car traded for a middle-aged every other year—with about the same operational costs. If economy is the principal factor, this compromise may be your answer to two-car ownership. Plan 4A involves a bit higher initial investment, but offers the benefit of a fairly reliable first car. In Plan 4A and 4B, your sacrifice comes in terms of an inferior second car. When family car requirements are minimal (not needed for business or other special transportation), you may be able to get along with two aging cars. But be prepared for a crisis if you need dependable transportation. The cost of preparing an older car for a trip may negate all savings of Plan 4.

WHAT ABOUT INSURANCE?—Your insurance costs will not double with two-car ownership. Depending on the age, use, and driver of your second car (and the amount of coverage), that car's premium may amount to about half of what coverage costs on your first car.

You probably will get a 10 percent discount if you insure both cars with one company—but that's the only saving inherent in two-car ownership. Other savings are available to any car-owner who elects to drop certain coverage.

Except for collision and comprehensive coverage (which are determined by make and age of the car), insurance rates are based on such factors as the driver's history, the geographical area in which he drives, his age, sex, and marital status, and the number of miles the car is driven during the year.

A car driven under 7,500 miles a year, for instance, may carry a rate as much as 20 percent lower than a high-mileage car. And a car driven in a relatively uncongested area—where accidents are infrequent—by a woman with a good driving history (a typical second-car user) should earn a good rate.

If you are paying a special rate for a teen-ager or other "high risk" driver, you'll pay it on only one of your cars for each driver in your family so classified—if both cars are insured with one company. However, all drivers will be covered when operating all cars in the household, unless otherwise specified.

In computing insurance costs on these two pages, we included $50,000 coverage for combined public liability, property damage and comprehensive for the entire period of ownership. Collision insurance was dropped on any car over five years old. Average premium for a car when new was figured at $181 per year and dropped to $116 on those having observed their fifth birthday.

There are pros and cons to dropping collision coverage on your middle-aged and older cars. True, you can save some money, but to what extent can you afford to become a self-insurer? Replacing an uninsured $1,000 car will impose quite a burden on most family budgets.

MAINTENANCE FACTORS—One very practical point is the interchangeability of certain components between two cars of similar size and make. For example, you can keep the best tires to install on the car that you will keep. (The sizes must be the same, of course.)

A similar situation may apply to batteries . . . one more good reason for buying premium-quality replacement parts, especially when you know they're going to be in the family for a while.

This changeover idea can apply to add-on air conditioners, too. A unit can often be transferred from one car to another for approximately $65 (plus another $40 if you need a new adapter kit).

AND RELIABILITY—If money were the only criterion, Plan 4A or 4B might appear most appealing. But because you will have older cars—more vulnerable to trouble—there are safety, convenience, and dependability factors to consider.

It's difficult to attach a price tag to any of these, but a few missed appointments or business engagements over a two-year period, a spoiled vacation, or emergency taxi fares due to car trouble might easily amount to a substantial portion of the few hundred dollars difference between Plan 4 and one of the others.

And there is the final bonus of keeping up with the latest in safety and performance benefits the car manufacturers make available with each new model. How can you put a price tag on the value of a collapsible steering column . . . improved braking . . . or built-in head restraints?

No matter what you call it—first car, second car, station car, or clunker—any automobile must live up to acceptable performance qualifications. During the second half of its life, your old second car is likely to become more a nuisance than a help.

According to the writers of the government study, . . . "the cost per mile is a little more in the automobile's newer years, and less as it gets older. Most owners would agree that the reliability and satisfaction of the early years of a car's life are worth some difference in money."

What to do about a nothing room

By Peg Rumely, Home Furnishings Editor
Nelda Cordts, Associate Editor

First, reevaluate your surroundings to discover what's missing. It could be a focal point, color, pattern, architectural interest. Or perhaps the scale is wrong. Here and on the next eight pages are before-and-after rooms that show how you can solve these decorating dilemmas.

Start a room's decorating with a center of interest

The before photograph above shows exactly what we mean by a nothing room. It's nice enough, but dull—and devoid of a focal point.

To jolt it into life (right), we framed a wide swath of boldly patterned fabric and hung it in the wasted-window area above the sofa. This powerful pivotal point demanded an equally dynamic color approach—and got it. The vibrant red carpet contrasts resoundingly with the white of Parsons table and cube. Glass and chrome table, new chair cover, and sparkling accessories play up the room's lively new personality. We kept the good features of the before room—draperies, paneling, sofa, and chair.

Designer Charles F. Zimmerman, H. Chambers Co.

One striking small object can key a color scheme

Professional decorators often find the nucleus for a color scheme in unexpected places. For instance, the pretty porcelain plate in the before photograph, at the left, has the color and design interest the rest of this room sadly lacks.

Interior Designer: Charles F. Zimmerman of The H. Chambers Co.

In the after room, below, watch what happens when colors from the plate are played big. Deep blue textured grass cloth on back wall relates to the blue chairs and makes a stunning backdrop for the sofa. Emphasizing this wall as the new interest center is an abstract painting that faithfully repeats the plate's shadings. Underfoot, too, a distinctive rug contributes pattern interest. Draperies were dyed to complement the scheme.

Major pieces of furniture remain, and items not in character or out of proportion have been eliminated. The new room represents a selective mix of contemporary and traditional styles.

Designer: James E. Peterson of The H. Chambers Co.

Look to window walls for decorating inspiration as well as function

Don't let a window wall trap you into stereotyped thinking. Viewed imaginatively, it can key a room's decorating scheme and supply the answer to all sorts of needs. In the before photograph at left, the window wall has capitulated to bland blinds, a clutter of exposed radiators, and make-do shelving.

Rescue is as easy as a bright idea—executed, in the after room above, with striped fabric, black paint, built-ins. Furnishings that stay (most do) look fresh against this new background. A wall-wide counter provides a desk area, space for TV.

Color makes the old look new and brightens the mood

The basement den in the before photograph below has an advanced case of down-under doldrums. Symptoms: cowardly color scheme, awkward wall jogs, and obviously leftover furniture. The one exciting color exclamation—the abstract painting—is just about drowned out.

But an underground room doesn't have to look dreary—and the after room at right proves it. The glowing color scheme was plucked from the painting—re-upholstered sofa and chairs, white shag rug, even the sunny chrysanthemums are color cued directly to it.

Even the architectural defects yield to ingenious tactics. For example, a good-looking étagère solves the problem of the high window which made an unsightly interruption on the wall at left. (Stack units or shelves would also do the trick.) Weathered old slat shutters hinge together to form a background bridge between the painting and the étagère, and, of course, conceal the meter door. Bamboo motif on étagère influenced the sofa's fabric pattern and is restated in both tables.

Because the new wall arrangement tightens the furniture grouping, a smaller coffee table was indicated. This traditional one is properly scaled for the space.

Take a positive pattern all the way to score

Timidity will get you nowhere—not if you want to make a real decorating splash. In the before bathroom at left, dabs of color show an attempt to capitalize on the shower wall's blue tiles. But it's a halfhearted try, not good enough to overcome the blank white walls and angular ceiling abutments.

See what happens when you splurge on pattern. In the photograph below, the walls are covered with striped and flowered slick vinyl. The stripes visually stretch the walls upward, and the sassy bouquets of color add sparkle. The main point here is—let yourself go. Take the pattern everywhere—walls, abutments, shower ceiling, and closet door. And don't stop there! Repeat the pattern in a cotton chintz shower curtain. Let even the small accents echo one of the pattern colors in a solid shade. Frivolous as it looks, this pattern extravaganza is completely practical. The vinyl wall covering is just as easy to apply as conventional wallpaper, and it's moistureproof.

Properly scaled furnishings add new dimensions to a room's size

You can't fault the choice of table and chairs in the before dining room left. They're just right for the limited space. But something's missing, and the room ends up looking skimpily furnished.

To give the decorating warmth and weight, the starting point was capitalizing on the confinement of this small room. Above, red felt wall, a rug, and full-length draperies kindle the background into intimacy. One important piece of new furniture—a rosewood bar cabinet—brings pleasing balance to lightly scaled table and chairs. Zebra cushions and a chandelier add out-of-the-ordinary charm. Continued

Photographs: Before: Mettee Studios. After: Lisanti, Inc.

Bold pattern plus bold color—it's spectacular

Anytime this combo gets together, things happen fast. And obviously the before room needs such dynamics. Going to waste is a great architectural background—full-length windows, parquet floor, and clean, unbroken wall surface. The sparse furnishings are a haphazard mix of old and new (old armchairs and chest—contemporary window treatment, floor lamp, and lonesome twin bed). Certainly a cold and uninviting atmosphere for a family sitting room that doubles as a guest bedroom.

Springboard for the spirited decorating in the after room is the flamboyant fabric on the armchairs in the before room. Now it's played up for all it's worth in major areas—Roman shades, daybed with bolsters—and the results are daring and delightful. Now red painted walls cosy-up the once cold room.

The polished parquet floor glows in this new setting. Dowdy furnishings have been exiled and new pieces, or refurbished old ones, rouse the room. Slipcovers dress up the daybed which replaces the single twin bed. With bolsters added, the daybed converts into a lounge sofa and makes a comfortable conversation area with the two side armchairs and small magazine table. The larger mirror accommodates guests, and adds a depth dimension.

Cooking for 2 to 8

By Doris Eby, Food Editor, and Helen Kowtaluk, Associate

To rate the accolade of "smart hostess," you need a repertoire of distinctive, dependable recipes, and the showmanship to serve them with flair. Here we offer six outstanding recipes for main dishes that can become your specialties—for company and family, too, because we've proportioned them for 2, 4, 6, or 8 servings. As for that special flair in serving, take your cue from the table settings shown here.

Your family and friends will put this on their special-request list—Roast Chicken with Tomato Rice Stuffing. For 6 to 8 people, stuff and roast two whole chickens. For 2 or 4, do a turn-about and have the stuffing on the outside—bake stuffing in a casserole with chicken pieces on top. You'll find Brussels sprouts and cornmeal muffins excellent accompaniments. Traditional ironstone dinnerware, with a blue and green pattern, and "Chippendale" sterling heighten the eye appeal of the meal. A centerpiece of sprightly white mums blends perfectly with the color scheme of the table. Recipes on page 92.

For our next buffet, try our Beef Burgundy for 8. It's flavorful and easy to prepare—a winner all the way. Bite-size pieces of tender steak simmer with mushrooms in a seasoned burgundy sauce. Serve over hot cooked noodles—or rice, if you prefer. Round out the party menu with cooked asparagus, tossed salad, spiced peaches, and crunchy hard rolls. We've selected warm, cheerful tones for the buffet. A bright-colored table runner sets the mood for "Largo" casual dinnerware, accented with glowing copper. For a change-of-pace centerpiece—a grouping of assorted candles in harmonizing warm colors.

2 to 8

Beef Burgundy is a winner when you serve a small group, too. You'll find that you can use the same menu, even when you're cooking in lesser quantities. But instead of tossing a salad just for two, why not serve tomato slices on lettuce with your favorite salad dressing? Recipes on page 88.

Just part of the family home for dinner tonight? Serve Meat Loaf Magic for 2 or 4—rectangular-shaped patties, broiled to perfection, then topped with a delectable mushroom sauce. Complete the menu with hashed brown potatoes, cooked crinkle-cut carrots, and a tray of fresh vegetable relishes.

2 to 8

You won't be fazed by unexpected guests for dinner if you're serving Meat Loaf Magic for 8. Top this subtly-seasoned meat loaf with mushroom sauce, and make it look company-special with mushroom crowns and parsley. Turn the relishes into a tossed salad by adding greens and salad dressing. And "Lynnwood" glass-ceramic dinnerware—so practical yet so elegant—great for family and guests. Set it with traditional "Roman" sterling on your favorite tablecloth. Or, if an antique dining table is your pride, serve the meal on colorful place mats—show off the rich wood grain. Recipes on page 94.

On an elegant dinner, you can depend on Veal Roll-ups, a make-ahead combination of veal, ham, and Swiss cheese. Serve with french-cut green beans and almonds, and artichoke-tomato-lettuce salad. And may we suggest a rhine wine, Riesling or Sylvaner, served here in delicate, amber-tinted crystal. To complement the festive food, we chose a formal gold and white color scheme—white china with a delicate gold trim, white and gold serving plates, and "Strasbourg" vermeil flatware on a gold tablecloth. A centerpiece of miniature white carnations and yellow sweetheart roses completes the setting.

2 to 8

Veal Cordon Bleu for 2 combines the same great flavors—veal, ham, and Swiss cheese. Just sandwich cheese and ham between two thin slices of veal. Brown the veal (it's so thin it cooks as it browns), add a splash of wine for the sauce, and you have an elegant dinner for two. Recipes on page 106.

Ham on rye with mustard gets a new treatment. Our Ham with Rye Stuffing for 2 features a mustard-flavored rye bread stuffing between two slices of ham, baked till piping hot. Top off this hearty entree with broccoli, lettuce wedge with dressing, pickles and olives, and a tankard of cold beer or ale.

2 to 8

Here's still another version of that hearty flavor combination. For a robust dinner, serve Ham with Rye Stuffing for 8—a thick ham slice baked along with mustard-flavored rye bread stuffing balls that bake crispy on the outside, stay moist inside. Makes mighty good eating, especially when served in an old English atmosphere like this. “Roan Mountain” stoneware, with “1 sterling, set on a dark-toned background, complements pewter serving pieces and tankards. Capture the nostalgic mood with a bouquet of dried flowers, casually arranged in a basket or wooden bowl. Recipes on page 96.

It's a regal entree that'll make your next dinner party a great success. Cherry-Almond Glazed Pork for 8 features a boneless, tender pork roast with a tangy glaze of cherry preserves, wine, garlic, and almonds. Complete the dinner with green peas, braised squash, and hot crescent rolls. And match the splendor of the meal with a dramatic table setting, such as the "Rococo" silver tray and stately "Midnight Mist" dinnerware, on a muted cocoa tablecloth. Or, achieve a striking effect with black and white place mats set on a marble tabletop. For the centerpiece, birds of paradise—as showy as the entree.

2 to 8

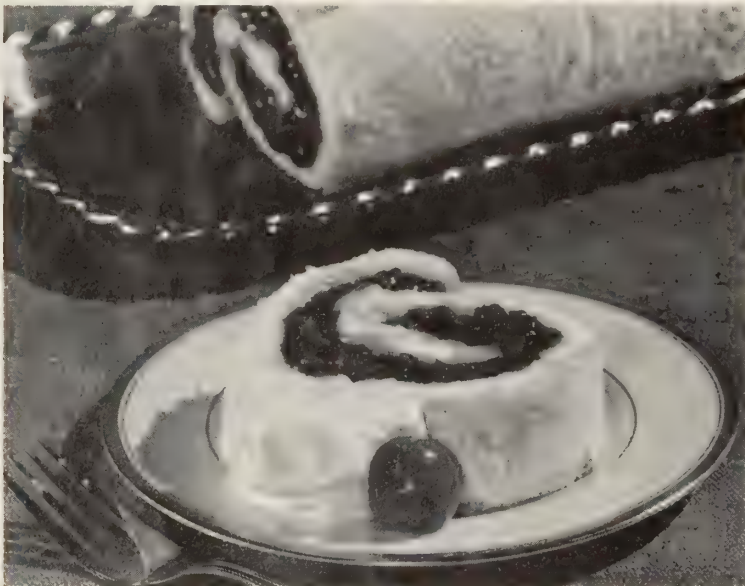

If it's dinner for two, you can still enjoy the savory flavor of Cherry-Almond Glazed Pork. This time, use pork chops so you won't have to cope with leftovers. Braise the chops slowly in a skillet, basting occasionally with the glaze. Peas, squash, and crescent rolls are just right here, too. Recipes on page 97.

SPECIAL CHERRY DESSERTS

By Mary White

If life is just a bowl of cherries, you might say happiness is one of these very special cherry desserts. You can enjoy them any time of year because one is made with cherry pie filling, the others with canned cherries. Try them all—then let your family pick their favorite.

Cherry Cream Puffs

A glamorous dessert using convenience foods—

- | | |
|---------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1 stick pie crust mix | 1 1-pound 5-ounce can |
| $\frac{2}{3}$ cup boiling water | cherry pie filling |
| 2 eggs | 1 pint frozen whipped dessert |
| | topping, thawed |
| | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flaked coconut |

In medium saucepan, crumble piecrust mix into boiling water; cook and stir vigorously till pastry forms ball and leaves sides of pan. Cook 1 minute over low heat, stirring constantly. Add eggs, one at a time; beat with electric mixer at low speed for 1 minute after each addition. Drop about 3 tablespoons mixture onto greased baking sheet for each cream puff. Bake in hot oven (425°) for 15 minutes; reduce temperature to 350° and continue baking 20 to 25 minutes, till cream puffs are dry and golden brown. Remove from baking sheet; cool. Cut off tops; remove excess webbing. Set aside $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of the cherry pie filling for topping. Fold dessert topping and coconut into remaining pie filling; fill cream puffs, using about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup pie filling mixture for each. Cover with tops of cream puffs and spoon the reserved $\frac{1}{2}$ cup pie filling over tops. Makes 8 servings.

Cherry Angel Roll

You'll have cake left to drizzle with warmed cherry jam—

- | | |
|--------------------------|--|
| 1 package angel cake mix | 3 tablespoons cornstarch |
| (2-step type) | 2 tablespoons butter or |
| 1 1-pound 4-ounce can | margarine |
| tart red cherries | $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon red food coloring |
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar | 6 drops almond extract |

Prepare angel cake mix according to package directions. Turn half the batter into greased and floured $15\frac{1}{2} \times 10\frac{1}{2} \times 1$ -inch baking pan, spreading evenly.* Bake in moderate oven (375°) for 12 minutes. Loosen sides, turn out on towel sprinkled with sifted confectioners' sugar. While still hot, roll cake and towel together, starting at the narrow end. Then let cool on rack.

Meanwhile, drain cherries, reserving $\frac{3}{4}$ cup juice; set aside a few whole cherries for garnish. In a small bowl, combine sugar, cornstarch, and a dash salt. In a saucepan, heat reserved cherry juice to boiling; gradually stir into sugar mixture. Return to saucepan. Cook and stir till thickened and clear. Stir in butter or margarine, red food coloring, and almond extract; add cherries. Cool. Unroll cake and spread with filling. Roll up, placing seam side down on serving tray. Trim with sweetened whipped cream and the reserved cherries. Makes 10 to 12 servings. *Remaining half of cake batter may be baked in a greased $9 \times 5 \times 3$ -inch loaf pan in a moderate oven (375°) for 30 minutes.

Cherry Rice Bavarian

A new twist to an old favorite—

- | | |
|----------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1 1-pound 1-ounce can | 1 7-ounce bottle (about 1 |
| pitted dark sweet cherries | cup) lemon-lime carbonated |
| $\frac{1}{3}$ cup sugar | beverage |
| 1 envelope (1 tablespoon) | 1 tablespoon lemon juice |
| unflavored gelatin | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup long-grain rice, |
| Dash salt | cooked ($1\frac{1}{2}$ cups) |
| | 1 cup whipping cream |

Drain cherries, reserving $\frac{1}{2}$ cup juice. Halve cherries. In a saucepan, combine sugar, gelatin, and salt. Add reserved cherry juice and heat till gelatin dissolves; cool. Stir in lemon-lime carbonated beverage, lemon juice, and cooked rice. Chill till partially set. Whip cream till soft peaks form. Fold whipped cream and cherries into gelatin mixture. Pour into a 6-cup mold; chill about 3 hours. To serve, unmold onto serving plate. Garnish with additional whipped cream and cherries, if desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Let 'em eat steak!

Like steaks to meet the budget with Campbell's.

PEPPER STEAK

- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1½ pounds round steak (¾-inch thick)
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 can Campbell's Onion Soup
- ½ cup ketchup
- 1 medium green pepper, cut into 8 strips

Combine flour and seasonings; pound into meat with meat hammer or edge of heavy saucer. In skillet, brown meat in shortening; pour off fat. Add soup and ketchup. Cover; cook over low heat 1 hour. Add green pepper; cook 20 minutes more or until tender. Stir now and then. Serve with mashed potatoes. 4 servings.

STEAK ITALIANO

- 2 chuck steaks (1½ pounds each, ¾-inch thick)
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) Campbell's Tomato Soup
- ½ cup water
- 1 can (2 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 large clove garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon oregano, crushed

Remove fat from meat. In large skillet, brown meat in shortening. Pour off fat. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover; cook over low heat 1½ hours or until tender. Spoon off fat. 4 servings.

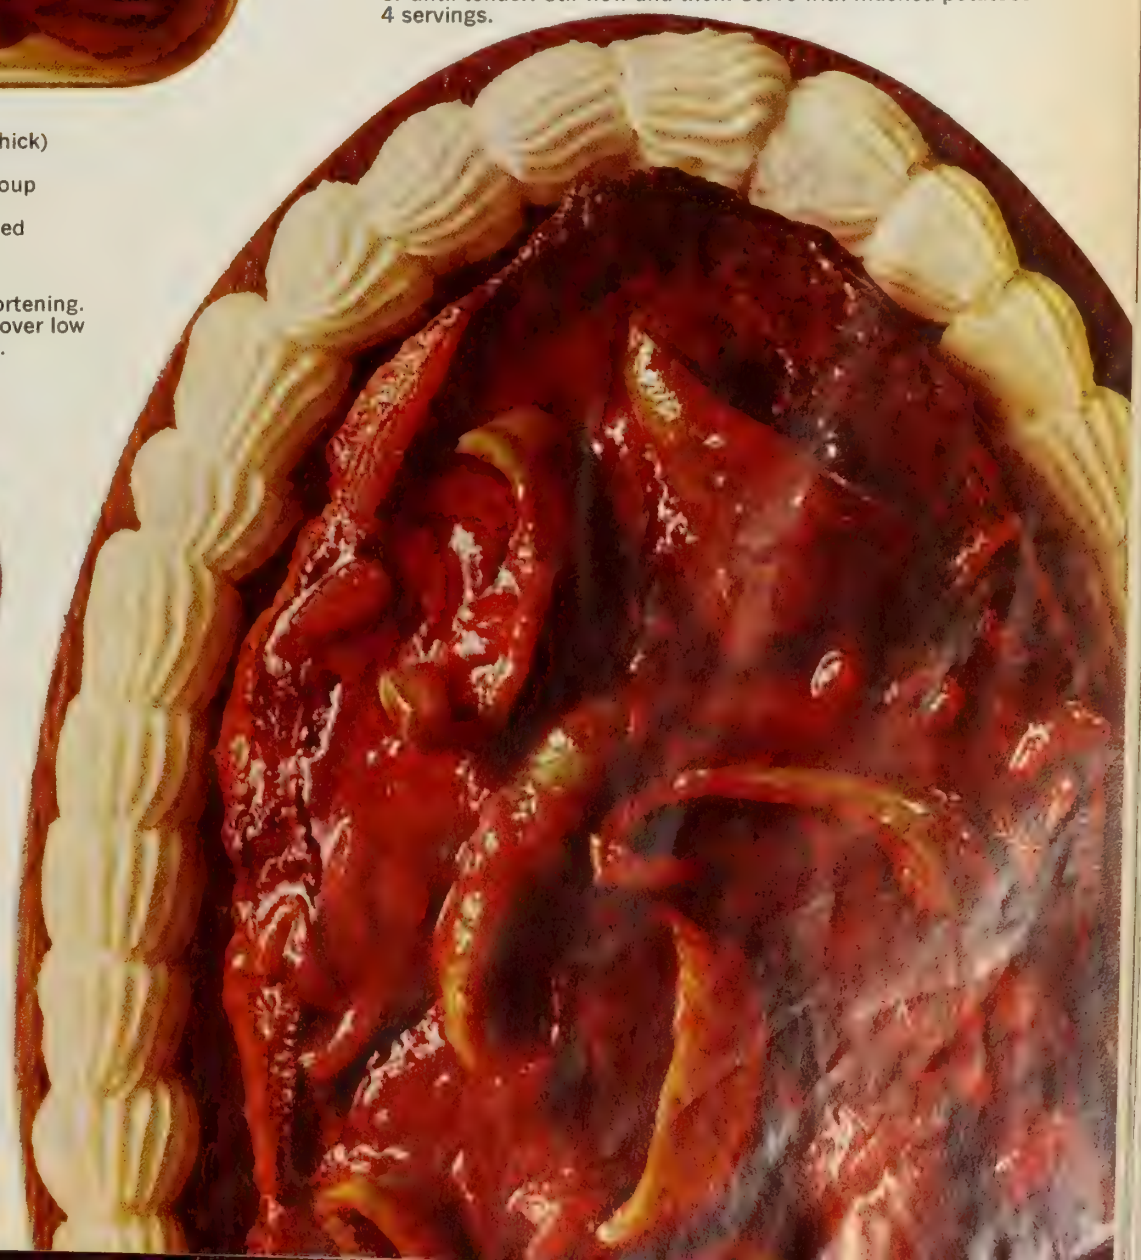

SWISS STEAK

- ¼ cup flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Generous dash pepper
- 1½ pounds round steak (about ¾-inch thick)
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) Campbell's Vegetable Soup
- ½ soup can water
- 1 cup sliced onions

Seasonings; pound into steak with meat hammer or heavy saucer. In large skillet, brown steak in shortening; pour off fat. Add rest of ingredients. Cover; simmer 1 hour or till tender. Stir now and then. 4 servings.

BEEF BURGUNDY

See page 81

When you're preparing the larger quantity, don't try to brown all of the meat at one time. (The steam formed when a large quantity of meat is cooking will prevent browning.) Brown a few pieces, remove them to a warm platter, and repeat with the remaining pieces. Then return all the browned meat to the skillet and continue with the recipe.

For 2, 4, 6, or 8 Servings

Cut steak into bite-size cubes; shake with the flour to coat, being sure all flour is used. Melt butter or margarine in skillet; brown steak pieces on all sides. Remove from heat. Add onion, parsley, garlic, bay leaf, salt, and pepper. Stir in mushrooms, burgundy, and water. Heat mixture to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, about 1 hour, or till meat is tender. Remove bay leaf. If desired, transfer Beef Burgundy to chafing dish to keep hot. Serve over hot fluffy rice or hot cooked noodles.

5 exciting ways to make CORN-CRISPED CHICKEN

No frying, no turning...just dip, roll and bake with Kellogg's Corn Flake Crumbs

BASIC RECIPE:

- 3 pounds frying chicken pieces
- ½ cup evaporated milk
- 1 cup KELLOGG'S* CORN FLAKE CRUMBS
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

1. Wash chicken pieces and dry thoroughly.
2. Dip chicken pieces in evaporated milk; then roll pieces in mixture of Corn Flake Crumbs, salt and pepper, until well-coated. Place skin-side up in single layer in foil-lined shallow baking pan; do not crowd.
3. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 1 hour, or until tender. No need to cover pan or turn chicken while baking.

Yield: 6 servings

*Registered Trade Mark of Kellogg Company
© 1969 by Kellogg Company

VARIATIONS:

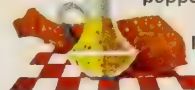

1. Peachy Corn-Crisped Chicken

During last 10 minutes of baking, place 6 well-drained peach halves, cut-side up, on foil around chicken pieces. Continue baking as directed.

2. Baked Chicken Italiano

Substitute ½ cup Italian-style salad dressing for evaporated milk; omit salt and pepper. For added flavor, marinate uncooked chicken pieces in dressing several hours or overnight, turning occasionally.

3. Crisp Curried Chicken

Substitute ½ cup mayonnaise beaten with 1 teaspoon curry powder for evaporated milk; omit pepper.

4. Sunny California Chicken

Substitute ½ cup melted butter or margarine combined with 3 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel (optional) for evaporated milk.

For 2 or 4 Servings

*In mixing bowl combine celery, onion, green pepper, uncooked rice, undrained tomatoes, water, salt, sage, and pepper. Mix thoroughly. For 2 servings, turn into 1 1/2-quart casserole; for 4 servings, turn into 12x7x2-inch baking dish. Brown chicken in small amount shortening; arrange atop rice mixture. Sprinkle with a little additional salt, pepper, and some paprika. Cover; bake in moderate oven (350°) for 1 hour or till chicken is tender. *If desired, sauté one chicken liver for 5 minutes; chop and add to stuffing.

For 6 or 8 Servings

In skillet, cook celery, onion and green pepper in butter or margarine till tender; remove from skillet. Cook chicken livers in same skillet about 5 minutes; remove livers and chop. Combine liver with celery mixture, cooked rice, undrained tomatoes, salt, sage, and pepper. Loosely stuff both body and neck cavities of chickens truss. Place birds, breast up on rack in shallow roasting pan. Rub skin generously with cooking oil. Roast, uncovered, in moderate oven (375°) for 1 1/2 to 2 hours, till done. Brush occasionally with pan drippings.

It's recorded historical fact: Back in the 16th century, the consort of King Christian VIII cooked up—(among other things)—one of the world's first batches of raisin bread. Made with oats, eggs and raisins, it was "...served in thick slices with butter and syrup." Obviously the king knew a good dish when he saw one. Raisin bread. Always divinely right. Buy a loaf for your family today!

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

For 2 or 4 Servings

Combine ground beef, crumbs, green onion, parsley, milk, worcestershire sauce, salt, nutmeg, and pepper. Pat into a square about 3/4 inch thick for each 2 servings. Cut each square in half to form two rectangles. Broil about 4 inches from heat for about 5 minutes each side for medium, or to desired degree of doneness. Serve with mushroom sauce (below).

For 6 or 8 Servings

Combine ground beef, crumbs, green onion, parsley, milk, egg, worcestershire sauce, salt, nutmeg, and pepper. Mix well. Turn into 8 1/4 x 4 1/4 x 2 1/4-inch loaf dish. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 1 hour 15 minutes. Serve with warm mushroom sauce.

Mushroom Sauce: Drain mushrooms. In saucepan, melt butter or margarine. Stir in flour, salt, and pepper. Add milk all at once. Cook and stir till mixture thickens and boils. Add mushrooms; heat through.

WIN MONEY FOR YOUR RECIPES

FAST OR FANCY CAKES

NEXT SEPTEMBER we'll feature cakes—the shortening type. Send your fast or fancy cake recipe today. Two Cooks-of-the-Month will receive $50 each. Four Runners-up will receive $25 each, and 12 Honor Roll winners will receive $10 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured on the Prize Titled Recipes pages next September. All 18 winners receive a framed Better Homes and Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Hints to Help You

Fast Cakes might begin with a packaged mix or a shortcut ingredient. Baked-on frosting could be your time-saver. Perhaps your best is a layer cake, sheet cake, or lunch-box special. Don't forget to include frosting recipes, too. Clues:

chocolate chip cake
raisin sauce pumpkin cake maroon cupcakes ginger-scotch cake
lemonade layer cake

Fancy Cakes. Is yours a party-special pound cake, a snowy coconut cake, or a nut-crusted torte? Maybe a fruit filling or spicy glaze adds the elegant touch. Or do you add ice cream between cake layers for a birthday celebration? Ideas:

cranberry velvet cake mocha marble cake butter-pecan cake
pineapple pound cake
Neapolitan ribbon cake

Whatever happened to good old Baker's Chocolate?

Chocolate Crinkle Cups

Dessert cups you can eat. That's what can happen. All kinds of glamorous new desserts can happen, when you start out with good old Baker's.

- 1 package (4 oz.) Baker's® German's® Sweet Chocolate
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 quart ice cream

Partially melt the chocolate with butter over hot water. Remove from water; stir rapidly until entirely melted. Using a teaspoon, swirl chocolate around insides of 6 large paper baking cups, covering the entire surface with a thin layer. Place baking cups in muffin pans; chill until firm—about 1 hour. Fill cups with ice cream; carefully peel off paper. Garnish, if desired. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

For 2 or 4 servings, sandwich the rye stuffing between half-inch-thick ham slices. In preparing the stuffing, be sure to use fresh—not dry—light rye bread, cut into small cubes. When it comes to larger servings and thicker slices of ham, you'll get a tasty combination by shaping the stuffing mixture into balls and baking them along with the ham. In making the stuffing balls, shape about a half cup of the stuffing with your hands, pressing firmly so the mixture stays together. If you prefer smaller balls, use about one-third cup mixture for each stuffing ball.

HOT Dr Pepper

Here's something truly different. Dr Pepper ... which is great as an icy cold soft drink... is also delicious served steaming hot. And Hot Dr Pepper is so easy to prepare. Just heat Dr Pepper or Diet Dr Pepper in a saucepan till it steams. Then pour over thin slices of lemon. Hot Dr Pepper. That's a hot idea!

Dr Pepper is a registered trademark of Dr Pepper Company, Dallas, Texas, 1969.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

For 2 or 4 Servings

In medium saucepan, cook onion in butter or margarine till tender but not brown. Blend in mustard, caraway seed, and bread cubes. Cut each ham slice into quarters. Spread bread mixture over half the ham quarters. Top with remaining quarters; secure with wooden picks. Place in shallow baking dish; bake, covered, in moderate oven (375°) for 20 minutes or till heated through.

For 6 or 8 Servings

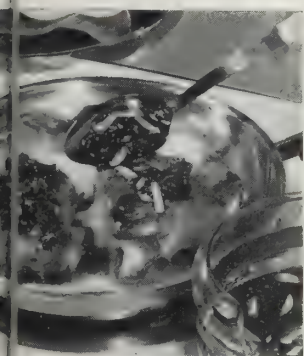

In small saucepan, cook onion in butter or margarine till tender but not brown. In large bowl, combine egg, mustard, caraway seed, and onion mixture. Add bread cubes; toss till thoroughly mixed. Shape into balls, using about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup bread mixture for each ball. Place ham slice on rack in open roasting pan. Bake in slow oven (325°) for 20 minutes. Then place stuffing balls on rack around ham and bake 20 minutes more.

CHERRY-ALMOND GLAZED PORK

When you brown and cook the chops, be sure that they do not p in the skillet, so each one will be evenly glazed with cherry sauce. For 2 or 4 servings, you'll find the pork easier to prepare and serve than a tiny roast. But when comes to a dinner for 6 or more, we recommend the pork loin with the same scrumptious cherry-almond glaze.

Ingredients	Number of Servings
	2	4	6	8
Pork chops	2	4
Pork loin roast, diced, boned, and tied			3 lbs.	4 lbs.
Cherry preserves	1/4 cup	1/2 cup	12-oz. jar (1 cup)	12-oz. jar (1 cup)
Corn syrup	1 Tbsp.	2 Tbsp.	2 Tbsp.	2 Tbsp.
Wine vinegar	1 Tbsp.	2 Tbsp.	1/4 cup	1/4 cup
Salt	Dash	Dash	1/4 tsp.	1/4 tsp.
Cinnamon	Dash	Dash	1/4 tsp.	1/4 tsp.
Nutmeg	Dash	Dash	1/4 tsp.	1/4 tsp.
Cloves	Dash	Dash	1/4 tsp.	1/4 tsp.
Toasted almonds, chopped	1 Tbsp.	2 Tbsp.	3 Tbsp.	1/4 cup

Chops
For 4 Servings
In a small or medium skillet, brown chops on both sides.
Remove fat. Sprinkle chops with a little salt and pepper.
Add 1 tablespoon water. Cover and cook over low heat for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, in small saucepan, combine cherry preserves, corn syrup, vinegar, dash salt, the cinnamon, nutmeg, and cloves. Heat mixture to boiling, stirring frequently. Remove from heat; chops have cooked 30 minutes, spoon on just enough sauce to glaze; cover and cook 5 minutes more, till chops are done, basting once or twice with the remaining sauce.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Pork Loin Roast
For 6 or 8 Servings
Rub roast with a little salt and pepper. Place on rack in shallow baking pan. Roast, uncovered, in slow oven (325°) for about 2 to 2 1/2 hours. Meanwhile, combine cherry preserves, corn syrup, vinegar, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg, and cloves.
Heat to boiling, stirring frequently; reduce heat and simmer 2 minutes. Add toasted almonds. Keep sauce warm.
When meat has roasted 2 to 2 1/2 hours, spoon enough hot cherry sauce over roast to glaze; return to oven for about 30 minutes more, or till meat thermometer registers 170°. Baste roast with sauce several times during last 30 minutes. Pass remaining sauce with roast.

FAST SOUPS AND CHOWDERS

Buying information, page 89

Vegetable-Burger Soup

In the Fast Soups and Chowders category, a quick and hearty meat soup wins top prize—

- 1 1/2 pound ground beef
- 2 cups water
- 1 1/2 envelope (1 1/4 cup)
- 1 10-ounce package dry onion soup mix
- 1 cup stewed frozen mixed vegetables
- 1 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 8-ounce can (1 cup) tomato sauce

In Dutch oven or large heavy saucepan, lightly brown ground beef; drain off excess fat. Stir in tomatoes, tomato sauce, water, frozen vegetables, onion soup mix, and sugar; bring to boiling. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer 20 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

FANCY SOUPS AND CHOWDERS

Photographs by Januario

Clam Chowder au Vin

An elegant clam chowder rates Cook-of-the-Mouth honors for Fancy Soups and Chowders—

- 2 cups diced potato
- 1 can condensed Manhattan-style clam chowder
- 1 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1 1/2-ounce can minced clams, drained
- 1 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup water
- 3 tablespoons dry white wine
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons snipped parsley

In large saucepan, combine first five ingredients. Cook, covered, till potatoes are tender, about 10 minutes; mash slightly. Add chowder, 1 cup milk, the clams, and wine. Heat but do not boil. Whip cream; stir into chowder. Season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Cream of Chicken and Cheese Soup

Tender, home-cooked chicken and sharp cheese flavor this extra-elegant soup—

1 chicken breast (about 12 ounces)
2 cups water
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup chopped onion
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup chopped carrot
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup chopped celery
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk
2 ounces sharp process American cheese, diced (about $1\frac{1}{2}$ cup)

In covered saucepan, simmer chicken in water till tender, about 20 minutes. Remove chicken; cool slightly and dice. Boil broth, uncovered, till reduced to 1 cup. Add onion, carrot, and celery; simmer, covered, about 10 minutes, till tender. Gradually stir in soup and milk. Add chicken and cheese; heat and stir till cheese melts. Garnish with shredded cheese. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Gourmet Potato Soup

3 cups diced potato
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup diced celery
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup diced onion
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups water
1 tablespoon chicken-flavor gravy base or 2 chicken bouillon cubes
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
1 8-ounce carton sour cream dip with chives (1 cup)
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour

In large saucepan, combine potato, celery, onion, water, gravy base or bouillon cubes, and salt. Cover and cook till vegetables are tender, about 20 minutes. Add $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups of the milk; heat through. In medium bowl, blend sour cream dip and flour; gradually stir in the remaining 1 cup milk. Pour about one-third of hot potato mixture into sour cream mixture; return to saucepan. Cook and stir till thickened. Garnish with parsley. Makes 6 to 8 servings. *Mrs. John R. Woodard
Joplin, Missouri*

Mexican Rice and Bean Soup

For a hearty lunch, serve this full-bodied, well-seasoned soup with toaster-style corn muffins—

1 pound pork sausage links
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onion
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
3 cups water
1 18-ounce can tomato juice

($2\frac{1}{4}$ cups)

1 1-pound can kidney beans, drained
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup long-grain rice
1 teaspoon paprika
 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 teaspoon chili powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt

Dash pepper

Cut sausage links into bite-size pieces; brown lightly in large saucepan. Spoon off all but about 2 tablespoons fat. Add onion, green pepper, and garlic; cook till vegetables are tender but not brown. Add water, tomato juice, beans, rice, paprika, chili powder, salt, and pepper. Simmer, covered, 25 to 30 minutes, or till rice is tender, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Mrs. Carole N. Lloyd Macedon, New York

Corned Beef Chowder

Here's a robust chowder you can prepare in a jiffy—

1 can condensed cream of potato soup
3 cups milk
1 10-ounce package frozen Brussels sprouts, thawed and cut up
Dash pepper

1 12-ounce can corned beef, broken in pieces

In a large saucepan, blend soup and $1\frac{1}{3}$ cups of the milk. Stir in Brussels sprouts and pepper. Bring to boiling, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat; simmer 15 minutes, till sprouts are tender. Add remaining $1\frac{2}{3}$ cups milk and corned beef. Heat through. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

TRY SOMETHING DIFFERENT WITH EGGPLANT

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Explore the practically endless possibilities of eggplant—starting with the meaty main dish, hearty casserole, and vegetable cheese sandwich shown here.

Then let these ideas spark your thinking.

- Add a pinch of basil, chili powder, dill weed, or thyme to sautéed eggplant slices.
- Top eggplant halves with shredded sharp cheddar cheese, drizzle with tomato-onion sauce, and bake till eggplant is tender.
- Cut eggplant into strips, dip in batter, and fry in deep hot fat; sprinkle with parmesan cheese to serve.

Lamb-Eggplant Balls

For a variation, shape in tiny balls for an exotic and unusual appetizer—

- 1½ pounds ground lamb
- 2 cups pared, chopped eggplant
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 slightly beaten egg
- 1 teaspoon snipped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1 8-ounce can (1 cup) tomato sauce
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard

Combine lamb, eggplant, onion, crumbs, egg, parsley, salt, and pepper; shape into 18 balls. In skillet, brown on all sides in hot oil. Drain off excess fat. Combine tomato sauce and dry mustard; pour over meatballs. Simmer, covered, for 30 minutes. Uncover; cook 15 minutes more. Makes 6 servings.

Eggplant-Cheese Stacks

Delightfully seasoned vegetable or main dish—

- 1 medium eggplant, pared
- 3 or 4 slices sharp process American cheese
- 1 slightly beaten egg
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 2¾-ounce package seasoned coating mix for chicken
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil

Cut eggplant into six or eight ½-inch thick slices. Cook slices, covered, in small amount of boiling water for 2 to 3 minutes; drain well. Place a slice of cheese between each 2 slices of eggplant; trim cheese to fit. Combine egg and milk. Dip both sides eggplant "stacks" in egg mixture, then in coating mix. Cook in hot oil till golden brown, about 5 to 6 minutes on each side. Makes about 4 servings.

Eggplant Crunch Casserole

Coarsely crushed corn chips add crunch and enhance eggplant flavor, too—

- 1 pound eggplant, pared and cubed (about 6 cups)
- 1 cup chopped celery
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 8-ounce can (1 cup) tomato sauce
- 4 ounces sharp process American cheese, shredded (1 cup)
- 1½ cups coarsely crushed corn chips

In large skillet or saucepan, cook eggplant, celery, onion, and green pepper in butter or margarine till tender, about 15 minutes. Stir in tomato sauce, cheese, and 1 cup of the crushed corn chips. Turn into 1½-quart casserole. Bake, covered, in moderate oven (350°) for 25 to 30 minutes, till heated through. Before serving, sprinkle with the remaining ½ cup corn chips. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

COOKING FOR 2 TO 8

VEAL—CORDON BLEU AND ROLL-UPS

See page 83

To prepare Veal Cordon Bleu for 2 or 4, you'll need an extra large skillet to brown and cook all the veal at one time. To serve it immediately—tender, brown, and crisp. You can use the same flavor combination when you're serving 6 or 8 preparing Veal Roll-ups in the oven.

Veal Cordon Bleu For 2 or 4 Servings

Cut veal into 2 pieces for each serving; pound each piece very thin, to about $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch thickness. Cut ham and cheese slices in half; if necessary, trim ham and cheese to make slightly smaller than veal pieces. Top half the veal slices with 2 half slices ham and 2 half slices of cheese. Top with remaining veal pieces; press edges together to seal. Dip in flour, then in egg, then in bread crumbs. Melt butter or margarine in large skillet. Brown meat in butter over medium heat till golden brown, about 5 minutes on each side. Remove to warm platter. Swish out skillet with wine and spoon over meat.

Veal Roll-ups For 6 or 8 Servings

Cut veal into 6 or 8 pieces. Pound each to $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch thickness. Top each piece with a half slice. Cut each cheese slice in strips; place 2 on each half slice. Roll meat around cheese secure with wooden picks. Melt egg and the 2 tablespoons milk. Dip rolls in egg, then in crumbs. Place seam side down in 13x9 2-inch baking dish. Combine soup, wine, and the $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk; heat to bubbling; pour around rolls. Cover baking dish with foil; bake in moderate oven (350°) for 1 hour or till meat tender. Uncover; sprinkle with a little paprika. Bake 10 minutes more or till crumbs are browned.

For Collectors of Americana

THUMBBACK SIDE CHAIR

As a skillful reproduction of the antique Thumbback originally made in New England, this graceful, and delightfully gold stenciled little Windsor will increase in value through the years.

SALEM ROCKER

The original Salem Rocker is highly prized by collectors as an outstanding example of creative American cabinetwork of the early 1800's. You will enjoy the contemporary comfort of this authentic reproduction with its high Windsor back, deftly curved spindles, broad rolled seat, and well-set rockers.

WINDSOR ARM CHAIR

An archer's bow back with seven supporting spindles, vase-shaped outspread legs, and shaped seat, identify this handsome chair as an authentic copy of the earliest Colonial Windsors made in America.

PAUL REVERE CHAIR

Named after the fine antique Fan-Back Windsor in the Paul Revere house in Boston. A beautiful reproduction—with the charm of the original, plus modern sturdiness.

HOUSE HUNTING BY COMPUTER

If a computerized dating service can find the right boy for a girl by matching their backgrounds, tastes, and interests, why not use computers to find just the right house for a family? That's the idea behind the biggest time-saver in house hunting since the multiple-listing system was developed in 1920.

Already widely used in Detroit, the real estate computer has been adopted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and is being made available to 80,000 members across the country. Seattle, Minneapolis, northern Virginia, Nashville, and Indianapolis are among the first areas to be tied into the network.

Here is how it works. Realty brokers who belong to a multi-listing system already cooperate with each other in the sale of houses. This means that theoretically each firm can sell the other members' listings.

But how can hundreds of salesmen know about all these houses? They can't search thousands of listings to find one which meets a client's needs.

The solution: data on all houses for sale in a given multi-list area is fed into a computer operated by a firm called Realtron Corp. in Redford Township, a Detroit suburb.

Then when a couple in Seattle, for example, visits the office of a broker to find a house in the Seattle area, the salesman asks them to describe the house they want.

He may show them a book and ask them to select a house style that pleases them—anything from Georgian colonial to an L-shaped ranch with hip roof and attached garage.

He also asks them about price, particular neighborhoods they like, how many bedrooms they need, whether they want a fireplace, family room, garage, separate dining room, even a swimming pool.

Then he picks up his telephone, a set with push buttons instead of a dial, and taps out the number of the computer center in Michigan. When he reaches the computer, he "talks" directly to the machine by means of the varied tones produced by the buttons on his telephone. He taps out on these buttons a code which feeds the request into the computer.

First he gives two security numbers, so the computer knows he is authorized to give information. Then he uses a number code to ask for style, price, bedrooms, neighborhood, and any special features his clients want.

The computer could answer in a split second, but a second lag was built in to the salesman get set with pencil to note the reply.

The computer answers code numbers of houses—sale in the Seattle area—meet the clients' needs.

If the requirements are tough, say a five-bedroom colonial house with family room, a desirable area for $25,000, the computer replies "none request."

But if several houses pass the test, the computer gives their code numbers. The salesman then refers to his files, pulls out cards with pictures and more information about those houses.

The computer can also help people selling a house. They want to price it correctly, cause they know an overpriced house won't sell easily.

So the listing broker taps the computer a description of their house and asks the machine for data on similar houses sold recently in the same area.

The computer comes immediately with the asking price and information how the sale was financed.

If the owners see that a house down the block which is almost identical to theirs sold months ago for $32,000, they know they should reconsider asking $35,000 for theirs.

Of course, the salesman check each "comparable" to termine any other factors might have affected price, such as condition of the house and financing terms.

Jack Jominy, a Realtron executive, says the new computer soon will be programmed to find houses by postal zip code as well as by square mile on a map. A broker in New York can then check houses in Coconut Grove, Florida, tapping in 33133, the zip code. If he wants to widen the search to cover areas within five miles of Coconut Grove, he can tap 33133-05.

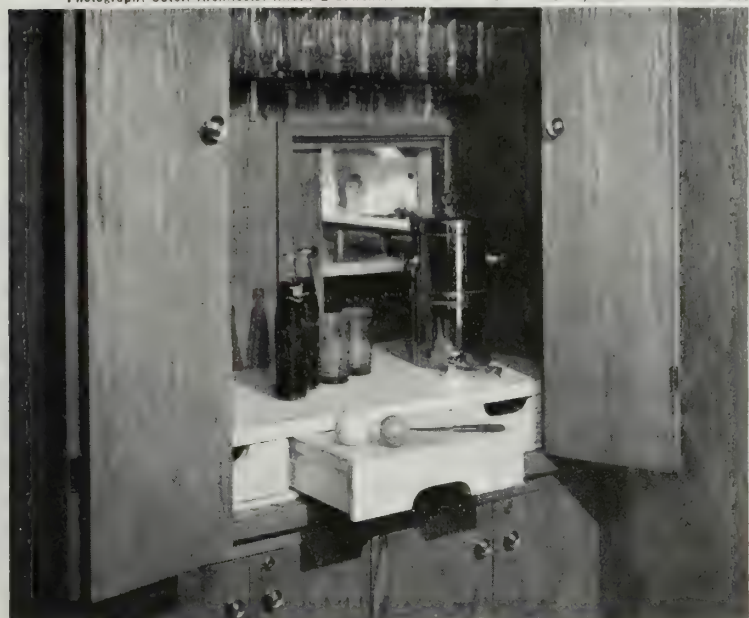

And before long it will be possible for this New York broker to receive pictures of Coconut Grove houses flashed right on a screen in his New York office.

Someday, families being transferred to new jobs in away cities will be able to hunt before they leave their former homes. ■

A BRACE OF BEVERAGE BARS

Above: A pass-through to the kitchen is the key to this compact bar's efficiency. That pullout cutting board is really an inverted drawer. Adjustable metal brackets hold rows of glass shelves that transmit lighting from overhead. Oak folding doors save space, and keep clutter out of sight.

Below: What looks like a third drawer is really a unit's hide-away. Surrounding counter and splash area contain resistant laminated plastic. At mealtime, double- (photo) fingered lid drops down to add serve space. To keep counter clean, sliding panels hang from overhead track. The panels are covered with handsome metallic paper.

DOUBLE-DUTY GARNISHES

You can make any dinner special with a two-way garnish—one that's delightful to look at and just as delightful to eat. Fill lemon cups with tartar sauce for seafood; top hot tomato slices with mashed potatoes. Fill green pepper halves with rice, or peach halves with cranberry sauce. For a start, try the ones shown below.

Baked Chutney Pears

Equally at home with ham or lamb—another time, use peach halves for this meat accompaniment-garnish—

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--|
| 1 1-pound can pear halves, drained | 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted |
| | 3 tablespoons chutney |

Place drained pears, cut side up, on rack in baking dish. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Spoon about 1/2 tablespoon chutney in center of each pear half. Bake in slow oven (325°) for 15 minutes, till pears are heated through. Serve hot with ham or lamb. Makes 6 servings.

Jeweled Orange Cups

This salad is disguised as a garnish! It's great served with crown roast of pork—

- | | |

| 4 medium oranges | 1 3-ounce package orange-flavored gelatin |
| 1 cup boiling water | |

Using a sawtooth cut, cut oranges in half. Carefully scoop out pulp, set shells aside. Dice pulp, reserving juice. Add enough cold water to juice to make 3/4 cup liquid. Stir boiling water into gelatin, stirring till gelatin is dissolved; add orange juice mixture. Chill in 9x5x3-inch pan till set. Cut in 1/2-inch cubes. Toss cubes with diced orange; spoon into orange shells. If desired, top each serving with a maraschino cherry or a dollop of mayonnaise. Makes 8 servings.

TRICKS YOU CAN PLAY WITH SHUTTERS

Looking for an inexpensive divider, an easy way to screen radiators, a different window treatment? Precut shutters are the answer.

Lumber dealers and paint stores sell a wide variety of stock sizes and styles. All you need to do is trim them to fit, apply a custom paint or stain finish, and install.

Even the installation is simpler than it used to be. Hanging strips and specially packaged hardware let you do a professional job in just a few minutes. Tools? Just a hand drill and screwdriver.

Individual panels cost as little as 97 cents, range up to under $20 for big, door-sized shutters. A few dollars more buys the hanging strips, hardware and paint.

Photograph: Vern Green. Source: Margery Phillips

Above: Need a convertible wall? Use shutters to make one. These tall, fixed-louver panels help an island counter separate a dining room and kitchen eating area, swing open so that the countertop can be used for serving or as a buffet.

Four of the eight shutters were screwed directly to the countertop and to a 2x4 overhead; the others were attached with heavy-duty hinges.

The cabinets and shutters were matched with a light birch stain, then treated with two coats of urethane varnish.

Photographs: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing.

Above: Adjustable-louver shutters serve as doors on this wall-to-wall radiator cover, bench and storage unit.

Air enters through the louvers and open base, passes through the radiator coils, then exits via metal vents in the top near the windows.

That turned post supports bookshelves over the windows. It's a standard millwork item, available at lumberyards.

Above: In the same house, two tiers of shutters were used to make a small, odd-sized powder room window look much bigger.

The panels at far right overlap the wall, making the room seem more symmetrical. To hang shutters that are wider than your window, first take off the frame's inside trim.

Adjustable louvers make ideal bathroom window treatments because they provide complete privacy without sacrificing light or ventilation.

Don't fight it.

If you are approaching one...shouldn't you consider writing?

Every woman's life, there are crossroads. Important pause-and-think places where you are faced with a decision. You've got your diploma. Now what? Or, the honeymoon's over and life is suddenly different. Next, the baby arrives and you're trapped. Then, almost overnight, demands ease up and you're untrapped. At each such crossroad, you owe it to yourself to ask, "What do I really want now?"

The answer worth considering: Take up writing! Obviously, that isn't the answer for everyone. But if you've ever thought of becoming a writer, this could be the time.

Why writing? Because it can help to fill the empty "pockets" of your life. And if you're successful at it, there are rewards and your fondest dreams. Today, more than ever, good writers are in demand. Especially women. The kinds of subjects you know about by instinct or experience are what editors are buying. Everything from short stories to menu ideas...from family adventures to household hints. All it takes is a small piece of the day (or the night)...a quiet corner, and desire. Does this mean you can start from scratch?...no previous experience...learn to be a selling writer? Judge for yourself, taking this story from the files of the Palmer Writers School as a "for instance"...

Mary Boss, of Long Island, New York; saw her youngest child off to kindergarten. This gave her time. Not a lot, but a few hours here and there, to call her own. She decided, after taking a Writing Aptitude Test, to study writing. She didn't have to go back to school. The school came to her...by mail.

Her Palmer Writers course was challenging, and exciting. She set her own pace...progressed step-by-step with each lesson, helped by sympathetic, person-to-person encouragement from her instructors — professional writers themselves. Specializing in non-fiction writing, Mary Boss acquired the skills that editors look for...learned the ins and outs of writing for publication. And Mrs. Boss did well! Even before she finished the course, she sold two articles on flower growing, (a subject she was particularly knowledgeable about).

Maxine Dennis of Coventry, Rhode Island, is another example. She has sold 16 articles to baby magazines, and credits her Palmer instruction for her success.

Palmer Writers School has had over 50 years of experience helping students break into print...with courses in fiction (short stories, novels, drama) or non-fiction ("how-to" articles, child care, travel, personal experiences, etc.). There's a good chance Palmer can bring out the writer in you. Wouldn't you like to find out? You can...by taking a free Writing Aptitude Test. Experts who can recognize talent, (even undeveloped talent), will evaluate your test. If you have what it takes, you'll be told so. If not, your report will be equally frank. In any case, taking the test will not obligate you in any way. Send for it today. It just could be the turning point of your life!

THERMADOR SELF-CLEANING OVENS REALLY ARE DIFFERENT.

Thermador Self-Cleaning Ovens really are different. They are the only ones with their own built-in exhaust system. Fresh air is circulated around the oven frame, mixed with the hot air from the cleaning process and exhausted to the outside at relatively low temperatures. No smoke, fumes or odors can escape into the kitchen.

This exclusive, self-ventilating system operates automatically during the self-cleaning process and during prolonged broiling and baking. It also operates manually for regular broiling or baking.

And to provide double assurance of a smoke-free kitchen, Thermador Self-Cleaning Ovens have a self-sealing gasketless door (an award winning feature). This means no leakage and no fragile gasket to be cleaned around and replaced regularly.

See the Difference Yourself. Write for details.

TIMELY SHELF IDEAS!

Here it's clocks—but whatever you collect, it's smart to display your treasures as a group. Such a collection will have much more impact than would individual pieces scattered about the room. Why not build a shelf, similar to those below, to hold your collection? Each takes very little space and provides a center of interest for the entire room.

Photograph: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing. Source: Roger L. Bracy, A.I.D.

Above: To highlight a conversation area, build a sofa-back shelf like this one made from three-quarter-inch plywood and supported by two antique stands. Finish wood to match stands and apply molding on front and sides. To strengthen shelf, fasten 1x2 cleats under center span.

Below: You can fit a room-spanning shelf like this into one end of your living room. (It makes a convenient serving buffet when you're entertaining, too.) Construct the shelf of three-quarter-inch plywood, trim with molding, and then paint to match the upholstery on the companion stools. Ornate support brackets like these may be salvaged from eaves or interior arches of old houses.

Two examples make use of fabric-covered composition board. The fabric is cut, then wrapped around the board and glued. Those thin wood strips are lattice molding, but jointed to make the cutting and fitting job easier.

The styles illustrated are suitable for a wide range of pictures. Ornate frames are generally used for traditional art, but in some cases they offer a nice contrast to colorful modern abstracts. By using today's work-saving materials and methods, plus a little imagination, you can come up with frames to enhance almost any picture.

You can get some unique profiles by pairing different moldings. When doing this, remember to put a notch, or rabbet, into the back; this accepts the picture to be framed. Finishing can be managed quite easily with spray paints, stains and varnish. If you want a distressed finish, tap the completed frame lightly with your hammer or some sharp object. After doing this, sand lightly to remove any splinter, then finish with paint—or stain and varnish.

Shown above is a handy, compact miter-box/corner-clamp. You'll find this device makes picture framing much easier. The clamp has a 45-degree slot that's adjustable for different saw blade thicknesses. It also has two screw-in clamps which hold the frame sections securely in place until the glue is dry. Glue should be used sparingly because if any is left on the surface of the frame, the stain won't penetrate and you'll end up with a light spot.

If glass is to be used to cover the art, the depth of the rabbet will have to be adjusted to account for it. Place a mat between the glass and the subject so that no moisture from the glass will touch the subject. The mat also serves as a break between the frame and the surface of the artwork. Using a sharp knife, cut the mat from matboard, which is available in art stores. Leave a slightly wider border on the bottom edge.

A mat can also be used to "stretch" a small print to fit a larger frame. Usually, the print is taped to the back of the mat at the top edge only. This is done to keep the print from wrinkling if it should shrink. A backing then holds the print against the mat. Small brads or glazier's points hold the work in the frame. Follow this procedure, then add a picture wire and screw eyes to the back of the frame and you're all ready to hang your print on the wall. ■

A contrast to the privacy of the front, this rear wall of the house opens wide to the rear yard. From the left, you see the living room, the dining room, and the family room. Both living and dining rooms have French doors to make the terrace readily accessible at all times.

The terrace outside repeats the four-foot-square modules of the inside, and the grids below match the spacing of the roof beams. A terrace like this can be about any shape that will work on your lot—just add or subtract the four-foot squares wherever you'd like. The grids are redwood 2x4s; the concrete was brushed to expose the aggregate.

The entry hall is open, too—but not to the street. A court like this can be used with houses of many types and offers a lot of enjoyment for a small investment.

In addition to gaining privacy from the street, you get a great place to show off your gardening ability. Your landscaping can be as simple as this—or you can schedule blossoms for the warm months.

Any entry court should have a sense of enclosure, provided here with the high, solid walls and gates that allow you a good glimpse outside. Then you can identify callers before they even approach the front door.

MAKES THE MOST OF A STEEP LOT

Because of the sloping lot, this upper-level dining room has a view that would rival that of many tree houses. And large windows make the most of it, drawing in as much as possible from two sides.

Here, you see more of the ingredients of a good, well-designed house. Plain windows, discreet trim, recessed light fixtures, the supporting beam, and sloping ceiling all make the room interesting without adding superfluous details and extra expense. Construction, too, is standard, with ordinary ceiling joists and wall studs—simply covered with gypsum wall-board and painted.

Every living room should be as traffic-free as this one. You enter from the end of the hall (see plan) and leave at the same spot—no cross traffic to play hob with furniture groupings.

The 19x6-foot deck outside extends the living space the whole length of the room. Tall fixed windows—instead of sliding glass doors—make the view from the living room as impressive as from the deck itself. And the conventional door connects them conveniently.

The deck's cover follows the pitch of the roof—and the sloping part of the dining room ceiling. Above the flat ceiling inside, standard trusses do the supporting job.

Miracle Whip Salad Dressing perfect just the way it is. Our meats are freshly ground and our winning secret is Kraft's alone.
 No one comes close to our lively flavor. That's the reason Miracle Whip by Kraft is America's favorite salad dressing, why it makes special dishes so special. Like
 San Francisco Stroganoff, for instance: Shape
 1 1/2 lbs. ground beef in balls; brown in 2 tablespoons Parkay Margarine. Add 1 cup of sliced onions; cook until tender. Combine 1/2 cup Miracle Whip Salad Dressing and 1/2 cup Kraft Sour Cream Sauce Mix.
 Dissolve 1 beef bouillon cube in 1 1/3 cups boiling water. Gradually add to the salad dressing mixture, mixing until it's well blended. Pour sauce over the meat balls.

 Then add 1/4 lb. sliced fresh mushrooms and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Cover and let simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve over hot cooked noodles. 4 to 6 servings.
 It's worth doing right. With uncopiable Miracle Whip.

FAMILY TRAVEL

Paul Plawin, Travel Editor

FROM HOLLAND TO THE HEART OF EUROPE

Drawings: Liam Roberts

part of our continuing survey of and offbeat vacations for 1969, month's articles take you to Holland, then along on six unusual excursions in the U.S., Canada, and South America—by boat, plane, train. Then an "African Queen" river steamship and finally to Maui, our editors' choice as the most nearly perfect Hawaiian island.

Begin with Happy Holland. It's a country where you'll quickly feel at home. English is almost a second language here; yet Holland is Europe in miniature, and a wonderful introduction to the continent.

When your jet lands at Amsterdam's ultramodern airport, the customs men usually wave you through. If you've taken advantage of KLM's "Thriftycar" tour package, there'll be a small car waiting for you to drive for the next two or three weeks. This $320 bargain includes your round-trip air fare from New York, the rental car, and your first night's lodging.

In Amsterdam, start off with a boat ride on the beautiful (and clean) canals that crisscross the old city, or follow the KLM booklet "On Foot in Surprising Amsterdam" for a great walking tour.

Visit the Rijksmuseum with its unbelievable collection of Dutch masters; see enjoy the flower auction at Aalmoer (weekdays) and after May 1, the cheese market at Alkmaar (Friday mornings) and Gouda (Thursday mornings)—along with the unspoiled villages of Spaarndam and Bunschoten, whose inhabitants still wear traditional Dutch costumes. All this is within an hour's drive from Amsterdam.

In The Hague, be sure to see Madurodam, Holland's most popular attraction for children (and for adults as well). It's a complete miniature city, scaled to exactly 1/25 life size, that covers more than an acre. Drive to nearby Delft to see porcelain being made and to Rotterdam, whose whole downtown was rebuilt from ashes after World War II bombings. Visit the discotheque at the Rotterdam Hilton and see how young Europe swings. For working windmills, visit the nearby Kinderdijk: there are 19 of them in one small area.

After a few days in western Holland, drive east to Arnhem. Take the speedy superhighway (traffic cops control the road in flashy white sports cars), or follow the meandering roads along the Rhine. In Arnhem, see the Open Air Museum, an old Dutch village complete in every detail (open April through October). Nearby, visit the Dutch National Park, the "Hoge Veluwe," where in the midst of 22 square miles of unspoiled country you'll suddenly find one of the world's outstanding art museums, the Kröller-Müller Museum, with collections by van Gogh, Picasso, Monet, Seurat, and Cezanne.

Then follow the Rhine to central Europe, through Germany's booming industrial belt, past Düsseldorf and Cologne, to Koblenz. (Make a detour here along the picturesque banks of the Mosel River.) Beyond Koblenz toward Frankfurt and Mainz, you'll hit the Rhine's most beautiful section. Here the river is framed by romantic hills covered with vineyards and studded with medieval castles.

You can also follow the Rhine by comfortable train. For people who'd rather not drive, a railroad version of the "Thriftycar" tour gives you 1,500 kilometers (about 930 miles) of second-class rail travel instead of the rental car; the price is the same.

Or you can cruise up the Rhine River, all the way to Basel, Switzerland, in one of the luxurious ships of the Koeln-Düsseldorf German Rhine Line. The trip, starting in Rotterdam, takes five days and features optional shore excursions. Fares range from about $100 to $140, one way. For more information, write: Rhine Cruise Agency, 51 E. 42 St., New York, N.Y. 10017. To plan this and other parts of a trip to Holland, see your airline or travel agent.—George Bush.

the tiny attic where Anne Frank hid from the Nazis; sniff your way through the floating open-air flower market on barges and boats on the Singel Canal; explore the antique shops of the Spiegelstraat area; tour the diamond workshops; eat herring, dipped in chopped onions, at a sidewalk stall; shop for bargains in pewter, crystal, and delftware.

You'll enjoy dining at elegant restaurants in old Amsterdam houses like The Black Sheep and the Five Flies. For a special thrill, make a reservation at "de Dikkert" (which means "the fat one"), an exquisite restaurant installed in a converted windmill in suburban Amstelveen. If you don't want to drive there yourself, they'll send a Rolls Royce for you free of charge (the total tab comes to about $15 for two, including wine).

Come to Holland in late April or early May when the tulips are in bloom, and make it a point to visit the vast gardens of the Keukenhof; it's the most magnificent display you'll ever see. You'll also

TAKE ONE OF THESE SPECIAL EXCURSIONS

CHESAPEAKE BAY SAIL CRUISE

Sprawling Chesapeake Bay, which knifes between Maryland and Virginia, is a sailor's delight. It's the only place in the United States where commercial fishermen still go to sea in sailing ships. Its seafood—from hard-shell crabs to oysters—is superb. And the people of the Chesapeake region possess a vast store of salty lore and a love for all things nautical.

To sample the delights of this great inland sea, cruise under sail out of historic Annapolis, Maryland. The Annapolis Sailing School offers sailing vacations which include a weekend of intensive instruction guaranteed to enable you to skipper your own sailboat on the school's escorted cruise itineraries.

But the most interesting excursion under sail from Annapolis is a cruise aboard the 60-foot, two-masted hугeye, Mustang. It's the last five-log brogan (actually a giant dugout canoe) under full sail and was both a "coasting trader" between Baltimore, Washington, and the Carolinas, and an oyster "drudge" before being converted to a pleasure craft.

You'll cruise with Capt. Gerry Morton, a 19-year veteran sailor on the Chesapeake and a genial and knowledgeable host. He'll chart a course that will introduce you to some of the most fascinating inlets, islands, and quaint ports around the bay. Under his expert guidance, you'll quickly learn to hoist canvas by hauling away on the halyards, balance the helm by trimming the sails, how to come about on a port or starboard tack, and to distinguish between a topping lift and a lazyjack, a boathook and a baggywrinkle. Best of all, you'll enjoy the solitude of cruising under sail; it's a uniquely satisfying experience.

Capt. Morton operates the Mustang as a "bare-boat charter"—his services and all equipment you'll need for shipboard life are provided in the charter fee (about $12 a day per person). You provide and prepare the food and pay dockage fees.

For more details, write: Tourist Division, Maryland Dept. of Economic Development, Annapolis, Maryland 21401.

CANADA'S 'POLAR BEAR EXPRESS'

No highway leads to the settlement of Moosonee—only a lonely railroad track that dead-ends here in the northern Ontario wilderness of scrub brush and muskeg, where Moose River spills into the Arctic tidewaters of James Bay.

Moosonee isn't pretty. It's primitive and barren, a town of rickety clapboard houses and bumpy, potholed streets. You can tell at a glance that this outpost has to fight for survival; that the frontier does not forgive mistakes. Yet there is great beauty, too, in this desolation, and an exhilarating sense of adventure. A visit is an experience you'll never forget.

Your adventure starts at Cochrane, 186 pencil-straight miles to the south (and itself an overnight train ride from Toronto). The "Polar Bear Express" from Cochrane to Moosonee is unlike any train you have ever known. It follows no exact timetable, but stops anywhere at any time for anyone who wants to get off or on. It drops off hunters, fishermen, and grizzled trappers with their gear, and picks up others after weeks in the wilderness, even if they don't have the fare, for this is no place to be stranded for a lack of change. Indian children wait at a few scheduled stops to come aboard to buy ice cream and candy in the diner.

At Moosonee, you can explore Moose Factory Island, where the Cree Indians live in a shack encampment and still trade pelts for goods from the Hudson Bay Company store. You can also take a ride on a freighter canoe up the last stretch of the Moose River, possibly into James Bay itself.

On summer Sundays, there's a special excursion train that makes the Cochrane-Moosonee round-trip in one day, with time to stroll around Moosonee before the turn-around (adults, $10; children 5-12, $5, under 5, free). Other days, you'll have to overnight at Moosonee's single hotel ($10-$16.50 for a double room; reservations required well in advance). For trip planning details, write: Ontario Northland Railway, 805 Bay St., Toronto, Ontario, Canada.—George Bush.

GLACIER BAY CRUISE IN ALASKA

The highlight of your cruise through the icy waters of Glacier Bay National Monument in southeast Alaska comes when your boat lingers at the sheer faces of gigantic Muir and Riggs Glaciers—200-foot-high walls of ice that have been thousands of years in the making. You're surrounded by icebergs, some larger than your own 64-foot cruise boat, and by hundreds of seals sunning themselves on the floating ice. Chances are you'll see—and hear—an icefall. That's when a chunk of the glacier's terminus, or snout, cracks off and falls into the bay with a thunderous clap and surging waves. Moments later, part of it will emerge as an iceberg. If nature doesn't provide this show on schedule, the skipper of the Sea Crest usually helps the cracking ice along with a few strong blasts from the horn.

While this activity in the bay's headwaters may provide the most excitement, it isn't the only natural spectacle you'll see during the cruise. Glaciers, deep fiords, and snow-capped mountains combine with lush forests and abundant wildlife to create a unique wilderness few people have ever seen.

You begin the eight-hour cruise ($12.50 per person, including lunch and snacks) from Bartlett Cove at the mouth of the bay. Flanking your course northward toward Muir Inlet are mountain ranges loftier than any in the continental U.S.; they're still emerging from the Ice Age. You'll spot whales blowing water high into the air. On the rugged shore, you're virtually certain to see roaming mountain goats, bald eagles, Arctic terns and other birds on rocky island rookeries, and rows of ancient tree stumps—the remains of whole forests buried by the glaciers 3,000 years ago.

Fly into Bartlett Cove on Alaska Airlines ($35.70 round-trip from Juneau) and stay overnight at the commodious Glacier Bay Lodge ($25 per person double occupancy, American Plan). For reservations, see your travel agent or write: The Lodge, Glacier Bay National Monument, Gustavus, Alaska 99826.

BLACK HILLS 1880 RAIL TRIP

men with a wave of the brakeman's hand and an ear-splitting blast from the whistle atop the black, hissing locomotive, complete with towering smokestack (complete with a great brass headlamp). Then there's a shower of thunderous chuffs from the engine, a shower of coal smoke, and the train inches up the pine forest toward Keystone. And you, Hill City's barn-red depot, the train museum grow smaller, then disappear behind a bend.

From here, the train climbs through narrow gaps in the granite outcroppings, bursting out suddenly into pine-land meadowland. About halfway through this 20-mile excursion, you crest a high grade at Oblivion (pop. 0), a fuel and watering stop in gold-mine days. The weatherworn railside station—on one side—is the sole building on the silent hilltop.

From Oblivion to Keystone, five miles and 1,500 feet below, the General Custer slips along easily, skirting sheer granite cliffs, slipping through dense pine thickets and nosing into deep canyons that could hide a Sioux war party. Then, with a final shriek from the Custer's whistle, the bright red train cars glide into Keystone (pop. 500) for a 20-minute stop before returning to Hill City.

You get back aboard the same train, and the summer round-trip takes about two hours. From Hill City, you can choose from four departure times daily; from Keystone, there are three.

Although this five-car train carries 100 passengers, you'll want to arrive before train time to get a good seat in the open-air or coach cars. If you start your trip from Keystone, you can reach other Black Hills adventures from there by car—among them, a gold-mine tour, an aerial tram ride, and a visit to Mt. Rushmore.

Bring a sweater, since it's often cool in the high country, and wear picnic clothes. The only other thing you'll need is the fare—$2.95 for adults, $1.50 for children 5-12.—Peter Lindberg.

ARCTIC ALASKA CIRCLE TOUR

Until recent years, life in the vastness of Arctic Alaska was an experience shared only by the native Eskimos and a few hardy pioneers and servicemen. Now you can visit the Arctic in comfort, winter or summer. Yet the isolation of this barren-looking land of snow, ice, and tundra—as well as the hospitality of the people who live there—will make a lasting impression on you.

No roads lead to the Arctic. You go by plane—or dog sled. Your best bet is a two-day package jet tour of Kotzebue and Nome from Anchorage or Fairbanks.

At Kotzebue, an Eskimo village just north of the Arctic Circle, life centers around hunting, fishing—and tourists. Within the village, you'll see Eskimos demonstrate some of their crafts and skills: mukluk sewing, blanket tossing, Eskimo yo-yo twirling, and packing a baby, papoose-style, in a parka.

On the flight to your overnight stop in Nome, you'll skirt the coast of Siberian Russia just 35 miles to the west. At first glance, Nome looks like a clapboard shanty town, not unlike its appearance when the gold rush was at its peak. Now colorful legends, abandoned dredges, scattered mine claims, and a hodgepodge of wooden-front saloons are all that remain of the bonanza era.

You'll take a ride in an Eskimo umiak (walrus-skin boat) and a dog sled; visit a reindeer farm; watch the exciting King Island Eskimo Dancers perform; and shop for bargains in hand-crafted ivory, jade, fur, and leather at Polet's Eskimo Arts and Crafts Shop. In summer, you'll also tour a working gold mine.

Alaska Airlines offers this two-day Arctic Excursion all year. You're provided a warm parka and other outerwear for the tour (summer temperatures average 65; winter, zero). The summer fare is $170.50, children $101.75; winter $134 and $81.50. This includes round-trip air fare, hotel, ground transportation, and sightseeing. Wien-Consolidated Airlines also offers summer Arctic excursions—from Fairbanks—at comparable prices.

STEAMER DOWN THE AMAZON

No river compares with the Amazon. It snakes some 2,000 miles from the headwaters of Belem in Brazil, past Iquitos in Peru, cutting through the "Green Hell" of the South American jungle, past tiny settlements of Indians, through a beautiful and desolate wilderness. A trip along its turbid waters makes up in excitement what it lacks in comfort. This adventure can be a fascinating change of pace on any tour of South America.

Iquitos, straight out of Graham Greene with Maugham-like Malaysian overtones, is the best place to start. This river town has a reputation as a smugglers' paradise, and it really is one of the more fascinating spots on the continent. You can almost hear the Indian drums throb as you explore Iquitos.

There are numerous air services to Iquitos, including a weekly COPISA flight from Miami. Braniff, Pan Am, Varig, and Avianca also fly to this region from the U.S. From Iquitos you catch a British Booth Line river freighter—which will take four people at a time (at $100 each for the six-day trip to Manaus)—or one of the Brazilian SNAPP Line ships. Departures are erratic, and the miniature staterooms do seem tinier and hotter during stops, although Booth Line keeps the air conditioning going even in port. But the service is good, and there's a cabin boy for each double cabin. And if the food seems a bit ordinary, there are usually "shore leaves" each day during the loading of cargo.

If the steamer is late and you are feeling really adventurous, catch a float plane downriver to one of the Indian villages. Then switch to a "collectiva" or river bus for the trip to Leticia, Colombia. You can join the steamer there when it arrives. A colectiva from Iquitos to Leticia costs $10 to $15 and takes two days. It is comfortable, but the sanitary facilities are quite basic.

The Amazon offers an endless succession of delights. There's a constant parade of barges and canoes plying the river selling fruit, vegetables, liquor, and beer to the Indians who live on the river banks—and to the boat passengers as well. You'll see natives on rafts ferrying captured animals to dealers in Leticia.

It's worth getting off for a while in Leticia, a free port which rejoices in bustling humanity, fine zoos, and a fascinating market to which the Indians bring the oversized fish and crabs they have caught. Outside Leticia are freshwater lakes covered with the giant "Victoria regia" water lilies and teeming with the brightly colored tropical fish which are sent to aquariums around the world. You may also be treated to some weird Indian tribal dances, including one barbaric hair-pulling ritual that's performed when maidens come of age.

Back on the steamer, you'll follow the quick, downriver route. On your way, you'll see the best of the Amazon in three countries—Peru, Colombia, and Brazil.

Your adventure ends at Manaus, glorious old capital of Brazil and a welcome bit of civilization after the unforgettable African Queen-style trip.

This jungle city of over 150,000 people dates from the turn of the century when the rubber barons built ornate mansions decorated with tile and wrought iron, plus an opera house whose imposing elegance dominates the town. Called the "Treatro Amazonas," the opera house seats over a thousand people and faces a plaza of colored mosaic like the famous Copacabana Walk in Rio. It's a museum now, but in its heyday, the world's greatest entertainers endured the tortuous journey into the heart of the Amazon region for lucrative performances here.

Manaus is a growing city; its tall modern structures contrast with the thatched huts and red tile roofs of the old section. Sidewalk cafes line the attractive, tree-shaded Avenue Eduardo Ribeiro. You'll want to see the Botanical Gardens ablaze with tropical blooms; the Wild Animal Market that supplies zoos all over the world; the whole native village of houses and shops floating on logs anchored in the river; and the nearby light-house, imported stone by stone from England. If you are interested in photography, hunting, and fishing safaris, experienced guides are available here.

Stay at the modern, air conditioned Hotel Amazonas if you want to overnight in Manaus. From Manaus, you can make good air connections for home or your other South American tour stops.

To make arrangements for this off-beat excursion, see your travel agent or write: South American Travel Organization, Suite 516, 100 Biscayne Boulevard, Miami, Florida 33132.

HAWAII'S "PERFECT" ISLAND

If we had to recommend just one family travel destination that's different—a truly idyllic spot that hasn't been discovered by all the crowds—we'd be strongly tempted to say "Maui."

This Hawaiian island combines in one locale everything you could ask of a vacation. It's remote yet accessible; civilized yet tranquil; warm yet cool; historic yet modern. Only 50 miles long, Maui offers some truly incredible variety. In fact, you can have five vacations in one:

1. Absolutely perfect beaches. Just in the past decade, five fine resort hotels have been built along Kaanapali Beach at the west end of Maui. This beach is always described in superlatives, but it still draws a gasp of amazement from first-time visitors. It's long and smooth and white, and the water is like plate glass. Snorkelers and scuba divers prowl the coral beds offshore while ordinary swimmers float happily in the sun. The hotels all have big swimming pools—and you wonder why.

2. Genuine Hawaiian history. On Maui, the "Old Hawaii" is not yet overwhelmed by tourism or industrial development. Adjoining Kaanapali Beach is the one-time whaling and missionary town of Lahaina. Here, original Hawaiian buildings of the 1850s have been (and are being) restored to their former glories. You can visit homes, churches, schools, a courthouse—even a whaler's prison—dating from the lusty days when Hawaii was a royal kingdom all to itself. In fact, Lahaina was the royal capital when Honolulu was just an outpost.

3. Remote rain forests. Maui's trade-wind climate dictates that if the Kaanapali lee shore is sunny and dry, the windward (east) coast will be lush and showery. Mind you, this Hana district isn't grim and overcast all day—it's just that you can expect some rain or even a cloudburst almost every evening. Tropic rain forests grow dense here; exotic fruits and flowers abound, along with limpid pools and cascading waterfalls. Beaches are fewer, but all the more delightful for their solitude. If you really want to get away from the cares of your own world at home, the tiny town of Hana is your goal; the Hana-Maui your hotel.

4. Volcanic splendor. Between Kaanapali and Hana looms an immense dormant volcano—Haleakala—which has been set aside in one of Hawaii's two U.S. national parks. The winding road takes you above the tree line to over 10,000 feet. Up here you'll need a sweater as you survey the huge crater and (on clear days) tick off your personal landmarks on Maui and the other islands visible offshore. Pineapple and sugarcane fields make impressive patterns in those now-tiny valleys below. At the crater's edge is a visitor center and volcanic museum.

5. Modern tourist facilities. We mention your probable arrival site on Maui last because it's the Hawaii you already know or expect. Maui's urban center is Kahului/Wailuku (the airport is at Kahului), an unusual twin city of Hawaii. In addition to shops and shopping centers, you'll find excellent resort hotels here. At Kahului you can rent a car and drive to either Lahaina and Kaanapali (westward) or Hana and Haleakala (eastward). Even nearer is the cool, verdant Iao valley, where in 1790 one of royal Hawaii's major battles was fought. The towering Iao needle (a geologic formation) and Kepaniwai state park are well worth visiting.

Getting there. The fastest way is to fly—$100 each way Economy Class from Los Angeles or San Francisco. You'll change planes in Honolulu and be in Maui about six hours after leaving the Mainland. You may prefer a 4½-day luxury liner voyage to Honolulu, then transfer by air to Maui. Ticket prices vary, depending upon ship and class of service. From major East Coast cities, G.I.T. air fares to Honolulu range from $255 to $325 round-trip (plus $175 prepaid ground arrangements). See your travel agent for details.—Neil Kuehn.

Is any record club offer ever made!

THINK OF IT! Now you can get ANY 12 records shown here — all 12 for less than the price of one! That's right — if you join the Columbia Record Club now, you may have ANY 12 of these records for only $3.98! And more, we'll even give you the attractive transistor radio shown at the left as a gift! And all you have to do is agree to receive one record a month during the coming ten months, within ten months you'll have a library of 22 records — but you'll have paid just half of them . . . that's practically saving off regular Club prices — and a free radio besides!

MUSIC MAGAZINE. You'll have no problem selecting a record a month during your membership, because each monthly issue contains 300 different records to choose from. Hit albums from every field of music, scores of different record labels! You select the monthly selection for the field in which you are mainly interested. You take any of the other records offered for choice is entirely up to you.

NO CASH SENT ON CREDIT. Upon enrollment the Club will open a charge account in your name . . . you pay for your records only after you have received them — played them — and are enjoying them. They will be mailed and billed to you at the regular Club price of $4.98 (Classical, occasional Original Cast recordings and special albums somewhat higher), plus a mailing and handling charge.

FANTASTIC BONUS PLAN. As soon as you complete your enrollment agreement, you will automatically become eligible for the Club's bonus plan — which entitles you to one record free for every one you buy. There are no "saving certificates" to accumulate, no delays, no limitations — every time you buy a record, you get another one free! Under this plan you pay as little as $2.86 a record (including all mailing and handling charges) for all your records.

SEND NO MONEY — MAIL THE CARD TODAY! Just write in the numbers of the twelve records you want, for which you will be billed only $3.98, plus postage and handling. Be sure to indicate the type of music in which you are mainly interested. Act now!

Note: Since stereo records may now be played on monaural (regular high-fidelity) phonographs, and cost no more than monaural records, all of your records will be sent in stereo.

Call it what you will—a stool, ottoman, or bench—this flexible furniture piece can fill many roles in many rooms. Use several stools to stretch seating; team a pair with a dual desk; or use as entryway accessories. Here are a few ways you can work stools into your room scheme.

Left: Sturdy seating for a trio of guests is available here in a wink. Stools slide under coffee table when not needed, freeing floor space. Small stools like these can be padded with foam and covered to match sofa upholstery, or sheathed in one of the exciting fake fur fabrics.

Above right: A pair of teak stools topped with bright fabric cushions adds to the symmetry of this carefully arranged wall grouping. At part time, the walnut-and-slate table quickly converts to a buffet server, and the lightweight stools provide instant, easy-to-move seating wherever it is needed in the room.

Left: In this study area used by two brothers, vinyl-padded stools offer comfortable and practical seating. The six-foot-long desk shelf, supported by wrought-iron wall brackets, can be raised as the boys grow older. Cane pattern wallpaper makes it easy to switch pictures and other wall hangings frequently since the "busy" overall design helps camouflage small nail holes.

This side of the house shows how all three shed-roofed units are joined around the kitchen-dining room.

Behind the wide glass wall is all dining room—the French doors join it to the small deck outside.

Just below each of the three roof peaks, slanted clerestory windows spill extra daylight inside the house—into the living room, into the bedroom hallway, and into the bonus loft space above the garage.

An outside stair like the one at far right offers a private entrance to the above-garage space—there's an interior stairway also.

Don't be a denture dropout there's just no room for trouble, no letting go.

A wide entrance deck welcomes friends and guests to the front door.

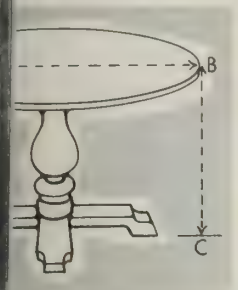

The fixed windows flanking this door make it easy to observe guests approaching yet anyone outside can't see into only the entry itself.

With the living room three steps above the sloping ceiling becomes even more dramatic. And the fireplace adds drama with its tall brick chimney. The floors in both rooms here are covered with area rugs.

The open entry stairs serve as a focal point in the family and perform a practical function, too. Their openness lets light stream in from the entry. Add extra brightness with the sliding glass door at the other end of the room, and you have a family room as pleasant as you could wish for.

From above, the two-level entry soars tall and handsome. Those vertical posts make the living room at right seem taller than it is—and act like a wall when you begin to arrange furniture. An ordinary railing here would have severely restricted furniture placement in the living room.

Tests By Doctors Prove It Possible To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching,
Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication which has the ability, in most cases—to actually shrink hemorrhoids and to promptly stop the burning itch and relieve pain.

In case after case, the sufferer first notices relief from itching and pain. Then painful swelling of the inflamed hemorrhoids is gently reduced.

Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C.

and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so.

The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like Preparation H. In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids—Preparation H lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection.

Just ask for Preparation H Ointment or Preparation H Suppositories. No prescription is needed.

A sure way to get the most out of floor space in a house is to keep hallways to a minimum. After all, they can be used only for circulation, not living.

The only hall (right) in this house is just nine feet long. And it's so open that it operates much like a part of the upper level playroom it serves.

From the railing, you can see down the staircase—but not into the living room. The large white panel at the upper right of this photograph is translucent plastic. It lets natural light spill into this area from a skylight in children's bathroom on the other side.

The playroom beyond separates the two children's bedrooms. Counting the hall bathroom, they rate about half the upper level as an almost separate suite. The wide, double height tack board makes a great place to display all of youngster's art, too.

All the upstairs ceilings pitch toward the center ridge beam, which is supported by the end walls and two posts. The roof joists are 2x10s, held up by this beam and front and rear walls. Since there's no attic, batt insulation is placed between the joists.

In the living room, the two-story-high ceiling (right) emphasizes the surprising space in this house. The pair of recessed plant platforms gives the room a feeling of extra dimension. Behind them, you get a glimpse of the upstairs area.

Combine all this with the view you have into the second floor studio, and you feel you're in a much more spacious house. Yet in the part of the living room below the studio, you get a welcome impression of warmth and coziness.

The dining room is neatly marked off by the arrangement of living room furniture and the line of the normal-height ceiling. Close the folding wood door like this and dim the lights, and it becomes as formal as you please. Or, for a less formal affair, leave the door open and arrange lighting so guests can circulate all the way from the family room to the near end of the living room.

All the trim in the house is as simple as you see. It's standard one-inch boards, stained dark. The same good looking trim was used for the baseboards, too.

curb or back door for retrieval by the householder.

The other plus, which few householders consider but which could be the most important of all, is that the sacks upgrade the job of the garbage collector. The bags make the collector's task easier because they're lighter, easier to handle, and cleaner than cans.

Safer, too. The job of refuse collector, by the way, rates second only to logging on occupational risks.

A New York City study shows collectors tote an average of six tons of material a day in 46-pound loads. Every man, woman, and child in the U.S. produces 4.5 pounds of refuse a day—a figure that's going up steadily in our affluent throw-away economy. ■ start: interest rates on mortgage loans have gone up, too.

For some, mortgage money is hard to find at any price. The nation's builders lament their third straight year of depressed housing starts, and many smaller operators are out of business.
This housing crisis is all too familiar to builders and homeowners (see the August, 1968, Better Homes and Gardens).

Yet we can scarcely begin to suggest the misery and despair that inadequate, substandard housing creates in the teeming urban slums.
Obviously, National Homes can't rehabilitate the ghettos single-handedly. But its efforts demonstrate that totally manufactured housing can go a long way toward lowering costs and reducing construction time.

The implications are staggering. Widespread adoption of the technique could provide not only decent housing for the poor, but more reasonably priced housing for everyone.
Not ten years from now. Not even five years from now.
Right now. ■

At 4½ she's reading 3rd grade books

*a child prodigy?
not at all! your child, too can be reading one, two or three years beyond his present age level...even if he's a "poor" reader now*

Prove it to yourself...with this 10 day free trial!

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four and a half, she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinating eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on the phonograph record, sees them in his book and repeats them himself. This makes an absorbing game of better reading—with amazing results!

FOR EXAMPLE:

- Slow or average readers show sudden, often spectacular improvement in reading, in spelling, in understanding.

- Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age levels.
- Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective phonics method of words, pictures, and records.

6 TEACHING GAMES INCLUDED FREE
Set includes six separate "word building" games. All six are sent with your Listen and Learn Phonics Set FREE of charge!

TEACHERS & PARENTS ACCLAIM RESULTS
"I received your Combination Teaching Set and am positively delighted with it!... your marvelous approach to reading is just what we need."

Mrs. Rogavin, Central High School, Snyder, N.Y.

"We purchased 'Listen and Learn With Phonics'... for our nine year old son... within two weeks his reading had improved 100%."

Mrs. Gregory Knight, San Leandro, Cal.

Your child must memorize all his multiplication tables to pass in NEW MATH

TWO WEEK FREE TRIAL
Just send name—no money!

teach all the tables from 2's through 12's as easily as the words of a song!

Help your child do better in arithmetic—especially in the New Math—by getting him these new multiplication records. Modern Math teachers insist on children memorizing their tables. Now even children of pre-school age can easily learn all the tables from 2's through 12's simply by playing these records.

No urging needed from parents. Children love these records. Each table has its own catchy tune and jingles. And the man on the record quizzes your child so the tables stick in his memory. He must know his tables to learn long division, fractions and decimals.

Send No Money! Just send coupon and the records will be mailed to you postage prepaid. If returned within two weeks after receipt, you owe nothing. If kept, pay only $9.95, price in full. Brenner Records, Dept. E-7, Wilmette, Illinois 60091.

School Principal writes: "Your records have a unique teaching approach and a good use. Our pupils are taking new interest in their tables. Excellent as a home-tutoring aid."

A. Blair O'Connell, Principal, Lewisiston Elementary School, Lewisiston, Pa.

Parent writes: "All three of my children used your records and in 6 weeks had learned all the tables from 2's through 12's. Best investment I ever made."

A. J. Perez, Parsons

Brenner Records, Dept. E-7
Wilmette, Illinois 60091

Please mail, postage prepaid, one of the Musical Multiplication Records. I may return them any time within two weeks after I receive them and owe nothing. If I keep them I will honor your invoice for $9.95 in full.

MAGNIFICENT HAMMERED IRON AMERICAN EAGLE PLAQUE

Create the Ultimate Decorator Touch Over Your Fireplace —Mantle—Couch or Buffet with This Majestic Eagle

Imagine decorating your home with this authentic American Eagle plaque. Long a decorating favorite, this emblem of our national spirit—proud, valiant, independent—the Eagle graces many an American doorway and fireplace. Now captured in magnificent hammered iron, you bring new color and excitement to your home, office or den with this stunning masterpiece. This superb decorating piece is a masterpiece of craftsmanship, too. The feathery plumage and handsome body is exquisitely worked in delicately wrought, hammered metal and accented with flourishes of gold. The total effect is one of such breathtaking beauty, it will be the focal point of your home. Unfortunately it is impossible to reproduce the full breadth of the three dimensional "sculptured" body from the small black and white illustration here. Only when you see it gracing your home can you fully appreciate the drama it brings to every setting.
SPECIAL DECORATING NOTE: Because this decorating emblem is so appropriate in so many settings—modern, traditional, contemporary—we suggest you order more than one to help carry out a theme or motif throughout your entire decor or to give as a handsome gift.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

We urge you to order your American Eagle Wall Plaque now, while the supply lasts. Hammered Iron Eagle plaques of this type sell for $9.00 to $20.00; however, because of our volume purchasing, we can offer this exquisite work to you for the amazing low price of only $3.98 postpaid on full money back guarantee if you are not absolutely delighted. The Eagle plaque is almost three feet wide. Hurry, order now, this offer will not be repeated this season in Better Homes and Gardens.

OFFER

Lily of the Valley does well in open warm locations, but thrives in shade, and grows only 8" to 10" high, so it is ideal for shady spots where few other plants will grow. If you have a neglected corner that is a weed haven, Lily of the Valley will crowd out the weeds. If you have a slope difficult to mow, Lily of the Valley will cover it with low-growing plants that don't need mowing. If you have a bare spot under a tree, Lily of the Valley will fill it with beauty. It grows almost without care, lives for years, multiplies fast, and transplants easily.

This is a special low-priced offer to win new friends. (Regular catalog price for this many is $4.95) This offer will not be repeated this season, so order now. Sorry, we must limit orders to $1.

MY GRASS IS NO. 1

by Mike Senkiw

It's true the things people say about Zoysia (Reg. T.M.).

It's true that walking on it is unforgettable... like walking on a thick, pile carpet.

Your Zoysia lawn drives out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It stays green and be in blistering heat, when other grass burns out. It's the perfect lawn for summer-homes and "problem" areas.

There's no need to rip out your old grass. Plug in Zoysia Grass and it'll read into beautiful turf that never needs replacement. It will neither heat kill or winter kill... Merely goes off its green color after heavy frosts and regains fresh new beauty every Spring—a true perennial! Every plug fully guaranteed to grow in any soil in your area.

To end lawn problems, send for free interesting facts and prices about Amazy inc. pre-season bonus offer. No obligation. Mail coupon to:

THE MAN NEXT DOOR[®]

"Because I may not stay, that's why."

Judy brought home a stray puppy last week, and if you think people have a generation gap, you ought to see our old, established dog's reaction to the upstart.

One of the shortest measurable intervals of time is between the day you set a little extra aside for a sudden emergency, and the arrival of the sudden emergency.

Jimmy McCloud, the pro at our local golf club, is on the tournament circuit this winter. He writes that so far he has earned only $150, but has greatly improved both his putting and his humility.

We moved into this house 12 years ago, and there are still a couple of crates Christine keeps suggesting I unpack. But I point out that if we haven't used whatever's in there by now, why bother?

Uncle Dodd Buckner doesn't talk much any more about the old days around this part of the country. He says it's too dull, now that there's nobody left to argue the details with.

In my day, I did my homework on the dining-room table. My children all have scientifically designed desks, which they lie next to while studying on the floor.

All the family pets, from dog to turtle, are served meals tailored exactly to their preferences. The humans, however, are expected to eat whatever is in front of them without complaining.

A blizzard hit while I was out of town on a business trip, and the general feeling around the house seems to be that, somehow or other, I arranged it.

Rosemary is running for secretary of the student council, and I have to watch where I walk. The living-room is carpeted with newly painted campaign posters, wall to wall.

It was hard to explain that I wasn't talking to myself in the basement last night. What's so odd about giving the old furnace a pep talk, encouraging it to try to hold up through another winter?

Littering is a disgrace, but perhaps a neighborhood can be too antiseptic. I feel sort of sorry for Burt, Jr., walking to school without a tin can to kick along the sidewalk as he goes.

The medical profession thinks that the average life span can be extended to 120 years, which means we'll have three or four simultaneous generation gaps.

Strange as it seems, there are some nations in the world so new that Christine doesn't have a volume of recipes for 1,001 of their traditional dishes.

Rosemary says she wishes she were like the girls in novels who waste away of a broken heart. When one of her romances ends, she seeks solace from the refrigerator—and adds five pounds.

Food labels that say how many meal servings are in a can or box don't make it clear whether they mean adult servings, or child's portions, which I assume would be larger.

Dr. Bob Hannelly doesn't play the game, but he says he owes a debt of some kind to the bridge table, from which so many of his patients come to him symptom-ridden, pre-diagnosed, and sometimes even cured.

I was looking for a favorite book the other night, and Christine recalled that I lent it to Bill Norman a couple of weeks ago. I made the customary comment about people who don't return books.

"Just a minute," Chris said. "You practically forced Bill to take that book. In fact, he almost left without it, and you ran after him and stuck it under his arm. You know perfectly well that you enjoy lending books. What's with this big indignant act because the person who borrows a book takes the time to read it?"

She is right, of course. Much as I like my books, it makes me nervous to have them just sitting on the shelf instead of out about their business of spreading entertainment and information. Perhaps I'm a frustrated librarian at heart.

I can understand, however, why some people are reluctant to lend their precious volumes. They're like overprotective parents who worry about sending their children out into the world. My own view is that books and children must, in due season; be allowed to go their own way. Still, I'd be disappointed in both cases if I didn't hear from them again.

I'm giving Bill Norman one more week.

Burton Hillis

CRAFTY CRAFT IDEAS

DON'T CRY. IT'S AN ARMSTRONG VINYL FLOOR.

Armstrong created rugged Vinyl Corlon® floors because kitchens don't lead a soft life . . . especially if there are kids or pets around the house.

You can spill most anything on a Vinyl Corlon floor and never give it a second thought. The floor is nonporous, so the mess can't soak in and hide beneath the surface.

Corlon is more than practical. It has a deep-glow color that makes the whole kitchen come alive. It has a bright, glistening shine that makes the room look sparkling clean.

You'll never cry over an Armstrong Vinyl Corlon floor in your kitchen.

Armstrong

Mr. Woo and Angie, 2; and Mrs. Woo and Bobby, Jr., 7 months.

Meet Bobby Woo, the 200 Millionth American. His diapers are done in a Maytag.

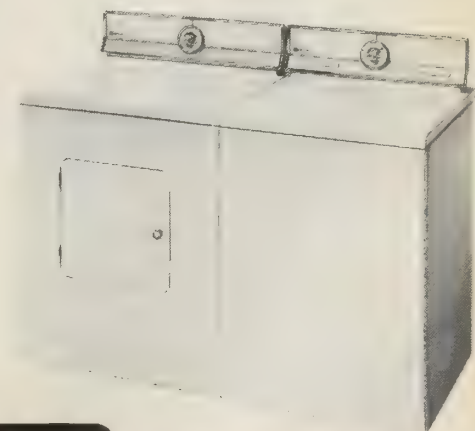

Two weeks before Bobby arrived, Mrs. Woo got a Maytag Washer and Dryer. She was following her mother's example.

When we went to the hospital, Mrs. Robert Decatur, Georgia, never dreamed about to give birth to a celebrity. Bobby caused quite a stir when he was born at 11:03 A.M. on November 20, 1959. The census people in Washington, D.C., designated him the 200 Millionth American, and you probably read about him in the newspapers and magazines. Two weeks before Bobby was born, Mrs. Woo bought a new Maytag Washer and Dryer. The machines have been working overtime ever since. Diapers, playclothes, dressess, slacks, everything for a young family . . . 10 loads a week, week after week. But Mrs. Woo isn't worried. After all, her mother's Maytags are nine years old and still going strong.

Today you can get New Generation Maytags with many new features. A washer with giant capacity and numerous cycles. A dryer with Electronic Control that's just right for permanent-press.

But one thing hasn't changed. Dependability is what we aim to build into every Maytag.

dream room:

Use rainbow sheer curtains from Sears.

It's the quickest way to change the mood of a room. Down come those hot, heavy drapes. And up go Sears sheer floating panels. In rainbow colors that bring springtime indoors. You can buy them today. Hang them tomorrow. It's that easy.

Sears has sheers in dozens of ways. Short panels. Long panels. Sizes for wide windows, narrow windows. In spectrum stripes, delicate florals, pretty prints. And our very favorite this spring—a clear pastel called “Jewel.” Looks romantically fragile, but is actually 100% Dacron® polyester Ninon. 100% machine washable! You'll find it at most Sears stores and in the catalog.

For that dream room you've been yearning after, come to Sears, Roebuck and Co. We'll help you work magic on your windows. In two words—sheer magic.

You've changed a lot lately.

THE COLLEGE COST PICTURE: IS IT SO GRIM?

Paying for college generally is pictured as a special kind of middle-age financial torture. You're pushed by those who tell you that you must afford it, and pulled by those who tell you how rough it's going to be. And as if to offer proof, the colleges themselves keep ticking off one tuition boost after another.

All in all, it's easy to become discouraged. But don't be. Despite rising costs—and costs are rising—there are some solid, encouraging signs that the college money barrier is gradually coming down. Not only will a record 55 percent of this year's high school graduates be able to go on to college, but many will do it with less strain on their parents' pocketbooks than ever before.

Why this change? First, there's the rapid expansion of lower-cost, two-year colleges, which puts a more manageable price tag on a college education. By the mid-seventies, it's estimated, half of all college freshmen will attend one of 1,300 such institutions. At present, there are about 1,000 two-year colleges, with new ones opening their doors at a rate of more than one a week.

A second development that's helping to brighten today's college finance picture is an equally rapid expansion of student grants and loans. A hefty hunk of this money comes from the federal government. In contrast to token programs a decade ago, the government currently furnishes 60 percent of all undergraduate financial aid—and 90 percent of all aid to graduate students. Government aid to undergraduates is now almost equal to a third of their average tuition cost.

On the subject of financial help, it's also encouraging that you no longer need to be impoverished in order to get it. And your child doesn't have to be an athletic or academic record-breaker, either. Today, even average students whose families earn $10,000 and up can obtain assistance in paying expenses.

None of this is intended to gloss over the fact that college costs are climbing—or to suggest you no longer need to plan ahead. Talk that college may someday be "free" is, for now and the immediate future, still just talk. Undeniably, you'll need a sizable sum of cash from somewhere. But you now have a widening range of alternatives when it comes to both the amount and the sources.

Begin your planning with a realistic estimate of what college is likely to cost when your child will attend. Or, as mentioned, at least know what the range of costs will be, since this is where one of the major changes is occurring. Take the case of these college-bound youngsters:

Steve, a high school senior, plans to enter a private four-year university this fall. If his school's charges are near the average, his first-year costs will be about $3,000 for tuition, board, and room. Transportation, books, entertainment, and miscellaneous expenses, which obviously can vary, may add another $1,000. At a private two-year college, however, tuition, board, and room will run about $2,100 per school year.

Publicly supported colleges, as you might suspect, generally are less costly. Assuming Steve were a state resident, his bills for tuition, board, and room would total roughly $1,400 at a four-year university. At a public two-year college, they might be as low as $800. If he lives at home, the cost just for tuition at public two-year colleges averages about $150 for each year.

But for Sara, Steve's eighth-grade sister, the same colleges in five years will carry a stiffer price. For tuition, board, and room, she'll pay about $3,600 at a private four-year university, and about $2,600 at a private two-year school. At a public university, her costs will total approximately $1,600 at a four-year school—and $950 at a two-year school.

By the time third-grader Bruce enters college in ten years, the cost of a private college may well be $4,300 or so per year at a four-year school, and $3,200 at a two-year school.

But remember, these illustrations show more than just the direction of college costs. Rather, they show today's widening cost spread. Right now, for instance, a year at a private university averages about $1,600 more than at a public university. In ten years, if recent trends continue, the difference between these two choices will jump to $2,300 a year.

Despite the widening cost gap, your decision to choose a college shouldn't begin with what a school costs. This may have been a "must" when financial assistance was still rare. But it isn't today, and it promises to be even less necessary in the future.

Instead, aim for a college that's likely to be right for your child—one that best matches his abilities and objectives. Even if the price seems a bit frightening, there's a much better chance that you can swing it than you may think.

Never rule out a school simply because you assume it's expensive. Costs at private colleges do average higher than at public universities, but large endowments or church support enable some to charge the same or even less. Beside this, some "name" private universities are able to provide generous financial aid.

At the other extreme, don't cross off a college just because it costs less. Cost isn't necessarily a measure of a college's quality—or of its suitability for a particular student.

Since two-year colleges represent the newest (and lowest) end of the price range, it's logical to ask how good they are. The answer, quite frankly, is that some are pretty poor. But, encouragingly, a growing number are excellent.

At one end of the quality spectrum are a number of small colleges that seemingly cater to everyone and no one. Their cafeteria-style curriculum ranges from college preparatory to vocational training for local townsmen. Transferring from one of these schools to a major university can be a trying—and sometimes insurmountable—task.

Toward the opposite end of the quality scale lie the two-year state and community colleges. A number of states—like New York, California, Florida, and Illinois—have active two-year systems under way. In a number of areas, too, independent two-year colleges coordinate their academic programs and standards closely with state universities.

In both cases, these schools relieve population pressures on universities and financial pressures on parents without sacrificing the caliber of education. Increasingly, their purpose is to produce graduates who can (and do) transfer smoothly into a four-year institution.

To check out a two-year college, visit the admissions office of the school you hope your child will attend in his final two years. An admissions officer often can cite the percentage of applicants accepted from the two-year school, and tell you how they've done academically after admission. While a two-year college may sketch a rosy record of graduates' achievements, there is always the chance it's being somewhat too optimistic.

While the cost alone shouldn't be your starting point for choosing a college, it must be the base for your college financial planning. And the more specifically you pinpoint probable costs, the better. After you've narrowed your preferences to several schools, write for a schedule of current costs plus any literature available on financial aid. Then—by adding five percent per year to present charges—you can get an approximate idea of what costs may be in the future.

With an estimate of what college will cost, your financial planning then should focus squarely on how you're going to pay for it. First determine, as well as you can, how much you will be able to pay out of family income during the years your child is in college. An estimate like this helps you to figure the amount you'll need to obtain from sources other than current income.

Authorities on college finance say far too many families underestimate their ability to foot college bills on a pay-as-you-go basis. The following table, compiled by the College Scholarship Service, shows what families with different incomes actually do contribute out of current income to college expenses. In addition, these figures correspond roughly to the guides that many administrators of scholarship funds use as a partial gauge of financial "need."

PARENTS' COLLEGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Net income before federal taxes	Average annual parent contribution
0 to $2,499	$ 0
$2,500 to $4,999	160
$5,000 to $7,499	330
$7,500 to $9,999	1,050
$10,000 to $12,499	1,660
$12,500 to $14,999	2,160
$15,000 to $17,499	2,820
$17,500 to $19,999	5,120
over $20,000	5,400

Though the figures above are a useful guide, they still are no absolute measure of how much you should plan to spend—or how much you'll be able to spend. If you have a larger-than-average family, for example, chances are your contributions from current income may be less. Or, you may not want to spend that much out of family income if, say, it would be too big a jolt to your living standard or your savings for retirement.

The solution is to arrive at some amount that makes sense for you. Then you can get on with the business of planning where the rest of the money will come from.

Assume you estimate college will cost $3,000 a year—$12,000 for four years. If you expect to pay $1,000 a year out of current income, that leaves a total of $8,000 to be paid from other sources. And this is what college financial planning is really all about.

Briefly, here are four sources that can be tapped to supplement family income:

► Scholarships

Many educators today shy away from using this term, claiming the word "grants" is more accurate. The reason they point out, is that outright financial gifts to students are based more and more on need, rather than on exceptional academic ability. Many grant programs, particularly the federal ones, require only that a student meet college admission requirements and get passing grades.

Happily for middle-income families, the definition of "need" is changing. Arbitrary income standards now are supplemented by measures that take into account more than your paycheck. Among the factors considered are your age, the health of family members, your wife's income (if any), personal savings and investments, other financial commitments, and the number of your dependents. If your ability to pay for college falls short of its cost, your chances of qualifying for some outright financial help are much better.

Unfortunately, qualifying for aid is no assurance—for now, at least—that you'll be able to get it. Funds for undergraduate grants currently total about $500 million a year, not counting the GI Bill, and they seem sure to increase further. But competition for them is keener, too, with students showing the most need getting the most money.

While grant funds help bring down the college money barrier, you can't afford to count on them in your financial planning. Most colleges don't award grants until a student is accepted for admission. And even "outside grants," usable at any college, generally aren't committed before the senior year in high school.

Summer and part-time jobs let more and more college students close the gap between the cost of their education and their parents' ability to pay for it. In fact, students asking their college for financial help usually are reminded that the first means of support is self-support.

Accordingly, most colleges are expanding their student employment programs as rapidly as possible. Not only do the schools employ more student labor, but they're prodding (and aiding) local employers to hire student help. Federal funds—more than $150 million a year under the College Work-Study Program—also are swelling student payrolls.

How much can a college student be expected to earn? Depending on the location of the school and the type of job, pay generally ranges from one to three dollars an hour. Most colleges suggest a weekly work load of not more than 15 hours. Even conservatively, a working student should be able to earn $400 to $500 of his yearly college expenses; summer employment often adds an equal amount.

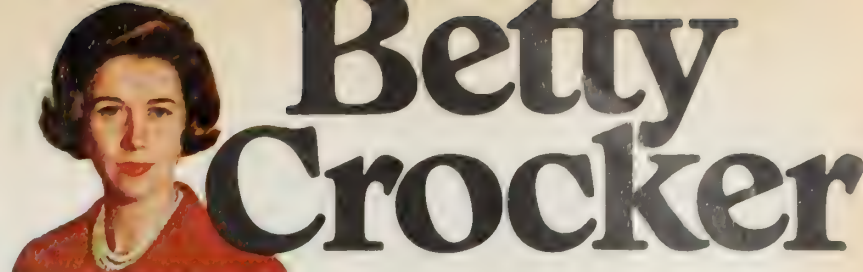

Thus, unless you have strong convictions that your child shouldn't work during college (and have the finances to back this up), count some part-time earnings into your plans. As for an amount, the figures we just quoted are current averages for men. Women's earnings run about 25 percent less. And while these probably will edge upward in the future, college pay scales tend to lag behind general wage levels.

► Loans

Almost anyone today can borrow money to pay college expenses. Most colleges have loan programs. Many commercial banks promote educational plans. The federal government lends about $200 million under its National Defense Student Loan Program, and guarantees another $250 million of loans by private lenders. Many states also have guaranteed loan plans. In addition, church, professional, and civic groups are often a source for college loans.

Obviously, there are nearly as many loan programs as there are lenders—and terms and interest rates vary just as widely. Some charge no interest or principal while a student is in school; others charge only interest. Under deferred pay-

- 1½ cups Gold Medal Flour (regular or Wondra)
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- 2½ tsp. baking powder
- ¼ cup shortening
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 egg

Beat 50 quick strokes with a fork. Pour into a greased 9-inch square pan. Sprinkle top with ¼ cup brown sugar (packed) and ¼ cup chopped nuts; then dot with ⅔ cup jam—our favorite is cherry. Bake 25 to 30 minutes (test with a wooden pick). Serve it warm to as many as 9. Have the coffee hot and ready and oh, what a beautiful morning!

Dialogue 1969

Man: I like Bac*Os. But what are they made of?

Woman: They say "Bontrae."

Man: And what's Bontrae?

Us: It's General Mills' name for a food of the future made with vegetable protein.

Today you can buy it in crisp little Bac*Os—a unique product with a flavor like bacon. But some day you may be able to buy Bontrae tasting like chicken or beef or ham (and very much like them nutritionally). General Mills' investment in this important new food is your assurance of another natural source of high quality protein for your children and their children and the world.

ment plans, you generally have three to six years after graduation to repay the loan.

Unfortunately, there is no pat answer to the question of how much money you should plan on borrowing for college. It depends, for one thing, on whether your child will repay the loan after graduation or whether you will. If you're going to, the amount to borrow is dictated by the monthly repayment expense you're able or willing to assume.

Say you borrow $1,000 a year for four years at seven percent interest. You arrange to pay only interest while your child is in school, and the principal over a four-year period starting the month after graduation. Exclusive of any service fees and required insurance on the loan, monthly payments for the four years will come to about $95.

If your child is going to pay back the loan out of income after graduation, most authorities recommend that total college borrowings don't exceed the average of his expected first ten years' earnings. More than that can saddle him with an unmanageable debt load.

► Savings

Of the financing discussed so far—current family income, scholarships and grants, student earnings, and loans—all involve paying for college during or after. Yet there are many good reasons why you may want to set aside part of the cost before college.

To put it another way, the amount you'll need to save in advance can be viewed as the "X" in your college financial equation. It's the estimated cost of college—less the amount you expect to pay from current income, the child's earnings, and loans.

Assume you figure that four years of college will cost you $12,000. You expect to raise $1,000 a year out of family income, $500 a year from your child's summer earnings, and another $500 a year through a loan. For the four years, this leaves $4,000 that must be saved ahead of time. A grant may reduce the need for savings, but, as mentioned before, you can't count on this.

For simplicity, the example above assumes you're counting on only one child's college education. If there are two or more children, you'll need to repeat your arithmetic to estimate the total savings required.

The number of dollars you must set aside each month hinges on how many years you intend to save—and the rate of return on your savings. The less time available "before college" and the lower the earnings rate, the larger your monthly set-aside has to be.

Assuming a five percent compound interest rate, the table below shows the amount you should save each month to accumulate $1,000 over various lengths of time. To save, say, $4,000, you'd simply multiply the monthly savings requirement by four.

How you save money for a college fund is, of course, up to you. Government Series E Bonds yield 4.25 percent when held to maturity. You also can buy U.S. Savings Notes Tried everything and still can't get your dishes spotless? Try Jet-Dry.

Spots are formed by slow, uneven drying in the rinse cycle of your dishwasher. And changing your detergent may not help you. No detergent even gets into the final rinse cycle. That's where Jet-Dry comes in. Jet-Dry is not a detergent. It's a rinse agent that works in the rinse cycle and helps dry dishes so fast, so evenly, spots can't form. Jet-Dry: The thing to try after you've tried everything.

(called Freedom Shares), in combination with the E bonds these will yield five percent at maturity. Most commercial banks and savings and loan associations presently pay 4.5 to 5.5 percent on their savings deposits.

Investments in common stocks or mutual funds give you a chance for faster growth of your college fund—but they carry no guarantee. During the past eight years, though, the 30 stocks included in the Dow Jones Industrial Average have appreciated by an annual average of about eight percent. And during the same period, 300 mutual funds climbed in value each year an average of about 11 percent.

One way to purchase stocks on a regular basis is through the New York Stock Exchange's Monthly Investment Plan. You invest the same number of dollars each time—as little as $40 every three months—no matter what the price of the stock. If the price goes down, your dollars buy more shares. If it's up, the shares you own are more valuable. A broker can help you set up an MIP plan that's tailored to your resources and needs. (For more investing advice, see our May and June 1968 issues.)

Life insurance also can do two jobs in your savings program. First, it gives you a systematic, semi-compulsory way to save cash you'll need for college. Second, it assures you that the money will be there even if you aren't.

A $10,000 whole life policy taken out at age 30 will cost about $190 a year. After 10 years, it will have cash value of about $1,300. After 15 years, the cash value runs about $2,100. With a waiver of premium clause, the policy will continue in force—and the cash value will continue to increase—even if you become disabled. And, of course, if you die, the policy pays the face value.

By using this kind of insurance for your college fund, you don't have to choose between your protection and your cash value. You can borrow the cash value, at about five percent interest, and still have protection equal to the balance of the policy's face amount. If you die, your survivors get the unborrowed balance, and the loan will be marked paid.

Life insurance endowment policies represent an accelerated savings program guaranteed by insurance. At age 30 you can buy a policy that gives you $10,000 of insurance—plus that much cash value after 15 years. The annual premium is about $600 a year, considerably higher than a whole life policy because the cash value builds much faster.

Even if you don't use your life insurance for savings, you can use it for protection. A term policy (which builds no cash value) can provide the cash, if you die, that you'd planned to pay toward college out of current income or borrowings. The cost is relatively low, too. At age 30, it's about $100 a year for a policy that gives you $10,000 of insurance protection until you're 50.

To sum it all up, college financial planning is really just putting together a financial "package." If you begin early and follow through, paying for college has to be a lot less grim than it's supposed to be. ■

CARS IN YOUR FAMILY

Duane L. Gregg, Automotive Editor

AUTOMOBILE LEASING PLANS JUST RIGHT FOR YOUR FAMILY

Over seven percent of the new cars produced last year went into service under some type of leasing arrangement, and it's estimated that this figure will reach ten percent by the early 1970s. Obviously, the approximately 700,000 people who leased cars in 1968 found leasing more convenient and/or more economical. But leasing still isn't for everyone. Here are some questions you should consider:

► How many miles a year do you drive? Most leasing authorities concede that you must drive a minimum of 15,000 miles a year to save by leasing.

► How do you use your car? If you use it entirely for business, you'll probably be better off leasing. The problem of determining depreciation and other record keeping is eliminated. Payment records from the leasing company may be used to figure all deductions. Even if the car is used only partially for business, it might be more convenient to lease.

► Is leasing cheaper? It can be cheaper than owning, but usually it is not. If you can't afford to buy a new car, don't even consider leasing. While it doesn't entail a down payment as such, most leasing companies require at least two months' payment in advance in addition to a security deposit. The total amount is usually close to the amount required as down payment when you buy a new car. Leasing usually requires a better credit rating than buying; your driving record may be investigated also. However, once you do enter into a leasing contract, you can depend on having reliable transportation at a reasonable price. Also, you can usually get a more fully equipped car at a monthly cost comparable to, or less than, that of buying a new car.

If you decide to lease, you will be confronted by a choice of three basic types of automobile leases:

The finance lease usually offers the lowest monthly payment because you are responsible for the depreciated value of the car at the conclusion of the lease. When you sign a finance lease, you agree to pay a percentage of the estimated depreciation each month. This amount is used to build up a depreciation "reserve" which is then applied to the value of the vehicle at the end of the lease term. When the vehicle is sold, the amount of the "reserve" is added to the selling price. If the total adds up to less than the original cost of the car, you the lessee, must pay the leasing company the difference. If the total adds up to more than the original cost, the leasing company will usually credit you with the amount or split the "profit" with you, according to the terms of your contract.

There are two drawbacks to the finance lease: you don't know until completion of the lease what the total cost will be, and you assume full responsibility for any loss. If the used car market is down at lease termination, you could be stuck with a large final payment.

Under the terms of a net lease, the leasing company assumes all depreciation risk, so you know in advance what the total cost will be. The rate (higher than a finance lease) is based on what the leasing company believes the value of the car will be at the end of the lease term. You pay the fixed rate plus gas, oil, and maintenance expenses. However, it is common practice to insert special clauses in a net lease to further protect the leasing company. Such clauses usually make you responsible for above-normal wear and tear to the vehicle. To this end, some companies require a security deposit from the lessee. Upon conclusion of the lease, you may have to forfeit part or all of the deposit if you fail to maintain the vehicle properly. Another practice is to include a maximum mileage limitation in the lease contract, with an additional charge per mile for all mileage in excess of the specified limitation.

The maintenance lease is very similar to a net lease, except that vehicle maintenance responsibility rests with the leasing company. The cost of such routine maintenance is thus included in the fixed monthly cost—which of course will be the highest of the three types of leasing. This monthly figure usually includes all expenses concerned with the operation and maintenance of the vehicle except for gas, washing, and garaging. You, as the lessee, are responsible for seeing that the vehicle is taken in for service regularly according to a maintenance schedule set up by the leasing company. The increase in the leasing charge for the maintenance feature will usually be less than the same maintenance would cost you as an individual. This is especially true if the leasing company has its own maintenance garage (usually the case if the leasing operation is in conjunction with a new car dealership). Repairs beyond a specified amount must usually be approved in advance, and the maintenance and repairs may have to be performed in a location not convenient for you.

In addition to selecting the type of lease to fit your situation, you should weigh the following factors.

► Lease term. The term of the lease affects the monthly rate. Obviously, the longer the term, the lower the rate. Generally speaking, the most common lease term is two years.

► Insurance. Because the leasing company is jointly responsible (with you) for bodily injury and property damage in most states, they will usually specify the amount and type of insurance you must carry. Many firms offer insurance through a group plan. This sometimes means lower rates than if you secure the insurance yourself. However, most companies will give you the option of handling it either way.

► Monthly cost. Due to the great increase in leased vehicles, leasing companies are becoming increasingly competitive. It pays to shop around for the kind of leasing contract that best suits your needs. But don't consider price alone. What might appear to be the cheapest lease may actually wind up being the poorest buy because of other terms of the contract. For example, a cheap lease might require an unusually large security deposit. Or it might contain a mileage limitation which could add considerably to the total cost should you exceed the specified minimum. So always read the contract thoroughly before signing.

► Type of car. You'll usually get the best rate on a make and model of car that will command a high price on the used car market when the lease term expires. For this reason, it's best to stay away from stripped down models with no options. In fact, the opportunity to get a car loaded with optional equipment for a reasonable cost is often one of the greatest incentives to lease in the first place.

Though you never build up an equity in a leased car, you are assured of having a late-model, well-equipped vehicle, at a fixed monthly cost. With either a maintenance lease or a net lease, you never have to worry about normal depreciation. For a growing number of American families, therefore, new car leasing makes a lot of sense.

A GUIDE TO 1969 NEW-CAR WARRANTIES AND HOW TO KEEP THEM UP

For 1969, all U.S. auto makers have at last adopted virtually the same warranties. Basically, they now warrant their cars as follows. Within the first 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first, any defect in material or workmanship will be repaired or replaced free of charge by an authorized dealer. This 12/12 portion covers every part of the car except tires and battery. (These carry separate warranties from the company manufacturing them.) Routine service items such as spark plugs, brake linings, filters for oil and fuel, and maintenance service such as tune-ups or wheel balance and alignment are not included.

After the 12/12 overall coverage lapses, the five years or 50,000 miles portion of the warranty takes effect. This 5/50 warranty covers only the power train which includes the engine, clutch, transmission, and drive line. Exclusions: anything not directly involved in making the car move (for example, radiator, electrical components, power accessories, interior items, even the wheel rims).

Prior to 1969, you had to have your dealer periodically validate certain required maintenance service procedures—oil and filter changes, lubrication, crankcase valve replacement and other upkeep had to be performed at specified times and with recommended materials. The warranty didn't specify where the work was to be done, but you had to furnish evidence of compliance to the dealer at specified intervals to keep the warranty in effect.

For 1969, only one manufacturer requires proof of maintenance and annual validation. The others recommend certain maintenance procedures, but do not require the validation. However, if a car needs warranty work, it's up to the owner to prove, and the dealer to judge, whether regular recommended maintenance has been performed. So even though validation is not required, you can forestall warranty claim complications by keeping a maintenance record. Have all recommended maintenance done and get a receipted bill that indicates in detail what was done, the mileage, and the date.

Another important change for 1969 applies to subsequent owners of your car. This year, only the second owner can take over the unexpired portion of the warranty—and then only for a fee. He must pay $25 to register the warranty in his name, and he must also pay the first $25 of any warranty work required. The third owner, and subsequent owners, cannot assume any part of the 1969 new-car warranty.

IF YOU HAVE A WARRANTY CLAIM

Warranty claims must still be taken to a franchised dealer handling your make of car. This doesn't necessarily mean the same place you bought it, but any dealer authorized to sell and service your car. If you have a legitimate warranty claim, can show that proper maintenance has been performed, and that the car has not been neglected or abused, the dealer will perform the warranty work without charging for parts or labor.

What does it cost to keep the warranty alive? Nothing, in terms of extra expense. You should have the oil changed and other sound maintenance checks performed anyway. The warranty recommendations serve as an excellent timetable and reminder for you. ■

GM Stylist Joan Gatewood checks arm reach in a special unit equipped with retractable rulers.

Do you think anyone considers a woman's shorter reach when designing GM instrument panels?

Fisher Body does.

That's why you see GM Stylist Joan Gatewood establishing 35 important reference points for instrument panels on the special unit pictured above. Then she tries them out on at least 25 different-sized people to make sure even the smallest drivers can reach all the essential controls from windshield wiper activators to defroster buttons.

As a professional stylist, Joan knows how important human dimensions are to her designs. What's more, because she's a woman, she pays particular attention to such things as control knobs that are shaped to accommodate longer fingernails. And, knowing how confining bulky suits and tight-waisted dresses can be, she concentrates on designing instrument panels that practically hand you every control and switch, no matter what you're wearing!

Joan's skillful woman's touches are important reasons why so much of the buy is in the body. And Body by Fisher makes GM cars a better buy. Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac.

RENTAL TOOLS CAN SPEED UP AND SIMPLIFY BIG HOME UPKEEP JOBS

There are tools—power-operated and otherwise—that can save you considerable time and effort on specific home projects, yet many are little-known to the average homeowner.

Furthermore, they are expensive in relation to the infrequent need for them, and actually difficult to buy—few stores even carry them.

You can, however, rent them at very reasonable hourly or daily rates.

Such easily rentable tools include concrete finishers or power trowels, nail guns or stud drivers, plastic laminated sheet trimmers, siding sanders, and underlayment staplers—to name a few.

Each of these tools not only can save you time and labor, but will help you achieve professional quality on certain do-it-yourself projects.

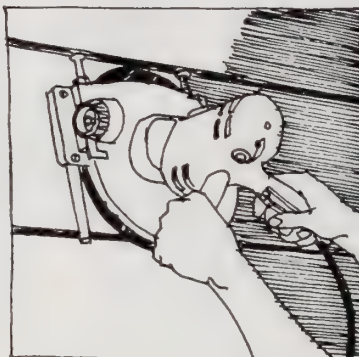

Perhaps you're seriously considering putting in a patio. You'd like a nice, broad concrete slab, but the prospect of getting down on your hands and knees for several hours under a 90-degree sun and finishing it is enough to sour you on the project.

But there's a solution. A concrete finisher, sometimes called a power trowel, will do the job for you as easily as buffing a floor. Again, you'd have difficulty buying it although one catalog house does list a power trowel for $300.

However, you can rent one for a minimum of $10 a day. You can finish off a 20 by 20-foot patio slab or garage floor in 20 minutes to an hour and hardly bend your back.

House painting is another project that many homeowners dread because it involves laboriously sanding off old paint and otherwise smoothing the painting surface. It's not easy to avoid gouging the wood or sanding too much in one spot, not enough in another.

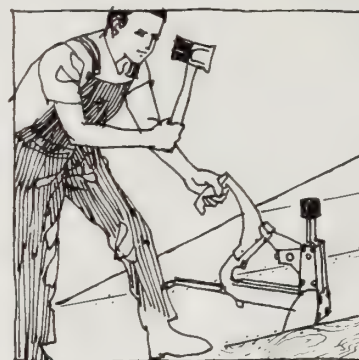

This can be avoided by using a special siding sander that rents for $4 a day. You will have to buy a sanding disk for about $2.25, but it should do the entire house.

The siding sander has special guides which adjust to the siding. The tool allows you to sand right up to the board above without touching it. It will regulate sanding depth and do the job without gouging. With this tool, the job becomes easier, faster, and even more important, results in improved quality.

None of the catalogs list this sander and few hardware stores are familiar with it. A new one costs about $70.

Another good example of a little-known labor saver is an underlayment stapler. You use it to install an underlayment for tiling a wood floor. It sells for $50 to $75, but can be rented for $2 a day.

If you want to panel a concrete basement wall or put up any kind of wood or metal on concrete, a nail gun or stud driver is invaluable.

The nail gun uses .22 caliber cartridges to drive nails or studs through wood into concrete. If you wanted to buy it, you'd have a difficult time finding a store that sells it. One outlet listed purchase price at $128. It can be rented for just $3 a day.

If you want to put a new plastic laminated sheet on your kitchen counters, table, desk, or workbench, you'll find that trimming the sheet can be a frustrating, painstaking project that is apt to leave rough edges or small tears.

A tool that will do the job neatly and swiftly is designed for this very purpose and, while you can purchase it from catalogs or at hardware stores, very few people know about it. It's a router that can be fitted with a special attachment made to trim plastic laminated sheets.

If you have a router, the attachment costs only $5. If you don't, a heavy-duty router and attachment will cost $70 to $100. You can rent router and attachment for $5 a day.

Digging postholes is a tedious chore at best. But, a gasoline powered post-hole digger can cut the time involved, considerably. It can be rented for $2.50 per hour ($7.50 minimum) or for $12 per day. You'll probably need a friend to help you, but in a short time you can dig quite a few uniform, deep holes for fence posts, light poles, etc.

The digger has a small gasoline engine on top, and a circular handle. An earth auger, which extends below, comes in different diameters for different size holes. It will reach about three feet in depth, but can be made to go to about four feet with an auger extension.

Rental costs in this article were supplied by A to Z Rental, Inc. They advise homeowners never to put off doing a project because of anticipated arduous work or difficulty of achieving adequate results with existing tools. More often than not, there is an excellent professional tool that can be rented for nominal charges that can achieve the kind of results you will be proud of, with far less work than you had expected.

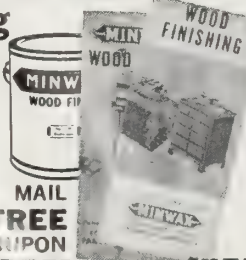

What you need for a great wood finish.

Not long ago we asked our home economists to see how fast our Versatronic® range really is.

So four of them gathered together a lot of food (some frozen) and started cooking.

Exactly an hour later (by the stop-watch), 26 different foods were cooked to perfection.

It would have been impossible without the Electronic Oven which alone, cooked seven of the foods! Foods which would have otherwise taken approximately ten hours more!

Think what that means if you're a busy mother. You'll have more free time for the children, the hospital or church.

Working girls can come home at 5:30 and by six, serve a fresh-cooked dinner to their family. A dinner that used to take two hours.

Because the Electronic Oven cooks foods in minutes, you have instant selection. Open the freezer and

A hard-frozen 5 lb. roast can be cooked to rare and handsomely brown in about 33 minutes.

When cooking just electronic the lower oven—you use paper china or glass, depending on the food. But the Versatronic Range is an Electronic Oven. Both ovens conventionally, too. In the lower oven, you have three units! Cook electronically, or with conventional heat, or both ways at the time. For example, you can cook food electronically while you brown it electrically. At electronic ovens can't do this. In an encore, the Versatronic Range cleans both its ovens electrically. Also the removable pans under the surface units.

Just slide out the shelves and panels from the upper oven and tuck them into the lower oven. The P-7[®] Automatic Self-Cleaning Oven takes it from there.

Electronic cooking is cooler cooking, too. Even when cooking in combination with conventional heat, the cooking time is so short the kitchen stays cool.

Surface units? There are four Calrod[®] units.

One of them is GE's amazing Sensi-Temp[™] automatic unit.

And don't worry about cooking odors. GE's two-level exhaust helps whisk them away.

No exaggeration, the General Electric Versatronic Range could be the greatest boon to busy women since frozen foods!

It's a range that's years ahead of its time, but you can have it today. So why wait?

A SERVER YOU CAN USE INSIDE OR ROLL OUTDOORS

By David A. Ashe, Project Design Editor

Photograph: Hedrich-Blessing, Designer: Dick Kruso

Here's a piece of rolling stock you don't need tracks for. Just push it where you want it; the fun starts wherever it stops—indoors, outdoors, in between doors. On your patio, for example, you might start off an evening by using this mobile serving unit to serve up drinks and hors d'oeuvres. When it's time to eat, simply roll it into the kitchen, replace the empty glasses with a buffet, and roll it out again. Tucked into a niche in your kitchen, the unit provides handy extra storage and work space whether you're entertaining or not.

Smooth-rolling ball casters make it easy to push the server around. What's more, you can work from either side with equal convenience. Some of the drawers pull through; cabinets are duplicated on the other side.

Build the unit from $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch plywood. Use grooved plywood for the stained portions; use a medium-density overlay plywood to provide the smooth surface you'll want for the painted sections. Make a rugged, easy-to-maintain counter top with a two-inch maple chopping block.

Let your personal taste guide you in choosing hardware. Metal slides simplify opening and closing heavy, deep drawers. Standard pivot hinges provide a free and easy swing to cabinets. Though you could use standard casters, ball casters glide more easily over rough surfaces.

The complete mobile serving unit pictured here is five feet six inches long, 20 inches wide, and measures three feet from floor to counter top.

Project Plan 3903-1. See page 160.

THE DAILY BATH:

A FEW MEDICAL FACTS THAT MAY SURPRISE YOU

A bath can do very many things, medically. It can be more stimulating than drugs and more soothing than sedatives. It can help you to lose weight. It can influence your blood pressure and your metabolism, and markedly affect the action of your heart.

Perhaps even more important, there is something about immersion in water at an agreeable temperature that makes it one of man's real pleasures. And it is a cheap enough pleasure to be available to almost everyone.

SHOULD YOU BATHE AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE?

When the tub with hot and cold running water made its debut in the American home, it was almost never used daily. There was fear that too frequent immersions might be "dangerous to the system, especially that of women." One bath a week was prescribed by the hygienists. "Part-baths," or washing the feet and other parts of the body, were recommended as needed.

The once-a-week bath has long since been replaced by the daily bath or shower, and there's really no reason why you can't bathe as often as you like. This upsurge in bathing hasn't come about only because we like to keep clean and companionable. We've discovered that the right bath at the right time is good medicine. As many slow-starters will testify, a brisk morning shower followed by a brisk toweling is the best of waker-uppers. At day's end, when you're tired or tense, a warm soaking bath may be just the thing to make you feel good and relaxed.

WHAT IS SO GOOD ABOUT A HOT (OR WARM) BATH?

For one thing, heat relaxes your muscles and temporarily softens them. If a sore muscle is massaged gently during a hot bath, you get immediate and welcome relief. However, a hot bath (98 to 104 degrees F.) should not exceed 20 minutes, and after it the bather should wrap up warmly and perhaps lie down for a while.

Hot baths can also be used for the treatment of arthritis, neuritis, gout, and bronchitis—as well as in cases of abdominal colic and muscular spasms. But this kind of treatment should not be attempted at home unless it's prescribed by your physician.

Many toxins can be eliminated from the system through the slow hot bath. As much as two quarts of perspiration (which equals four pounds) may be lost in a 30-minute bath with water at or over 100 degrees F. But the weight loss is only temporary. Within a few hours, the system restores the loss.

A warm bath of a half-hour duration can be an effective home remedy for insomnia and nervous tension. For best results, the water should be kept as close as possible to normal body temperature, or slightly over 98 degrees F. (This probably will feel much warmer than it sounds, inasmuch as the skin temperature of a healthy person is only 93 degrees F.)

Drinking small quantities of cold water during a warm bath increases the action of the kidneys significantly, perhaps as much as fifty percent or more. This natural stimulation of the eliminative organs is very healthful—often more so than an artificial stimulus could be.

It is always good to follow a hot bath with a rinse in cool (not cold) water, especially if you are going out into a cold temperature. If for some reason this is not advisable, the same results can be obtained by an alcohol, witch hazel, or cologne rubdown.

IS THERE A CASE FOR COLD (OR COOL) BATHS?

Not much of one. Cold or cool baths have more bad points than good. There is, of course, that invigorating shock value of a cold bath, but you should remember that it comes only with numerous health hazards.

If you shudder at the thought of a cold dip, don't force yourself to take one. Consider the dread well founded. It is a defense mechanism—a warning signal. Underweight, constitutionally rundown, or elderly people—as well as those with high blood pressure—should abstain from any kind of cold bath.

If you are healthy and prepared to suffer to lose weight, a cold bath (under 65 degrees) may help. In attempting to offset the cold shock, your body expends heat and energy which "burn up" the fatty tissues. But again, don't overdo it—and consult your physician before trying it. A cold bath should not exceed three to four minutes at the most. A few minutes' vigorous exercise afterward, even if it consists only of a few knee bends and some energetic drying with a coarse towel, is recommended.

ARE THERE DANGERS IN BATHING?

There are some, especially if you use bathing to treat a wide range of health problems. A typical case is a man who, because of severe pains in his leg, assumed that he was afflicted with sciatica. Following a neighbor's advice, he treated it at home with hot baths. This would have been fine had he really had sciatica or any other muscular ailment. As it turned out, however, he wound up in a hospital—for the cause of his pain was a blood vessel disturbance which he seriously aggravated with his hot baths.

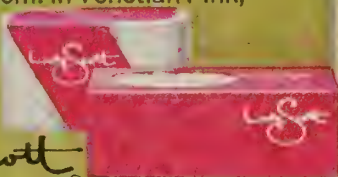

As another example, consider the case of a woman who became convinced that a piping hot bath at bedtime was a sure

GOOD NEWS FOR MEN!

Protect your car from the parking lot peril of carelessly opened doors of adjacent cars.

This tough, flexible vinyl guard strip conforms to any car body. Has it's own pressure-sensitive adhesive so installation is easy. Just cut vinyl to length, remove protective backing, and press into place.

Available in transparent vinyl with black accent stripe, black with white stripe, and silver with black or red stripe.

Car-Shield Molding $7.49 for 20 feet, $12.95 for 35 feet in auto supply stores. Car Shield Products Co., 6417 Walker St., Minneapolis, Minn. 55426.

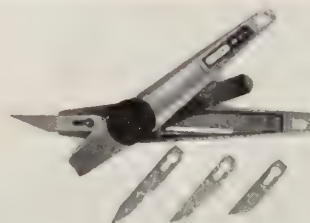

Finish new wood or give old wood a new look with this latex redwood stain. It penetrates deep into the surface for a long-lasting and non-fading finish on any wood.

Recommended for interior or exterior use, it dries in 30 minutes and can be applied by brush, roller, or spray.

Another plus—only soap and water are needed for cleanup of hands and equipment.

Gold Bond Latex Redwood Stain about $4.78 per gallon, $1.41 per quart at Gold Bond dealers. National Gypsum Co., 2580 Walden Ave., Buffalo, N.Y. 14225.

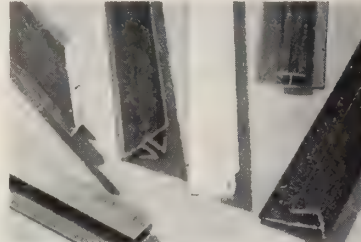

This slim, multipurpose knife is easy to use and includes an assortment of five different blades to handle virtually any cutting, whittling, or trimming job you will encounter.

Its light weight and compact size make for easy, accurate manipulation on intricate or delicate cutting jobs. In addition, the tool is rugged enough to handle those man-sized cutting tasks normally left to heavier utility knives.

Two turns of the disk screw lock open the handle for quick blade changing or removal, and for access to the self-contained extra-blade storage.

Slimknife $1.79 in hardware and building supply stores. The Stanley Works, 195 Lake Street, New Britain, Conn. 06050.

Paneling job impending? Then this complete line of wood-grained panel trim moldings will be good news.

The line includes a molding for every application—inside or outside corner, edge cap, flush divider, baseboard, casing (not shown), and ceiling cove. Moldings are of high-impact vinyl plastic with an authentic wood-grain vinyl overlay that is virtually damage-proof. Can be cut with any saw and attached with nails or adhesives.

Available in five grain colors and for use with either 3/16- or 1/4-inch panels.

This sure-fire disposable fire extinguisher features a quick-check button to assure you that the unit hasn't lost its potency during storage.

To check, just depress the button as shown. It will return to the original position only if internal pressure is sufficient to make the unit operable.

The dry chemical charge is effective for use on all home-type fires and carries all pertinent certifications for use on Class B and Class C fires (oil, grease, paint, gasoline, and electrical).

Easy to operate—remove safety tape, depress the discharge button, and direct the stream at the base of the flames.

Bernz-O-Matic FE-32M Fire Extinguisher $8.35, smaller model FE-21R $5.65 in stores. The Bernz-O-Matic Corp., 740 Driving Park Ave., Rochester, N.Y. 14613.

Here's foolproof focusing for your home movies.

This camera features an automatic focusing system that measures the distance between subject and camera, then automatically focuses the lens accordingly. Or you can choose a manual version that measures the distance which you then manually set on the lens scale.

Both versions use principles of trigonometry to measure distance. The camera is aimed at the feet of the person (or base of the object) being photographed, so a horizontal line in the viewfinder is on the subject's feet. Press a button, and the distance in feet is recorded on a built-in scale.

Autoload Super 8 Movie Camera automatic model $159.95, manual-set $129.95 in camera depts. Bell & Howell, 7100 McCormick Road, Chicago, Ill. 60645.

Sanding tricky contours on wood, ceramic, fiber glass, or metal is no problem with the help of this kit.

You can use it with any electric drill, drill press, bench grinder, or bench motor. The unit contains cartridge-type sandpaper strips; turning the index knob feeds out new abrasive as needed. Flexible brushes provide backing for the strips.

The brushlike wheel is ideal for contour sanding of round, curved, grooved, or carved surfaces. Thus you eliminate tedious hand-sanding on many jobs where regular power sanders cannot be used. Easy-to-change abrasive refills are available in six different grits.

Sand-O-Flex Home Workshop Kit $14.95 with three refills in stores or ppd. from Merit Abrasive Products, Inc., 5515 W. 10th St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90009.

For those Very Important Paint jobs, there's a new premium-priced latex flat enamel that was developed to be the finest paint available.

This interior enamel contains extremely fine-ground pigments that form an armor-like (withstood 2,000 scrubblings in tests), non-porous surface which dirt cannot penetrate. It completes most jobs with one coat and covers up to 600 square feet per gallon.

The paint dries to a rich, deep patina that makes it suitable for use on ceilings, walls, and trim for every room in the house. Equipment cleanup is easy with warm soapy water.

Available in a choice of 720 non-fading colors and tints.

Manor Hall Flat Latex Enamel $12.50 per gallon at Pittsburgh Paint dealers. PPG Industries, One Gateway Center, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222.

Designers' Choice Room of the Month:

Tuxedo Sleep-or-Lounge (78 inches overall), with Queen size bed, shown in multi-colored jacquard velvet, Scotchgard®-protected, less than $450.

The Live-in, Sleep-in Room

By day, this stunning tuxedo lounge is the focal point of a sitting room-music room. By night, a deep-sleeping bed—with little more than the lift of a hand. It's just one of over 50 styles of Kroehler Sleep-or-Lounges®. Many fine fabrics and many sizes to choose from, all with first-quality innerspring or non-allergenic polyurethane foam mattresses.

For information on how to decorate a room that's planned around a Sleep-or-Lounge, as well as how to find your nearest Kroehler dealer, see the facing column at the right.

Prices are manufacturer's suggested retail prices in most areas. Also may vary for fabrics other than shown.

Modern Sleep-or-Lounge, Standard size (70 inches overall), shown in tough, glove-soft, washable Naugahyde®, less than $260.

Casa Royale Sleep-or-Lounge, King size (90 inches overall), shown in multi-colored paisley pattern, Scotchgard®-protected, less than $400.

Early American Sleep-or-Lounge, Petite size (52 inches overall), shown in print fabric, Scotchgard®-protected, less than $200.

How to sleep in the living room and love it.

How do you get extra sleeping room without adding a bedroom? Add a Kroehler Sleep-or-Lounge—the variety offered is a decorator's delight. And after you have chosen your Sleep-or-Lounge, its style, fabric, and colors will help you to plan the rest of your sleep-in room.

Take the room in the large illustration at left. The professional designer, starting with the blue-green of the jacquard velvet, creates a subtle scheme of lilac, blue, green, and off-beat red. A very personal sort of room—the kind to fill with growing things, memorabilia and, in this case, music.

But change the style of the Sleep-or-Lounge, cover it in glove-soft black Naugahyde (see designer's sketch at lower left) and the mood becomes something else again. Here, the decorator goes excitingly modern.

Now, consider the bold Mediterranean of Casa Royale. (Lower center.) Warm reds and oranges complement this exciting Sleep-or-Lounge and its matching pieces.

Still another effect is suggested by the Early American Sleep-or-Lounge. (Lower right.) Its simple strength leads logically to further Colonial notes, from ship model to rustic paneling.

Decorating can be loads of fun. And you don't have to be a professional decorator to get what expresses you.

Kroehler will give you a big head start with the new edition of Decorator's Showcase. You'll find page after page of practical hints, sketches, idea starters, plus a number of Kroehler room settings in full color. Simply send your name and address with 50¢ (no stamps please) to: Decorator's Showcase, P.O. Box 5067, Chicago, Illinois 60680.

GOOD-BYE MONO HELLO STEREO

For years record buyers have been taught they couldn't play stereo records on monophonic machines. Now fewer and fewer records are available in mono, and the switch to an all-stereo record industry leaves mono phonograph owners a little bewildered. If you're one of the many in a record buying quandary, here's what you need to know:

Can stereo records be played on monophonic machines? For the most part, yes! Today's mono record players are so technically improved they can play stereo records without damage to the recordings. If your record player was purchased during the past five years it is already equipped with a lightweight tone arm to protect stereo records. Also, mono record players can be converted inexpensively to accept stereo records by merely replacing the existing mono cartridge with a stereo cartridge. But remember, this still doesn't mean you're going to hear stereo. It means you can play stereo records safely with no damage to the grooves.

How do stereo and mono records differ? Record grooves have both horizontal and vertical information. Horizontal information is common to both mono and stereo records, but in addition, true stereo records have built into their grooves information in a vertical plane. By playing a stereo record on a monophonic record player, you will hear all the horizontal information, but the same stereo record played on a stereo player will also reproduce the vertical information. This means that by playing a stereo record on a mono player you'll hear approximately what you hear from mono records on that machine. But the same record played on a stereo playback system will give you a spatial distribution of the sound and a different balance of the sound than you've heard previously.

Will stereo records "skip" on a mono machine? Because of improvements in design, today's monophonic record changers can handle a stereo record with no more skipping and no greater wear than would be encountered on a stereo machine. You won't hear the right balance of sound, of course, but the life expectancy of the record is the same. The grooves will remain unaffected so the record will be in good condition when you play it on stereo equipment.

How old a machine can be converted for stereo records? Any machine can be successfully converted. If yours is five years old, perhaps all it will need is a simple change of cartridge. If your record player was purchased within the past year or so, even though it's monophonic, chances are it will need no conversion at all. Even if your record player is ten years old or older, it can be converted with a stereo cartridge and rebalancing of the tone arm to insure an acceptable stylus pressure. To find out exactly what changes your record player might need, check with your dealer.

How are records identified? Recordings have always been designated "mono" or "stereo." With the emphasis on stereo recordings and the reeducation of the public, many records bear such identifying phrases as "compatible stereo." This phrase is used to assure the buyer that his stereo record can be played on a mono player.

There are other descriptive phrases a record buyer might find on record jackets, too. And one that may need clarification is "Electronically reprocessed for stereo" or "altered," "enhanced" or "rechanneled" for stereo. Buyers should know records so designated are not true stereo in sound reproduction. These records have been produced from an original monophonic one-track master source, and through engineering the one-track has been "rechanneled" to create two tracks or channels of sound. When the record is played on a stereo system, the result is not the true, balanced sound of a stereo recording made from an original that has been recorded on two channels.

What about prices? Stereo prices have not changed. However, some mono record prices have been raised to the level of stereo records. Record buyers have been concerned that special, discount price records are not actually the same recordings sold at full retail price. If the record label is the same, the recording is the same. The difference in price usually reflects a smaller profit for one retailer over another, or is a sales "leader" to bring customers into the store. Check the labels carefully and then buy at whichever price is most attractive to you. Remember, there are no "seconds" or "factory rejects" in records.

Will mono records be obsolete? Some records, classified as old standards or collector's items, that are not being rechanneled for stereo will still be available in monophonic form, though they will usually require special ordering through your record dealer. Probably all new recordings will be released in stereo only.

Will a record player be damaged by playing either stereo or mono records on it? No! Your record playing system cannot be damaged by the records you play. If any damage is sustained, it would be to the record, not the machine. ■

SOME POINTERS ON ART WALLS

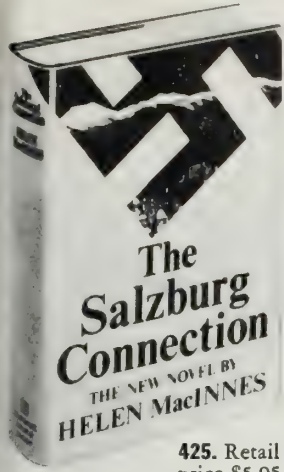

Photograph: Hedrich-Blessing. Decorator: Lee Blake. Source: Jessie Walker

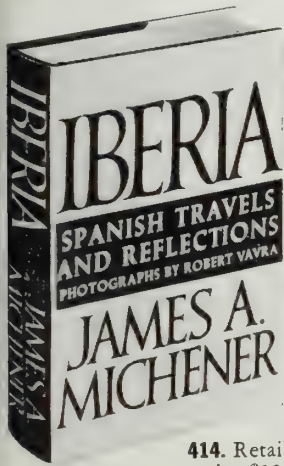

Above: Variety can be the spice of your picture wall, as this den/guest room illustrates. A large pastoral painting, well balanced over the sofa bed, was the springboard for a grouping which features a miscellany of art. The informal arrangement—with minimum space between pictures—knits the components into a well-ordered composition, despite the variety in subject matter, size, and frame. The grouping was purposely planned to incorporate table lamp and wall clock, permanent room accessories. High shelves for books and collector pieces add a fresh dimension.

Left: A decorative backdrop can set an art wall apart from the usual, and heighten the interest in the individual pictures. Here the effect was accomplished with a colorful checked fabric and three-inch molding. To duplicate this look, stretch fabric across wall and glue or staple down. Divide space into uniform squares with pre-sprayed molding. Then hang pictures in the squared-off spaces. Anchor grouping with a low table, and underscore the symmetrical arrangement with twin ottomans.

BOOK-DIVIDENDS: A library-building plan every reading family should know about

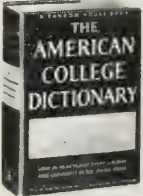

THE EXPERIMENTAL MEMBERSHIP suggested here will not only prove, by your own actual experience, how effectually membership in the Book-of-the-Month Club can keep you from missing, through oversight or overbusyness, books you fully intend to read; it will also demonstrate another important advantage: Book-Dividends. Through this unique profit-sharing system members can regularly receive valuable library volumes—at a small fraction of their retail prices—simply by buying books they would buy even if they were not Book-of-the-Month Club members.

If you continue after this experimental membership, you will earn, for every Book-of-the-Month Club Selection or Alternate you buy, a Book-Dividend Credit. Each Credit, upon payment of a nominal sum, often only $1.00 or $1.50—somewhat more for unusually expensive volumes or sets—will entitle you to a Book-Dividend which you may choose from over a hundred fine library volumes now available.

This is probably the most economical means ever devised for building a well-rounded personal library. Since the inauguration of this unique plan, $458,000,000 worth of books (retail value) has been received by Club members.

The first dishwasher detergent for dry-hards.

Dry-Hards are tough-to-clean foods—like eggs, fruit pie, oatmeal, meat fats, sauces—that dry and cake and stick. And stick. And stick. To plates. On forks. Filming glasses. Electrasol, fortified with 20% more active cleaning ingredients than other leading dishwasher detergents, really removes Dry-Hards. Lets your dishwasher give you cleaner, brighter, film-free dishes.

Test proves fortified Electrasol's superiority against Dry-Hards. Egg cup with Dry-Hard paste of egg, oatmeal and blueberry pie baked on for ten minutes at 330°F came out looking this way when washed in another leading dishwasher detergent.

Identical Dry-Hard egg cup—but cleaned in Electrasol, fortified with 20% more active cleaning ingredients than other leading brands. Try Electrasol. It removes Dry-Hard soils, prevents them from drying into spots on dishes, glasses and silverware.

FAMILY FUN IN CHICAGO

The burly, big-shouldered Chicago of Sandburg still exists, but you scarcely know it's there as you pursue the city's cultural and recreational attractions. Admission to most of them is free or nominal. The city's Visitor Information Center at Clark and Randolph Streets (332-2323) will happily supply you with additional places to go. Or get the excellent new book, Chicago: An Extraordinary Guide, by Jory Graham.

Museum of Science and Industry, Lake Front at 57th Street. Fourteen acres of exhibits, many of them automated, unfold life's complexities in an easily understood yet dramatic way. Hundreds of buttons, cranks, and dials invite youngsters to learn by doing about friction, sound, heat, light, mathematics, physics, space travel, oil exploration, and much more. Don't miss the captured German submarine or the trip through the coal mine.

Brookfield Zoo, Southwest suburban Brookfield. Barless grotesques display the creatures of five continents in their approximate natural habitats. Small, pettable species inhabit the children's zoo, trained porpoises perform, miniature trains add to the fun.

Field Museum of Natural History, Roosevelt Road and Lake Shore Drive. A spellbinding chronicle of man and nature. Egyptian mummies, dinosaur skeletons, a prehistoric forest. Printed "journeys" help to make exhibits especially meaningful for children.

Adler Planetarium, Lake Front at Roosevelt Road. Theater of the Sky shows dramatize the awesome majesty of the universe. Exhibits of instruments trace the history of astronomy.

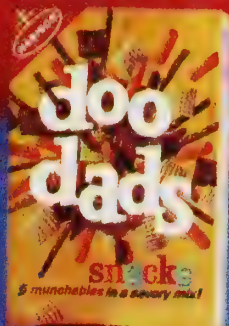

John G. Shedd Aquarium, Lake Front at Roosevelt Road. Three hundred species of fish and marine life from all over the world look you in the eye from lighted, glass-walled tanks.

Grant Park, between Columbus and Lake Shore Drives. Free, open-air concerts Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday accompanied by kaleidoscopic displays from nearby Buckingham fountain.

Art Institute, Michigan Avenue at Adams. One of the world's great museums, with an especially fine collection of French Impressionists. Children's Museum downstairs contains a library and exhibits that explain basic artistic concepts.

Ravinia Festival, Highland Park. Well-known artists perform in classical, jazz, and folk idioms for several acres of picnickers. Special Saturday morning children's series. Art exhibit.

Lake Michigan. In addition to making Chicago an important port, this whimsical, yet spectacular body of water provides miles of beaches for swimmers, sunbathers, and fishermen. Cyclers move up and down on the shoreline on wide paths of concrete. Boat tours leave from Michigan and Wacker on the Chicago River and from the Adler Planetarium.

Top of the Rock, 130 E. Randolph Street. Affords a commanding view of Chicago from the top of the Prudential building, while you dine if you wish.

Lincoln Park, North Avenue to Hollywood Avenue. Here, just north of the loop, you can golf, swim, cycle, boat, row, ride, or picnic. Tour this zoo if you can't make it to Brookfield. Scenes from the life of Abraham Lincoln, the park's namesake, dominate the nearby Chicago Historical Society. Also in residence at the park are the Conservatory and the Chicago Academy of Science.

Picasso. See his controversial five-story-high outdoor metal "sculpture" at Civic Center.

Merchandise Mart, Wells St. at Chicago River. A genuine superlative: the world's largest commercial building containing the world's largest wholesale market. Seventy-five-minute tours of manufacturers' showrooms leave every half hour from the first floor lounge.

Navy Pier, Ohio Street and the Lake. Watch foreign ships load and unload from this long (2,500-foot) promenade.

Marina City, 300 N. State St. All the needs and luxuries of city living enclosed in twin round towers. Model apartments and an observation deck for your family to tour.

Riverview Park, Western and Belmont Avenues. This king-size midway has over 100 rides and other attractions, including seven roller coasters.

Baseball. The Cubs and White Sox provide plenty of hometown action in summer.

Board of Trade, 141 W. Jackson Blvd. World's largest grain exchange. Watch the frantic action from fifth floor gallery.

Kungsholm, 100 E. Ontario Street. Chicago has many excellent restaurants. This one includes free puppet shows in the price of the meal.

Conrad Hilton Hotel, 720 S. Michigan Avenue. Amid the bustle of a large hotel, a special Sunday afternoon ice skating show for children. J. Reedy. ■

THE LUGGAGE SCENE: A BRAND-NEW BAG

If you haven't shopped for luggage lately, you're in for an exciting surprise. A few of the old familiar names persist—two-suit and pullman, for example—but the products they represent bear about as much resemblance to the originals as color TV does to an old-fashioned stereoscope.

A real revolution has taken place in color, design, styling, and materials. Today's fashion-conscious traveler looks upon luggage as an extension of his wardrobe, an expression of his personality.

With massive assistance from the travel boom and the jet age, the luggage industry has responded to these changes with a variety of shapes, sizes, and colors that would do credit to the fashion world. To see how up to date you are, check the brief list below.

Carry-ons. Air travel has spawned many of the innovations in luggage. The carry-on became popular because it eliminates the time-consuming process of checking and claiming baggage in congested air terminals. Designed to fit under most airplane seats, the carry-on offers the ideal solution for people who prefer to travel light, or don't plan to be gone long—or simply like having all their possessions with them and don't mind the extra burden. Most models cater to the male business traveler and make heavy use of zippers to provide access to several separate compartments. At least two models provide folding frames for suits.

Totes. These are a boon to the female wayfarer no matter what the mode of transportation: plane, train, car, or bus. The tote holds everything a purse will, and then some. Some of the larger models could easily contain all the necessities for a weekend trip. Separate compartments—both inside and out—come on most totes. They simplify the chore of organizing paraphernalia and are often designed especially for such things as magazines, umbrellas, shoes, and cosmetics.

Garment bags. These also go by the names of suit bags and dress bags, depending upon the gender of the purchaser and the intention of the manufacturer. Hardly new on the luggage scene, garment bags nevertheless are highly valuable in keeping suits and dresses wrinkle-free in transit and organized at trip's end. Most innovations have occurred in auxiliary storage compartments for shoes, cosmetics, pajamas, laundry, and wet bathing suits. Some don't even require unpacking. You simply detach the entire compartment and stow it in a drawer to be reattached (snapped or zipped on) when you're ready to leave.

Garment bags travel either flat or folded, depending on whether you're going by car or by plane. Inexpensive frameless models serve well enough for automobile travel, but it's not advisable to check one through on an airplane. Most garment bags are soft-sided, with resilient metal or fiber glass frames. At least one manufacturer, however, makes a hard-sided garment bag.

Hard versus soft luggage. Which you buy is largely a matter of taste, but the differences are basic and fairly obvious. Soft-sided pieces generally weigh a little less, offer numerous patterns in addition to a wide range of colors, and "give" a little when you have to pack them tight. While soft-sided luggage by its very nature can't offer the ultimate in protection for your belongings, a quality piece is more than adequate for normal use. Molded luggage rates high on strength and durability, cleans easily, and offers maximum protection of contents with its hard sides. Molded lines also offer a greater range of colors than ever before—especially in women's pieces.

Old standbys. Companion cases, pullman cases, make-up cases, and two- and three-suiters may evoke some memories of grimy platforms and smoke-belching locomotives. But today's models give you a lot more to like—and a lot less to lug. Thanks to such materials as fiber glass, vinyl, aluminum, and magnesium, they're lighter, stronger, and better looking. They're also much more resistant to denting, scratching, and scuffing.

Grab some. Quick! MISTER SALTY Twist Pretzels are America's favorite—the fastest pretzels going, going... gone!

Some notable advances have occurred in the manufacture of luggage hardware. Locks are less obtrusive and harder (or impossible) to spring. At least one manufacturer offers combination locks; another disguises and protects the locks with covers. Improvements in handle construction have made bags both easier to carry and harder to lose. (If the handle comes off between airports, your claim check goes with it.) Sturdier hinges have helped to reduce the chances of damage or loss of the contents.

Specialty items. Most travelers get along quite nicely with a few basic pieces of luggage; those who can't may select from a substantial number of pieces designed for special needs. The well-shod female traveler may take along as many as 12 changes of footwear in a shoe bag. Sociable male travelers can mix their favorites anywhere en route with completely accessorized beverage bags. The bookish and the bejewelled may choose from book bags that hold nearly half a shelf, and jewelry cases that could easily contain a queen's ransom. There are even bags for hypochondriacs, including one that can hold and keep organized the contents of an entire family medicine cabinet.

Packing tips. When you buy a piece of luggage, you ordinarily get at least one brochure on its care and use. Follow the manufacturer's advice. Other sources of information include airlines, travel associations, and the American Automobile Association. Here are a few recommended general practices.

► If you travel regularly, prepare a packing list to serve as a reminder before each trip. On a file card or a shirt card board, make a list of essential items you always need on a trip. (Never mind quantities, because you can decide those as you pack.) On the back, list items you occasionally take with you, like suntan cream and swim suits. This handy checklist will save many an embarrassing "I forgot."

► On extended trips, favor two or more moderate-size bags over a single, heavy one. You're better balanced; the contents are better organized.

► Put heavy or less-used items in the bottom or hinged end of the case and lighter, often-used items near the top.

► Put your largest items into the bag first; then fill in all the nooks and crannies with various smaller things.

smack!

They're gone in a breeze 'cause you taste cheddar cheese in these crunchy little crackers. Cheese TID-BIT is an instant hit.

► For maximum variety in your wardrobe with minimum bulk, choose a basic color scheme and garments that can serve more than one purpose.

► In packing larger garments, fold as few times as possible; make sure your folds are smooth; round the folds out with tissue paper. Some items resist wrinkles best when rolled. Favor the various "miracle" fabrics—permanent press, no-wrinkle, no-iron, drip-dry.

► Hang up your suits and dresses immediately upon arrival, even if it's just for overnight. For fast results, hang wrinkled clothing in the bathroom, steam wrinkles out by running a hot shower.

► If you want some additional compartmentalization in your suitcase, divide clothing into separate layers with sheets of corrugated cardboard.

► Roll into sets the items of apparel you change simultaneously. A man, for example, could roll sets of socks, shorts, and T-shirts; a woman might roll sets of hosiery and lingerie. This method not only organizes the case, but speeds dressing.

► When traveling by air with several pieces of luggage, distribute necessities throughout all of them so you won't be completely stymied if one bag is lost or delayed.

► Do put all your necessities in one or two bags when traveling with the family by car. This way you don't have to unpack the whole car every night.

► Fill shoes and other hollow things with small items to save space and avoid chaos in the case.

► Avoid taking full bottles of anything, especially when traveling by air. Screw caps on tightly, and put bottles in waterproof bags or use sealants such as aluminum foil, cellophane tape, or paraffin.

► Air travelers should affix name and address to inside of bag in case exterior identification is lost. This is also a good way to keep prescriptions (including optical) always with you in case of emergency.

► Don't leave necessities behind because you think you're out of room. Automobile travelers have discovered all sorts of unconventional and unexpected storage spots—under the front seat; in convertibles, behind the back seat. One large family stowed extra shoes inside their car's bumpers. Engine compartments have even been put to use in some instances, but the practice is not recommended. —Jerry Reedy. ■

HIGH-STYLE FAMILY ROOM FROM A BACK PORCH

For the owners of this city house, an existing back porch was a natural spot for the new family room they wanted. Rather than just enclosing the three open sides, though, they emphasized the porch's structural details, added a few of their own, and ended up with a family room that smoothly blends traditional and contemporary styling.

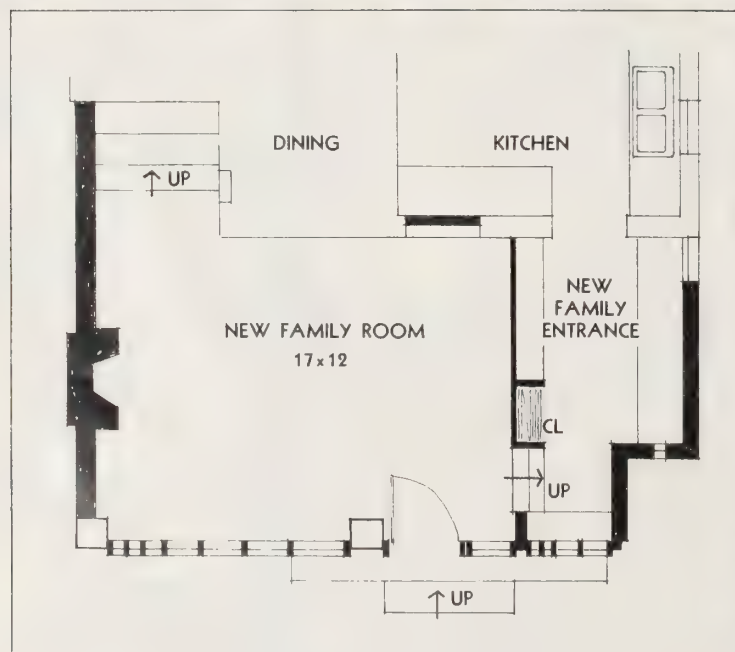

Photographs: Bill Hedrich, Hedrich-Blessing. Architect: Eric Defty. Source: Lois Rea

Left: Those two white brick supports are the originals; the right end of the old porch was not covered. Tall windows of varying widths provide extra interest, inside and out. All are fixed—except the one left of the door.

Above: The past shows on the inside, too. White brick wall was the exterior; the niche was the door to the kitchen. Large white panel screens the new family entry.

Below: Wood parquet flooring covers the old concrete—a planting strip was left for the houseplants at the windows. A matching panel above the normal size door makes it look just as tall as the windows.

Plan: The new joins the old in two spots—through the existing door to the dining room, and through a relocated door to the kitchen. The new family entrance stores the family coats as well as some of the kitchen clutter.

Why did Pauline Trigere, who could afford any stove her chic heart desired, want a Kenmore from Sears?

Pauline Trigere, America's top woman fashion designer, has a country home just outside New Canaan, Connecticut. The antique folding doors in her kitchen are from Spain. The marble-topped kitchen table from China. The priceless collection of old pewter from all over the world. And the stove is from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

"Self-cleaning oven is fantastic"

"I love to cook," says Miss Trigere. "But when I cook for friends on weekends, I want to enjoy it. I don't want to clean a dirty oven after a dinner party. My Sears Kenmore oven really does a fantastic job of cleaning itself—even in front and in the corners."

"As easy as apple pie"

"We grow our own apples, and I make a special French apple pie with the thinnest of crusts. I hardly roll it at all—it's mostly apples and syrup. Well—you can imagine what an oven looks like after syrupy fruit gets baked and bubbles and drips all over. You almost have to dig it out. Now—I shut the door—set the self-cleaning oven and go relax. 2 hours later—an immaculate oven. Fantastic!"

"Today, I don't see how I got along without my self-cleaning oven. Oh—I know there are more expensive stoves than my Kenmore, but if you can get the best, and pay a little less, why not?"

HOW TO GET THE BEST SHRUBS AND

Now that spring is coming on fast, it's time to start thinking about buying plants. And whether you order one evergreen or a complete landscape job, you should have a general idea of what you are getting for your money. You can cut costs significantly by choosing the right plants to fit your specific needs from among the myriad sizes and grades available.

For example, you can plant a few top-quality, balled-and-burlapped plants each year until the job is completed, or you can plant the entire yard in one season with inexpensive, bare-root plants and wait for them to grow to serviceable size. Or, plant some of each kind if you wish. You'll probably want to put large sizes in the foundation planting and bare-root shrubs in border plantings for backyard privacy, but some of you may value seclusion enough to do just the opposite.

Another important factor to consider at this stage is which of the named varieties of a particular species of plant to buy.

EVERGREEN GRADING

Evergreens, including junipers and yews, cost from under a dollar for a small, bare-root plant to $18 for a large one that's balled and burlapped (upright kinds cost the most). You can get thrifty ones growing in one-gallon cans for roughly $2.50 to $4 each, or bigger plants in five-gallon cans for $6 to $9. Medium-size balled-and-burlapped plants range from $6.50 to $12.

Often plants costing a few cents more (or a dollar or two more for a particularly fine shrub variety) will give you far greater satisfaction and enjoyment over many years than will their cheaper counterparts. It takes just as much time, energy, water, and plant food to grow an inferior plant as it does a really beautiful, superior one. So, spend that little bit extra at planting time for the quality shrub—you'll always be glad you did.

Plant quality is an elusive factor that the average gardener can hardly determine from a technical angle. For the most part, he must trust the integrity of the nurseryman who keeps a close watch on the quality of the plants he sells to get repeat business. Also, most nurserymen guarantee their plants, and replace any that die or fail to satisfy the customer. Plants not guaranteed are a gamble.

Here are a few checks you, as a customer, can make on the plants you choose.

Deciduous shrubs. The young plants are most often sold bare-root, and the thickness and quantity of branches vary among different types of plants. Some, such as alpine currant, deutzia, and golden mock-orange, are quite bushy with four or more canes. Others, such as forsythia, snowball hydrangea, and bush honeysuckle, often have just two or three unbranched canes. The top growth of all types should be cut back at least halfway at planting time to balance the tops to the roots. Their future shapes depend upon your pruning practices. So here the main things to check are the roots and the lower parts of the branches to see that they are firm and moist.

Needle and broadleaved evergreens. Since these are balled and burlapped, the condition of the ball is of prime importance to the health of the plant. Feel the root ball to make sure it is moist, and examine it for firmness. Test to be sure the burlap is pulled tight to the ball. Of course, a pleasing shape is also important. Feel the foliage for suppleness and see if it is cool to the touch. A lot of dried needles or leaves lying on the soil ball can be a sign of poor condition. The spreading kinds of evergreens, such as pfitzer juniper and species of yew, are priced according to the diameter of their branch spread, and upright ones according to their height. Compare the ones of the same variety in order to choose the one that suits you best.

If you like, you can examine plants at several nurseries so you can select exactly what you want. You'll be surprised at the many new junipers available. Check local garden centers and catalogs of various mail-order nurseries to find varieties that will do the best job for you. There are ground-hugging kinds that grow just eight to twelve inches high; tall, narrow, or spreading varieties; and all sizes in between. Foliage of some have casts of silver, blue, or bronze—some have yellow variegations. Textures range soft to coarse.

These various checks take only a little time—and they're well worth the effort. Once the plants are properly placed in your garden, you know they will get off to a vigorous start with no replacement troubles.

To give the plants you select (particularly the bare-root, dormant ones) the best chance for that good start, plant them as early in the spring as possible. You can set them out as soon as the frost is barely out of the ground and the soil is dry enough to work properly. Try to have all planting done by the time the last tulip blossoms fade. Of course, you can plant balled-and-burlapped and container-grown plants at any time during the growing season, but the later in the spring they are planted, the more attention they require—especially water, which is one of the vital plant needs. Keep a close eye on soil moisture the first year. Let the hose run at base of plant or use water lance. ■

SORCERY WITH SHADES

By Charlotte Garner, Associate Furnishings Editor

Decorative shades have been around since 1850—but never before in such a profusion of shade fabrics, hem shapes, shade cloth valances, trims, and pulls. With these props you can easily whip up a design of your own to simulate a costly custom shade, visually alter the shape of your window, or coordinate it with walls, draperies, or upholstery. Here are a few ideas to spark your imagination.

Above: When re-covering upholstered pieces, why not buy extra yardage and create a coordinated window treatment? For quick results, select a shade with a heat-sensitive adhesive coating and apply fabric (preferably a closely woven all-over pattern) with a hot iron. Hang your shade “reverse-roll” for a clean, architectural line, and add a swagged valance lined in a solid color picked from the pattern.

Below left: A shade cloth valance is a good device when you want to unify two identical windows with wall space between. Here a crisp stripe injects pattern interest into a solid color background. Cutout edge of valance is repeated in the hem shape, and both are trimmed with gimp and tassels.

Below right: Ball fringe in bright fiesta colors puts the zip into this window and ties in with the room’s Mexican mood. A row of fringe spans the gold shade and reappears on extra-long cafes which conceal an air conditioner. White finial brackets cap the ends of the shade’s roll-over, transforming it into an ornamental rod similar to the cafe rod below. To add a final bit of south-of-the-border spice, hang colorful Mexican pompons at each end of the roller shade. Continued

but, oh, what a nightmare with our small bedroom!"

Then she talked to our Ethan Allen "room stretchers"

If you have big ideas about redecorating—but a "too-small" bedroom—welcome to Ethan Allen!

At our Ethan Allen gallery of American Traditional Interiors, we face problems like this every day—and usually solve them with happy results.

See how spacious we made this small room look. Airy enough to accommodate a bed of even the most ample proportions.

We recommended tall mirrors and wall-to-wall carpeting to stretch the room up and out.

Then we suggested companion designs of Ethan Allen in Classic Manor. The hand-rubbed finish has a satin-like elegance and the designs you see neatly conceal all the "clutter" that can make a bedroom seem smaller.

The final touch? Wallpaper of the same pattern used in the bedspread. See how the matching canopy seems to lift the low ceiling as well as add a note of individuality.

The striking accessories are all Ethan Allen, too... for a fully coordinated look.

"Impossible" room at your house? Let us help. We have over 2000 American Traditional designs to choose from—all open stock, all "in style" forever.

You'll find them all pictured in color in complete room settings, along with many important do's and don'ts on decorating, in our 9" x 12", 336-page Ethan Allen Treasury. You'll also see our many lamps and accessories.

For your free copy stop by your nearest Ethan Allen gallery.

There was a time when craftsmen made ceilings worth looking at.

Coronado™ Fashiontone® Suspended Ceiling

Armstrong makes ceilings worth looking at again.

Today, most ceilings are nothing more than the top of a room. The only time you notice one is when there's something wrong with it.

An Armstrong Ceiling changes all that. Beautifully.

Armstrong makes ceilings in over 30 interesting designs. Over 30 ways to hide a ceiling problem. They come with the look of swirled plaster, wood graining, woven fabric, and more.

And there's more to an Armstrong Ceiling than good looks.

They're surprisingly inexpensive. Materials for a 12-by-14-foot ceiling will cost you only between $35 and $70, depending on the design.

Installation is simple. Staple or glue the tiles right over your old ceiling. Or if you have pipes and beams to hide, put up a suspended ceiling by hanging a metal grid and simply dropping in panels.

Some Armstrong Ceilings are acoustical. Some grease resistant. Some fire resistant. All are washable. All have special Armstrong lighting fixtures to match. All are at your building supply dealer.

And all make a ceiling worth looking at again. And again.

CALL THIS SPECIAL NUMBER for the name of the dealer nearest you. No charge. Anytime, day or night—(800) 243-0355. In Connecticut call collect: 853-3600.

Whatever happened to good old Baker's Chocolate?

Frozen Hot Chocolate

A new dessert you can drink. So cool, rich, and thick you may even need a spoon. And it can happen when you use good old Baker's.

Combine 3 squares Baker's® Unsweetened Chocolate, 1/3 cup sugar, and 1/4 cup dark corn syrup in saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until blended. Add 3 cups milk, a small amount at a time, stirring after each addition until smooth. Add 2 teaspoons vanilla. Remove from heat. Pour into a 9-inch square pan or 9x5-inch loaf pan. Freeze 1-1/2 to 2 hours, or until frozen 1 inch from edges. Stir to blend. (Or, freeze mixture completely; spoon into electric blender and blend until smooth but not completely melted.) Serve immediately in chilled glasses with spoon and straw. Top with prepared Dream Whip® Whipped Topping and shaved chocolate. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

10 SHOWCASE KITCHENS

By Helen A. Dawson, Kitchen and Equipment Editor, and Georgia V. Young, Associate Editor

Here and on the next seven pages, you'll witness a spectacular of colorful, carefree kitchens. The concepts behind them can help you plan a spirit-lifting kitchen that's great to look at, fun to work in. So don't wait. Let these pages guide you to the correct decisions for your new kitchen.

For example, you might play one smashing color against sparkling white, and let the appliances join the color-fest, too. Spirited red is the catalyst in the compact kitchen below.

Theme-setting wallpaper will keep its bloom—behind that vinyl coating. And watch what happens to the border pattern. Follow the path of single blossoms through this kaleidoscopic garden, and you'll find the refrigerator hiding behind matching panels. A chrome frame edging each door secures a ¼-inch rigid panel. (Several new appliances this year lend themselves to this trompe l'oeil treatment.)

For total room impact, the stain on the wood cabinets and the matching dishwasher front is keyed to the work-top red.

An effective color scheme must show true at night, too. Here, luminous panels spaced in the sound-absorbing ceiling guarantee cheerful general lighting. Above the wall cabinets, translucent panels diffuse light from hidden fixtures. Others, recessed below, brighten the work tops.

New patterns sweep yesterday's dinky kitchen designs into obscurity. "Just for kitchens" wall coverings were once synonymous with decorating dullness. Today, you can have easy-care qualities in breathtaking colors and patterns.

For example, outsize vegetables on washable checked wallpaper (right) are completely at ease in this country-fresh kitchen. The crisp black-and-white combination is repeated on gracefully sculptured hood and white-doored black cabinets. Appliances blend into the storage wall, creating a unified, artful composition.

Large areas of neutrals provide a perfect foil for one bright color—a good point to remember when starting your scheme. Here, butter yellow on the counters offers needed contrast.

If you're leery of two patterns in one room, consider the added charm of the brick used here. Real ones cover the wall between the cook-top and hood; vinyl ones cushion underfoot.

The outdoor look is "in"

Is your family keen for outdoor living, your home tuned in to its surroundings? Then tune in the kitchen, too, and color it spectacular. Leave behind the drab old brown cabinets that stereotype so many kitchens, and follow the lead of this green-and-white one, inspired by Florida's lush landscape. The new curved shape spells added efficiency—and the free-wheeling island parks wherever needed.

Reversible center panels on the cabinet doors make it simple to change your decorating when you change your mind. Currently out front is a white lattice cut from vinyl fabric over black patent. Wood blinds laced with yarn and grass-green carpeting match the fresh, outdoor mood.

On the other hand, desert gold and earthy browns are—to California's sun-and-sand set—what red, white, and blue are to mailboxes. In that land of instant hospitality, beauty-without-bother is the "in" thing. These plastic-faced cabinets, mosaic tile counter, and matching pebbly vinyl floor need almost no care—actually improve with age. Above the wall units, the usually enclosed space is left open to display a collection of ceramics and stoneware.

Make kitchen beauty work for you, too

Don't sacrifice beauty for convenience or easy care. You'll find all three qualities in many new products; once put to use, they're well worth the search. Witness these two colorful kitchens—as good-working as they are good-looking.

Of course you know about ceramic tile's long life and easy upkeep. But you don't have to settle for nondescript or neutral tile patterns and colors any more. Now you can have your favorite wallpaper motif repeated in tile like the poppies below.

Or you can pave the floor with oversize tiles (left). You might well expect to see a glamorous Persian rug in such an elegant setting, but this one is sturdier. It's fused, fringe and all, under a special protective glaze.

More good news: today you don't have to settle for "kitcheny" furniture. Instead, you can use furniture as handsome as that in your living room. Afraid of nicks and scratches? Haven't the time to give fine wood the extra care it deserves? Well, look again at these kitchens. Their furniture-like cabinetry wears layers of super-tough factory finish that resists kitchen abuse.

Are real brick walls (especially white ones like those at left) practical for kitchens? Yes indeed! They're easy to clean if coated with one of the new, long-lasting paints that withstand innumable scrubbings. Or choose a factory-glazed brick that wipes clean like tile. Another tile floor (below) both looks and feels like brick. But stand on it awhile—your feet will know it's vinyl.

In the long run, what actually saves the most time, energy, and costly upkeep? Getting rid of an old-style range—and with it, grease, grime, and smoke. Scientifically engineered charts for your new range will tell you the correct time and temperature needed for each cooking, frying, or broiling job. Once set, automatic controls sense and hold a precise temperature.

If charcoal broiling is your forte, a hood and fan like the ones below—supercharged to 1100 C.F.M.s or more—make an indoor grill installation pleasant and practical.

How you use these new miracle materials is as important as what you use. For ideas, study the applications in each of these ten kitchens. Note, for example, the snack bar cornering the island below. And the many unusual "go-togethers," including vinyl window shades above the counter in the dinette beyond, and panels of shirred fabric above the sink. Plus the heavy carved beams, arched cornices, and bricked alcoves (left). Imaginative touches like these will help put the "show" in your new showcase kitchen.

They don't even look like kitchens

One of the brightest new ideas is the non-kitchen kitchen. First of all, a non-kitchen operates so smoothly no one even thinks of it as a work center (new appliances take care of that). It's fun-oriented, easy-care for family participation, and close to outdoor living areas. It looks like what it is—a pleasure center.

The nonpareil non-kitchen (right) says it better than words. Its sculptured white shapes float on a cerise sea of easy-care nylon carpet. The strategically placed island shields work area from dining view. Folding doors cover storage pantries flanking the family-size refrigerator-freezer. Nylon velvet chair upholstery sports a new soil-resistant finish. That wall of sliding glass doors opens the kitchen-family room to both the patio and pool.

When you use more than one splash of color, carefully balanced color areas can mean the difference between an outstanding kitchen and a humdrum one. In the well-dressed room below, the sunny vinyl paper reaches across the ceiling to meet a floating panel of light. Its bold squares are repeated in color on the vinyl floor. Clear yellow on counters relates the ceiling to the floor.

FOR SUMMER SPLENDOR: ANNUALS IN CONTAINERS

By Hamilton Mason, Garden Editor

Annuals provide bright masses of color for the summer garden—and some new, prize-winning varieties, as well as other new introductions, should make 1969 gardens especially colorful. Annuals take naturally to pot or planter culture, so they're ideal accents on a patio or deck where garden space is limited or non-existent.

Fill your planters or patio beds, as well as several pots, with these gaily colored plants. It's an easy way to garden no matter where you live—whether you have limited or extensive space. You can change the picture according to your mood or the time of year.

Above: New for 1969 is this pristine white double petunia that's appropriately named Bridal Bouquet. The doubly ruffled blooms practically cover the green of the foliage to form a neat white garden in the air. (Ideal if you've run out of ground space.) You can choose from many forms of hanging baskets; but this ceramic container is less subject to the drying effects of wind—which means less watering for you to do. An inch-deep layer of gravel covered with a half-inch-thick sheet of fiber-glass insulation provides especially good drainage and soil aeration.

Right: Two All-America zinnias that display flowers of astounding size and brilliance are Rosy Future and Torch. The quilled blooms open to six-inch diameters of eye-filling colors. Rosy Future glows a rose pink, while Torch radiates shades of vibrant orange. The raised planter of broken concrete sections fits into a corner of this grape-stake privacy screen illuminated by a flat plastic panel.

Set out started plants, or sow seed in enriched garden soil as soon as soil warms in late spring. Feed sparingly and allow soil surface to dry before watering. To prevent buildup of mildew, dust or spray your plants with fungicide each week.

Left: A recent and popular entry is the Yellow Nugget dwarf marigold. Its clear yellow, fully double, two-inch-wide blooms appear in great profusion from five weeks after you sow the seed until frost. There are also Gold and Orange Nugget varieties for you to try.

Since marigolds are drought-resistant, they will grow in a small volume of soil. The glazed ceramic planters pictured hang from L-shaped brackets mounted on the fence.

ANNUALS IN CONTAINERS

Left: Two brand-new All-America annuals pair off here to add sparkling accents to these handsome, pebble-textured entrance steps. The dwarf Cherry Buttons zinnias are fully double. Their clear, cherry red is all the brighter when contrasted to the pure white cornflower Snow Ball. This new bachelors-button grows only 12 to 16 inches tall. For weeks on end, it displays a profusion of blooms against the silvery green foliage.

Right: Gay Ladies are outstanding new marigold introductions that give you stout, two-foot plants with oversize blooms closely spaced over luxuriant foliage. Flowers appear from the ground up on exposed sides of the plants, and the blooms low on the bush are just as big as the ones on top.

There are three Gay Ladies varieties pictured: Yellow on left, Gold on right, and Orange at rear. The eight-inch-deep ceramic planter fills a corner of this wood-strip step with color which can be enjoyed from inside the house, too.

Left: Spanish Brocade marigolds and Irish Eyes gloriosa daisies make compatible planter mates, blending colors and picking up brick tones of both the planter and the paving.

Irish Eyes, with its distinctive green "eye," holds its deep yellow blooms 2½ to 3 feet high on long, sturdy stems, making them perfect for cutting. Spanish Brocade, a greatly improved French marigold, has extra-large blooms of yellow, delicately accented with red.

EIGHT GOOD HOUSES THAT YOU CAN AFFORD

By Noel Seney, Building Editor, and Steve Mead, Associate

Here are eight more houses in the series we started last month—each one has a distinction that doesn't depend upon the money invested. Each has an excellence of design that makes for good looks and good living.

A house that fits any sloping lot

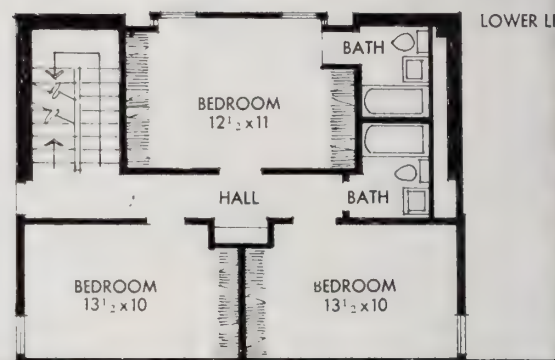

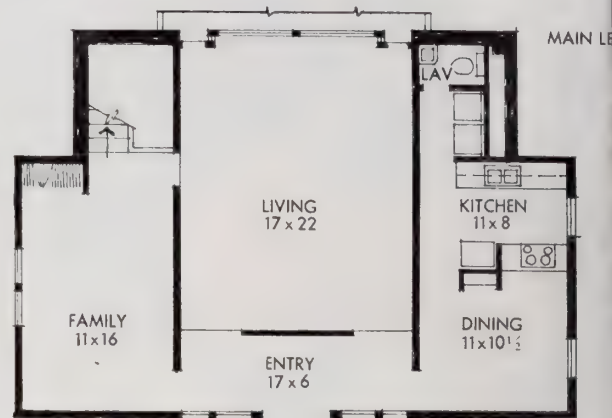

Some houses fit a steeply sloping lot and some fit lots that slope gently. This one can fit on either. The exterior (right) shows how the entry deck bridges part of the slope and creates a great parking spot for the family cars. If you chose a lot with less slope, you could build an on-grade deck or concrete slab and a detached carport storage area.

The stone-covered foundation supports the upper level of the house—it's cantilevered out from the foundation.

The living room (left) ceiling slopes up to make it seem as large and airy as the view outside. The plan shows its lack of traffic, even though it's located in the center of the house.

Including decks, this plan measures 42x44 feet. The living area is 2,122 square feet

A house that makes the most of a deep lot

There's plenty of privacy in this house, but every room has a feeling of openness, too. That's because the rooms all weave around three interior court areas. The courts are screened from the surroundings by a system of horizontal and vertical wood strips such as those on the front (right). The house itself is only about 26 feet wide, but the carports and storage make it seem wider.

The lanai (left) has a slatted roof so it helps brighten all three rooms that adjoin it. The living room beyond couldn't be more secluded, yet with the lanai, it seems almost outdoors.

All three bedrooms extend to the rear—the master bedroom has its own bath and is well separated from other parts of the house so that it can become a quiet retreat.

Overall, the house measures 70x96 feet. The living area totals 2,259 square feet.

New shape for a practically work-free house

Start with a butterfly roof, then slope the sidewalls so the roof nearly meets the ground—and you've eliminated much of the maintenance. That's the way this house capitalizes on its interesting shape; about all the work needed on the outside is to wash the windows, and they are all protected by overhangs.

The entry (left) brings you in a few steps down from the main living level, where traffic from the kitchen, family, dining, and living rooms circulates freely. Up another half flight, three bedrooms nestle in their own quiet zone.

The porch is handy to the kitchen and also to living and dining rooms via the L-shaped deck. Overall, the house is 104x61 feet; total living space is 2,350 square feet.

More on this house on page 144

A very livable five-bedroom house

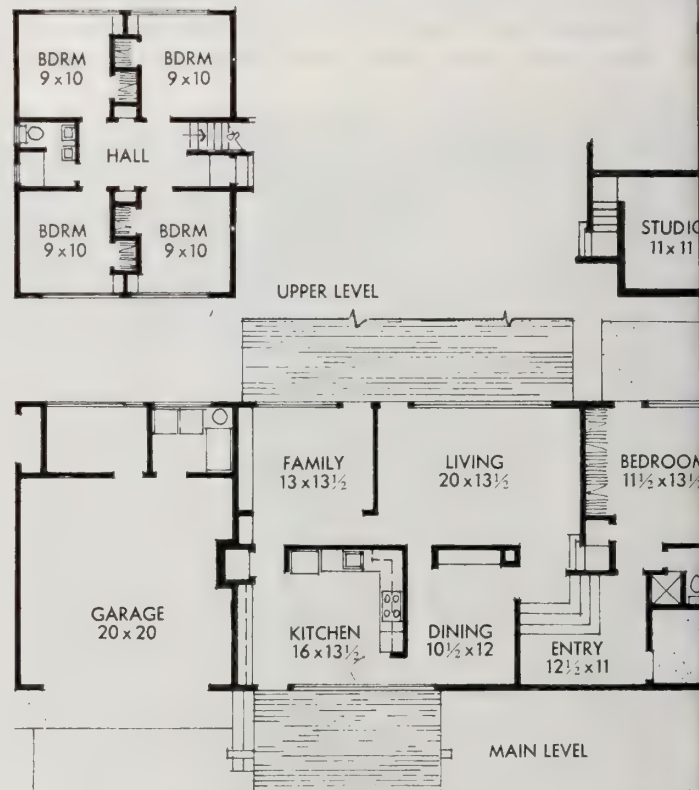

Too many big-family houses tend to short-change some members of the family. But not this one. It offers privacy for parents, an efficient working and living area, and separate bedrooms for four children—all in a very affordable way.

From the front (upper right), you can see the combination of levels that helps make this house work. The deck there adjoins the kitchen and marks the floor level of the living area. The formal entry is at far right.

There's another, larger deck at the rear (lower right), too. It adds extra fair weather space to the living and family rooms.

All ceilings in the center section of the house follow the slope of the roof, like that of the living room (left). The nearest steps lead up to a small studio—a special hideaway for parents' projects. Just beyond, steps lead down to the level of the entry and the master bedroom at that end of the house.

The floor plans show how neatly all the areas fit together. The up-front kitchen is very convenient to the garage, and it has its own family entrance from the front deck. The children's bedrooms, above the garage, are just a few steps from the kitchen-family room area. All are small, yet have good closets and built-in desks.

The floor space in this house totals 2,211 square feet. Overall dimensions are 69x52 feet.

Privacy in a distinctive floor plan

A wonderful blend of materials and the strategic location of the carport and front fence help this house blend into any kind of neighborhood. And, no matter how busy the street, privacy begins right at the entry walk. Up close (upper left), you see only the front door. As you walk under the canopy of 2x6s, you're introduced to an entry garden on the left.

There is plenty of opportunity to get into that garden, too, because the house itself requires a minimum of maintenance. The cedar fence weathers to a silky gray without any finish, the stone carport wall needs no attention, and the prefinished plywood siding seldom needs any attention.

In the living room (left), the low paneled wall creates a hallway that extends the length of the house. Keeping the wall low makes the room seem larger.

That long hall frees every room in the house from cross traffic—youngsters can raid the refrigerator for that last late glass of milk without disturbing an adult gathering in the living room.

Only the two children's rooms face the street, and they're screened by the fence. All other rooms look out on the privacy of the backyard. The overall dimensions are 68x42 feet, including carport. The living area totals 1,454 square feet.

Functional design in a two-story

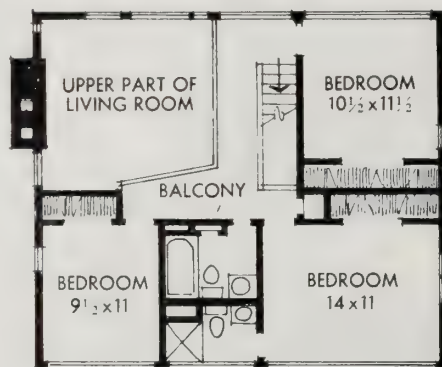

This two-story house is far from the same old thing. Its lines are clean and crisp—and so is the living inside.

The fresh look comes from the smooth redwood siding, the texture of the cedar shake roof and the contrasting stain of the trim. There is no "ornamentation"—only the windows, the 4x16-inch fascia beam, and the set out downspouts show against the straightforward exterior. And these are functional parts.

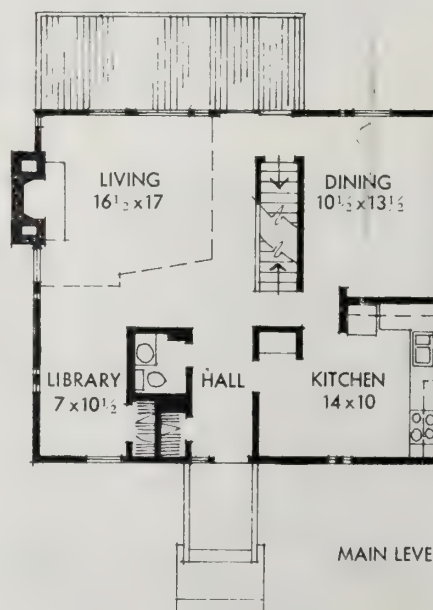

Inside, smart planning plays a big role in exciting, well organized space. The living room (left) soars 21 feet to the ceiling and is rimmed by the balcony, so the large glass areas pay off on both levels.

All three bedrooms open from the balcony and each has generous closet space. Locating bathrooms back-to-back helps to save on plumbing costs.

Floor space totals 1,200 square feet; overall dimensions are 28x24 feet, including decks. Move on this house on page 146.

Just how well do you take care of your dog or cat?

If you think grooming should be restricted to pampered show dogs and cats, you're wrong. Proper care is an important part of any pet's good health and good disposition. It can even prolong the life span. Though grooming differs with each breed of dog or cat (some require more than others), it should always include coat cleaning and brushing, and care of eyes, nails, and teeth. A frequent checkup will let you detect a skin problem at the very beginning—and spot eye and ear infections before they take hold and become serious health hazards.

Be sure you know how much attention a dog or cat will require before you adopt him. Some dogs require daily grooming to be at their best. If you don't have the time, don't buy the dog. Instead, choose a shorter haired breed—one that needs minimum attention.

There are easy ways to attend to bathing, brushing, clipping, nail and ear care. A sturdy table is handy for grooming. You can buy a special table with an overhead arm to which your pet's collar can be attached. It's important to teach your dog to jump by himself—particularly one of the larger breeds. Hefting 90 pounds of dog up to the table can be backbreaking. He'll soon learn to respond to a simple command of "up," "brush," or "table." Most dogs (and cats, too) love the pampering process of brush and comb.

Photographs: Mike Dieter

For bathing, you'll need a tub determined by the size of the dog, a liquid shampoo found in your pet supply store, a sponge, a good brush and comb, some nail clippers, and a file. If your dog requires frequent barbering, a good electric clipper is a wise investment. So is a pair of barber-type scissors—as well as blunt-tipped shears if hair has to be removed around the eyes. You'll find dozens of work-saving extra accessories at your pet specialty store (see page 168).

Cleanliness is great in pets—but don't overdo it. Once a month is usually enough for a dog's soap and water shampoo. There are dry baths (usually in powder form) which are applied to the coat and then brushed out—and aerosol cleaners which are sprayed over the dog's entire coat and then toweled off. Both are excellent for between bath touch-ups—or to take the place of soap and water.

When you do decide to bathe your dog, here's the best technique. Fill the tub with water until most of his legs are covered, wet his coat, then work up a lather. Rinse off with either a large sponge and fresh water—or a hose. Keep soap away from the eyes and plug his ears with a bit of cotton to keep out water. You may want to finish with a dip which is added to a small amount of water, then squeezed over the coat and rubbed off. Dry with towels or try your portable electric hair dryer.

Combing and brushing: When you comb, pay special attention to the ears and "feathers" on legs. This is where the worst matting takes place. Work from the head down, carefully removing stubborn snarls and tangles. Finish with a thorough brushing to give the coat gloss.

Cats need grooming, too. Though bathing a cat is usually a once-in-a-lifetime catastrophe, brushing and combing should be weekly routines to rid his coat of dead hair, dust, and matting. De-fleaing can be accomplished with a number of excellent flea powders which are safe and potent as well as easy to apply.

Inspect a cat's ears every week. Wipe them out with a bit of cotton, going in only as far as you can see. Don't try to heal any infections yourself. This is a job for vets. Claw care is rarely necessary for a cat. He may manicure himself on a scratching post; or he may elect to use an upholstered chair. If you have this problem, trim front claws regularly—never back ones.

DECORATOR CRAFTS

THIS IS CARDBOARD!

By Margo Garrity, Crafts and Home Sewing Editor

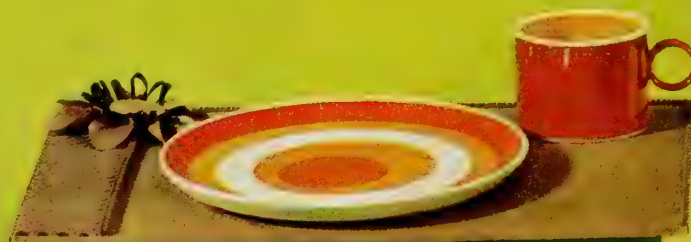

There's no end to the decorative accessories you can conjure up from ordinary corrugated containers. The method is simple—and the results rewarding. You work with bits and pieces of stiff cardboard and a sharp knife or some single-edged razor blades. (Have a plentiful supply of blades on hand, since you need a sharp one to cut unusual shapes and to trim around the outer edges of cardboard.)

The projects shown here call for the common corrugated cardboard that's laminated to brown paper. You can simply use regular packing boxes; for larger pieces, order cardboard from moving companies who sell it in good-size sheets. When it serves your purpose, turn the smooth side out on some pieces. Show the crimped side on others—as we did on the place mats, wastebasket, and plant stand. To cover the cardboard sides of the hanging light, use some decorative gift-wrap paper, scraps of wallpaper, or fabric. Then cover all seams with strips of gimp trim glued in place to give the shade a "leaded" look.

For the mirror, have the necessary sizes cut at a store where glass is sold. You can use the same idea to frame favorite pictures or photographs. (Vary the size to fit the item you're framing.) To make the pedestal vase that holds the paper flowers—and also the candle holder—cut four identical pieces to fit over an armature of cardboard. Fashion flower trims from brown wrapping paper or grocery bags, and attach to wire stems cut at different lengths.

Turn the page for yarn crafts

AND THIS IS YARN!

Absolutely nothing rivals the satisfaction of making your own distinctive home accessories. And there's a special glow when you create them out of a commonplace material, such as the yarn found in needlework departments or specialty knitting shops.

Yarn is a natural for decorative crafts because of the almost unbelievable abundance of beautiful colors, weights, and textures available. There are endless possibilities you'll want to explore as you progress. For example: airy items like our green room divider, hand-knit curtains, and crocheted table cover—wonderfully effective in a living room, bedroom, hallway, or study.

Your two basic ingredients are yarn and jumbo needles. The latter come in either wood or lightweight metal and range from half an inch to one inch in diameter. You can give pillows and posies a hand-crafted look by using bold stitches from yarn left over from your more elaborate undertakings.

For a dramatic project—just the thing to update an uninteresting corner or wall—build a frame for the screen (left) that measures 72 inches high, 50 inches wide. Then use this same frame for a loom to weave yarn into a dazzling design.

If you want a family project for even kids or beginners, set up an assembly line and try the rugged rug. You simply attach the evenly spaced yarn pompons, in your favorite color combination, to a washable rug backing in the size desired. Then try this same technique on pillows, too.

To order instruction sheets, see page 152.

SHOW-OFF DESSERTS

By Doris Eby, Food Editor, and Joan McCloskey, Associate

Here's a collection of truly delicious desserts—tailor-made for your special occasions.

Peach Shortcake (men really go for it!) is a hearty, satisfying dessert designed especially to please men—but guaranteed to please all dessert fans, too. Brandied peaches and whipped cream are layered between nutty shortcakes.

Parfait Pie (costs just pennies!) is a colorful dessert handsome enough for your fanciest parties. Ice cream whipped into orange gelatin speeds up the setting and makes it fluffy and rich. To give it a festive look, decorate the top with reserved fruit from the filling.

Heavenly Torte (so very easy!) can be ready in just minutes. Whipped cream and shaved chocolate are sprinkled between the cake layers and topped with crunchy toasted almonds.

SHOW-OFF DESSERTS

Velvety Fudge Cake (a family favorite!) is a hearty, old-fashioned kind of cake—chocolate through and through.

Ginger-Maple Alaska (a real showpiece!) boasts maple nut ice cream and gingerbread blanketed with a luscious maple-flavored meringue. It's a production, there's no denying it, but one that can be accomplished in stages.

Pumpkin Squares (it makes 18!) can be your answer for those occasions when you expect a large number of people. It's a make-ahead dessert to save you time on busy days.

Ginger-Maple Alaska

A large, multi-layered chocolate cake with thick, dark chocolate frosting piped in a decorative swirl pattern around the top and sides. A single slice has been cut out, revealing the moist, dark interior of the cake. The cake sits on a silver-colored metal cake stand with a fluted edge.

*Velvety
Fudge Cake*

Several square slices of pumpkin cake are arranged on a wooden cutting board. Each slice is topped with a dollop of white whipped cream and a sprinkle of chopped walnuts. The cake has a light-colored, moist-looking interior with a thin layer of darker filling visible between the layers.

SHOW-OFF DESSERTS

Brandied Bombe (oh so elegant!) is truly a "creation." Sweet cherries mellow in brandy, are swirled into chocolate ice cream, then patted into a vanilla ice cream shell. Pink whipped cream and chocolate curls complete this spectacular.

Mandarin Crown (fewer calories than you'd expect!) is a calorie-counter's delight. The delicate orange mold is topped with a low-cal cranberry juice cocktail sauce.

Peppermint Ice Cream (for party time!) is great for any occasion—whether it's a family birthday celebration or your turn to hostess bridge club. Chocolate Swirl Cookies team with peppermint perfectly to complete the dessert.

NEW WAYS TO COOK CHOPS

Whichever chops you choose—lamb, pork, or veal—bring out that distinctive flavor with a special sauce or seasoning. Our four choice recipes point the way; try one the next time you want to serve chops at their succulent best.

Chutney Grilled Lamb Chops

A spicy topping peps up broiled lamb chops

- | | |
|---|---|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chutney, finely chopped | 1 tablespoon lemon juice |
| 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted | 1 teaspoon curry powder |
| | 4 loin lamb chops, cut $\frac{3}{4}$ inch thick |

Combine chutney, butter or margarine, lemon juice, and curry powder. Place chops on rack in broiler pan; brush with half the chutney mixture. Broil 3 to 4 inches from heat, about 10 minutes. Turn chops; brush with remaining chutney mixture. Broil 8 to 10 minutes more. Makes 4 servings.

Oriental Veal Chops

A subtle sauce complements the delicate flavor of veal

- | | |
|--|--|
| $\frac{1}{3}$ cup dry sherry | 1 cup water |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt | 1 tablespoon soy sauce |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon dried marjoram, crushed | 3 tablespoons cornstarch |
| Dash pepper | 1 3-ounce can sliced mushrooms (about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup) |
| 6 veal chops, cut $\frac{1}{2}$ inch thick | 1 5-ounce can water chestnuts, drained and sliced ($\frac{2}{3}$ cup) |
| 2 tablespoons cooking oil | |

In shallow dish, combine sherry, salt, marjoram, and pepper; add chops, cover, and let stand at least 1 hour at room temperature. Drain, reserving marinade. In skillet, brown chops in hot oil. Add reserved marinade to browned chops. Cover and cook till chops are tender, about 30 minutes. Remove chops to warm platter. Stir water and soy sauce into cornstarch; add undrained mushrooms. Add soy mixture to skillet; cook, stirring constantly, till thickened. Add drained water chestnuts; heat through. Serve sauce over chops. Makes 6 servings.

Tangy Lamb Shoulder Chops

Flavorful lamb shoulder chops crowned with onion slices and green pepper rings

- | | |
|---|--|
| 4 lamb shoulder chops, cut $\frac{3}{4}$ inch thick | 1 teaspoon dried basil, crushed |
| 1 tablespoon shortening | 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch-thick onion slices |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt | 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch-thick green pepper rings |
| Dash pepper | 1 ounce ($\frac{1}{4}$ cup) shredded sharp process cheese |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot-style catsup | |

Slash edges of fat on chops; brown chops on both sides in hot shortening in skillet. Sprinkle with the salt and pepper. Place chops in ungreased 9x9x2-inch baking dish. Spread chops with catsup; sprinkle with basil. Top with onion slices, and green pepper rings. Cover baking dish with foil; bake in moderate oven (350°) for 50 minutes or till done. Uncover; sprinkle cheese inside green pepper rings. Bake for 1 to 2 minutes more, till cheese begins to melt. Makes 4 servings.

Pork-Peach Towers

Glazed pork chops topped with an elegant garnish

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| *4 loin pork chops, cut 1 inch thick | 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce |
| 4 teaspoons chopped onion | 4 canned peach halves |
| 2 tablespoons brown sugar | 1 tomato, quartered |
| 2 teaspoons prepared mustard | 4 stuffed olives |

*Have meatman cut pocket in each chop.

Sprinkle chops with a little salt and pepper, including inside pockets. Stuff 1 teaspoon chopped onion into each pocket. Place chops in 12x7x2-inch baking dish; cover with foil. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 20 minutes. Combine brown sugar, mustard, and worcestershire sauce. Uncover chops; spread with half the brown sugar mixture. Bake, uncovered, 20 minutes more. Place a peach half on each chop, fastening with wooden pick. Brush chops and peach halves with remaining brown sugar mixture. Bake 10 minutes more. Remove chops to platter. Fasten tomato wedge and olive on each peach. Makes 4 servings.

VARIATIONS ON THREE FLAVOR CLASSICS

By Patricia Pollock, Associate Food Editor

Pork and sauerkraut . . . ham and cheese . . . liver and onions . . . do these sound familiar? Next time around, try one of the intriguing variations shown here. We predict your family will sit up and take notice—and ask for seconds.

Kraut-Pork Pinwheel

Scrumptious meat loaf with a surprise inside—

- 1 pound ground pork
- ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1 slightly beaten egg
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- ½ teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- 1 1-pound can (2 cups) sauerkraut, drained and snipped
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 5 slices bacon

Combine ground pork, crumbs, egg, salt, pepper, and worcestershire; mix thoroughly. On waxed paper, pat meat mixture to a 10x7-inch rectangle. Combine sauerkraut and onion; spread evenly over meat. Starting with narrow side, roll up meat jelly-roll fashion. Place loaf in shallow baking dish. Arrange bacon slices across top. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 40 to 45 minutes. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Ham-Cheese Crunch Sandwich

Crushed potato chips add that special crunch—

- 8 slices white bread
- Butter or margarine, softened
- Prepared mustard
- 4 slices boiled ham
- 4 slices process American cheese
- 1 tomato, thinly sliced
- 2 slightly beaten eggs
- 2 tablespoons milk
- Dash onion salt
- 1¼ cups crushed potato chips

Spread each slice bread on one side with butter or margarine, then mustard. Top 4 slices bread with ham, cheese, and tomato slices, then with remaining bread. Combine eggs, milk, and onion salt. Dip sandwiches in egg mixture, then in crushed potato chips, patting to secure chips to bread, and turning to coat both sides. Brown on both sides in buttered skillet or griddle till crisp, about 8 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 4 servings.

Chicken Liver Stroganoff

Liver and onions with a gourmet twist—

- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 8-ounce packages frozen chicken livers, thawed
- 1 3-ounce can (¾ cup) sliced mushrooms
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 cup long-grain rice, cooked (3 cups)

Cook onion in butter or margarine till tender but not brown. Halve each chicken liver; add to onion mixture with undrained mushrooms. Stir in paprika, salt, and pepper. Cover; cook over low heat for 8 to 10 minutes, till livers are tender, stirring frequently. Stir flour into sour cream; stir into liver mixture. Heat through; do not boil. Serve over hot cooked rice. Makes 6 servings.

START WITH PACKAGED POTATOES

... and surprise your family or guests with a delightful appetizer, salad, or skillet main dish. Whether you choose instant mashed, dry scalloped, or dry au gratin potatoes, you'll short-cut kitchen time and serve blue-ribbon food as well. It's easy to keep packaged potatoes on hand—so try all three of the recipes shown below.

Sausage-Potato Skillet

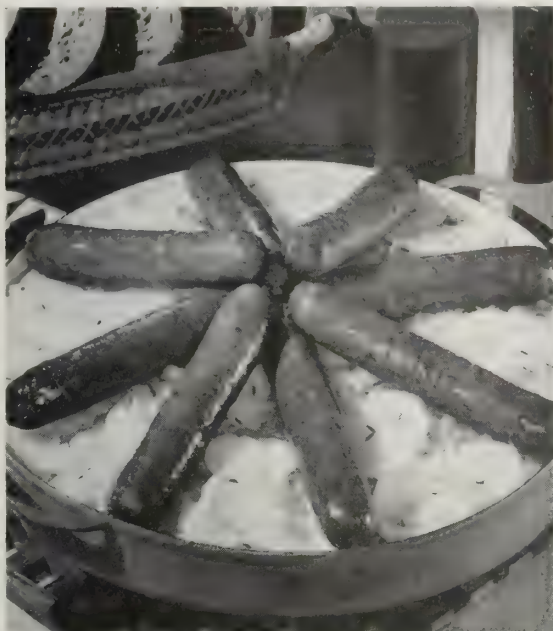

1 package dry scalloped potatoes
1 1-pound can (2 cups) sauerkraut, drained
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon caraway seed
1 pound smoked pork sausage links
In medium skillet, combine dry potatoes and the packaged seasoned sauce mix. Add water to equal total liquid called for on package. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat; simmer, covered, for 30 minutes, till potatoes are tender. Stir in sauerkraut; sprinkle with caraway seed. Arrange sausage links, spoke-fashion, on top of vegetable mixture. Cover; cook 10 minutes more, till heated through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Crab-Potato Nibblers

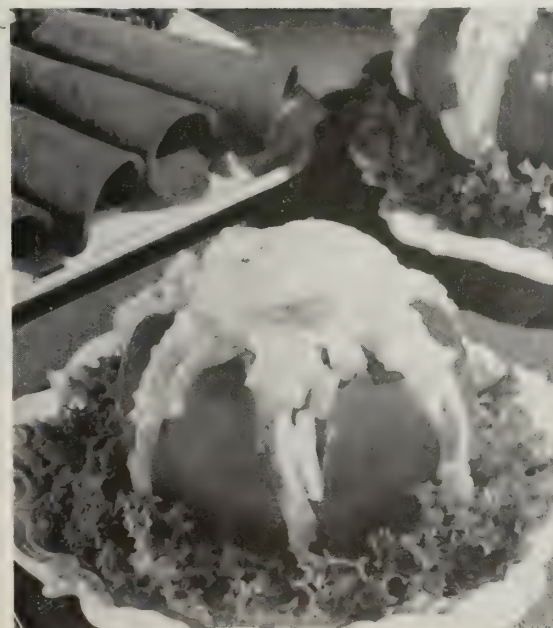

Packaged instant mashed potatoes (enough for 2 servings)
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
 $1\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoons worcestershire sauce
 $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoon garlic powder
1 $7\frac{1}{2}$ -ounce can crab meat, drained and flaked
1 slightly beaten egg
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup fine dry bread crumbs
Prepare potatoes according to package directions, adding instant onion to water before boiling, and using 2 tablespoons less milk than called for. Stir in worcestershire, garlic powder, and a dash white pepper. Add crab meat. Shape into bite-size balls; dip into beaten egg, then roll in crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat (375°) for about 1 minute, till golden brown. Drain. Makes 3 dozen balls.

Tomato-Potato Salad

8 tomatoes
1 package dry au gratin potatoes
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sliced celery
With tomatoes stem end down, cut each in 6 wedges, cutting to but not through base of tomato. Spread wedges apart slightly; sprinkle with salt; chill. In medium saucepan, combine dry potatoes and 3 cups water. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 15 to 20 minutes. Rinse with cold water; drain well, cover, and chill. In small saucepan, stir an additional $\frac{3}{4}$ cup water into the packaged cheese sauce mix. Cook and stir over medium heat till mixture thickens and boils. Remove from heat; cover, and chill. To serve, combine chilled cheese sauce, mayonnaise, and mustard. Add egg and celery to potatoes; fold in cheese sauce. Serve in chilled tomato cups. Makes 8 servings.

THREE FAVORITE-FLAVOR DESSERTS

See pages 94 and 95

Pick the dessert that stars your favorite flavor—

Pumpkin Squares

- 1 1-pound can (2 cups) pumpkin
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 cup chopped pecans, toasted
- ½ gallon vanilla ice cream, softened
- 36 gingersnaps

Combine pumpkin, sugar, salt, ginger, cinnamon, and nutmeg; add chopped pecans. In a chilled bowl, fold pumpkin mixture into ice cream. Line bottom of 13x9x2-inch pan with half of the gingersnaps; top with half the ice cream mixture. Cover with another layer of gingersnaps; add remaining ice cream mixture. Freeze till firm, about 5 hours. Cut in squares; garnish with whipped cream and pecan halves. Makes 18 servings.

Fudge Cake

A chocolate-lover's delight—

- 1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semisweet chocolate pieces
 - 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - ¾ cup sugar
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - 2 eggs
 - 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
 - ¾ teaspoon baking soda
 - ½ teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
- In small saucepan, melt chocolate pieces over very low heat, stirring constantly; cool. Thoroughly cream together butter or margarine, sugar, and vanilla. Stir in melted chocolate. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift together flour, soda, and salt. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with sour milk, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Pour into two greased and floured 8x1½-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for 25 to 30 minutes. Fill and frost with Creamy Chocolate Frosting: Melt 2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate over low heat; cool. Beat together 1 3-ounce package softened cream cheese and 2 tablespoons milk. Add 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar; mix well. Beat in the melted chocolate, another 2 tablespoons milk, and 1½ teaspoons vanilla. Add enough additional sifted confectioners' sugar (2½ to 2¾ cups) to make a frosting of spreading consistency.

Ginger-Maple Alaska

- 1 14-ounce package gingerbread mix
 - 2 pints or 1 quart brick maple nut ice cream
 - 4 egg whites
 - 5 drops maple flavoring
- Prepare gingerbread mix according to package directions, baking in a 9x9x2-inch baking pan. Cool and remove from pan. Trim ice cream and gingerbread so that cake is ½ inch larger than ice cream on all sides. Place on a wooden cutting board. Keep ice cream frozen till ready to use. Beat egg whites till soft peaks form; add maple flavoring. Gradually add ½ cup sugar, beating till stiff peaks form. Center brick of ice cream on cake layer. Spread meringue over ice cream and cake, sealing to edges of cake. Bake in 500° oven till meringue is golden, about 3 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 8 servings.

Gourmets beat a path to our door!

Come in and enjoy authentic Beef Stroganoff. Complete with tender beef, sour cream sauce, golden egg noodles. One step, one pot—ready in 15 minutes. No wonder it's America's favorite Stroganoff.

Don't just set the table—set the mood...

with Lipton Main Dishes: Beef Stroganoff, Ham Cheddarton, Chicken Baronet, Turkey Primavera—each complete with meat.

THREE ELEGANT DESSERTS

See pages 92 and 93

Parfait Pie

1 1-pound can (2 cups) fruit cocktail
1 3-ounce package orange-flavored gelatin
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cold water
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
Drain fruit cocktail, reserving syrup. Add enough water to syrup to make 1 cup liquid; heat. Dissolve gelatin in hot liquid; add cold water. Spoon ice cream into gelatin mixture; stir till melted. Chill mixture, 40 to 45 minutes, till it thickens and mounds when spooned. Set aside $\frac{1}{2}$ cup fruit cocktail for garnish. Fold remainder into gelatin-ice cream mixture; turn into pastry shell. Chill till firm, 20 to 25 minutes. Garnish with reserved fruit.

Heavenly Torte

A crunchy sprinkle of almonds completes this simple-to-make torte

1 7-ounce jar marshmallow creme
1 tablespoon hot water
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons instant coffee powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
1 10-inch angel cake
 $\frac{1}{2}$ square ($\frac{1}{2}$ ounce) semi-sweet chocolate, shaved (3 tablespoons)
2 tablespoons slivered almonds, toasted

In small mixer bowl, combine marshmallow creme, hot water, coffee powder, and vanilla. Beat on low speed of electric mixer till blended, then beat at high speed till fluffy. Whip cream till soft peaks form. Fold

Peach Shortcake

Brandied peaches layered between split spiced shortcakes—

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground nutmeg
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped walnuts
1 beaten egg
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup milk

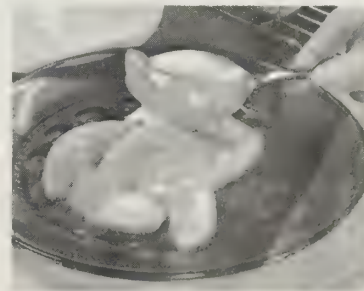

1 1-pound 13-ounce can (about $2\frac{3}{4}$ cups) sliced peaches
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons brandy

1 cup whipping cream
In mixing bowl, sift together flour, the 3 tablespoons sugar, the baking powder, salt, and nutmeg. Cut in the $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine till mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in walnuts. Add egg and milk; stir just till well combined. Turn out onto lightly floured surface; knead gently for $\frac{1}{2}$ minute. Pat or roll to 12x6-inch rectangle. Cut into eight 3-inch squares. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake in a very hot oven (450°) for 10 to 12 minutes. Split shortcakes crosswise while hot.

To make filling, drain peaches, reserving 1 cup syrup. In medium saucepan, combine the $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar and the cornstarch. Stir in reserved peach syrup. Cook and stir over medium heat till mixture thickens and boils. Remove from heat; stir in the 2 tablespoons butter, the lemon juice, and peach slices. Cool slightly; add brandy.

Spoon half the peach mixture over bottom portions of short-cakes; replace top portions. Spoon the remaining peach filling over shortcakes. Whip cream; place a generous dollop atop each shortcake. Makes 8 servings.

Pork Chops with Saffron Rice

An exotic meat and rice dish wins Cook-of-the-Month honors in the Fancy Skillet Suppers category—

- 6 pork chops, cut ¹/₂- to ³/₄-inch thick
- ¹/₂ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 tablespoons shortening, melted
- 1 6-ounce package saffron rice mix
- ¹/₂ cup chopped onion
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- ¹/₄ cups hot water
- ¹/₂ cup dairy sour cream

Sprinkle chops with the salt and pepper. In skillet, slowly brown chops in melted shortening; drain off excess fat. Add rice mix and onion. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water; pour over rice. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and cook over low heat for 40 minutes, stirring occasionally, till chops are tender and water is absorbed. Remove chops to warm platter; stir sour cream into rice mixture. Cook over low heat till heated through. Makes 6 servings.

The truth about mozzarella

It's the universal pizza topping—whether you bake yours from scratch, or doctor up one from the pizzeria. Kraft makes this fine natural cheese mellow and smooth-melting.

COOKING WITH NESTLÉ'S

crunchy fudge sandwiches

Build 'em high and fill 'em tasty with Kellogg's Rice Krispies and Nestlé's Morsels

1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) NESTLÉ'S® BUTTERSCOTCH MORSELS
 ½ cup peanut butter
 4 cups KELLOGG'S® RICE KRISPIES® cereal
 1 tablespoon water

1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) NESTLÉ'S® SEMI-SWEET CHOCOLATE MORSELS
 ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar
 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine

1. Melt Butterscotch Morsels with peanut butter in heavy saucepan over very low heat, stirring constantly until well blended. Remove from heat.
2. Add Rice Krispies cereal, stirring until well coated with butterscotch mixture. Press half of cereal mixture into buttered 8x8x2-inch pan. Chill in refrigerator while preparing fudge mixture. Set remaining cereal mixture aside.
3. Combine Chocolate Morsels, sugar, butter and water; stir over hot water until chocolate melts and until mixture is well blended. Spread over chilled cereal mixture. Spread remaining cereal mixture evenly over top. Press in gently. Chill. Remove from refrigerator for about 10 minutes before cutting into squares.

 Yield: about 25 1½-inch squares.

BETTER BREAKFAST IDEAS

Extra Special Eggs

You can count on one hand the basic ways to cook eggs: scrambled, fried, poached, baked or shirred, hard- or soft-cooked. But for an adventurous cook, the variations are practically endless. With eggs and a little imagination, you'll never be at a loss for a delectable breakfast. Try the ideas below for starters, then see how easy it is to surprise your family with deliciously different eggs.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Breakfast Harmony Rounds

½ pound bulk pork sausage
 4 round shredded wheat biscuits
 ¾ cup milk
 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
 ¼ cup all-purpose flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 2 cups milk
 4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
 Shape sausage into 4 patties. Brown lightly on both sides; drain well on paper toweling. Dip tops of shredded wheat biscuits in the ¾ cup milk; place in shallow baking pan, dipped side up. Make a "well" about ¼-inch deep in center of each biscuit. Place a sausage patty in each. Bake in moderate oven (375°) for 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Blend in flour and salt. Add the 2 cups milk; cook and stir till thickened. Lightly fold in sliced egg; heat through. For each serving, spoon egg sauce over each sausage nest; sprinkle with paprika. Makes 4 servings.

Omelet Parmentier

1 cup (3½ ounces) frozen loose-pack hash brown potatoes, partially thawed
 1 tablespoon snipped chives
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 4 well-beaten eggs

In 8-inch skillet, cook potatoes and chives in butter or margarine over medium-low heat for 3 minutes; sprinkle with the salt. Pour in eggs; cook over low heat, running spatula around edges of skillet, and lifting potatoes so that moist egg portion flows underneath. Cover; cook 3 minutes more or till surface of omelet is set but shiny. Turn out onto serving plate; cut in quarters to serve. Makes 4 servings.

10 SHOWCASE KITCHENS Continued from page 73

Photograph: Paul Medvedich. Designer: Dorothy Morrow. Source: Lois Rea

Here are two more showcase kitchens, as different as night and day, yet each just right for the owners' way of life. One is a sociable room geared to efficient, informal food service; the other, a real gourmet's dream serving a husband-wife team of hobbyist cooks.

The old-fashioned family kitchen (left) makes optimum use of cheerful morning sun and adjacent outdoor living areas. Open to both the living and dining rooms, this St. Louis kitchen is the hub of family activities and informal entertaining. Its warm cherry wood, old brick, and off-white walls are continued throughout the house. Latex semi-gloss wall enamel is easily touched up, and the pegged oak floor's polyurethane finish is both washable and scratch resistant.

The other kitchen (above), a striking study in contemporary black and white, is equipped for San Francisco's elegant cooking and formal entertaining. The brick-pattern vinyl floor reflects shadow-free light from the luminous ceiling. Food and function are paramount here. Jars of staples, fresh foods, and rows of chef's aluminum utensils provide a lively contrast to the elegantly tailored black storage punctuated with matching pulls, custom-carved of wood. Here, too, the stainless steel appliances take on added luster. Pass-through above the stainless cook-top and counter speeds hot foods to family room table. Serving a lively family of five, this kitchen is as easy-care as it is elegant.

Other bacons may cost a little less. But why settle for second best? Wilson doesn't.

Marvelous meat makes the big difference.

We start with the finest meats. Meat fresh from the heartland of America, where corn grows in ripe abundance and the finest hogs are raised. Then, take extra care in selecting and processing every single pound of bacon that earns the Wilson's Certified seal, your assurance of quality. Switch to Certified—fine meat with a difference.

Wilson's Certified Bacon is hearty, big on lean. Protein-rich and robust with flavor. Cooks up sweet and sizzling-crisp.

Wilson's Certified Canadian Style Bacon is extra lean—the heart of the loin. Slow sugar cure and hardwood smoke give unmatched flavor. Fully Cooked. M-m-m.

Flaming beauty sets a festive mood.

Never has ham gone to a dinner party more elegantly! And never has there been a ham like Wilson's Certified Festival Ham.

This superb ham is tenderloin tender and extra lean. A deep smoke and slow cure give it exceptional flavor. To "flame", make your favorite fruit glaze, ladle over heated ham, top with ½ cup heated brandy or lemon extract. Ignite.

Wilson's Certified Festival Ham comes in two family sizes: 5-6 lb. whole, 2-3 lb. half. Both fully cooked and tenderloin tender.

Tea-tasting triumph! Here's a switch on a wine-testing party. Brew up three pots of assorted teas, say green, orange pekoe and a spiced tea, and let your guests sample the different varieties. FOR ANY SLOPING LOT Begins on page 78

The unusual front deck welcomes family and guests from an off-street parking area near the street. It is 20 feet square, but you could plan it any size. The boards are redwood, as is the simple railing.

A front deck like this has many uses, whether for outdoor living or a good spot for the children to play. And at the front door, it saves some dirt from being tracked on inside.

The siding is wide-board western red cedar; joints are all covered with battens. A built-in concealed gutter keeps water from splashing onto the deck. Along the other parts of the roof line, gutters aren't necessary because the wide overhang and the slope of the lot keep all water away.

Just beyond the double doors, the entry is defined by a handsome screen. It pays off in the living room, where it acts as a wall to help arrange furniture. The screen is white oak—pairs of 1x2s were put together, then turned in alternate directions. Staining completes the job.

This part of the living room shares the rearward view with the rest of the room, but because the ceiling is low here, this seating group seems much cozier. There's another good planning lesson here—even though the large windows that flank the entry doors are blocked by the screen, light streams into this part of the room. With plenty of daylight from the other windows, there are no dark, dim corners.

HOUSE FOR A DEEP LOT Begins on page 78

From the family room, you can get a good feeling of how well this house handles the traffic. All the rooms are free of cross-traffic since the central hall (between the two rooms here) carries all the traffic from the entry to the master bedroom. With a traffic pattern like this, there are no interruptions from anybody going from one room to another and the rooms themselves can be used to their full extent.

The furniture grouping in the family room, for instance, can be any way you want it—like this comfortable seating arrangement. Or if there are small children in your house, you may want to plan it more informally.

The study on the other side of the traffic way shows the business-like arrangement that is possible there, too. That room separates itself from the rest of the house, yet it still seems close at hand because of its view to the lanai. The floor-to-ceiling glass around the lanai is all fixed, except for sliding glass doors from the study and from the living room.

A house with a plan like this can be adapted to almost any family. If you needed a fourth bedroom more than a study, you could easily plan a wall, door, and closet where there is none here. Or, if yours is a growing family, you could plan construction without the master bedroom and build it on later when the need arises.

It could also be adapted to a long narrow lot by building carport space for only two cars and re-arranging the three outdoor storage units (see plan).

The structure of the house is a combination of post-and-beam and a framework of standard ceiling joists. Where there are no supporting interior walls, posts and beams such as those shown hold up the joists. In other spots, standard stud walls hold up the joists. This way, there is space between the joists for batt insulation and the roof decking is nailed from above. A build-up of tar and gravel forms the roof.

The house was built over a crawl space, but could be adapted to concrete slab construction as well. There is no need for a basement with the excellent storage facilities. The laundry is tucked into its own room, adjoining the children's bath—and isn't this right where the dirty clothes are most often found in any household?

We just sliced 7½ min. off your work day.

KITCHEN SHORTCUTS

SLICE your kitchen time in half! With these time-saving suggestions, you'll have extra hours for other pursuits.

Efficient Use of Kitchen Equipment

- ▶ Use a vegetable peeler to remove the thin skin from firm semi- or smooth-skinned fruits and vegetables. It's more efficient and less wasteful than using a paring knife.
- ▶ Prepare a hot dinner—even on hectic days—with that pressure cooker you've been storing in a hard-to-reach corner. Delicious stews and fricassees (which take an hour or more in the oven) can be ready to serve in less than an hour.
- ▶ Learn to make the most of your electric blender. Use it to make smooth salad dressings and vegetable sauces, to chop carrots, cheeses, and nuts.
- ▶ Keep some flour in a kitchen-size salt shaker for flouring greased baking pans. It's quick and prevents dipping into the flour sack for small jobs.
- ▶ Slip your flour sifter into a plastic bag before putting it away. You'll keep your shelves cleaner this way.
- ▶ Store those small envelopes of sauce and gravy mixes in a napkin holder in the kitchen cabinet. They'll be within easy reach when you need them.
- ▶ When baking, sift the dry ingredients onto a paper plate. The plate can be bent for easy pouring into the mixer bowl.

Easy-do Recipes

- ▶ To make a tasty sauce for vegetables, dice process American cheese and dilute it in a little milk, then heat and stir in the top of your double boiler till cheese melts.
- ▶ For an easy dessert, fill the cored center of baked apples with vanilla ice cream. Top it off with a hot fudge or butter-scotch sauce.
- ▶ Make green vegetables glamorous by serving them with a creamed celery sauce made from condensed cream of celery soup diluted slightly with milk. To add a festive note, sprinkle with crumbled bacon.
- ▶ For a real breakfast treat, heat a jar of strained baby food such as pineapple, peaches, or apricots—to serve over hot pancakes or waffles.
- ▶ Get more juice from lemons by heating them in water several minutes before squeezing.

COOKING FOR JUST TWO?

Cooking for two is fun—when you plan wisely. Here are some tips to help you:

- ▶ Acquire some small-size cooking utensils. Most important: a 6- or 8-inch skillet, a 1- or 1½-quart saucepan, and a pair of individual bakers in one or two sizes. Also very useful: a small loaf pan, 6-inch pie plate, and several foilware pans of assorted sizes and shapes.
- ▶ If you want to cut a recipe for four in half, or a recipe for six in thirds, write down the reduced version. Double-check your arithmetic. If ingredients don't divide easily, you're better off if you make the whole recipe and freeze half to use later, or choose another recipe. Do buy small cans and packages, unless you have a specific use for what's left from a larger size.
- ▶ With a little advance planning, you can have a variety of delicious foods on stand-by with very little extra effort. Make a whole batch of spaghetti sauce or chili and freeze the mixture in meal-size cartons. Or make a whole recipe of a casserole and divide it in halves or thirds to freeze. Although most meat mixtures freeze successfully, avoid those containing mayonnaise, sour cream, or beaten egg.
- ▶ You can make just half a package of fruit-flavored gelatin (measure out three tablespoons—and use only half the liquid called for), but it's easier to make it all and use it in two ways. Chill half the mixture till partially set, then fold in fruit or vegetables for salad. Pour remaining gelatin into refrigerator tray (without the divider) and chill till set. Cut into cubes and fold into whipped cream for dessert.
- ▶ You can even bake a layer cake without having to eat it all week! Buy the small size cake mix and bake in one-layer pan. Cut the layer in half and stack one half atop the other at frosting time.
- ▶ Above all, cook creatively—the menu needn't be limited simply because the number of diners is. Don't avoid the special sauces or pretty garnishes because you're cooking for only two. Chances are the other half of your twosome is someone pretty special!

CUSTOM CANDLESTICKS

Our easy-to-make candlesticks hold tall or short candles, dress up any table. They're all fashioned from such basic materials as wood knobs, glass caster cups, several sizes of cardboard cylinders, and cores from rolls of tape—things you might find stashed away on a seldom-used shelf. You can easily vary the heights to suit your needs by gluing together two or more units. To dramatize the place settings and give your table more flair, arrange a pair of place mats in offbeat ways.

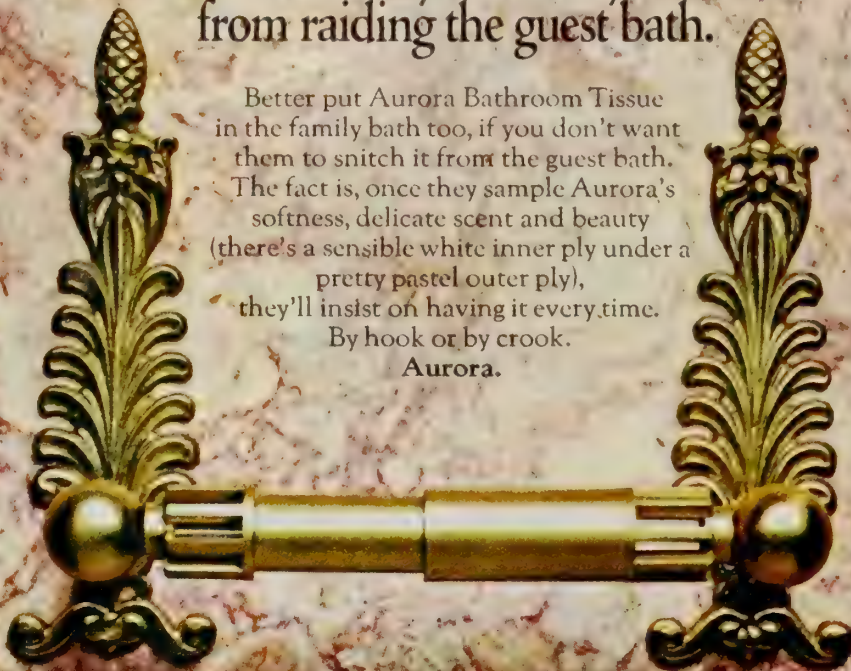

Dime-store glass now comes to dinner. Apothecary jar with caster cup stem rests in inverted glass lid from casserole. Paint the pieces before fusing together with adhesive. Add colored paper doily cutouts for extra trim. To make the candlesticks, stack caster cups to desired heights. Paint some a bright color, leave others plain.

Prevent your family from raiding the guest bath.

Better put Aurora Bathroom Tissue in the family bath too, if you don't want them to snatch it from the guest bath. The fact is, once they sample Aurora's softness, delicate scent and beauty (there's a sensible white inner ply under a pretty pastel outer ply), they'll insist on having it every time. By hook or by crook.

Aurora.

Circle-and-cylinder holders are made of throw-away materials. Base for candle cup at right is three cores from large tape rolls glued together, then painted. Cut cylinders, left, different heights. Undercoat with liquid gesso. Let dry, then paint. Give holders a final coat of glazing liquid. To finish up glue on circles sliced from cylinders on pieces of dowels.

Photographs: Hopkins

Drill holes in center of one-inch-square wood knobs for candleholder, left. Spray-paint four knobs and candle cup yellow—others blue. Assemble on threaded rod, alternating colors. Fasten together with nut at top and bottom.

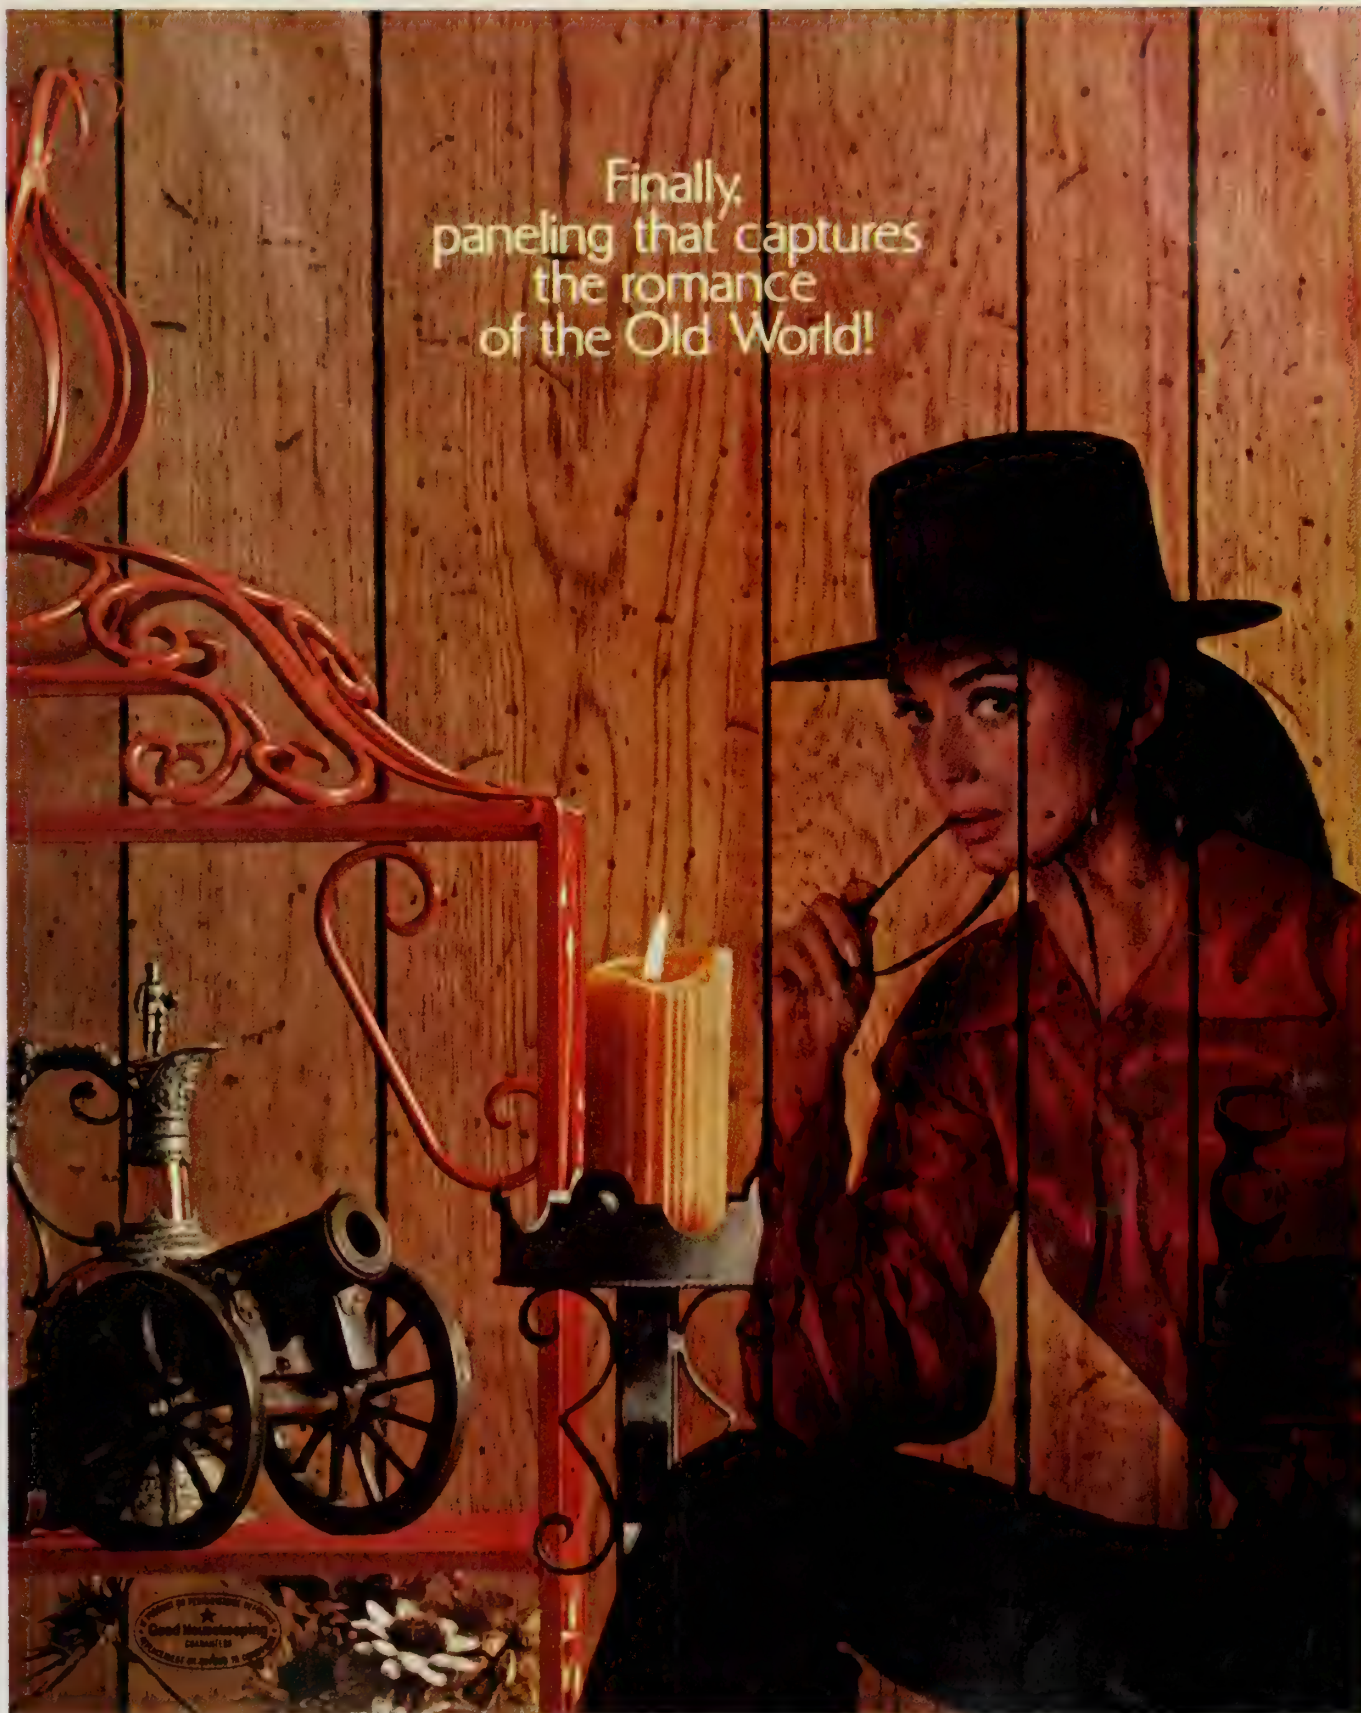

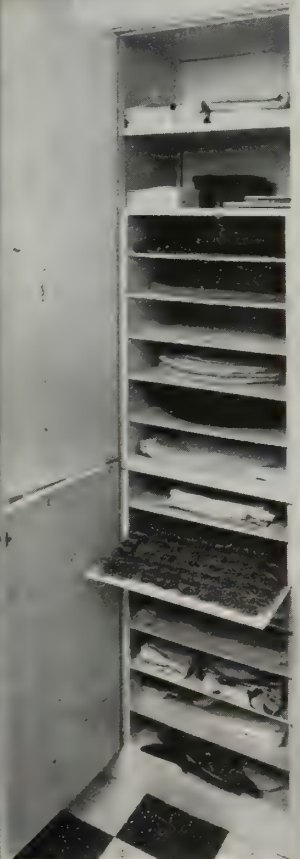

For set of sticks, right, glue several heights of wood beads together. If tapers won't fit, drill holes larger. To make the compote, use a six-inch length of wood turning with alternate rings painted hot pink and blaze red. Attach a round metal lid at top.

ABLE LINEN STORAGE

way to keep table linens is to install sliding doors and drawers. This red storage makes good of a space-wasteful corner cabinet facing kitchen.

Another storage idea: use 1/4-inch hardboard slide-out shelves, spaced floor to ceiling for your table cloths, mats, and napkins.

A PROBLEM-SITE HOUSE Begins on page 80

The dining room can serve a Saturday afternoon card game as well as it can handle more formal occasions. It, like the living room, has plenty of windows on two sides—and a sliding glass door for access to a patio just outside.

The photograph upper right shows the heart of the house. That tall houseplant marks the entry hall which delivers guests right to the living room on this side of the fireplace or to the dining room on the other. The door to the kitchen is just to the right of the coat closet you see in the hall. On the upper level, the hall at the top of the steps is open. Both of the bedrooms and the bath open from it.

The beams here match those at the high ceiling of the living room. In both places, they carry the load of the wood ceiling above them. Here, the ceiling is made of 2x8s with a plywood subfloor nailed in place just above. The roof's wood decking serves as the ceiling in the rest of the house.

A NEW SALTBOX PLAN Begins on page 80

This look from the living room into the study-guest room shows how good design can make a small room amount to something big. Instead of covering the joists that support the floors above, they were left exposed to help create a relaxed atmosphere. And the knotty pine walls in both rooms counterpoint the contemporary furnishings.

The study-guest room is exceptionally versatile—left with a wide door like this, it acts as a quiet retreat from the large living room. Or it could be closed off with a set of double doors to make a conventional bedroom with its own connecting bath (see plan). The floors are a stained hardwood.

The dining area (above) is only a step or two away from the compact kitchen—sliding pocket doors close it from view at meal times. The sloping beams are supported by a series of 4x4 posts between each window.

The kitchen is galley style, with an efficient lineup of appliances on each side. The floor here is thin slate, set in mastic over the plywood subfloor.

Try the dogs that make people sit up and beg. Cheese'n Frank Crescents Try this fresh lunchtime/anytime idea. It's easy.

Stuff hot dogs with Cracker Barrel® Brand Cheddar. (It's the cheese that's wrapped in double-strength aluminum foil to preserve its carefully-aged flavor.)

Wrap 'em up with Pillsbury Crescent Dinner Rolls. (They bake up light and flaky like fine pastry because they're made from layers and layers of Poppin' Fresh Dough.)

Serve Cheese 'n Frank Crescents to your family soon. Sit back and listen for the WOWS!

(Look for this recipe on the back of the Pillsbury Crescent Dinner Roll package: Slit 8 franks; insert pieces of Cracker Barrel® Brand Cheddar from Kraft in each. Place franks on dough triangles; roll up and bake.)

GOOD PLACES TO PUT A LAUNDRY

Too many home laundries are more convenient for plumbing than for people. Sure, appliances need electrical and water connections, a gas line perhaps, and a vent for the dryer—but that's no reason for locating them in a remote corner of the basement. Here's a trio of step-saving alternatives.

Left: Stackable units fit neatly into a narrow space, like this family entrance storage wall. It's adjacent to the back door, so the dryer can vent through the exterior wall behind it. Doors close off everything when washday is over.

The other two closets hold coats, and the water heater. Soaps and bulky, seldom-used items go into cabinets above.

Center: Bedroom-bath areas are where most dirty clothes end up, so it's logical to locate your equipment there. But what if there's no room for a laundry in your bathroom?

Here the homeowners just went around the corner—into an adjacent guest room that backs up to the bathroom plumbing wall. A laminated-plastic countertop and louvered doors hide the appliances, and a shallow cabinet at left holds supplies.

Right: If you have the space, combine your laundry with storage and a sewing-hobby center. This one fits into a small room off the kitchen.

The appliances are lined up along the rear wall, with a counter on one side and cabinets above. Roomy table can be used for sewing, snacks or sorting clothes. A bin for laundry or sewing scraps rolls into the knee space from behind.

DRESS-UPS FOR CANNED FRUITS

Enjoy the fresh flavor and sunny color of summertime fruit every month of the year. All you need is a can opener, a few minutes' time, and some fresh ideas, such as these.

Spiced Citrus Appetizer Cup

Tantalize your taste buds with a spicy orange-grapefruit appetizer cup—

1-pound can (2 cups) mixed grapefruit and orange sections, undrained
3 inches stick cinnamon

Dash ground cloves

Dash ground ginger

Combine all ingredients in saucepan; simmer for 10 minutes. Remove cinnamon stick. Chill. Serve in small glass dishes. Garnish with maraschino cherry. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

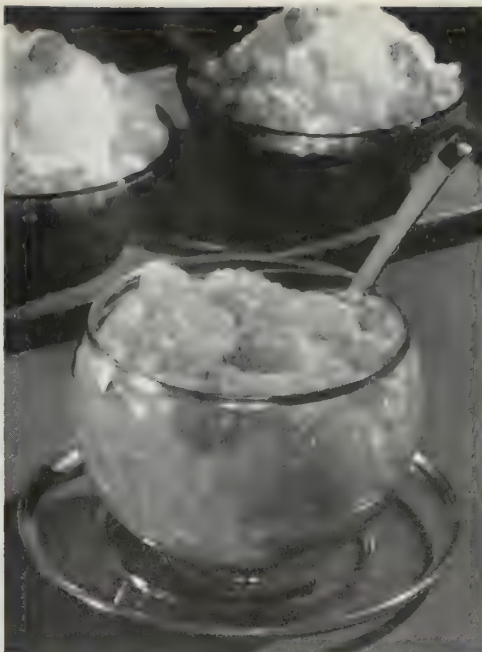

Choco-Pear Dessert

Let the kids help you "shake up" this quick dessert—

1 1-pound can (2 cups) pear halves
2 envelopes mix-in-container instant chocolate pudding mix

Few drops rum flavoring

Drain pear halves, reserving syrup. Prepare pudding mix according to package directions, substituting the pear syrup for the liquid called for. Add rum flavoring. Place 2 pear halves in each dish; top with pudding. Makes 3 servings.

Ambrosia Sauce

A fast fruit topper for ice cream, toasted pound or angel cake

1 1-pound can (2 cups) fruit cocktail

2 tablespoons sugar

2 teaspoons cornstarch

Dash salt

2 tablespoons water

2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed

1 orange, peeled and diced

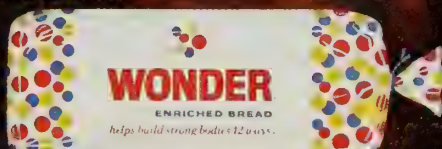

½ cup flaked coconut

Drain fruit cocktail, reserving 1 cup syrup. In saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt; blend in water. Add reserved syrup and orange juice concentrate. Cook and stir till mixture thickens and boils. Add fruit cocktail, diced orange, and coconut. Chill. Serve over vanilla ice cream. Makes 2½ cups.

TWO REFRIGERATOR TREATS

See pages 96 and 97

When your calendar is completely full on the day you're expecting company, don't panic. Here are two make-ahead desserts to impress any gourmet.

Brandied Bombe

A dessert to spice a special occasion—

- ¼ cup brandy
- 1 1-pound can pitted dark sweet cherries, drained
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream
- 1 quart chocolate ice cream
- Chocolate curls
- 1 cup whipping cream
- Few drops red food coloring
- Pour brandy over cherries and let stand 4 to 6 hours. Soften vanilla ice cream;

mold to form shell about ¾ inch thick in a 5½-cup melon mold or a 1½-quart bowl. Freeze firm. Soften chocolate ice cream. Stir in cherries and brandy. Spoon into vanilla shell. Cover; freeze firm. Unmold. Whip cream till soft peaks form; tint pink with red food coloring. Spoon pink whipped cream into a pastry bag with a decorator tip or into a syringe-type decorator. Press out to make rosettes around the bottom and top of the bombe. Garnish bombe with chocolate curls. Serve immediately. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Mandarin Crown

- 1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup sugar
- ¾ cup pineapple juice
- ¼ cup water
- 2 egg whites
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 6-ounce can (⅔ cup) evaporated milk, chilled icy cold
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 11-ounce can mandarin orange sections, drained

In a saucepan, combine gelatin, sugar, a dash salt, pineapple juice, and water. Heat and stir till gelatin dissolves. Chill till partially set. Add egg whites and vanilla; beat till fluffy. Whip the chilled evaporated milk till thickened; add lemon juice and continue beating till soft peaks form. Fold into gelatin mixture; then fold in orange sections. Pour into 6-cup mold. Chill till firm; unmold. Serve with Cranberry Sauce. In a saucepan, gradually stir 1½ cups low-calorie cranberry juice cocktail into 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Cook over low heat, stirring till mixture thickens, about 2 minutes. Stir in non-caloric sweetener to equal ¼ cup sugar. Chill. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Little things mean a lot.

"When we moved into our home 10 years ago, it had a 9-year old KitchenAid dishwasher," says Mrs. Edward Kaminsky. "I've used it every day and have only had 3 repair calls. I think KitchenAid is the best."

19 years ago, Mr. Fernand Thierry surprised his wife with a KitchenAid dishwasher. Why KitchenAid? "He knew the Hobart name and he thinks their products are the best," Mrs. Thierry says. "I'd recommend KitchenAid to anyone, too," she adds.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT MILDEW DAMAGE TO PAINT

Mildew and moisture are inseparable. If you live in a humid area, you already know how moldy fungus growth can stain paint. Even in dry climates, just a few warm, damp days may let it gain a foothold on your house.

Don't mistake mildew for dirt, though the two may often look the same. Dirt is nothing more than a film of surface discoloration. Mildew is an organic growth that spreads, then pushes its way up through paint from underneath.

Usually you'll find it in shaded areas, such as under eaves. However, spots that get sunlight every day may suffer from it if they were damp when the paint was applied.

Soft paint is no match for mildew. While fungus seldom attacks the hard enamel used on trim, it can easily burrow through the comparatively softer film of regular household paint.

You can't identify mildew by its color. It may be black, green, red, purple, or gray. The best way to distinguish it from dirt is to inspect it with a magnifying glass. As mold grows, it forms clusters or spores that appear uniform in size and color. Dirt, in close-up, has a random-size, light-color look and sand particles.

You can also tell the two apart by washing with household bleach. Mildew will become lighter in several minutes. Dirt won't bleach.

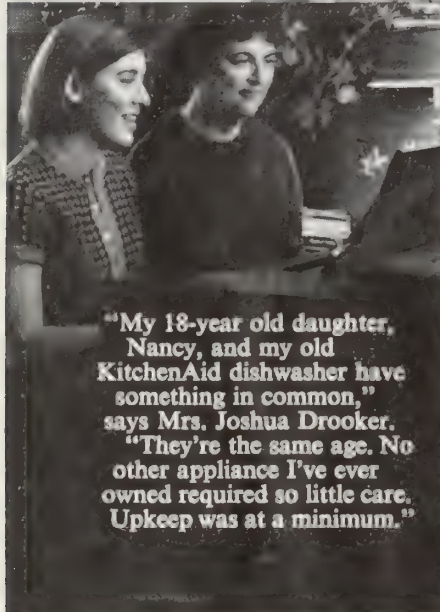

How to Kill Mildew

To get rid of it, scrub the surface with a solution of three parts of a household trisodium phosphate cleaner, one part strong detergent, two parts bleach, and three parts water. Rinse well.

Scrubbing will kill mildew, but it won't prevent its return. That's a job for mildew-resistant paint. If you live in an exceptionally humid climate, the paint should be fortified with a mildewicide booster, available at most paint stores.

Mildew can also form on interior surfaces in damp areas such as bathrooms, laundry rooms, or kitchens. You can kill it with the solution listed above.

To prevent recurrence, use a hard-finish paint, such as enamel, when you repaint; or add a mildewicide booster. ■

"My 18-year old daughter, Nancy, and my old KitchenAid dishwasher have something in common," says Mrs. Joshua Drooker. "They're the same age. No other appliance I've ever owned required so little care. Upkeep was at a minimum."

Our new KitchenAid dishwasher recently replaced a 19-year old model in the John O'Brien home. "I'm sure our old one would have continued 'til it dropped dead," says Mrs. O'Brien. "During the 9 years we've lived here, we had only 3 minor service calls."

"Before I bought a dishwasher, I asked the men that service dishwashers what they recommended," says Mrs. Harry Collyer. "They said KitchenAid so I bought one. Almost all my friends have them too," she adds. "We think it's the best."

Mrs. Henry Caproni recently gave her sister a present. An 18-year old KitchenAid dishwasher. "It still works real good," Mrs. Caproni says, "and since I got a new KitchenAid I thought my sister would like the old one. She does."

How long do you expect a dishwasher to last?

If you buy a KitchenAid dishwasher, don't be surprised if it holds up for 20 years or longer. With hardly any service problems.

But don't take our word for it. Just see what these six families in the Greater Boston area have to say.

Of course, you may not keep your KitchenAid that long. But isn't it nice to know you can?

PROVIDERS FOR PETS FOR OVER 60 YEARS

EASY-DOES-IT WEED KILLING

In the continuing battle against garden weeds, hand-to-hand combat is out, chemical warfare is in. You can use your garden spreader or sprayer to apply chemical controls that will free your lawn and flower beds of weeds in record time.

These chemicals are of three types: preemergence, postemergence, and sterilant. The preemergence kinds destroy the young seedling grasses upon germination and the postemergence ones kill adult plants. Both consist of selective killers and some do little, if any, damage to the permanent plants (perennial grasses or flowers) growing in the treated area.

If the situation looks absolutely hopeless, you can employ the third control, sterilization of the soil. This clears the soil of all living organisms, including seeds, to give the area a chance for a weed-free new start. Depending on the sterilant used, planting must be delayed from several days to several months.

At the outset, make it your business to know the weed you are fighting so you can buy the correct control chemicals. Dig up plants of unfamiliar weeds and take them to your garden center for identification and a recommendation for treatment. Also, you should learn the limitations, as well as the possible dangers, of the weedicide specified for the job. Follow to the letter all directions on the container labels.

Preemergence weed controls

These kill annual grasses, such as crabgrass, chickweed, and foxtail, that are so difficult to eliminate from the lawn or flower border. This type of weedicide kills the tiny seedlings before they have a chance to make an appearance. Of course, you must get even distribution and full coverage because the chemical forms a protective shield over the soil surface. Seed will germinate in any areas missed or in any spots where the soil surface is disturbed after treatment. There are several effective chemicals, such as d.c.p.a., chlordane, and trifluralin, available in brand-name blends.

You'll have to read the formula on the package label to find which killing agent is in the blend. Trifluralin and d.c.p.a. control both grassy and broadleaved weed seedlings and can even be used safely in established flower borders.

Postemergence weed controls

Even if weeds are growing vigorously, there's no need to feel the cause is lost. Plants of crabgrass and other annual weeds succumb to a variety of chemicals, including phenyl mercuric acetate (P.M.A.) and disodium methyl arsonate. Broadleaved plants, such as dandelion and plantain, disappear when treated with 2,4-D or a related chemical. To eradicate tougher weeds, brush, and poison ivy, use 2,4,5-T and 2,4,5-TP—they're more potent than 2,4-D.

The postemergents when used on lawns are selective, but must be applied as labels direct. Chemicals in the 2,4-D family will kill a desirable broadleaved plant as quickly as they do a weed, so use them with care. Dicamba, a comparatively new broadleaved weed control, routs the toughest weeds, including both knotweed and chickweed. Blends of dicamba and 2,4-D give even broader control.

How to apply weed killers

You can get weedicides in dry or liquid forms. The dry kinds are easy to apply with a lawn spreader, which gives full, even coverage. Or, you can get them in shaker-topped cans for spot-treating a nearly weed-free turf.

Dispense the liquid forms through a tank sprayer under pressure—by gravity through a bottle with a spray-nozzle top, or by water pressure from a hose-end sprayer. Be sure to clearly mark the sprayer used for the application of 2,4-D so it won't be used accidentally to apply an insecticide on desirable shrubs and flowers.

To be effective, preemergents should be applied in early spring before weed seeds start to germinate. The postemergent kinds are most effective when used on actively growing plants from midspring to early summer. An early fall application of 2,4-D will help get you a blemish-free spring turf. ■

A WORK-FREE HOUSE Begins on page 82

The living room fireplace hood is painted sheet metal, recessed into the wall. The fireplace is open to the family room on the other side of the wall, too. The wall is concrete with exposed aggregate—it matches the foundation outside.

Traffic from the entry passes through the living room without disturbing the furniture grouping. The floor is marked with dark slate (below) that never shows the wear of a traffic pattern. Steps lead to the bedroom area on the next level.

The concrete wall supports the middle of the ceiling beams that extend the width of this part of the house. The wood decking serves as the ceiling, also.

LIVABLE BIG HOUSE Begins on page 82

Every big-family house needs a big-family kitchen—this one (above) is large enough to hold a table so the whole family can sit down to breakfast at the same time. The big window wall here faces the front and seems to add the space of the deck outside to the room. Large shrubs and small trees help provide privacy from the street.

The front entry (right) bids welcome to guests. The roof of this end of the house extends to provide overhead protection. Inside, the floor level is lower than that of the living room, but the ceiling is the same height. This way, guests get a very dramatic introduction to the house.

All the siding is the same stucco as you see here—the roof is wood shingles. Only the exterior walls of the house are load-bearing. Interior partition walls could be shifted to adapt the plan to any alternate scheme. This entry, for instance, could be made smaller if you wanted to add some of its space to the dining room.

The great design of this house isn't confined to the front only—the house is distinctive from any angle. Here, the varying shapes and sizes of the windows create visual interest. The simple deck adds to the multifarious effect.

The downspouts are set out from the house itself in the back also. They carry rainwater straight down without a bend and stop short of the ground level. Just below each downspout, a sunken flue tile filled with gravel receives the water and feeds it to a drainage system. This way, there's no danger of it washing across the sloping lawn or seeping back into the basement.

The exposed foundation was faced with brick in order to add to the neat appearance. Those two pier-like extensions support the floor beams of the deck. On a flat lot, a concrete patio could replace the raised deck.

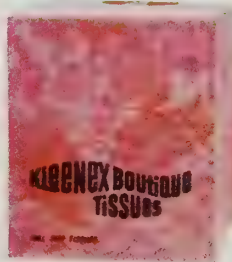

The dramatic openness of the living room contrasts with the secluded atmosphere of the alcove (see plan). It's small—only 7x9 feet—but can serve as a home office, a library, a seating area for just the two of you. And you could plan the furniture so it would be easy to sleep an overnight guest there, too (there's a large closet just around the corner).

This interior reflects the discreet ornamentation of the outside. The simple trim is stained dark, the redwood balcony railing is light, and the fireplace is a straightforward rectangle that reaches the full height of the ceiling.

Latest example: the round one.

It's the completely redesigned heart of an air conditioning system for your home. Located outside, it generates the cooling which then flows into every room.

Being round, it's more attractive. Compact. Efficient. Quiet. Very considerate of your neighbors, your shrubbery. And very unlike the box types.

It has an extra large coil area and a special circuit to prevent damage to the compressor.

If scratched, the round one won't break out in rust. Made of special Weather Armor steel, it heals itself.

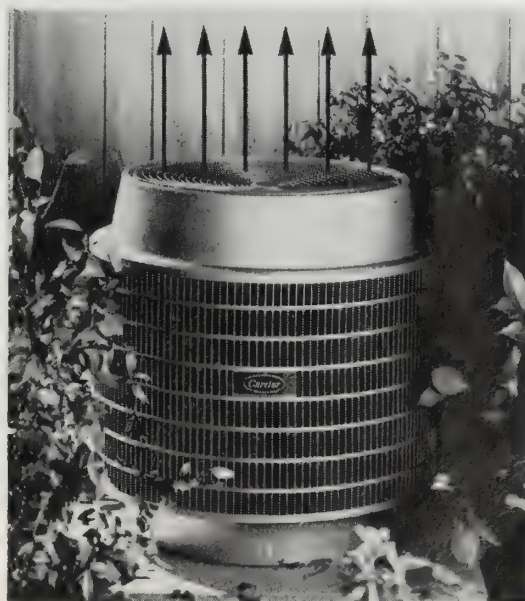

Being Carrier, it's designed to operate at temperature extremes well above the industry standard. It's built to keep weather and worry off your back for a long, long time.

Someday other units will be like the round one.

But don't wait. There's an advantage to buying right now while installation costs are at a pre-season low, when installation can be at your convenience.

TRY VINYLS FOR SEWING AND CRAFTS

Only once in a blue moon does a new craft and fashion fabric come along with the immediate appeal of vinyl. There are virtually hundreds of uses for this very practical, very high-style fabric. But, as with everything else that's new, vinyl takes a little getting used to before you'll feel comfortable sewing with it. You don't handle this fabric the same way you cut and stitched the old standbys. The patterns you select have to be geared to vinyls, too. However, it's worth your while to learn these simple basics of working with vinyl. Once you have mastered them, there's no end to the creative things you can do with this fabric.

In home sewing projects, vinyls lend themselves to chic tablecloths, place mats, Roman shades, tailored cafe curtains, pillow and cushion covers—even bedspreads. Because vinyls are so easily wiped off, they're the perfect fabric for youngster's bibs, children's smocks and aprons, your own pocketed aprons for housework, or fashionable hostess tunics for serving.

Vinyl fabrics are either a plastic layer backed with jersey or a woven fabric impregnated with vinyl. Two weights are available—the heavy weight vinyl that has been used for some time in upholstery, and the new lighter weight vinyls found in fabric departments and designed specifically for home sewing and craft projects. This is the vinyl that's setting trends. You'll see it most often in its simulated leather look, though some vinyls are available in reptile patterns, "wet-look" patents, and solid colors. This spring, look for the very newest vinyls in pretty pastels. Prices usually run $4 or $5 a yard and 54 inches wide is standard.

The first vinyl fabrics to appear on the market could be wiped clean with a cloth and warm, sudsy water. Some of the new vinyls are machine washable. You should wash them in warm, not hot, water and hang them up to drip-dry. It's not advisable to machine-dry vinyls, nor is dry cleaning recommended. For best results, care for your vinyl fabrics at home. Inquire when you buy your vinyl whether it's washable or just "wash-off-able."

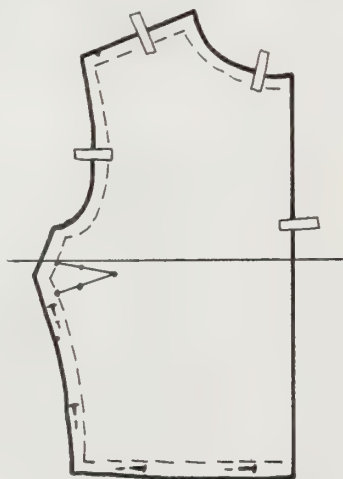

The pattern you choose for your vinyl fabric should be simple, with straight lines and a minimum number of seams and darts. Avoid patterns that call for eased seams and buttonholes. For closing, use zippers, snap fasteners, or frogs.

Make sure your pattern fits before you cut and sew it. This is one time where accuracy is a must! Stitches show on vinyl fabrics and if you've made a mistake, you're stuck with it. It can't be ripped and sewed a second time. It's a good idea to try your pattern on muslin, an old sheet, or some other easily reworked fabric before you try it on the vinyl. You can make any pattern corrections on this fabric. If many corrections are needed, plan to rip your muslin garment and actually use it for the pattern or make another paper pattern from it. Use this to cut your vinyl fabric.

Cutting and marking vinyl differs slightly from handling standard fabrics. You start by working with your vinyl wrong side up. Lay your pattern pieces on the back side. Since there is no "grain" to vinyl, there is no "up" or "down" to worry about in pattern placement (except some printed vinyls that have a pattern design, giving them an "up" and "down"). However, it's advisable to follow pattern directions as to "lengthwise" and "crosswise" placement of pattern pieces, just as in the standard woven fabrics.

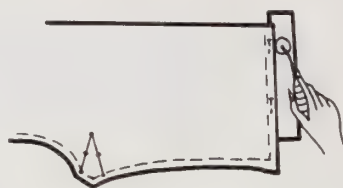

Pin marks will show in vinyl, so avoid making holes with pins if you can do the job with tape.

Either cellophane tape or masking tape can be used. Lay your pattern piece in position on the fabric and hold it flat. Then anchor it with as many pieces of tape as will be needed to keep the pattern from slipping while you mark around it. If you feel you must use straight pins, then pin only into the seam allowance.

When your pattern is secured to the vinyl, mark with chalk or use a flat edge tracing wheel.

The tracing wheel and dressmaker's carbon paper (which is not the same as the carbon you use in your typewriter, so don't try to be economical and substitute) should be used to outline the pattern piece as well as to mark any necessary darts or details. Your scissors should be sharp. Cut with a firm, steady action and don't let the vinyl bunch up in your scissors.

Your sewing machine should be set at 8 to 10 stitches per inch. Sew with light tension and presser foot pressure on your machine and make sure the tension on both the top and bobbin threads are balanced to insure a good strong seam. The thread you use should be a heavy-duty mercerized thread and for machine sewing a medium-sized (#14) needle works best. Stitch clear vinyl with thread that's transparent. For hand sewing, use a size #7 or #8 needle for best results. Keep your machine moving slowly and evenly so the vinyl won't slip. Top-stitched (A), flat-felled (B), or welt (C), seams are best for working with vinyl.

There really is such a thing as a light-

There really is. Read closely.

A thin layer of black acrylic hidden between drapery fabric and backing makes it completely lightproof. Neither sun nor a searchlight can get through.

A marshmallow-white acrylic backing helps maintain room temperature by tapping cold or heat that seeps through a window. It also softens sound.

All the room-side of the drapery does look helplessly beautiful. It's Avisco® nylon and cotton woven into jacquard

(the little teeth that feed the fabric along under the presser foot) while topstitching or putting in a zipper, place a strip of tissue paper between the fabric and the feed dog. After you're through stitching, tear the tissue paper away. (One company has a zipper adhesive that you press on a zipper tape with your fingertips. When the strip is peeled away, the adhesive strip remains and the zipper is stuck in place, all ready for sewing.)

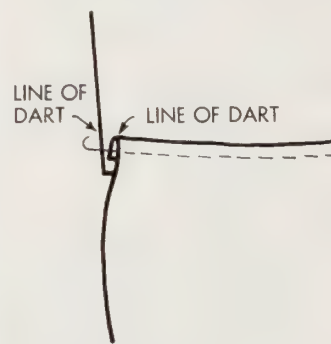

Darts are stronger and smoother if they're topstitched. Mark shape of your dart on the right side of the vinyl, using chalk or tracing wheel and carbon paper. Slash through center of the dart to within $\frac{1}{3}$ inch of the point. Fold fabric under on the line of the dart at one side and bring fold over to meet the line of the dart on the other side. Then top-stitch along the fold. On the wrong side of the dart, trim close to the stitching line. Make corresponding darts symmetrical.

When stitching seams on your machine in vinyl fabric, you'll find they can be held in place with a few dots of fabric glue for easy handling—just the same as with leather.

Pressing should be done with extreme care. Test a scrap before you lower an iron to your sewing project. The best way to press vinyl is to finger press it during construction. Open seams on a flat surface and apply pressure with your fingers as you move from one end of the seam to the other. If you find it absolutely necessary to iron vinyl, use a warm dry iron and a press cloth.

Vinyls are apt to be around for a good long time in the future, so why miss out on the beauty and practicality of this versatile fabric? Start with a small, simple project while you're getting the "feel" of it, then tackle whatever appeals to you. It's much easier than you think!

ARE YOU SURE YOU DON'T HAVE A GARBAGE DISPOSER?

Maybe you thought things like this only happened in the cities. Sorry. Garbage is unsanitary anywhere. Except in a disposer.

But, sanitation aside, doesn't working around refuse when you're fixing a meal bother you? Wouldn't you rather not wrap gooey whatever ever again?

Then call your plumber. Tell him you want a National disposer. National disposers are quiet. Rugged. And long lasting.

WIN MONEY FOR YOUR RECIPES

FAST OR FANCY WAYS WITH TURKEY

YOUR SPECIAL WAY WITH TURKEY could make you a prize-winner next October. We're looking for recipes featuring whole turkey, turkey legs or breasts, canned turkey, or frozen turkey roasts. Enter your fast or fancy idea today. Two Cooks-of-the-Month receive $50 each. Four Runners-up receive $25 each, and 12 Honor Roll winners get $10 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured on the Prize Tested Recipes pages next October. All 18 winners receive a framed Better Homes and Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Hints to Help You

Fast Ways with Turkey might be a quick turkey-vegetable platter made from a turkey roast or a turkey casserole using convenience mixes. Try creamed turkey—slices or cubes—over bread or biscuits. Ideas:
turkey and cheese bake layered turkey loaf turkey-apple toss
turkey chow mein

Fancy Ways with Turkey might be wine-sauced turkey slices, an elegant luncheon salad, a seasoned ragout using cooked, cubed turkey, or a special oven bake idea. Suggestions:
saucy smoked turkey sherried turkey casserole turkey creole turkey paprikash turkey curry

Contest Rules

1. Write or type your recipe clearly on one side of the paper and mark it "October Fast Ways with Turkey" or "October Fancy Ways with Turkey." If you wish, send a recipe for each of the two categories.
2. Print your full name and address in upper right corner of paper.
3. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, teaspoons.
4. Specify brand names of the nationally known food products you use as ingredients so we can test your recipe with the same brands.
5. Include 50 to 100 words about the origin of the recipe you submit.
6. Recipes submitted become property of Better Homes and Gardens.
7. Entries must be postmarked by midnight March 31. In cases where duplicate recipes are submitted, the one with the earliest postmark will be judged. All judges' decisions will be final.
8. We reserve the right to adjust and edit winning recipes.
9. Address the recipes you enter to 6203 Test Kitchen, Better Homes and Gardens, Des Moines, Iowa 50303.

cure for insomnia. It took a doctor's diagnosis to show her that bathing was the cause of her sleepless nights—for the simple reason that a very hot bath is as stimulating as an icy plunge. (This stimulating effect is not true of a warm bath, however. A warm bath produces exactly the opposite effect and is, indeed, often a cure for insomnia.)

Most of the dangers of bathing lie in too long exposure to extremes of temperature. Many people believe that a bath won't do them any good unless they lie down in scalding hot water or suffer martyrdom in an icy shower. The all-time record offender is that combination of extreme heat and cold in which the bather parboils himself for half an hour and tops it off with a cold shower. Only the young and rugged can take this without injury to health.

There is a widespread belief that baths may be responsible for catching cold. Not true. The chief reason why people catch cold after taking a bath is that they don't dry themselves properly. It takes at least five minutes of vigorous rubbing to get thoroughly dry. Few people allow themselves more than one minute, and they almost invariably go out with damp hair at the napes of their necks. As a means to set you up to catch cold, the back of the neck is a modern counterpart of Achilles' heel.

WHAT IS THE SECRET OF A PERFECT BATH?

First, let's get our terminology straight. Hydrotherapists classify baths according to the following degrees of temperature: cold (less than 65 degrees F.); cool (65 to 80 degrees F.); neutral (80 to 95 degrees F.); warm (95 to 98 degrees F.); hot (98 to 104 degrees F.). It's important to note the wide range in temperature between hot and cold baths (nearly 35 degrees F.), and the fact that there are three classifications between the two.

The secret of getting the perfect bath lies in the synchronization of the temperature of the bath water and the time you stay in it.

During a hot bath, your body first experiences a general stimulation, very much like that of a cold water dip. Breathing is shallow and the internal temperature of your body slowly starts to go up. Your heart action can rise as high as four times above normal when you sit down in the tub, and the blood vessels near the skin surface soon start to dilate, causing perspiration.

It's a misconception that your "pores open." It's the dilation of the blood vessels and not a change in the pores that promotes perspiration in hot baths.

Presently, your muscles relax and breathing becomes more normal, although the oxygen intake is still very low. The heart has to pump twice as fast to fill the dilated blood vessels.

If the bath is as hot as 104 degrees F., and if it is prolonged, the temperature of the bather begins to rise, and it may go as high as 103 to 105 degrees. When the internal temperature of the bather goes above 102 degrees, a danger line is reached in respect to the heart.

ARE BATH PREPARATIONS WORTHWHILE?

Originally, the purpose of bath preparations was to provide fragrance and bubbles (or foam). Bath salts or crystals provided fragrance and water-softening properties. Today's bath preparations, however, are usually combination products that perform several functions. For example, a bubble-bath preparation may contain a water softener and bath oil, in addition to bubble ingredients and fragrance. All of these can make your bath more comfortable.

You should make sure, however, that bath preparations are well mixed with the water before you sit down in the tub. This is particularly important for children, since physicians have reported urinary tract irritations in children resulting from contact with concentrated bubble bath solutions.

Brine baths, in which five or ten pounds of rock salt or plain table salt are dissolved into a tub of warm water, are enjoyed by many persons. But don't leave the brine solution in the tub long, and rinse the tub thoroughly after your bath, for salt residue can corrode both metal and porcelain. In hospitals, where the brine treatment is used, special teakwood tubs are often provided expressly for salt baths.

Bath salts can be a potential hazard for you as well, in that they may make water too alkaline and cause itching or redness, especially to sensitive skin.

HOW MUCH DO SOAPS AND OILS HELP YOUR SKIN?

Basically, soap makes water slippery and coats dirt so it can be washed away. For most persons, just plain washing with soap and water is tonic enough for the skin. Most soaps now available are mild enough to be used by both adults and infants.

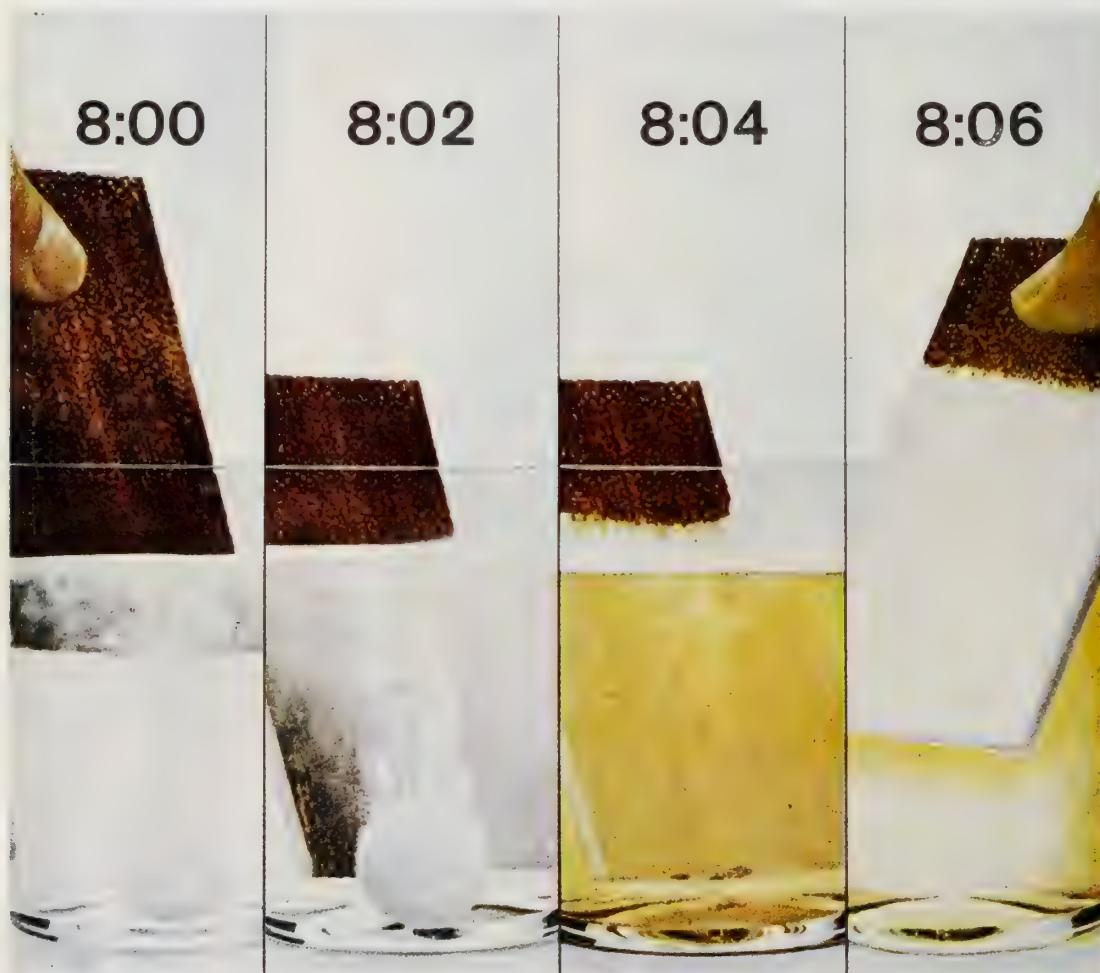

All soaps are made from natural fats—nut oils, animal tallow, unsaturated oils—either alone or in combination. Detergents, on the other hand, have a synthetic base, usually petroleum.

Most toilet soaps are made from a blend of tallow and nut oils, and are available in a wide range of types, some containing perfumes, colorings, medications, antiseptics, or other added ingredients. Beauty, bath, or toilet bars are usually a combination of detergents and emollients, which lather freely in hard water and form little scum or bathtub ring. The bath detergent is milder than laundry detergent and as mild on the skin as traditional soaps, although it does produce finer suds which require more thorough rinsing of your skin.

The mildest soap for your skin is castile soap, originally made exclusively with olive oil. Today, however, "castile" may refer to any mild soap made with a vegetable oil. Hypo-allergenic soap, a simple formula soap with a low concentration of potential irritants, is made specifically for those persons who are sensitive to other products.

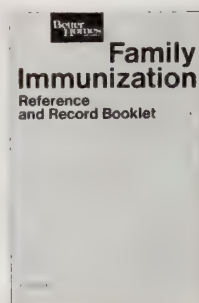

If you have dry skin, bath oils composed of corn oils, cottonseed oil, and lecithin are particularly helpful. Bath oils always contain some detergent, and this saves you from soaping, which would result in the loss of natural skin oil. Super-fatted soaps also are good for dry skin. They contain extra fat or oil such as cold cream, cocoa butter, coconut oil, or lanolin to lubricate and smooth the skin. Another good product for dry skin is transparent soap, containing glycerin, which moistens skin. ■

BEDROOM BUILT-INS

Children's rooms are for more than sleeping, as anyone with an active youngster knows. Games, books, hobbies—how can you fit them all into the 8x10 feet or so that many children's bedrooms have? Carefully planned storage is the answer. Here's a pair of space-saving examples.

Photograph: Hedrich-Blessing. Designers: Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Mezritsch. Source: Susan Medlock

Here the secret was to use the perimeter of the room for beds and storage, leaving the center open for uncongested play space. One wall accommodates a pair of bookcases, a bulletin board, plus twin rollaways that slide under upholstered backrests so they can serve as sofas by day.

Every square inch counts in a really cramped room. This one makes maximum use of one wall by lining up a desk, bed, and narrow shelves and dividing them by plywood. Bowed planks form the arches. Shirred draperies make a colorful background and hide a window at left.

HOW TO COVER BOXED CUSHIONS

Does anyone ever have enough cushions? They add color and comfort everywhere—in corners of the sofa, on favorite easy chairs, tossed on a bed and even on the floor. To add to your cushion collection, your hand at creating your own boxed cushions. You can choose the forms in any shape you choose—round, square, rectangular, or triangular. As you'll have a field day in the fabric department, select just the right color and pattern.

Boxed cushions have depth as well as length and width. The "boxing" is a narrow strip of fabric, cut on the bias, that joins the top and bottom sections, and is the width of the thickness of the cushion.

Tips on measuring and cutting the fabric

First, measure width, length and depth of pillow form you're covering. Then measure the distance around all sides or circumference. Cut top and bottom pieces, adding approximately one inch all around for the seam allowance. Then cut one long strip the width of the pillow depth and as long as the four sides added together. Allow for a seam on top and bottom and at both ends. (Example: For a pillow form that measures 12 by 14 inches and two inches deep, you'll need to cut one long piece of fabric two inches wide by 52 inches plus one-inch seam allowances.)

How to sew

To stitch the boxing strip to the top piece, pin the strip with edges even at corners. Sew on the wrong sides of both boxing strip and top piece.

When you start to stitch, lower the needle into the fabric about half an inch from the edge. Stitch to within half inch of the corner.

Next, raise the presser foot on your machine and clip the edge of strip to the needle. Pivot the fabric on the needle at an angle and take one stitch diagonally across the end of the slash. Complete the turn and then continue stitching around. Pivot in the same way at each of the corners.

Stitch ends of boxing strip together. Leave one side open for pillow form when joining the second piece to the boxing strip. Turn finished cover inside out through the opening. Add button and braid trims.

Insert a precut pillow form. Solid foam forms are easiest. When using a foam rubber form, cover it first with muslin for best results.

Finishing touches

To complete, blindstitch edges of opening together by hand so covers can be snipped apart for laundering. Or if zipper is used, it should be an inch shorter than the opening. ■

TULIPS FOR YOUR TABLE

Tulips wear many faces, some slender, some round and full, some a delicate oval. They're all a delight to arrange either alone or combined with other greens and flowers. You'll find each of the many tulip varieties requires a different arranging technique. Here are three samples.

Photographs: Hopkins

Above: Full and feathery parrot tulips are shown off to best advantage in an informal or rustic type of container. You won't need many of them—just a few look dramatic and opulent. Arrange loosely, leaving plenty of space between the blooms. Then center a few rolled up leaves for a surprising focal point.

Left: Exquisitely proportioned Darwin tulips are set off effectively in any traditional container such as this usabata. Insert one slender tall tulip in the center of the bowl as a highpoint and stairstep two more of the same color directly below. Place two more tulips of a contrasting shade at the base, each at a slight angle. Fill in with three gently arched tulip leaves in a triangle shape.

Above: Delicate long petaled retroflex (lily tulips) lend themselves to a classic Japanese style of arranging. To make this composition, center a bowl in a deep tray, and insert tulips in airy perpendicular tiers in the bowl. Remember to place buds at top and open flowers at base. Reserve two large blooms and insert them at an angle in a small needlepoint on the tray for the low line.

WHAT'S NEW IN SPRINKLERS?

The water sprinklers of today are a far cry from the old perforated rings commonly used to sprinkle lawns 25 years ago. Now, there are sprinklers you can program to water a square, a rectangle, a circle, a half-circle, or any free-form shape you can dream up. Some even come with a built-in timer that shuts off the water after an allotted amount has been dispersed. Nylon and high-impact plastics make new design concepts possible. Here's what's new:

Impulse sprinklers ($6 to $9). The revolving sprinkler head emits a jet of water in a full or partial circle.

The construction of this type sprinkler has been greatly improved. For example, the number of moving parts was reduced—to just one in one model. On the new units, there is no delay at the end of the arc, where the head reverses direction, so water is laid down evenly over the entire area covered.

Contour sprinkler (about $20). By adjusting the levers on the top of this sprinkler, you can lay the water down in an infinite number of patterns.

There are up to three nozzles available to distribute the water evenly over the entire area programmed by the levers

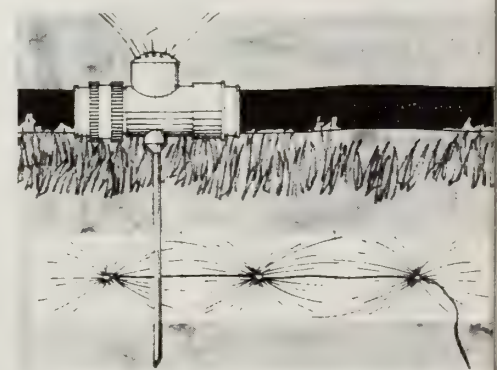

Just place the sprinkler near the center of the area to be watered, and adjust the levers while the sprinkler goes through one revolution. At least one model comes complete with a timer, so you can dial the amount of water you want (it turns off automatically) and then go on about your business.

Adjustable spray head ($3 to $6). Many sprinklers of this type are on the market. They allow you to water a limited number of patterns by making simple adjustments on the head of sprinkler

Some are adjustable from a fine mist to heavy jets of water.

Tandem sprinklers ($4 to $6 for three sprinkler heads—hose not included). You can simulate an underground sprinkler system with these portable heads that attach between short sections of hose—spike holds head true

Use just one at a time if you like, or all three. You can adjust coverage of water jets from the faucet if you want to water a narrow or medium-wide strip.

WHICH WINDOW TREATMENT SUITS YOU BEST?

Photograph: Maris. Interior Designer: Albert Pensis. Source: Kit Tyson

If you've drawn a blank on what to do about a particular window, try this approach. Analyze the size and shape of the window and the mood of the room. Then decide on the material that best interprets the look you want. Don't limit your thinking to the usual curtains or draperies. Unconventional materials can trigger highly fashionable window treatments.

Photograph: de Gennaro. Designer: David Parry. Source: Pauline Graves

Above right: Trellis-like shutters give pattern excitement to this picture window without diminishing the natural light. And thanks to the screen of green plants outside, privacy is not a problem. Two-inch laths, spaced six inches apart, were hinged together and framed with wooden strips. A 1x6 was added to the wall above the window opening for a look of structural strength and all wood surfaces were then stained brown.

Above: When the window wall is the only one that will accommodate a king-size bed, how do you handle the window? The solution in this bedroom was to hang semi-sheer draperies from ceiling to floor. This treatment created an arresting backdrop for the bamboo-postered bed luxuriously covered in black velvet. Opaque window shades behind the draperies can be raised to admit sunlight (the draperies still afford partial privacy).

Right: Look what this turned-on treatment does for a pair of very ordinary double-hung windows! Two separate openings are now unified into one electrifying focal point. An op art print covers the double plywood lambrequin and both window shades. Solid color walls and carpet keep the busy pattern in check so it doesn't completely overpower the room.

WITH A NICE LITTLE ITALIAN ACCENT

Kraft Italian-style Macaroni Dinner

Macaroni, spices and lots and lots of Italian know-how. Just add tomato paste and a little bit later you're there. A hot and hearty meal for 4, delicately seasoned the Venetian way. Only pennies a serving.

SHELVES THAT SERVE

Whether you want extra storage, a handy work counter, or a spot to showcase a few choice accessories, the solution might well be a built-in shelf. What's great about a built-in is, you can tailor it to fit a specific need in the exact amount of space available. Here are two good-looking examples to inspire you.

Below: An unusual wedge-shaped shelf turns an angled wall into an asset. Ornate marble pedestals, salvaged from an old building, support the shelf which is secured to the wall with angle brackets. Shelf is 21 inches high to allow slide-under storage of twin stools when they're not being used for extra seating.

Source: Susan Jones Medlock

Above: The "workingest" spot in this kitchen is a free-form shelf with serviceable laminated plastic top. Nearby shuttered-door cabinet houses cook books, typewriter, and stationery supplies so shelf can serve as a desk right here in the work area. Other times this shelf becomes a mealtime server, snack bar, and place to arrange flowers.

SPECIAL EFFECT WALLS

Why limit your wall treatment to the basics—paper, paint, and fabric? Instead improvise a backdrop that will be distinctively yours. For example, you might cut out wallpaper patterns and create your own original design; work up a montage of full-color magazine illustrations; or give dimension to a flat surface with wood or plastic moldings. These are just a few suggestions to stimulate your imagination.

Right: Want to set a living room "L" apart from the main section of the room—give it a character all its own? You might follow this contemporary example and cover your walls with paper-backed burlap. Then apply two-inch pre-painted molding strips, horizontally, and counter with a perpendicular strip every four feet. You can get a similar effect with gimp or another type of decorative braid.

Above: A pair of scissors and some varnish are all you need to re-create the art gallery appearance of this small entry. Clip color reproductions of paintings from magazines, old books, or art folders, and glue to the wall in montage fashion. Now add a protective coat of varnish. Here the wall treatment is extended to the door and window panels for a total look. Tiled floor adds a sharp contrast.

Photograph: Hopkins. Designer: David Ashe

Above: The current penchant for colorful posters prompted this gala wall hanging in a child's room. Glue posters to a piece of tempered hardboard (you can substitute perforated hardboard or cork) and edge with narrow molding strips painted a bright color. To protect posters, apply a coat of clear varnish. When posters are dry, frame each one with black electrician's tape. Then fasten the completed panel to the wall with screws. You can adapt this idea to other rooms in the home using travel or movie posters, old maps, menus, or blueprints.

Photograph: Lisanti. Decorator: Gloria Muroff, N.H.F.L. Source: June Edwards

Above: A trompe l'oeil wallpaper is a natural choice when you want to visually enlarge a small area like this narrow entrance hall. To simulate an airy arbor effect like this one, carefully cut around portions of the design before applying it to the wall with wallpaper paste. You can strengthen the summery, outdoor feeling by fastening shutters, painted dark green, to the back of the entry door.

Biscuits à la King!

BUSY-DAY CAKE TRIMS

Looking for easy ways to make your family's favorite cake extra-special? Here are three fast but festive ideas to help you do the job on hectic days.

Poke toasted slivered almonds into the top and sides of your favorite frosted cake, porcupine style.

Dot top of a frosted cake with chopped walnuts in a spiral design, then press broken walnuts against sides of cake. Use the palm of your hand, as above, to speed the process.

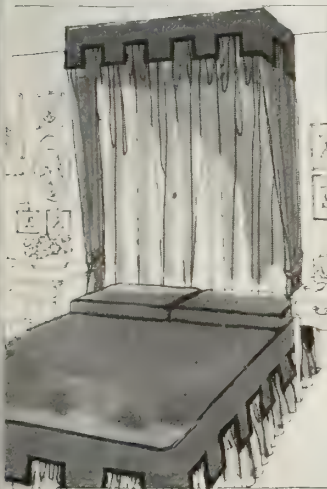

Melt one 1-ounce square unsweetened chocolate with $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon shortening. Using a teaspoon, drizzle chocolate from the tip in a steady stream along the edge of the frosted cake, letting chocolate run down the sides in an icicle pattern.

NO LADY SHOULD HAVE

you and your shadow clash over washing dishes—add a light directly over the sink. You'll get the job done faster—and a lot more effectively.

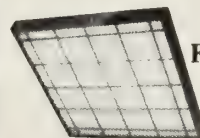

Bright idea: fluorescent tubes mounted under kitchen cabinets. Poor counter-top lighting can over-shadow the best cook. Result? "recipe squint," measuring mistakes and even cut fingers. Play safe. Brighten the counters where you work.

Make light of cooking with a modern, easy-cleaning light fixture over your range. "A watched pot" may never boil—but how will you know if you can't see it?

For a completely shadow-less kitchen—go all the way with a luminous ceiling. This evenly diffused illumination lights up cabinets, drawers, work surfaces and your smile.

For a brighter kitchen: replace your old ceiling fixture with a large, modern one. Glare-free lighting brightens traffic paths and lightens both cooking and cleaning chores.

GREEN-THUMB DECORATING

Whether you go in for houseplants in a big or little way, you'll want to show them off to best advantage by providing an appropriate setting. It could be as simple as a tabletop—or as sumptuous as an entire sunny room. To help you set the stage, here's a selection of fresh ideas. Just pick the one that best fits your "cast" of houseplants.

Left. This large sun porch is lively in every sense of the word. The window walls give Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Huber a year-around outlet for their gardening interests, plus good light for the hobby painters in the family. Treasured accessories, tastefully displayed, make great accents.

Rough-hewn pecky cypress boards form the adjustable shelves that rest on brackets from vertical roof supports. The jalousie windows open from top to bottom for ventilation needed during all seasons of the year.

It takes relatively few plants and little watering time to provide that "something green" so many people hanker after. You will find many plants compatible with this sort of setting. But be sure to add some bright flowers for color.

Plants here include grape ivy, Boston fern, rosary vine, dracaena, collinia palm—and gloxinias.

Photograph: Lisanti. Designer: Anthony Huber Source: Dorothy Rodenburg

Right. Even if you do not have floor windows designed like these, you can fill the space formed by standard corner windows with an L-shaped planting tray for a most pleasing effect. This 18-inch-wide tray, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hasegawa, is edged with 1x2-inch boards resting on 1/2x1-inch laths. You can paint or stain wood to match your decor. Bottom sides of laths are felt covered so the unit can be pulled out easily for cleaning. Pebble-filled metal tray liners catch runoff water and provide humidity to help keep plants healthy. Or, in place of the metal liners, the interior wood surfaces of the tray can be coated with fiber glass to make them watertight. Plants from left are Moses-on-a-raft, pittosporum, collinia palm, split-leaf philodendron, aralia, umbrella plant, and podocarpus.

Photographs: Mizuki Source: Lois Rea

Right. Low tables, designed specifically for houseplants, are wonderfully versatile—you can move them about at will to get just the effect you want. Arrange them side by side, or separate them to use as single units wherever needed. For easy maneuverability, mount casters on the legs. These plant tables, at the home of Mrs. Seymour Wallas, are different sizes to give a stepped-up effect. You can tailor the heights and surface dimensions of your tables to fit your particular situation. The one in the foreground is 24 inches square, the other is 24x42 inches. Recessed metal trays hold pebbles. Plants from left are wax begonias, azaleas, dieffenbachia, spathiphyllum, pandanus, aralia, pittosporum, and fatshedera. Put your plants on the go and you'll find all kinds of places to display them for refreshing changes of scene.

QUEEN-SIZE SEWING BOX

Here's proof that sewing boxes can hold more than scissors, bobbins, and thread.

This one incorporates the machine itself—along with a comfortable chair, storage, and a wide work top—yet everything closes up into a compact box that looks for all the world like a piece of formal furniture.

Photographs: Warren Reynolds

When folded up, the box measures 17x31 inches high, small and neat enough to fit into almost any furnishing scheme. Walnut plywood was used for this one, but you could substitute fir plywood if you prefer a painted finish. The cabinet goes together very quickly with simple butt joints.

Designer: Creative Furniture Parts

To use the top, pull up the machine, slide out the seat, and—voilà—you have a sewing center. Laminated plastic protects the work surface against iron scratches.

The chair rides on concealed casters. Its seat is hinged for easy access to a compartmented storage bin underneath.

Suppose your bones were made in seven different places?

Sure, it worked out beautifully for Eve to start out life with Adam's rib.

But who knows how much better off she'd have been if all her ribs were her own?

At General Electric we believe in "matched components." So we make all the major parts of our central air-conditioning units ourselves. They fit together well, work together smoothly, and last.

Yet, today, many of our competitors are "assemblers," not integrated manufacturers. Even some of the largest buy at least one major component (such as the compressor) from somebody else.

We even buy a few parts from somebody else—our name tag, for instance. Our shipping container. And a handful of screws, fasteners, bolts, washers, etc.

But the critical components—the compressor, the cooling coils, the motor, things like these, we make ourselves for extra reliability.

A good reason the exclusive GE Climatuff Compressor has proved 99% reliable in over 100,000 installations.

"Matched component" reliability is one reason to buy GE.

For others and a price to go with them, call your GE dealer. He's in the Yellow Pages under Air Conditioning.

REALLY GREAT TROUT FISHING

This month we've assembled a package of travel stories about sunny isles where you can escape the lingering days of winter, as well as vacation spots where you can enjoy the first burst of spring. You'll read about the best trout fishing spots in the U.S. and Canada, about sunshine holidays in the Virgin Islands and Mediterranean isles, a unique museum in Wilmington, Delaware, and some of the best areas in the country for viewing spring flowers.

Start with trout fishing. It holds a special excitement for kids and adults alike. You don't have to be an expert to thrill to the strike of a trout flashing in a fresh, clear stream that tumbles musically and white through fragrant pines. Sure, expert flycasters place a fly so it will float, as if alive, to deep water around a rock or an undercut bank. But even beginners can imitate this technique by maneuvering rod, line, and leader. It's great fishing!

Most beginners choose spinning tackle, the gear that really made casting easy. Sensitive rods and active, sinking lures are best. Monofilament lines should be light—four to eight pounds. Trout will hit small spoons, spinners, poppers, and flies; besides casting, you can still-fish pools with worms or minnows.

Here are a few quick tips for beginners: (1) slip up to a stream so trout don't see you; (2) walk lightly on the bank—vibrations and disturbances scare trout; (3) a wading angler—felt soles or sandals on hip boots help on slippery rocks—is less visible to a fish than a bank-walker; (4) try casting diagonally upstream and letting your lure drift down; (5) set the hook at the tug of a trout—when you see the flash, you're too late.

Most states and Canadian provinces provide short-term licenses (three to ten days) to cut costs for vacationers.

Here are seven outstanding trout streams we recommend. But remember—half the fun lies in discovering unheralded streams for yourself.

Moyie River of Idaho and British Columbia

—From Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, north through the Kaniksu National Forest and Purcell Mountains as far as British Columbia's Lake Moyie, the river curls and warbles. Rainbow trout are plentiful and eager. Local experts advise No. 12 or 14 dry flies such as Goofus Bug, Crazy Goof, McGinity, Adams, Cahill, Coachman, Grey Hackle, March Brown, and a wet killer, the Carey Special.

In the British Columbia flats, brookies mix with rainbows. Near Lake Moyie, cutthroats predominate.

For a rustic campground, try Meadow Creek on the rough gravel Dawson Creek Road 8½ miles north of Idaho's U.S. Highway 2. North of Meadow Creek, a good road borders the stream (first-timers, note), but to the south you'll probably be alone (the area is mainly for the experienced fisherman).

Upper Rio Grande River of Colorado—It winds along Highway 149 like a silver thread through wet green valleys, framed by rugged rock outcrops and snow-capped peaks of the San Juans—a rainbow and brown trout heaven. Thirteen of the 21 miles between South Fork and Creede—long, deep pools and riffles, broken by boulders—are open to public fishing, other areas by permission from ranchers. Two stretches are restricted to fly-fishing. The experienced will like the two-mile stretch upstream from the 4 UR Ranch below Wagon Wheel Gap. Amateurs will prefer the Collier Management Area a mile above South Fork. Near here are seven campgrounds and numerous rental cabins.

Yellowstone River of Montana—In a state of fabulous trout streams, the wide, easy-to-fish Yellowstone has 103 miles of "blue ribbon" trout water. From Gardiner north through Livingston to Big Timber, you can wade or float between bridges in a rubber raft, except at brawling Yankee Jim's Canyon. Otherwise, the stream rambles with comfortable rapids alongside the purple Absaroka Mountains and Highway 89. Browns, cutthroats, and rainbows run up to 13 pounds, averaging about a pound. See sporting goods dealers in Livingston and Gardiner for access information, guides, and proper equipment. Best seasons: mid-July to mid-October.

Alaska's Walker Creek—Scarcely a mile long, this stream is one of Alaska's greatest for rainbows, steelheads, Dolly Vardens, cutthroats, and salmon. Located in the southern panhandle at the head of Lake McDonald—a short bush flight by float plane from Ketchikan or Yes Bay—Walker Creek is in a narrow valley shaded by spruce forests that spill down the nearly vertical sidewalls. The deep pools, undercut banks, and cool, absolutely clear water running over pale granite gravel create a home for sea-run steelhead (April-June) over a yard long and rainbows of five pounds or so. Dolly Vardens and cutthroats work out of the lake all summer. Occasionally, you'll see a bear, mink, otter, beaver, marten, or bald eagle.

You can fly to Ketchikan direct from Seattle (or via Sitka), or go by car and boat via the Alaska State Ferry System from Seattle or Prince Rupert. A beautiful guest lodge at Yes Bay opened just last year.

Wisconsin's Brule River—For big Lake Superior-run browns and rainbows (steel-heads), this generally wooded stream is tops. From mid-July until mid-September, wary brown trout from two to fifteen pounds, averaging about five, may be caught (usually by the experienced), especially in the meadow lowlands of deep pools, logs, and brush immediately north of Highway 2. But try deep holes anywhere, since lake-run trout move almost continually upstream. The rainbow run begins when foliage turns colorful in mid-September, and continues to November with fish ranging up to 12 pounds, averaging 2½ to 3. These are easier than browns. Rainbow anglers usually fish upstream from Lake Superior.

Michigan's AuSable River—Of all this state's excellent trout streams, the Au Sable is tops. For 180 miles, this forested canoe stream winds from near Grayling eastward to Lake Huron, fed along the way by North and South Branches. Wading is safe down to the South Branch junction (below there, use care). Most exciting areas are the mainstream in western Crawford County, the North and South Branches. Try Adams and deer fly patterns on 10 to 16 hooks. In the big water below Mio, you might hook a large brown or rainbow, especially if you use spin-casting tackle and small metal lures. Access points are plentiful. Steelheads and browns run in autumn from Lake Huron to the Foote Dam.

Maine's Kennebago River—This is a "fly fishing only" brook trout and landlocked salmon stream in the low mountains of woody western Maine, running from Seven Ponds down to Rangeley Lake via Kennebago Lake. July and August are best for salmon; brookies hit from early spring to season's end on September 30. In the fall, two to four-pound brook trout get hungry in the upper reaches of Little Kennebago Lake and occasionally are taken in the river. Otherwise, trout scale from ½ to 1½ pounds; salmon are much larger.

Try any one of these fishing spots and you'll be hooked on trout fishing.

THE LAZY LIFE IN THE SUNNY VIRGIN ISLANDS

Are you looking for a foreign vacation retreat where you can truly laze away your time, breaking the spell only occasionally for a shopping spree, a nightclub swing, or a sailing expedition? Then head for the U.S. Virgin Islands.

As territories of the United States, the Virgin Islands are as American as apple pie. But the local apple pie is likely to be made of star apples, sugar apples, or mammee apples—all exotic fruits that bear no similarity to their stateside counterparts. Like their apples, St. John, St. Thomas, and St. Croix are decidedly foreign—except that English is the official language.

So self-assured are these islanders who live just 70 miles southeast of Puerto Rico that they even guarantee their weather. Most hotels give guests free accommodation on any winter's day when the temperature dips below 70 degrees—or in the summer if it tops 88. The Virgin Islanders have a boast: "It's a climate you can trust."

The crystal waters around the Virgin Islands offer perhaps the greatest lure to family vacationers. Everywhere are idyllic white sand beaches ringing tiny coves and bays. Blue marlin, dolphin, tuna, and sailfish abound. You'll have great fun sailing between the islands—especially to Norman Island, whose caves are said to have inspired Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island. And near St. Croix is the barrier reef of Buck Island, an underwater playground for skin divers. Scuba guides, equipment rentals, and charter boats for fishing or sailing are available at reasonable prices on all three islands.

The whole area is a "free port," a concession granted the residents when Uncle Sam bought the islands from Denmark in 1917 for a mere $25 million. (It was thought they'd make a good base to thwart German submarines.) The shopping really does boggle the mind. Quaint, palm-lined arcades of stores 150 years old offer such delightful finds as the china Queen Elizabeth chose as a bride (less than $100 a place setting), every liquor known to man (the A. H. Riise store has—unbelievably—Beaujolais wine in flip-top cans), cameras, watches, and a wide variety of dress materials. One store, Cardow "House of Jewels," offers 2,685 ring styles priced from $9.95 to $2,800. All of these articles sell for roughly 60 percent of U.S. retail prices. After 48 hours here, you may bring home $200 worth of merchandise and a gallon of liquor duty-free, which beats the duty exemption you get in any other Caribbean islands.

St. Thomas is the most swingingly sophisticated of the three islands. In Charlotte Amalie, night life is steel-band-brassy and faintly Parisian. So, you will find, are the rest rooms—many of them are coeducational. Dining is late and dressy, though not necessarily formal. Accommodations range from charming guest houses like the New Islander ($17.50 a day per couple in season with breakfast) to Bluebeard's Castle (about $60 a day per couple in season with two meals), where you drink rum punches with the friendly ghosts of pirates buried on the terrace.

St. Croix covers twice the ground with the same number of people (25,000), but it is quite pastoral and has distinctly West Indian influence. Food is likely to include poofie (tiny dumplings), fish, and fungi (a harmless cornmeal mixture) or tannia (the root of the purple elephant-ear plant which the residents substitute for potatoes). Most of the guest cottages and luxurious hotels are geared to water sports. St. Croix also has the best golf course in the islands; Sam Snead once described it as "diabolical."

St. John, most unspoiled of the three, has the most expensive accommodations—and the cheapest. Caneel Bay Plantation, happy hunting ground for the jet-set crowd, begins at $80 a day (high season rate per couple with meals). But there are campsites for $25 a week at the national park, with its scenic mountain paths and underwater snorkeling trails.

Rates in the Virgin Islands are 20 percent lower in summer than in winter. No vaccinations, shots, or passports are required. You can reach the islands from various parts of the U.S. Mainland on daily flights by Pan American, Delta, Eastern, and Trans-Caribbean airlines. On Delta and Trans-Caribbean, you'll change to Caribair at San Juan for the flight to the islands. Round-trip air fare from Miami is $115, from New York $140. St. Thomas and St. Croix have airfields, but you get to St. John by ferryboat or seaplane. For more information, write: U.S. Virgin Islands Government Information Center, 16 West 49th Street, New York, N.Y. 10020.

THE SUN COASTS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN ISLES

Homer called it his "wine-dark" sea, but the Mediterranean is a sea of many shades, some the deep-blue of an astronaut's sky, some the translucent green of Venetian glass, some the gold of sunsets. No other sea has quite that beauty, nor the Mediterranean's magic light that shimmers like a halo over its exotic eastern shores and isles.

It was on these far-off, wave-washed lands that our Western life took shape. Long-dead cities still stand here, bleached by the sun of centuries into their own abstractions. Perhaps that's why there's no conflict now between the old and new, between ancient ruins and modern resort hotels, between peasants transporting their goods on donkeys and bikini'd tourists tanning on fashionable beaches.

That's also why, mysterious and distant as it is, there's nothing really strange about the eastern Mediterranean. Somehow you belong immediately. Today, indeed, no part of this soft, warm sea is in any sense remote. No matter where you go along its popular vacation coasts—to Italy, Greece, France, Spain, or Yugoslavia—you're practically next door, by jet or cruise ship, to the lovely islands that dot these old-world waters like jewels scattered carelessly on velvet.

The best times to go are spring and fall. Summers are hot but comfortable, and you're always cool in the shade. Winters are often balmy and pleasant.

Don't worry about having to rough it. The more exotic the port, the more up-to-date you'll find the accommodations. This area was all but untraveled by tourists until recently, so almost everything is spanking new.

The Greek islands are probably most rewarding of all. One great way to see them is by ship, such as the seven-day Aegean cruise of the luxurious motor vessel Jason out of Athens.

The Jason, equipped with a sun-deck pool, first puts ashore on Crete, where you'll visit the fabulous palace of Minos and other relics of a civilization dating back nearly 6000 years. Next you stop at Santorini, where Phoenicians lived 2000 years before Christ. You'll ride a donkey to a whitewashed village high above this arid island's sheltered bay, and look across the waters to a dormant volcano that still smolders.

Then you'll sail on to Rhodes. Behind its lovely beaches tower the Medieval walls of a city first planned in 4000 B.C. Here, straddling the harbor, once stood the Colossus of Rhodes—one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World—until it was carried off piecemeal into oblivion by the Saracens. There's time, too, for an excursion to the nearby town of Lindos, whose templed acropolis is actually more beautiful than that of Athens.

The dead city of Ephesus on Turkey's coast comes next; once a town of 100,000, it's now the world's largest excavation. The birthplace of Virgin Mary is nearby. Then on to Istanbul, gateway to Asia, with its mosques and bazaars (true bargains here in jewelry and rugs), and finally to the islands of Delos and Mykonos, one a ghostly land of ruins, the other a swinging resort.

Rates on the Jason and comparable ships range from $190 to $420. You can save by having your travel agent combine the cruise, along with your other ground arrangements, into a "tour-based" ticket, which brings your New York-Athens round-trip air fare down to $489 (from the $519 excursion fare).

Drawings Don Pulver

There are also shorter, cheaper cruises averaging about $50 for two days, and $200 for five days. For more information write: Epirotiki Lines, 608 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Rhodes itself is one of the best islands for stay-put vacations. The 21-day airline ticket from New York comes to $550.50; with prepaid ground arrangements, it's $520.50. Stay at the stylish Hotel des Roses (about $12 a day per person, with breakfast and lunch or dinner), or at the more modest Ibisus or Delfini Hotels (about $14 a day for two, no meals included). TWA has nonstop flights to Athens from New York, with daily connections to Rhodes.

Cyprus, 90 minutes by air from Athens, is where Aphrodite, the love goddess, rose from the sea in a lovely, lonely beach cove—a spot that's still great for dipping, however skinny. Later, crusader kings built castles. The Venetians and Genoans, the Turks, Greeks, and British all fought over this island; even today you'll see U.N. troops keeping the peace between Turks and Greeks. But don't be afraid; the shooting stopped long ago. Instead of barricades, you'll encounter excellent hotels, like the Cyprus Hilton in Nicosia, and great beaches, bargain shopping, even ski resorts in winter.

Malta (air connection: Rome) has magnificent beaches, top hotels like the new Malta Hilton, nightclubs, a gambling casino, elegant villas owned by jet-setters. Luckily, the almost daily German air raids of World War II on the British base at Valletta, the island's capital, did not destroy the relics of the Knights of Malta (who themselves had fended off the Turks 400 years ago); nor did the raids crush the exquisite walled city of Mdina. Be sure to see the Knights' Armory; fish for octopus in the bay where

St. Paul was shipwrecked on his way to Rome; sail to the outer island of Gozo with its lovely beach, one of the Mediterranean's best. The "tour-based" round-trip air fare from New York is $389.

Sicily, fragrant with lemon and almond blossoms in the spring, is where you'll see men ride family donkeys while wives and children walk, carrying bundles on their heads. You'll marvel at silent Greek, Roman, and Saracen ruins; visit romantic Taormina, a fishing village clinging to a cliff; explore the smoking top of Mt. Etna; shop for puppets and painted ornaments of donkey wagons that make distinctive wall decorations.

For a real bargain, check Alitalia's Sicily fly-drive tours that will run from May through September. Among them is a $440 package including the round-trip from New York, use of a car for 620 miles, and 20 nights in one or more of the seven modern motels all over this delightful island.—George Bush.

A MUSEUM OF AMERICANA IN DELAWARE

Just outside Wilmington, Delaware, there's a 130-year-old house that grew and grew until it became a museum of nearly 200 rooms. Its most recent owner, Henry Francis DuPont, furnished it with the loving care and exquisite taste that only millionaires can afford on such an elaborate scale.

Today it's the Winterthur Museum, a unique showpiece of Americana, filled with a wealth of antiques that recall two centuries of our history in furniture, textiles, ceramics, paintings, interior woodwork, silver, and pewter. Nothing is newer than 1840.

More than that, this monument to American craftsmen—for you'll find nothing foreign here if it could be made in America—is set amid 60 acres of gardens so carefully cultivated you get the feeling everything grows in perfect order. Tranquil trails meander over rolling hillsides, through woodlands, along sparkling creeks, surrounded by a rainbow of native blooming plants and shrubs.

In April and May, when the gardens are at their peak, your family can spend all day in this magnificent natural park. You can lunch, cafeteria-style, in an airy garden pavilion and join a tour of the museum's public collections.

Like the rest of the Winterthur, the 26 rooms you'll see on the spring tour (this year from April 22 to May 24; closed Sundays and Mondays) are complete recreations, including walls, floors, and paneling. Many were moved, in every detail, from their original locations. Styles cover a variety of periods: Empire, Queen Anne, Georgian, Federal, William and Mary, early Colonial, and Chippendale. Admission is $3.50; children under 16, 50 cents.

At other times of the year, only 10 rooms of the mansion are open without an appointment. But if you write well in advance, you can reserve your place on guided all-day ($5) or half-day ($2.50) tours that cover the whole museum.

The gardens are again open to the public from mid-September through October for fall foliage and berries. For more information and reservations, write: Box M, Winterthur Museum, Winterthur, Delaware 19735.

Near Winterthur you'll find the Hagley Museum (no charge), which surveys the water-powered industry of the area's early period; the Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, which are open all year (no charge); and 23 miles south of Wilmington on U.S. 13, the historic Corbit-Sharp House in Odessa, Delaware ($1; under 16, 25 cents).

If you're staying in Wilmington, you'll enjoy the elegantly old-fashioned DuPont Hotel. It also houses a theater which presents classic and contemporary plays. For more details, write: Delaware State Development Dept., 45 The Green, Dover, Delaware 19901.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR SPRING FLOWERS

It's well worth taking a family vacation (or part of one) to see the breathtaking displays of floral color to be found in many states during the spring and early summer. Here are some of the best spots in the country.

Mountain regions. In the American West, mountain wildflowers are found at nearly all the higher elevations, from about 8,000 to over 12,000 feet. The blooming season depends upon the altitude, and runs from late May in the lower valleys through July and even early August in the rarified heights where winter snows melt slowly.

Rocky Mountain Park in Colorado bursts forth with vast carpets of flowers along Trail Ridge Road—a magnificent 50 miles of excellent mountain driving with ample opportunities to go off on marked trails. An excellent source of information about the wildflowers of the region is the Rocky Mountain Nature Association, Box 147, Estes Park, Colorado 80517.

Similarly, Mount Rainier in Washington state is renowned for its midsummer wildflowers—especially near the Paradise visitor center. A good source of information is the Mt. Rainier Natural History Assn., Longmire, Wash. 98397. For a very fine "cultivated" display of wildflowers, visit the Ohme Alpine Gardens at Wenatchee, Washington.

Desert regions. Across the Southwest, wildflowers usually carpet desert floors and hillsides from March to May.

At Death Valley in California and Nevada, Easter climaxes the blooming season. Then golden desert sunflowers, panamint daisies, blue phacelia, and the rose-like blossoms of cactus plants enliven the otherwise drab desert; and the temperature averages only 76 degrees. There are overnight accommodations and information posts at Furnace Creek, Stove Pipe Wells, and 12 park service campgrounds in the valley.

The Gulf Coast. Communities across the deep South pride themselves on their public and private gardens. All spring they're ablaze with a variety of colorful flowers. Azaleas reign supreme, their many shades of red coloring nature trails and well-manicured lawns.

In Mobile, Alabama, are scores of magnificent gardens. You can take guided tours of the best of them during the annual Azalea Trail festival (February to March). At nearby Bellingrath Gardens, trails wind through banks of azaleas and camellias amid moss-hung oaks.

Afton Villa Gardens north of Baton

Rouge, Louisiana, occupy the site where one of the most elegant of Louisiana's plantation homes once stood. The gardens remain just as they were more than 100 years ago. One sunken garden is laced with century-old azaleas.

Electric heat can make any home feel like new

Whether your home is 15 or 50 years old, flameless electric heat is the modern cure for drafts, cold spots and hot blasts.

Nothing rejuvenates an older home faster than modernizing with electric heat. It's even heat. Incomparably clean. Quiet. And odorless. It rarely requires servicing. And of course, it's flameless. That goes for electric cooling, too. Live carefree with flameless electric heat... in any home, old or new. Mobile home and apartment, too. Call your electric heating contractor or your electric light and power company.

Live the carefree way with Flameless Electric Heat

Live Better Electrically

Edison Electric Institute

This Gold Medallion identifies a home where everything's electric, including the heat.

To keep coats burnished, here is a variety of combs and brushes suited to both long- and short-haired dogs and cats. When buying combs, remember the longer the hair the longer the teeth of the comb should be. Hack saw blade (at right) should be run diagonally across the dog's coat. It will remove a lot of loose hair and give the coat an extra-special sheen. Wire mitts and brushes are great for last minute touch-ups. But no amount of brushing will take the place of thorough combing. When combing, you should start at the head and work back to the hind quarters. If you buy good equipment and take care of it, it will last a lifetime.

Trimming accessories can contribute to your dog's good looks and comfort. This assortment of clippers, thinning shears, trimming combs, and tangle splitters will help you keep his coat in tip-top condition. Charts (at left) tell you how much hair to remove and help you plot out clipping areas. If you want to do your own clipping, consult an expert at least once so you can ask questions and observe what he's doing. Start when your pet is a puppy; that way, he'll get used to the sound of electric clippers. It's also a good idea to go to a dog show and watch the handlers and specialists who are working on the same breed of dog as yours.

Keep your dog's coat odorless with a variety of readily available soaps and detergents. Or try those specialized shampoos for white and dark-colored coats. There are aerosol coat conditioners for after bath or in-between laundering. You'll find these effective for the dog who is kept indoors or in a dry climate, because they supplement natural oils. Small packets (center) containing medicated towels are a boon if Bowser's been romping in the mud. Of course, flea powders and flea and tick sprays (left) are a must in summer.

A multitude of scissors, hair pluckers, and nail clippers is available for special needs. Clippers, middle and right, are a good investment unless you plan to live at the grooming parlor. Your dog's nails need cutting at least once a month. If this isn't done, he'll limp and may even become permanently lame. Make sure you cut only the outside area, not into the live pink within the nail. Blunt-tipped and curved scissors are useful around the muzzle. Eye aids (left) keep your pet's eyes clean and comfortable.

Wall to wall tile. $35.

We want your room to be one smooth expanse of beautiful floor. So we make our tiles with seams that disappear.

The seams disappear because we purposely design the tile to conceal them.

If a tile floor with disappearing seams sounds like something you'd want to have in your home, you'll be happy to know it's about as economical as a tile floor without disappearing seams.

For example, a 9 x 12 foot room in the pattern we show only costs about $35, if you do it yourself.

It's a new design called Casablanca. And it represents the first time the popular Spanish Moroccan style has been translated into vinyl asbestos tile.

You can get Casablanca in six warm and sunny Mediterranean colors that'll bring a subtle glow of warmth to any room in your home.

You can see Casablanca and lots of other beautiful patterns with disappearing seams at your flooring dealer.* That way when you put a floor in your home, the seams won't be right out there where you can see them. For literature, write to GAF Corporation, Floor Products Division, even for thousands who perspire heavily

A different formula has been found to keep underarms absolutely dry—even for thousands who perspire heavily. After decades of common "deodorants," it took a chemical invention to make this truly effective protection possible—with the same safety to clothing—the same skin mildness as popular "deodorants." Called Mitchum Anti-Perspirant, it is the product of a trustworthy 56-year-old laboratory. By the thousands, women with problem perspiration are finding the protection they need—and never could find before. And fully effective as a deodorant, too, of course. If you perspire more than average—even heavily—get the positive protection of Mitchum Anti-Perspirant. Liquid or cream. Each $3.00. Available in Canada.

Doctors Find Way To Shrink Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases—to stop burning itch, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H—there is no other formula like it for hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

MAGNIFICENT ENGLISH BONE CHINA

A COLLECTOR'S MASTERPIECE

Fine Bone China has always been a prized possession of collectors. These superb roses are made petal by petal in exquisite bone china by skilled artisans with a proud tradition of their craft.

Read how they are now available to you for an amazing low price in this special offer!

Exquisite Hand Made Roses in Delicate China Create Superb Decorating Effect

Imagine, if you will, the most magnificent roses you have ever seen captured forever in the exquisite, hand wrought beauty of genuine bone china. It's a decorating masterpiece! Working with proud artisans we have combined the superb beauty of the rose with one of the most prized decorating possessions ever created—genuine bone china. The result is almost unbelievable. Each rose is so real it seems still wet with dew... and to its beauty is added the valuable collector's quality of fine china. Whether you choose to display them individually in a bud vase or grouped in a bouquet, they add an incomparable touch to any setting. Unfortunately it is impossible to capture their delicacy and softly tinted colors ranging from dusky pastel reds to blushing pinks in the all black and white illustration here. Only when you see them in your home can you fully appreciate their charm and beauty.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

Because each rose must be hand made, supplies are limited, so we urge you to order now. Each rose is approximately 7" in circumference, and is mounted on a 12" stem with life-like, velvety textured leaves. Each rose is just $1.50 (less in quantity) on full money back guarantee if you are not absolutely delighted. Hurry order now, this offer will not be repeated this season in Better Homes & Gardens.

"Ataturk"

THE BLACK GLAD

2 Big, Sure-to-Bloom Size Bulbs for only 25¢ POST PAID

We sell these bulbs regularly for 35¢ each

Henry Field's SPECIAL OFFER

ATATURK is a deep, velvety black glad that glistens with overtones of maroon.

"For Over 70 Years"

The BLACKEST Glad You Ever Saw!

Ataturk is about as black as a flower can be. The color is a glistening, velvety black with overtones of maroon—not a dull black but a warm, glowing black. The vigorous, robust plant has spikes two to three feet tall, carrying 16 to 18 buds. Opens 6 to 8 flowers at a time, each one 3 to 4 inches wide.

Ataturk is so different it stands out from all other glads—when your friends look at your garden, they'll ask you about Ataturk immediately.

We send you big bulbs measuring 1 1/2 to 1 1/2 inches across. This is a low-priced offer to win new friends. Supply is limited, and this offer will not be repeated this season. Sorry, but we must limit orders to $1.00 per person.

MY GRASS GROWS WHERE OTHER GRASSES FAILED

by Mike Senkiw

It's true the things people are saying about Amazon Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass (Reg. T.M.).

It grows so thick and luxurious that walking on it is unforgettable...like walking on a thick, pile carpet.

Your Zoysia lawn drives out rabiola and weeds all summer long. It stays green and beautiful in blistering heat, when other grass burns out. It cuts mowing by 50%. It's perfect for summer-home, and "problem" areas.

There's no need to fix out your old grass. Plug in Amazon Zoysia Grass and let it spread into beautiful turf that never needs replacement. It will neither heat kill or winter kill... Merely goes off its green color after heavy frosts and regains fresh new beauty every Spring—a true perennial! Every plug fully guaranteed to grow in any soil in your area.

To end lawn problems, send for free interesting facts and prices about Amazon incl. pre-season bonus offer. No obligation. Mail coupon to:

THE MAN NEXT DOOR

George Delo.
"We worked on it six hours and finally came up with an estimate."

Burt Jr. doubts the truth of what is printed on the breakfast food packages. If it really lived up to its promises, he claims, "we'd need seat belts on the kitchen chairs."

This year may go down in history as one in which our state accomplishes nothing whatsoever. Strikes in February caused the highest level of idleness in any recent month—and now it's almost time to start planning vacations.

Rosemary's American Problems class is using newspapers this semester as a classroom aid. One thing the students have learned, she says, is that "milk doesn't come from contented farmers."

"Hearing is supposed to become more acute when one's eyes are closed," says the Rev. George Hall, "and I've noticed several parishioners who never fail to test the idea in church."

One of the office secretaries quips she is so overworked she's thinking of quitting—but she can't find time to write a letter of resignation.

The youngsters have had some terrific snowball fights this winter. For example, one night we had to negotiate an unconditional bombing halt from 5:30 to 6 p.m. to permit fathers to get home.

Fed up with jokesters who question whether his prescriptions will work, Dr. Bob Hannelly has adopted a ready reply: "They're guaranteed for a lifetime!"

Christine claims she has discovered a surprisingly simple method of computing our cost of living. She just takes my monthly salary and tacks on ten percent.

The only thing Judy, age ten, dreads more than her weekly piano lesson is the prospect that her teacher will tell us she really does have talent.

"The main trouble with keeping your mind open," argues Uncle Dodd Buckner, "is that too many people are just looking for the opportunity to fill it with rubbish."

I foresee a serious problem if the nation's standard of living continues to rise. Politicians soon may run out of humble beginnings to advertise in their campaign literature.

"If things keep getting worse," Ned Carter growled after city employees won another pay raise, "I'm going to emigrate back to Europe in search of life, liberty, and freedom from oppressive taxes."

There's not much cliff-hanging suspense on the stage any more—not since Rosemary was Mother Nature in her kindergarten play and got her cheese-cloth cloud caught on Old Man Winter's icicles.

After reading that the weather bureau expects to be making dependable forecasts in ten years, Aunt Opal wonders if that prediction is dependable.

Uncle Dodd Buckner says that in the course of a long and busy life he's learned several ways to save on taxes, the worst of which is to quit working.

Young Burt impressed us the other evening by touching his toes 50 times. However, the feat left Christine wondering why he finds it impossible to bend over and pick up stray socks in his room.

I suspect historians reviewing our age 30 to 40 years from now will call it the era of the consumer contest. It certainly is a wonderful time to be alive. Never before has so much been given away for such simple reasons.

I once won $5 in an advertising slogan contest, but since then my flow of unexpected wealth has been just a trickle. Not that I've stopped trying. Someone is going to win those trips to Hawaii, those new cars, and all that money. I'm just as good a prospect as the next fellow.

It's all sweetened by the ease of modern contest competition. No more slaving over jingles that rhyme, no more 25 well-selected words, not even a need for box-tops. Just match up a few silly stamps and drive off with your bonanza. One contest announces that you may already have won! Just return your "lucky" number in the postage-paid envelope, pack your bags, and wait for the signal to head for the sunny Pacific.

I don't think Christine understands all this very well. In one of her more skeptical moments, she suggested I quit work and have a full-time go at contests.

Hmmm

I wonder if they could get along without me at the office for a couple of months.

Don't cry, it's an Armstrong vinyl floor.

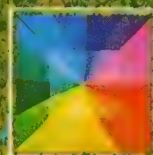

Armstrong created rugged Vinyl Corlon® floors because kitchens don't lead a soft life . . . especially if there are kids or pets around the house.

You can spill most anything on a Vinyl Corlon floor and never give it a second thought. The floor is nonporous, so the mess can't soak in and hide beneath the surface.

Corlon is more than practical. It has a deep-glow color that makes the whole kitchen come alive. It has a bright, glistening shine that makes the room look sparkling clean.

You'll never cry over an Armstrong Vinyl Corlon floor in your kitchen.

Fisherman's Wharf Jambalaya starts with San Francisco's Rice-A-Roni

In 2 tbsp. butter lightly brown 1 pkg. Chicken Rice-A-Roni. Stir in $2\frac{3}{4}$ cups hot water, contents of Chicken flavor packet, $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. each: black pepper and Tabasco Sauce, 1 tbsp. instant minced onions, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup each: diced celery and bell pepper. Add 2 cups diced cooked ham (or luncheon meat), 1 can tuna or shrimp. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.

People with slim hopes get fabulous flavor in Wish-Bone low calorie dressings.

Wish-Bone gives you three dressings, each with a truly distinctive taste.

Low Calorie Italian is full of verve and vintage vinegar plus plenty of herbs and tender young garlic.

Low Calorie French tastes as rich and smooth as the regular French.

And Low Calorie Russian just brims with spicy-sweet tang.

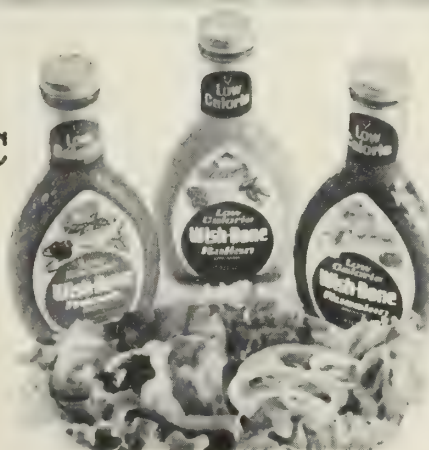

The only thing missing is the calories. They're so good, you'll want to try them even if you aren't on a diet.

Get them now while the getting is good.

HOW GOOD AN INVESTMENT IS A VACATION HOME?

A vacation home can make a very solid investment—especially if you buy sound property in a popular recreation area. In fact, an appreciation of five to ten percent a year on desirable vacation property isn't unusual.

It's even more rewarding financially if you rent out your property when you are absent. (Most families use vacation homes only two or three months a year.) And besides producing income, a vacation home rental nearly always provides substantial tax deductions.

As investments, the best vacation properties are the ones you find in the sunshine country—California, Florida, or Arizona—where you can rent them out all year. But even where the vacation season is shorter—in New England, the Great Lakes, the New Jersey shore, and Long Island—rental properties are in demand. As you might expect, bungalows near lakes, rivers, or ski resorts make the best rentals.

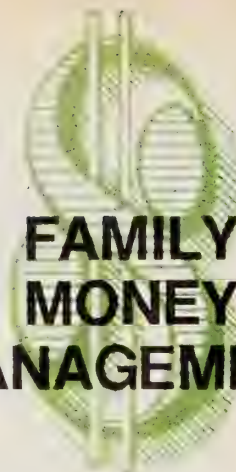

But location isn't everything, either. A desirable rental should be appealing—and well-maintained. Ideally, it should be designed so the whole unit can be rented to a family, or so individual bedrooms can be rented out separately. This means each bedroom needs its own bathroom and a private entrance.

Usually you'll be expected to supply linens, towels, and cooking utensils. You'll also have to make sure the utilities are working and the grounds are kept up. If you have valuable furnishings in the house, your best bet is to keep them stored away in a locked storage area when the house is being rented.

There are several ways to handle the rental process. If you're near a resort hotel, you might arrange for it to serve as your rental agent and place its extra guests in your house. Usually these guests will use the hotel dining rooms and sports facilities—and will get room and maid service from the hotel. For its services, the hotel normally takes a 30 to 40 percent cut of the rentals.

Or, you can have a local real estate agent handle the rentals and look after the property. His services should cost you between 6 and 15 percent of the rental income. In almost any area, you can find a helpful agent through the local Board of Realtors.

You can handle rentals yourself, too, but it will take time. In some cases, you'll need to advertise in newspapers or local magazines—although word-of-mouth advertising often suffices. Set your rental in line with others in the area; but don't be timid about your price, either. In season, a two-bedroom bungalow in Florida might easily bring $200 or more a week. A similar-size ski chalet could rent for $150 to $200 a week in winter. And a summer house on the south shore of Long Island may well go for $2,000 for the season.

FAMILY MONEY MANAGEMENT®

You can take some special tax deductions on property you have for rent, including depreciation on your vacation home and its furnishings. Ordinarily, depreciation on the house is spread over 40 years; depreciation on the furnishings is apportioned over ten. The percentage of depreciation you can take depends on how often your family uses the house. For example, if you live there 20 percent of the year—and rent it out the rest of the year—you can charge off 80 percent of the depreciation.

Assume a house cost $15,000, not counting land, and has $5,000 in furnishings. You can deduct $300 a year on the house $(80 \text{ percent} \times $15,000)$ and $400 a year for your furnishings $(80 \text{ percent} \times $5,000)$. You can also deduct 80 percent of the cost of taxes, interest, insurance, utilities, and telephone—and the same percentage of the cost of maintaining and cleaning the property. You can deduct the full cost of real estate fees, too, plus any advertising expenses.

If you wind up with a profit after all these deductions, you'll have to pay income tax on it. However, your deductions may be so large that you actually report a loss on your rental business. This loss can be offset against your regular income and will help to reduce your tax bill.

If you sell a vacation (or "second") home at a loss, you get no tax deduction. But if you sell rental vacation property at a loss, you can take the loss as a tax deduction.

WHAT SHOULD YOU KNOW ABOUT FILING A PERSONAL INJURY CLAIM?

► First, do you have a legal claim? Your injuries can arise in many situations—on street or highway, as a pedestrian or driver, in a store or a home. Yet the mere fact that you were hurt in an accident is not enough. The injury must have resulted from another party's negligence. Say you're walking through a store and trip on your untied shoelace. There's no negligence on the store's part. There is negligence, however, if you trip over a carton left in the aisle by an employee. But if you were negligent too, you generally can't recover.

Whether you believe you have a claim or not, you always should report an accident immediately. If possible, get the names and addresses of any witnesses. Then see a doctor if there's any pain or other sign of injury.

► Should you deal with an adjuster yourself or through an attorney? Normally, an adjuster or claimsman will call you shortly after you report an accident. He would, of course, prefer to settle with you rather than through an attorney. But if the adjuster represents a reputable company, he won't try to pressure you into settling in a hurry—especially if you're still suffering the immediate after-effects of the injury. In fact, where liability is conceded, some companies now offer "advance payment" for lost salary and out-of-pocket expenses; this is deducted from the final settlement.

If the adjuster says you have no legal claim, however, you should verify this with an attorney. Your decision about using legal help depends partly on the extent of your injuries. If your doctor thinks they are minor, it may not be worthwhile. Attorneys usually will take your case on a contingent fee basis—an agreed percentage payable if a settlement or recovery is secured.

► How much is your claim worth? If you hire an attorney, he will help you decide. You're entitled to collect for all medical expenses, including any future ones. You also may collect for loss of pay, impairment of your earning capacity, and pain and suffering—which are not really measurable. However, some attorneys and adjusters arrive at a price tag for pain and suffering by multiplying medical expenses by an arbitrary figure. If it's two, and medical expenses total $300, pain and suffering are put at an additional $600. However, there's a wide difference of opinion over what is "adequate payment."

A brush full of Crest is a fuller brush.

Fuller because it's a brush full of Fluoristan®, the special fluoride formula available only in Crest.

Fuller because it's a brush full of toothpaste that is recognized effective in reducing cavities.

Fuller because it has those things that have kept Crest America's number one toothpaste for such a long time. Like the unique know-how of Crest's fluoride experts. Like more research backing than any other toothpaste. Or maybe like the good feeling you get from knowing that since so many people use Crest, it must be working. But you get what we're talking about.

O.K. Have checkups, watch treats, brush after eating with Crest; it's accepted by the American Dental Association. Almost any good brush will do. As long as it's a fuller brush.

► Must you submit to a doctor's examination? In most states, once litigation starts, you must have an exam. Before that you may refuse, but there's no reason why you should. After litigation starts, the party you're suing also may require you to answer pre-trial questions about your medical condition, your expenses, and so on.

► If you settle, what is involved in signing a release? When you settle, you agree—for what you receive—not to sue or press your claim because the settlement satisfies it.

► Is a release always binding? Usually yes, unless it was obtained by fraud, misrepresentation, duress, mutual mistake, or other legal ground.

► Is your liability claim against another party affected by medical payments you receive under your own policy? No—even if your claim includes medical expenses already paid for by your own insurance.

► Finally, can you get more by suing than by settling? Most personal injury claims are settled out of court, rather than tried. Both sides often feel they won't do enough better in a trial to warrant the extra trouble (and gamble) involved.

DOES IT MATTER WHOSE LIFE INSURANCE YOU BUY?

If you're acquainted at all with life insurance, you're apt to recognize the names of major firms, about which there is scant question of stability or integrity.

But if you don't feel familiar enough with insurance—or just frankly want reassurance from a company's agent—then consider the questions listed below. A reputable, established insurance firm will be pleased to have the chance to assure you of their reliability. Only those that may not quite measure up have reason to be reticent.

► Is the company licensed in your state? If it is, you can appeal to your state insurance commissioner in case a serious problem should ever arise with your policy. If the company isn't licensed, you may have little or no recourse.

► How long has the company been in operation? Generally, the longer the better. If you've never heard of the company you're considering, check it thoroughly with your state insurance commissioner, the Better Business Bureau, and local insurance people. You might also see Best's Life Insurance Reports, often available in libraries or insurance offices.

► Is it a mutual or stock company and does it issue participating or nonparticipating policies? Mutual company policies almost always are participating. That is, they pay dividends to policyholders. Some stock companies offer participating and nonparticipating policies; most offer only the latter.

The difference? Premiums on participating policies are generally higher, but the dividends returned may eventually bring the net premium cost below that of a comparable nonparticipating policy. However, dividends may vary from year to year. A company's dividend payment record for the last ten or twenty years (usually available on request) will show the average dividend for the period. Subtracting this from the annual premium gives you the net cost, which you can compare with that of a nonparticipating policy for the same period. (Remember, though, that the past offers no guarantee of future dividends.)

► Shouldn't rates be the same on comparable policies? No. A company's rates depend on how long its policyholders live, and also on its return from investments and its operating costs. There are some noticeable differences, even among the best companies, so it does pay you to shop around. Be wary of companies offering ridiculously low rates, or a chance to buy their stock if you insure with them.

While nearly all policies carry the same minimum standards (usually required by law), they may vary in settlement options, waiver-of-premiums, loan and cash-surrender values, and other provisions. Get sample policies from the companies you are considering, and ask their agents to present their proposals for insuring you in writing. ■

Let us help you build a cradle of security for your new baby.

You've passed out the cigars. And whether it was the first time, or the fifth, you want that new child of yours to have the very best.

And that's where New York Life can help. With the right type of life insurance. Insurance that can help guarantee your youngster financial security, even if you're not around.

That's important when you realize that it can cost about $25,000 to raise a youngster to age 18. And that doesn't even include the tremendous costs of college.

The need is clear. But why us? Why come to New York Life? Experience, for one thing.

We've been around since 1845.

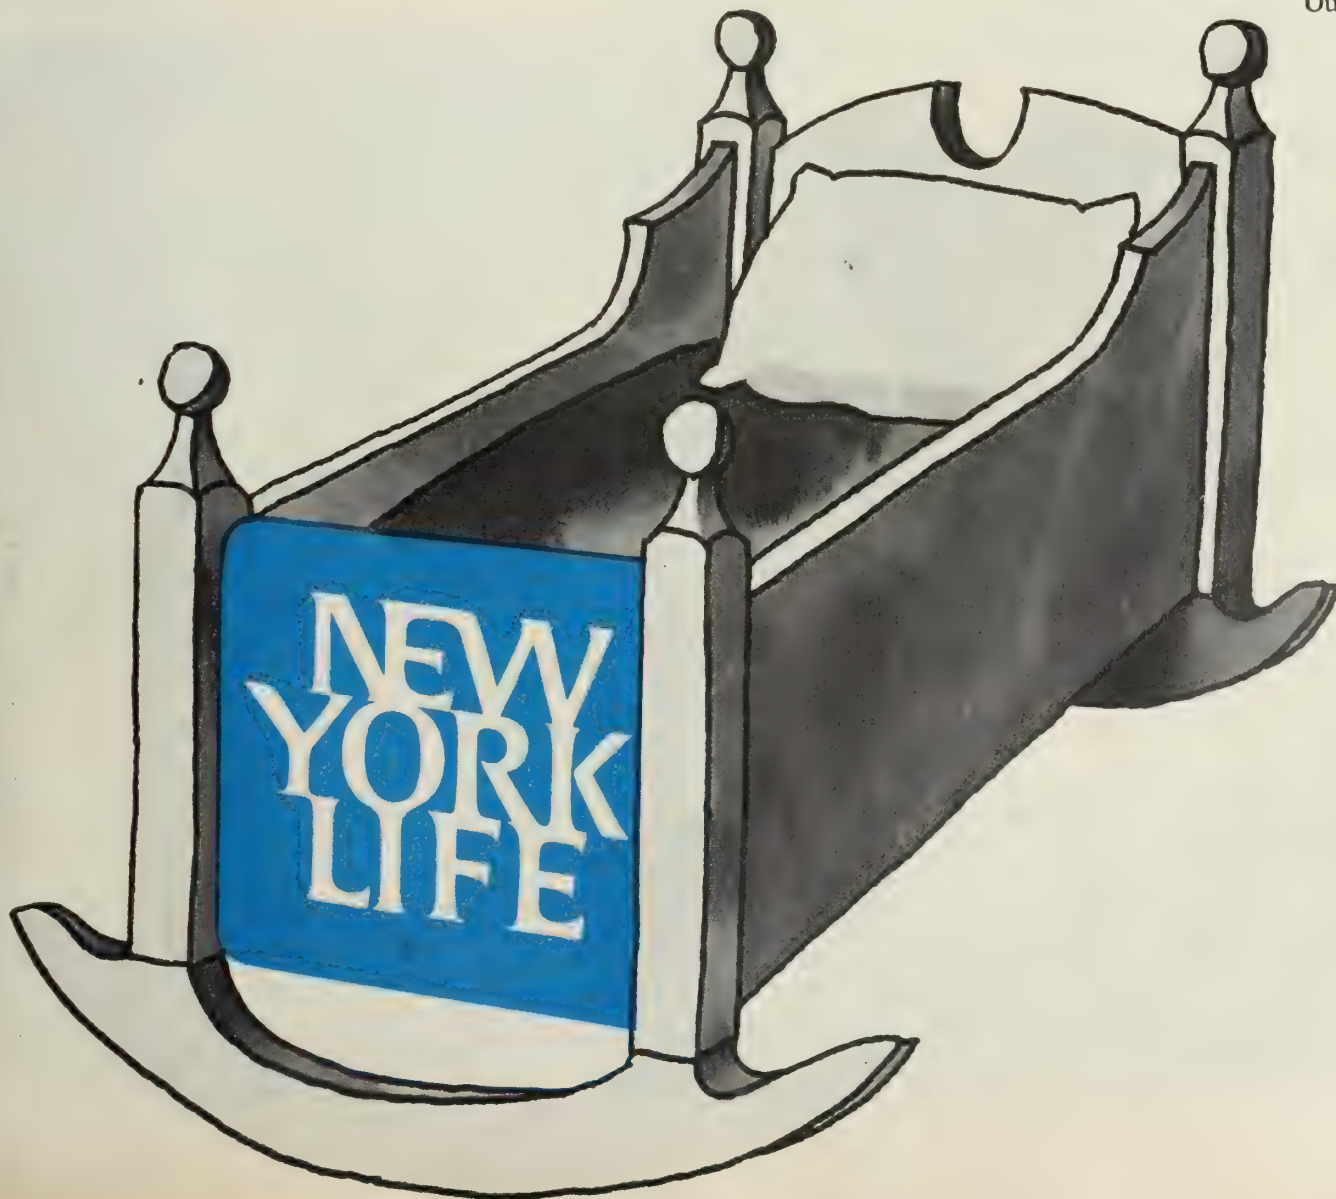

Then there are dividends to our policyowners. We've been paying them for well over a century. Right now they're at an all-time high. So the cost of protection for millions of our policyowners is at an all-time low.

The $1,000,000 difference in moving.

It's air. Air-Ride suspension. And Mayflower has more Air-Ride vans than any other long distance moving company.

Hard, stiff, metal spring suspension systems are a thing of the past.

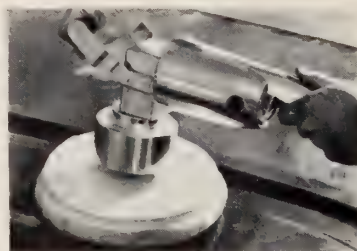

When your possessions ride in a Mayflower van, they are actually "floated" on big, soft cushions of air that pamper your belongings with a ride that's twice as gentle as the old, hard riding, spring-loaded vans.

Think of your furniture riding on rough roads and streets, over rough railroad crossings and chuckholes. Mayflower Air-Ride suspension gives all your delicate things . . . TV's, radios hi-fi's . . . a softer, safer ride. It's Mayflower's million dollar difference in moving that doesn't cost you one cent more.

Buff your car's finish or other fine surfaces with virtually no chance of "burning."

This two-speed, nine-inch buffer/polisher features an oscillating-head action to produce a professional polish job—fast. The machine is practically fool-proof because of its orbital motion and its freewheeling feature. If excess pressure is applied, the buffer automatically slows down to prevent burning.

The ½-horsepower motor provides plenty of power for any job, and the two speeds let you choose the best speed for applying and/or removing rubbing compound, polish, or wax.

Add more safety to your power mower with one of these flexible mower blades. It's made of an elastomeric material that flexes "up and over" solid objects—even shoes.

During extensive testing by the manufacturer, several workers accidentally caught their shoes under the blade. Scuffed shoes and black-and-blue toes resulted, but no lacerations or serious injuries.

The blade does a good job of cutting all types of grass, holds a cutting edge well, and can be sharpened in the same manner as metal blades. It's available to fit 18, 19, 20, 21, and 22 inch rotary mowers.

Dayco Alfa Blade $8.95 at lawn and garden centers. Dayco Corp., 333 West First St., Dayton, Ohio 45401.

Eliminate the mess from pouring paint out of a gallon can.

This plastic cover replaces the metal cover on all standard cans to eliminate waste and spills. It provides an airtight fit, and the drip-proof spout makes pouring easy. The snap-on pouring-spout lid seals tightly, so the plastic cover can be left in place until the paint can is empty.

Paint will not stick to this plastic cover, so you can use it repeatedly.

The bag-holding top loop folds down to convert the unit into a handy hauler of fertilizer bags, refuse cans, cartons, and other equipment.

The unit rolls on six-inch wheels, and accommodates any seven-bushel plastic bag.

BECAUSE YOU'RE A WOMAN... YOU NEED MORE IRON

EVOLUTION

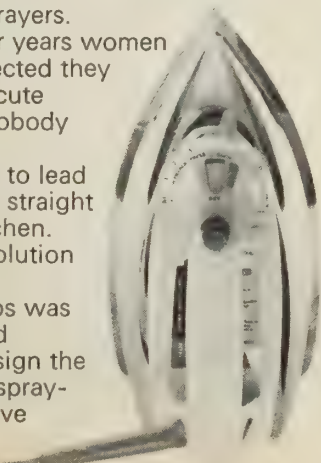

You need a Sears, the steam-spray-dry iron that's the answer to a maiden's prayer. In fact, it's the answer to hundreds of maidens' prayers.

For years women suspected they re suffering from acute iron deficiency. But nobody wanted to care. Then Sears decided to lead the march of progress straight to the American kitchen. And the Counter Revolution was born.

One of our first steps was to ask several hundred women to help us design the perfect iron, a steam-spray-iron that would give every woman fast relief from the miseries of iron deficiency. Here's what we came up with.

A Teflon*-coated soleplate with a non-stick finish that glides smoothly over every fabric. The iron irons, the lady guides. Which is as it should be.

Steaming power that enables this new Sears iron to build up a full head of steam in seconds, and keep it coming steadily through dozens of steam vents spaced to give you a really professional job of pressing—with never a dribble or splash or spot.

A spray pushbutton that directs a fine mist ahead of the iron saves predampening, copes with the most stubborn wrinkles and lets you spray on both steam and dry settings.

An interchangeable cord that permits easy switching from right hand to left hand use. A water window gauge, 30-minute steaming capacity,

THIS DIFFERENT KIND OF HEALTH INSURANCE KEEPS ON PAYING YOU AT HOME.

NEW PLAN

PAYS

YOU UP TO

$1,000.00 A MONTH

When you're sick or hurt and can't work, covers you both IN and OUT of the hospital...offers seven "plus features" that give you more for your money.

This is the kind of policy you, too, should have. Thousands of readers of this magazine have been surprised and pleased at the low cost of this unique plan that provides tax-free cash payments direct to you, month after month, both in and out of the hospital. They have compared available coverages and found there are, indeed, seven important reasons why this Mutual of Omaha policy protects you better!

- It pays you up to $1,000.00 a month—tax-free to spend as you please—when you're laid up and can't work.
- It covers you both in and out of the hospital.
- There are no waiting periods! "Paycheck Protection" covers both accidents occurring and sickness contracted after the policy date.
- Mental disorders are covered the same as any other sickness.
- You are covered as a passenger on any kind of aircraft—even a private plane.
- You are covered both on and off the job. "Paycheck Protection" pays in addition to Workmen's Compensation and Employer's Liability.
- Your policy is guaranteed renewable for life. Only you can cancel this policy. Even your premium can't be changed unless changed for all policies of this form issued to persons of the same classification in your state.

Experts have singled out this kind of health insurance as the most important protection you can have for one compelling reason: it protects your most important asset—your ability to earn. Your family's entire future depends on that. Every plan you make depends on it.

Mutual of Omaha makes it easy for you to have this protection. As the breadwinner, you select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,000.00 a month) to help take care of your regular living expenses when you're laid up. There is no restriction on what you do with these monthly "paychecks", since they are paid directly to you, tax-free to spend as you please. Use them for rent, groceries, or for any other purpose you choose. These benefits are payable for disabilities that start before retirement. Monthly in-hospital benefits are payable after retirement. Your policy does not cover losses caused by war or military service; childbirth, pregnancy or complications resulting from pregnancy.

You can save up to 54% of the cost of this plan if your family is protected by short-term "sick leave" or group insurance where you work. In this case, you can have your Mutual of Omaha "paychecks" start after such benefits have been used up. Your savings, of course, depend on your age, occupation and the plan you qualify for.

THE COMPANY BEHIND A POLICY is just as important as the kind of coverage you get. Mutual of Omaha is the largest company in its field, licensed throughout the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Panama and Puerto Rico. It is currently paying out an average of more than $1,000,000.00 to policyowners every working day.

To make sure you are paid as quickly as possible, Mutual of Omaha maintains over 500 local service offices with a staff trained to the highest standards of courtesy and service. They know that their job is to pay...to cut through red tape and get your checks to you immediately. That's why most benefits payments are processed within 24 to 48 hours of the time your applications for benefits are received.

Undoubtedly, you will want more complete facts about unique "Paycheck Protection," and the extra measure of security Mutual of Omaha can give you. You can have them, entirely without obligation, together with free information about the full range of fine family plans to meet your life insurance needs now available from its affiliate, United of Omaha. You'll find a low-cost packaged program of health and life insurance in the great Omaha Companies tradition.

Can help protect your natural beauty

Our Ironized Yeast bottle will never win a beauty contest. But we don't care. We'd rather have you win a beauty contest. As a woman, you lose iron regularly during your menstrual periods. You can lose enough to cause iron deficiency anemia. When that happens, you may not look as beautiful as—deep-down—you know you really are.

Fact is, you need twice as much iron as a man. You need it every day. So, get your iron from Ironized Yeast. It's the same kind of iron found in most doctors' prescriptions for iron, so you know it's good. Yet, only 98¢ for 60 tablets.

Now, GE delivers right to your door

Ice and cold water

General Electric presents the world's first refrigerator with a custom dispenser on the door. Both ice and cold water at a touch.

Push the cradle marked "Ice" and cubes drop into your glass. You can even fill a whole ice bucket. Push the other one and you get a cold drink of water. You can use both dispensers at the same time. All without opening a door.

And General Electric has some other surprises for you.

Like a convertible seven-day meat keeper that keeps unfrozen meat fresh and ready to cook for an entire week. Or just a flip of a lever and you can use it for more vegetable storage. Slide-out, tempered-glass shelves are easy to clean and spills don't drip through. A no-frost system that keeps everything, including the freezer, completely frostless.

GE also gives you an automatic icemaker that feeds cubes to the dispenser in the door. And there's a big storage bin that keeps a party supply of ice on hand. There are even wheels—so you can roll the refrigerator out and clean behind it.

All that plus 23.5 cubic feet of cool in a refrigerator only 35 $\frac{3}{4}$ " wide and 66" high. That's the new Americana, just one model in our 1969 lineup. Go where GE is sold and see them all.

You'll seldom need service on a GE refrigerator. But it's nice to know we're nearby.

Sears drapery rods. Suddenly they outshine draperies.

If you thought traverse rods were about as exciting as thumb tacks, you're in for a beautiful surprise. At Sears. That's the place (and the only place) you'll find the Royal Family of drapery hardware.

Some very smart men invented a way to laminate vinyl to steel and get the look of brass or copper, of wrought iron or carved wood. The rich, massive look is there. But the weight that pulls out the plaster is gone!

And the shapes shown here are just part of Sears Royal Family collection. There's an Early American rod tipped with shining eagles. An Aztec sunburst design that's perfect for modern rooms. A Regency gem for you who are antique lovers.

Of course every single rod is engineered to pull drapes smoothly. Quietly. Above all, beautifully! Come see our Royal Family soon. At most Sears, Roebuck and Co. stores and in the catalog.

Lees makes carpets that can take all this.

That's why people put them in places like these.

1969 Lees Carpets, Norristown, Pa. 19401. A Division of Burlington Industries.

Finally.

Carpets you can put in places you never could put a carpet before.

Carpets so tough that they can survive daily attacks from a tribe of children, a party of adults, and miscellaneous beasts. Yet look elegant all the while.

And the newest member of this new family, Bright Forecast, is a handsome rubber-backed carpet with acrylic face yarn that's so resistant to everything (rot, mildew and fading) it's even at home outdoors. And if it's hardy enough to take outdoors, it's more than a match for indoors. As shown in the pictures.

But don't let their toughness fool you. They're still carpets. Which means no more mopping and no more waxing. And no more hard floors. Instead you have the luxury and softness of a Lees carpet.

We call these remarkable new carpets Soft Hard Floors. Because they're tough like a hard floor, but soft like a carpet. And they're available in a remarkable variety of materials, sizes and colors. And they cost as little as $7 a square yard.

What could be softer?

It's just a superb sofa.
Til the Jones' flashy new sportcar won't start.

You could get out the family car and drive them home. But it's 50 miles. And it's raining. Besides, you'd like them to stay. Now you have an opportunity to show how your dazzling new sofa turns into a comfortable bed.

The Hide-A-Bed® sofa, made only by Simmons. Who would ever guess it hides a bed? That's because the Hide-A-Bed sofa is first of all a living room sofa. With true living room style. Your style. Whatever it is. Simmons offers more models to choose from than any other sofa designer. Lots of custom options, too. Like welting, skirting, casters and even the cushion filling you want. So you get just the sofa you've been looking for.

And Simmons also gives you a bed.

With a comfortable full-length Simmons Regency or Beautyrest® mattress. Super sizes, too, in many models. Hide-A-Bed sofas are priced from about $225 to $900, right in line with just plain sofas.

So it's really like getting a bedroom free.

When Simmons can give you just the sofa you want, isn't it nice it hides a bed, too?

Betty Crocker

News from General Mills

Sign on a bus: "Let's be good to each other. We're all we've got!" Be extra good to your family with this cool combo—Fruit and Pudding Pie. Bright dessert for an April shower:

- Bake a 9-inch shell from Betty Crocker Pie Crust Mix.
- 1/2 cup toasted slivered almonds
- 1 envelope (about 2 ounces) dessert topping mix
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 can (1 pound 14 ounces) fruit cocktail, drained
- 1 can Betty Crocker Vanilla Pudding

Spread almonds on bottom of pie shell. Prepare topping mix as directed on package except—substitute almond extract for the vanilla. Reserve 1/2 cup fruit cocktail; fold remaining fruit and the pudding into whipped topping. Pour into pie shell; chill until firm. Garnish with reserved fruit cocktail.

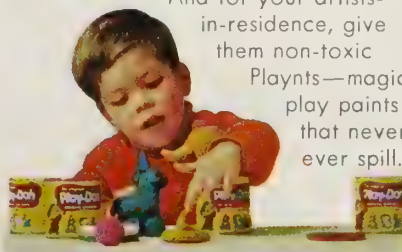

This is the month we choose the winner of the annual Betty Crocker

THE KID-CUSHIONED FLOOR

(It's a beauty)

What do we mean by Kid-Cushioned?

Beauty that's more than skin-deep. Cushioned Floors are covered Congoleum cushioned vinyl.

Extra vinyl to cushion its beauty against the beating it takes from kids' feet. Better than other floors.

It has the cushion-in-the-middle. When your children jump up-and-down, cushion "gives." Then bounces back to its original beauty.

Scratches? Marks?

Forget 'em! Cushioned Floors are vinyl is tougher & thicker.

Dirt? Accidents?

Forget about them, too. Cushioned Floors come clean fast!

What a warm, quiet room...

True. Kid-Cushioned Floors help make rooms warmer and quieter. The cushion-in-the-middle insulates. It shuts out cold and kill chill. It absorbs and deadens sound.

Why's 153 for choice?

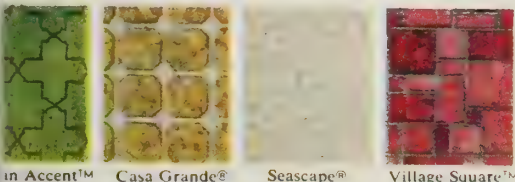

Cushioned Floors come in color-pattern combinations that take a beating... without showing it. These are fashionable floors for families.

Beware:

There's only one Kid-Cushioned Floor. It was invented & perfected by us. No one else sells it. Only your Congoleum dealer.

Look for it in the Yellow Pages.) See: "Kid-Cushioned Decorating Ideas!" Helpful 24-page color booklet. Write to Congoleum, 801, Kearny, N. J. 07032

SOLVING THE MYSTERY OF OLD-FASHIONED BACKACHE

"My aching back!" You blurt out this phrase in pain and annoyance, but your friends don't give you much sympathy. Another backache. So what else is new?

At one time or another, just about everyone experiences the discomfort of low back pain. The fact is, we're vulnerable to backache simply because we're human and insist upon walking, running, or standing in a vertical position—when actually our backs were designed to remain horizontal. The villain in the piece is evolution.

Certainly, no one is interested in getting around again on all fours. But is there any reason why we must compound the back problem with a score or more of bad habits?

Chief among the culprits is poor posture in sitting, standing, sleeping, and walking. You're courting a backache when you slouch in a soft chair or at the wheel of your car . . . when you sleep on your stomach (instead of on your side), or on a mattress too soft, too narrow, or too sunken in the middle for proper support . . . when you wear shoes that cause a strain on the spinal structure. If you're overweight, you compound the problem by putting an excess load on your spine.

Sedentary living can be a contributing factor, because underexercised and over-protected muscles are easy marks for an unaccustomed strain. Merely jerking at a jammed window can throw a back off. Playing golf or doing heavy household jobs once a week creates a sudden demand on lax muscles. You can stir up trouble by trying to lift a hefty load with your back, instead of bending your legs and holding your back straight. If you're not lithe (or young) enough, you may twist your back while dancing.

For a woman, the last months of pregnancy often bring on "low back syndrome," simply because her weight gain is so awkwardly located. To compensate for the uncomfortable shift in her center of gravity, the expectant mother often bends too far backward.

JUST WHAT IS LOW BACK PAIN?

For the sufferer, it can be a knife-like pain or a dull throb; a recurring twinge or a persistent and disabling agony.

Your grandparents probably called it a "crick" or "lumbago." Today, a sore back may be labeled (rightly or wrongly) "muscle spasm," "slipped disk," "lumbosacral syndrome," or many other names. Actually, a low backache most often is not classed as an ailment at all, but rather as a symptom like a cough or headache. And it appears to be an "adults only" disability; infants and children escape it altogether.

In a review of 2,000 backache cases at the Mayo Clinic, no less than 28 different reasons for backaches were noted. However, doctors tend to classify them into three main groups:

Traumatic back pain is any upset of the spinal structure which is caused by an injury that irritates the sensitive tissues (e.g., muscles, ligaments) or tissues supplied by sensory nerves. Referred back pain is a signal something is wrong in another part of the anatomy. The pancreas, stomach, liver, prostate, and heart all use the back as a sounding board for their distress. There also may be an innate or acquired deformity of the bones of the back—or a rare tumor of the spine, an arthritic condition, or a disease from some invading infection.

Unlike a muscle, a ligament can't spring back—so overstretching it is asking for trouble. This can happen with a strain, which often comes from the repeated punishment inflicted by bad posture; or with a sprain, which is a more violent injury of ligaments. Most commonly, the ligaments in the lumbosacral joint (at the spine's base where the stress on the back is greatest) become badly stretched so the surrounding muscles fail to protect the joint from sudden movement. Strained or torn ligaments relax their hold on the spine, and the bones of a joint may then move about enough to cause painful friction.

If you strain or sprain your back, there's usually local swelling at the point of injury. As ligaments and muscles start to swell, excess fluids irritate nerves and you suffer either a pain or a spasm of muscles in the area.

A chronic low backache can result from a disk that is damaged ("ruptured") as a result of aging. If any injury or violent stress hastens the process, the disk can blow out like a tire, and the result is a herniated or slipped disk. With this condition, a fragment may protrude into the spinal canal; there it can impinge upon the spinal cord, and pain may radiate toward a leg. Most disk troubles are in the lowest lumbar region, largely because much of the body's "action" takes place here. The sciatic nerve roots are often involved at this spot, too.

It's reassuring to learn that true disk backaches are not nearly as prevalent as they're thought to be. Another favorite scapegoat is the sacroiliac joints. While these joints do take a beating, an acute low back pain is rarely caused by an actual displacement.

CAN "NERVES" CAUSE A BACKACHE?

Like many ailments, an ordinary backache may be brought on by deep-seated emotional tension, vexation, resentment, or anxiety. Some experts say that as many as half of our backaches are psychological. Such pains, as in migraine headaches, are real, not imaginary. That's not hard to understand: since the spinal cord is part of the body's central nervous system, tensions can alter the blood flow in the back, causing pain.

That "sore back" also can be an emotional defense weapon. A man who feels overwhelmed by his job responsibilities wants to get his boss "off my back." His wife, burdened by household routine and yearning to escape for awhile, subconsciously zeroes in on her tired—and now aching—back as an acceptable excuse to take time out. Psychiatrists term this an "unconscious learned pattern," like the behavior of a child who develops a stomachache when he hates to go to school.

WHAT DO DOCTORS RECOMMEND?

One out of seven afflicted Americans takes his aching back to a doctor each year. There, a physical examination, medical history, and X rays (if necessary) should indicate whether the trouble is caused by a congenital defect, arthritic change, cancer, or other spinal disease. The doctor can then plan a course of treatment aimed at the back itself, not at a troublesome symptom.

OLD-FASHIONED BACKACHE

Continued

When a simple backache is due to strain or mild injury, orthopedists (bone specialists) usually prescribe rest, heat, a pain reliever like aspirin, and (often) massage or a body support. Bed rest is prescribed for at least a couple of days on a firm mattress, sometimes over a bed board. This keeps the spine straight until the worst of the pain subsides.

Moderate local heat from an electric pad or hot water bottle generally helps when used intermittently, for no more than a half-hour at a time. Deep-heat diathermy and ultrasonics may be temporarily helpful. Some liniments contain chemicals related to aspirin, and these may ease the pain. In any case, rubbing the back with a liniment is good massage.

Aspirin is considered an excellent drug for backaches, not only because it eases pain but also because it produces some muscular relaxation and has an anti-inflammatory effect.

In some cases, hydrocortisone shots for inflamed muscles can relieve pain and shorten any disability period. Very gentle massage (which may help relieve the discomfort), followed by good limbering-up exercises, is often recommended for low backache.

Immobilizing the back with a snug girdle or special corset gives support, like bandaging a sprained foot. And it's apt to be advised for anyone who insists upon slouching.

What about manipulation? Essentially, this is a maneuvering or twisting of the back by normal pressure. Manipulation should never be attempted until a thorough diagnosis has been made to determine what's really causing the backache. Without a prior diagnosis, manipulation can be extremely detrimental. If the backache is caused by a ruptured disk, for example, manipulation can induce serious complications, sometimes even paralysis.

WHEN DOES A BACKACHE MEAN SURGERY?

According to one study, only one in 100 serious backaches demands an operation. Backaches that do require surgery usually result from severe injuries or congenital abnormalities. An operation also may be indicated if there is danger of permanent nerve damage—or if, after prolonged disability, the patient does not respond to routine treatment.

Ruptured, bulging disks often irritate nerve roots near the spinal cord. In some instances, neurosurgeons (specialists in surgery of the brain and nervous system) can fuse the vertebrae separated by the damaged disk. Bone is inserted between them—either the patient's own bone or from a bone bank. This bone grafting establishes an internal splint on the spine. As a rule, however, a disk can be removed without doing a "fusion."

Although surgery often brings relief, most doctors are very conservative in advising surgery for disk problems. Before deciding to operate for a true slipped disk, an experienced doctor waits to see if the patient gets over the episode. Meantime, the patient is given exhaustive tests, and his spinal canal is explored by specialists. Over 95 percent of "slipped" disk sufferers will get over the attack without surgery.

Unfortunately, an operation does not always bring total relief. The patient may have residual aches, and experience some restriction in bending or twisting.

CAN BACKACHES BE CURED?

Yes, if only a muscle or ligament of healthy tissue has suffered a simple sprain or strain—and no deeper damage has resulted. In many cases of "slipped" disks, however, a permanent injury has occurred. Even if you submit to surgery, you won't necessarily be "cured," but must learn to live with a vulnerable back. This means keeping your back limber and your muscles strong by following a good exercise program and observing common sense rules.

HOW IMPORTANT IS EXERCISE?

After the pain of a backache has eased, many orthopedists are likely to prescribe special corrective exercises to strengthen weak muscles and improve your posture. These exercises also stretch tight ligaments which have contracted as a result of prolonged muscle spasm or bad posture. Occasionally mild exercises may even be substituted for rest. The exertion, however, should not be as strenuous as to provoke even more pain.

Each orthopedist has his own ideas on how you should exercise, so specific instruction should come from your doctor. What's good for one type of backache might be disastrous for another. Always, moderation is the key. Exercises should be progressive, using muscles of the trunk, pelvis, and legs. Smooth performance is important, with an absence of jerks, snaps, grunts, or groans. No exercise ought to be repeated if

You can tell great furniture by the wood that isn't there.

Wood alone doesn't make a table beautiful. It's what you do with the wood that counts.

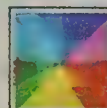

Look at our Chateau Provence cocktail table. The graceful curves of the legs soften the straight lines of the top. The carving is just strong enough to set an authentic French country mood. The parquet inlays add richness to the simple design of the surface. We create thousands of pieces of Thomasville furniture with this kind of attention to detail.

Next time you're looking for fine furniture, look for the wood that isn't there. It will tell you what we mean by "that Thomasville look."

HANDY HOME MOVIE CENTER

If storing movie and slide equipment is a problem for you, take a look at this compact storage console. There's enough room to store projectors, cameras, film, and all the assorted paraphernalia that is usually scattered all over the house.

The entire case measures 5 feet long, 30 inches high, and 18 inches deep. Construction is quite simple, since the only mitered joints are found in the top banding. All the others are butt-joints.

To build the unit, you'll need $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch oak plywood along with 1x2 oak for the top banding; and 2x2 oak for the legs and stretchers, which are dowelled together.

The interior dividers should be arranged according to your own photo equipment dimensions. The offset hinged doors are held shut by magnetic catches. Angle aluminum is fastened atop each door, over the finger cut outs, to serve as pulls.

From left to right, the first space in the cabinet holds movie and slide projectors on pull-out shelf. The next opening handles reels, albums and slide trays. Film and editing equipment is next, and the right-hand space accommodates cameras, lights, and miscellany. Adjustable shelves are used for three openings to allow storing a variety of those elusive small items.

The top, with its durable matte varnish finish, is an ideal place for your projector while you're showing films or slides.

TWO STORIES OF OUTDOOR LIVING

Practical decks don't have to be down-to-earth. The owners of this home had two floors above ground, so they provided walk-out space for each by building a high, handsome deck outside their family room. The area underneath is just right for a sheltered, basement-level patio.

On a deck, space doesn't cost much more than the board-foot-price of lumber—so don't shortchange yourself with skimpy outdoor living. Here there's plenty of room for barbecuing, eating, entertaining, or relaxing. Comfortable seats on three sides are built into the outward-slanted railing.

Photographs: Suter, Hedrich-Blessing; Designer: Henry Norris, A.I.A. Source: Susan Medlock

The shady, free-form patio also has its own eating area. Steps tie the upper and lower levels together. The structure is solidly supported by 4x4-inch steel posts and a beam fabricated by spiking together two 2x12s.

Shagmoor may be thick enough to wade in, but that doesn't mean it's hard to take care of.

Sears calls it "the no-problem shag" because it's made of 100% polyester pile. It won't crush or show footprints—resists rough wear—and best of all, won't hold dirt. Just vacuum. Keeps its lush texture.

And the colors! 27 of them. Like persimmon—a brilliant shaggy blending of pink and orange. Harvest gold—a marvelous meld of bronze and yellow. Nine multicolors.

Eighteen knockout solids, too. From cerise to lime to regal purple. Come see Shagmoor at Sears or call us for our shop-at-home service.

THE PLASTICS EXPLOSION

IN HOME FURNISHINGS

Its unbelievable impact on furniture, fabric, wall and floor coverings

By Peg Rumely, Home Furnishings Editor, and Nelda Cordts, Associate

It all started more than 100 years ago—with a novice inventor looking for a better billiard ball. He invented celluloid. For the next 40 years, that was the plastics industry. During and following World War II, plastics really boomed, and today they're molded, pressed, stamped, and present in every phase of our lives.

However, it's only during the past two or three years that plastic furniture manufacturing became important. Breakthroughs in chemistry and molecular theory opened the way to "engineered" materials. The beauty of these engineered plastics is that they can be made to do whatever the designer has in mind. They need not imitate wood, metal, or any previously existing substance.

No one today considers plastic a low-cost substitute in home furnishings. Rather, plastics are being used for their own characteristics—and for ease of maintenance. As always, new materials bring new designs. For example, a four-legged wooden chair looks the way it does because it is built in accordance with the raw material. Made of plastic, it could have many legs or none . . . be a cube, a ball, a cone . . . be hard or soft. These new plastic designs uniquely fit today's way of life—innovative, flexible, and mobile.

There are two important types of plastic used in the new furniture: thermoplastics and thermoset plastics.

Thermoplastics become soft when exposed to sufficient heat and harden when cooled, no matter how often the process is repeated. A thermoplastic, then, behaves much like paraffin wax which can be used over and over again in different forms and shapes. In furniture manufacturing, major plastics of this type include acrylics, polypropylene, vinyls, polystyrene, ABS, and nylon.

Thermoset plastics also soften when initially heated, but then go through an internal chemical change resulting in added hardness and relative inertness. Once hardened, thermosetting plastics can't be returned to a liquid state. Like hard-boiled eggs, they would char if reheated. Significant to furniture in this classification are polyurethane (foam and solid), phenolics, and polyester. While thermosetting plastics are most often used in high-pressure laminating, they can also hold together reinforcing materials that comprise the body of the finished product. Reinforcing materials may be cloth, paper, wood, or fibers of glass.

Plastic laminates had some of their first uses in furniture, and they're still going strong. Close behind them was vinyl upholstery. Today, both of these plastics have been greatly improved. Not all laminates are rigid. There are now vinyl veneer wraps—flexible vinyls imprinted with wood grains. These can be laminated to tops and vertical surfaces, or wrapped around posts and rails. The effect is to make lower cost core materials look like costly cabinet woods. Recently, vinyl veneers have been produced in such exotic materials as simulated gold. When heat-pressured over decorative carvings, they result in a rich look at substantial savings.

Probably the most dramatic advance of plastics into home furnishings came in the form of decorative and structural parts resembling wood carvings and moldings. (The Mediterranean-Spanish style really encouraged this trend.) Molded polystyrene or polyurethane plastic components now dress up the faces of all kinds of furniture pieces. Or, entire tables and chairs are molded from plastic.

Many of the newest forms of plastic are purist materials that challenge designers' imaginations. Within the past few years, translucent acrylics have become extremely popular. Their see-through qualities give contemporary furniture a light and airy appearance and at the same time these designs seem not to take any space in a room. Text continues on page 68.

Four fast steps in the making and covering of a polyurethane chair.

Liquid polyurethane in mold heats to 180°, is rigid in 15 minutes.

Shell is lifted from mold, excess burlap reinforcement is cut away.

Pre-cut flexible urethane is bonded to shell to provide soft padding.

Stretch nylon upholstery fabric is pulled over padded shell chair.

Some of these pieces are all plastic and simulate wood, metal, leather, ceramic. Other plastic in fronts, moldings, trims—even complete veneer wraps.

PLASTICS EXPLOSION

These pieces look at home with literally everything including fine antiques.

Opaque plastics are another side of the coin. These plastics—polystyrene and polyester, to name two—are sometimes reinforced with fiber glass. Molded into unconventional shapes, they're colored in vivid hues or pure white or black.

One of the most popular plastics in home furnishings is polyurethane, since it is so adaptable in either its soft and flexible or hard and rigid state. (A good example of both soft and hard polyurethane was pictured at the beginning of this story in the four steps leading to a chair shell.) From polyurethanes come cushioning foam for upholstery and bedding, adhesives, and wood-finishing components. This same material, when rigid, can be formed into parts which look like wood, or into free-form shapes for upholstered chairs.

Some furniture is now made entirely from flexible urethane foam. These pieces—tables, chairs, sofas, beds—can be used in various combinations to furnish an entire living space. Some of the shapes are just color-sprayed rather than upholstered.

One of the more revolutionary developments is inflatable vinyl furniture. Sometimes considered a novelty, it does offer the person on the move great convenience—simply deflate it for travel, and then blow it up on arrival. Inflatables come in crystal-clear vinyl or in solid colors, or a combination of the two.

Familiar to everyone are man-made fibers in fabrics, carpeting, wall coverings—and practical, resilient vinyl floor coverings. In our color photographs, we've identified some of the newer products and materials.

Stretch nylon is the hot stuff now in fabric upholstery. This fabric clings to every curve of the furniture form and is simply slipped over and stretched on. Remarkable, too, is a sculptured polymer chemical fabric with the feel of lush suede. Technological advances make it possible for a 12x15-foot patterned rug to be made in four minutes by a color-set electromagnetic process of dyeing carpets. Computerized patterns can now be electronically reproduced in a variety of handsome rugs once available only in custom designs.

Until recently, plastics were in what might be called the replacement era. They proved themselves better in thousands of applications than the materials of the past. Now plastics are on a new threshold—call it the innovation stage—when these man-made substances create objects that could never be built before. New shapes, new designs, new applications are virtually limitless. This versatility will permit a grace, a technological beauty that may well become the hallmark of a new American culture. There's no doubt that plastics have become real professionals in the materials world. ■

MOTOR HOME

CARS IN YOUR FAMILY

Duane L. Gregg, Automotive Editor

QUESTIONS WE'RE ASKED ABOUT RECREATIONAL VEHICLES

Call them what you will—recreational vehicles, leisure vehicles, camping vehicles, travel vehicles—they all add up to mobile living quarters that enable a family to take their accommodations with them on a trip or vacation.

During the past year, we've received hundreds of letters from readers seriously considering the purchase of some type of travel vehicle. We picked out the questions most often asked (not necessarily in the order of frequency).

► 1. What are the main categories of vehicles, and what do they cost?

Tent trailers originally were little more than fold-out tents mounted on two-wheeled trailers. Not any more. You can still buy that basic model, but today's most popular ones offer much more living and comfort—yet still fold, slide, or telescope into a compact, easily towed vehicle. The top-of-the-line models offer built-in counters, cabinets, stove, oven, sink, refrigerator—even bath facilities including a shower. Prices range from around $300 to well over $1,000 for the deluxe models.

Travel trailers are room-like vehicles with sides and roofs of wood, plastic, or metal. They're available with about every luxury of a home: comfortable beds, completely equipped kitchens, lots of closets and storage space, air conditioning, and bath facilities. Prices start at around $1,000 and can run as high as $12,000, depending on size and optional equipment desired.

Camper bodies are self-contained cottages that slide into the cargo space of a pickup truck. Here again, about any degree of luxury is available. Camper bodies start at around $1,000, and while pickup trucks can be purchased for $2,000, those models especially set up for camper duty start at about $2,500.

Compact van conversions start out as the little boxlike trucks used for delivery and service work. After some surgery, they emerge as mobile living quarters offering a wide range of facilities and equipment. Truck-plus-conversion costs begin at about $3,000.

A motor home amounts to building a good-sized travel trailer on a truck chassis, thus providing a self-contained unit that may be driven down the road. Most motor homes sell in the $6,000 to $20,000 price range.

► 2. What else can I do with a leisure vehicle? I can't justify the cost for a two-week vacation once a year.

The converted van and pickup camper have the advantage of doubling as a second car during your non-traveling season.

But the secret to justifying any leisure vehicle is to find other year-round job that are suitable for it:

Use it as your family's weekend cottage. It will probably cost less than a cottage, require less upkeep, cost much less for insurance and taxes, and will not be subject to the vandalism that plague unoccupied cottages.

A recreational vehicle also offers unsurpassed mobility. You can enjoy your leisure in a variety of settings—the lake one time, the beach next time, and the mountains for still another outing.

Use it as a portable hunting, fishing, or skiing lodge. A leisure vehicle can slash the cost of such outings because it gets you there, provides living space while there, and reduces the need for restaurant meals (both en route and at your destination). And you can take the vehicle right where the action is. There may be accommodations close to a good hunting or fishing spot, but a leisure vehicle can take you right into many such spots.

Use it for family "visiting" trips. With a recreational vehicle, you'll have your own accommodations along the way, and when you arrive, just park your portable motel in Granddad's drive or backyard. Everyone will have a place to sleep without resorting to cots, couches, or the living room carpet.

Use it as a guest house. When more family or friends arrive than your house can comfortably accommodate, handle the overflow with your own "motel."

3. What about financing the purchase of a leisure vehicle?

Pickup trucks and converted compact vans are financed much like new cars. Loans for 36 months are common. When purchased with a pickup truck, a camper body usually is included in the financing agreement for the truck. If purchased separately, the camper body can often be financed for a longer period of time (up to four years), under the same general terms as for cars.

Travel-trailer and motor-home financing is usually available for even longer periods—with five years the most common, though some dealers will offer up to seven years. Rates are comparable to those for new-car purchases. The down payment depends largely on your credit rating and may vary from a few hundred dollars up to as much as 25 percent.

Financing tent trailers is considerably different. These units are less durable than travel trailers and motor homes—but they cost much less, so repaying the loan in the required shorter period is not a major problem. Many tent trailers are sold for cash or are completely paid off in less than a year.

4. What type of leisure vehicle should I buy first?

If it's your first experience with camping vehicles, you probably should rent rather than buy. A few trips in a variety of vehicles will reveal how your family takes to this type of living and what their needs are going to be.

Rental vehicles are widely available from camper equipment dealers, rental-car agencies, and some car dealers. Costs range from about $40 a week for a small tent trailer to as much as $200 or $300 a week plus mileage for a large, fully equipped motor home.

Most first-time buyers start with a unit of modest cost and trade up to more luxurious models later on. Stable prices on used vehicles make this idea practical, because a family can generally count on a good trade-in allowance.

5. Aren't leisure vehicles, especially those bus-like motor homes, difficult to drive?

This varies with the vehicle. None is really difficult to maneuver, but all present driving situations different from those encountered in a car. Consequently, leisure vehicles do call for a little driving practice.

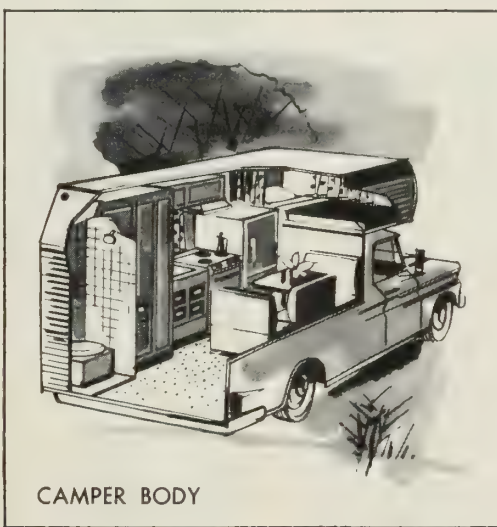

A vacation-type trailer hitched to a car or truck will usually double the total length of vehicle under your command. So you must allow extra distance when changing lanes, passing, and turning corners. Since the coupling between car or truck and trailer is flexible, backing can also be a problem. Some state laws and local ordinances specify reduced speed limits for vehicles pulling a trailer. And you may encounter overheating and other problems in the pulling vehicle, particularly under adverse conditions such as driving in mountains or desert.

At one extreme, the compact van is smaller than a car and easier to drive once you get the feel of the vehicle. At the other extreme, the large (24 to 27 foot) motor home requires time and practice before you feel fully at ease in the driver's seat. Your self-confidence is really the only problem, since most of these vehicles are equipped with automatic transmission, power brakes, and power steering to make driving easier.

The camper body/pickup truck combination is a little wider and somewhat higher than a car, but the overall length and the maneuvering problems are about the same as for a car.

With any recreational vehicle, you'll have to learn to use the outside rearview mirrors on both the left and right sides. Your conventional interior-mounted mirror is practically useless, so you must rely on exterior mirrors to know what's happening to the rear and both sides.

Because most travel trailers, pickup campers, and motor homes are longer and higher than cars, there's more exterior surface for the wind to hit. This can cause a slight buffeting on windy days when you pass large trucks or go through underpasses or earth cuts on the Interstates. This may be a bit alarming at first, but presents no real problem once you adjust to it. Surprisingly, the motor homes—although the largest of the three units—are least affected by buffeting.

6. What about finding a good place to set up camp?

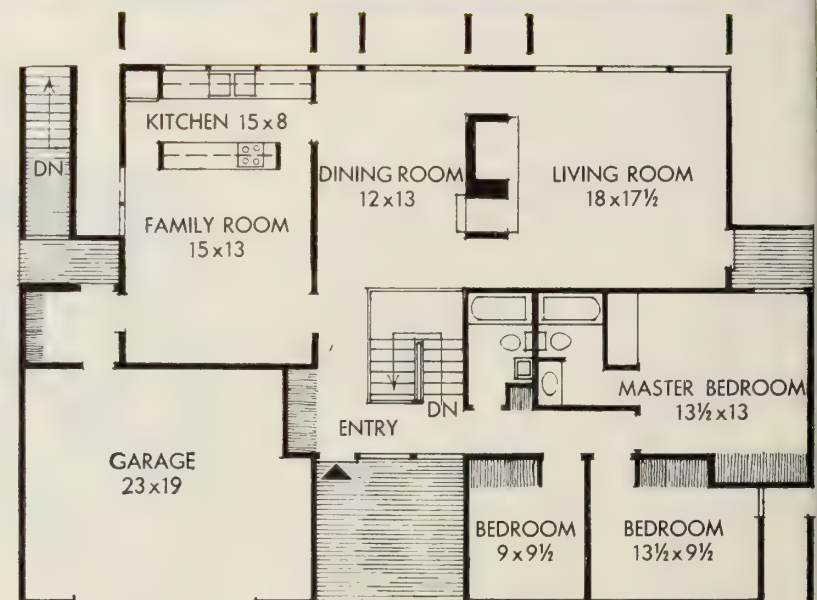

There are over 400,000 campsites now available, plus many more under construction. To be sure of finding a suitable location, you'll need a campsite directory or atlas (available at most book stores, sporting goods stores, and camping equipment dealers). If you plan to stay at a very popular area at peak vacation times, you probably should start looking for a campsite as early as three or four in the afternoon—particularly if you desire electrical, water, and sewer hookups. With a self-contained unit, you can make do nearly anywhere—in the backwoods or even in a service station or supermarket parking lot.

7. What type of camping facilities are available for vehicles?

You can really rough it in areas offering no more than a primitive access road and campsites hacked out of a forest. At the other extreme are deluxe facilities with swimming pools, golf courses, and many other recreational offerings. Between these extremes are campsites with 110-volt electrical

A HOUSE WITH A GREAT NEW SLANT

Lower level works for the whole family. The stairway zones the play area from work areas. That wall between the workshop and laundry room keeps sawdust off freshly washed clothes. The recreation room, with its windows to the back, runs full width of the house.

First floor—no jam-ups here! Traffic to the bedrooms, lower level, and general living area divides neatly in the entry area. Family room, kitchen, and dining room are all convenient from either entry, but the living room is located away from most activity.

Cross-sectional view shows how ordinary trusses, inverted, form the powerful, slanting roof line. The wide-open interior is brightened by plenty of sunlight—from the light scoop over the entry and the huge windows extending from ground to eaves at the rear.

Noel Seney, Building Editor and Douglas M. Lidster, Associate

you think "contemporary living" means sacrificing comfort and hominess for the sake of imaginative design, take a look at this house. From the front, it's welcoming and friendly yet reserved and private.

The unique profile springs from the creative imagination of Architect Ralph Rapson. He set out to design something really new that could be built with conventional methods and materials. Using ordinary roof trusses turned upside down, he came up with a whole new slant in contemporary architecture.

Jutting out from the front slope of the roof is a light scoop. It shelters and draws attention to the entry—but more important, it "scoops" in some of the changing sunshine and shadows of the outdoors. You're also offered a colorful direct view through those large windows next to the front door (right).

Exclusive use of western red cedar gives this home extra attractiveness and durability. Both roof and siding are finished with a transparent stain. The beauty of the wood shows through, but the stain forms a protective barrier against the effects of weathering. Thus the exterior is virtually maintenance free.

And take a close look at the trim around the windows and door. That's wood with all its natural attributes, but you'd never know it. The bonded polyvinyl surface will never need a coat of paint or stain.

This home is just one result of the thinking at work in Minnesota's first "New Town." (See our article on this subject, March, 1968, page 18.) Located among the lakes and forests 25 miles southwest of the Twin Cities, the town of Jonathan has set out to prove that total planning need not lead to crowding or loss of individuality and privacy.

CEILING SETS THE STAGE FOR DRAMATIC LIVING

This ceiling—sweeping over both living room and dining room to meet the high rear wall—generates the feeling of sheer drama that's characteristic of the entire house. Red cedar boards, also used for the exterior siding, cover the ceiling and visually connect the inside of the house with the outside. Extending from the fireplace up through the roof, the twin chimneys add impetus to the upward movement.

The white brick fireplace effectively divides the living room from the dining room without obstructing the flow of traffic. It's massive, but the overall spaciousness of the combined areas keeps it in scale with the rest of the house. The chimney, rising up from the lower level, divides the wide, chair-height hearth into two parts. One side is a working fireplace, the other a convenient log storage bin. The back of the fireplace forms the dining room wall. Extending through from the living room, the log bin adds an accent to the expanse of white brick.

The bright yellow vinyl floor extending from the entry to the rear wall defines the dining room (below). There is room for quite a bit of furniture, yet there's space for guests to move freely in and out. The big windows offer a beautiful view, and let in plenty of sunshine. The room's location makes it ideal for either a formal dinner gathering or casual family meal.

The living room (above) is more formal without being foreboding. Because it's out of the general flow of household traffic, it's the perfect setting for adult conversation and relaxation. Large windows at the floor level are for "looking"; smaller windows along the top of the wall are for illumination. The rough-finished plaster walls are painted pure white and have been left relatively unadorned, opening the room up and providing a good background for the colorful paintings. As you can see in the floor plan, the living room also boasts access to its own private deck outside.

he natural conversational arrangement of the furniture in the living room (above) is a pleasant break from the more traditional around-the-wall placement, and lends itself to relaxed conversation. The furniture itself is very simple in design, and decorating has been tastefully restrained. The old carpeting, bordered by the hardwood floor, adds warmth and emphasizes the size of the room, while defining the smaller conversation area.

The entryway (below left) separates the flow of traffic into the house into three basic living areas. The bright yellow floor extends into the dining room, marking the most common route of the family and guests. An impressive staircase of wrought iron and dark stained cedar planking leads down to the laundry, recreation, and utility areas. If you've ever come late in the evening and had to walk through the house turning lights on and off to find your way to the bedroom, you'll appreciate this front hall location. The bedrooms are located right through the doorway at the top of the stairs.

The intersection of the entryway roof with the main roof of the house forms a strong, low angle that sets off the upward sweep of the ceiling. Use of suspended light spheres is repeated throughout the house to give glare-free illumination.

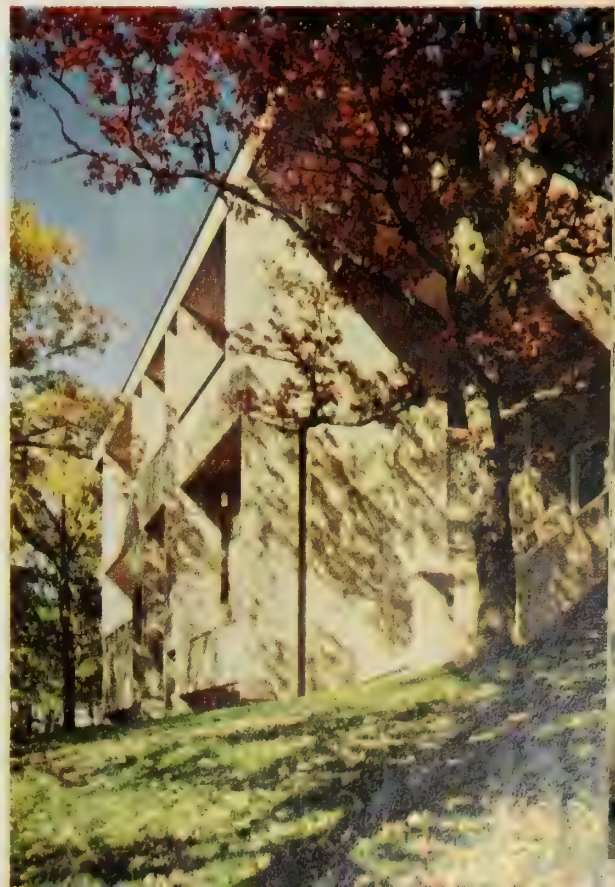

You'll know how all that sunlight gets in when you see the rear of the house (below right). It's wide open. To avoid a stark look, the vertical open areas have been broken up by the cedar cross-members. That staircase leads to the rear deck. And the back door leads into a mud room between the family room and garage for those who insist on bringing some of the outdoors in on their feet.

From this view, you get the full impact of the height created by the use of the inverted trusses. Red cedar siding helps blend this design into the wooded setting.

KITCHEN-FAMILY ROOM MAKES WORK RELAXING

Every busy housewife who ever felt trapped up in a kitchen will appreciate this one. The lack of walls, the soaring ceiling, and freedom to move in and out—all take away that trapped-with-the-dishes feeling.

Equipped with the latest conveniences, the kitchen features a highly efficient layout to minimize steps and allow fast, easy meal preparation. The range, with counter space on either side, is located on an island that separates the kitchen from the family room. Windows extending from splash to cabinets light the sink area; they make this counter seem like an island also.

Functional simplicity gives the kitchen an uncluttered look. General lighting comes from the sphere suspended from the ceiling, and counter-top light from fluorescent tubes built into the bottoms of the cabinets. Refrigerator tucks away into its own little nook. Cabinets are cedar, in keeping with the rest of the house, and those above the range are open to both kitchen and family room.

Not just a second living room, the family room (above right) is an activity center for everyone. The colors are bright and friendly, the furniture casual and relaxing. It's the ideal place to feed the family in a hurry, or entertain a roomful of friends. Refreshments and snacks are prepared quickly in the kitchen, then passed over the counter.

The niche in the wall (below right) opposite the counter is a natural for our own personalizing. Use stack-together units, as shown here, or bookshelves, or even built-ins. You could display an art collection in the niche, or turn it into an enormous storage and closet area. If you aren't feeling imaginative, just extend the furniture all the way back and be satisfied with a super-size entertainment and recreation center, as well as a restful spot for watching a Sunday afternoon football game.

BEAUTIFUL TREES FOR TODAY'S SMALLER HOUSES AND LOTS

By Hamilton Mason, Garden Editor
and Larry Grove, Associate

Time was when an elm or oak filled the bill in any landscape if the plan called for a tree. Not so today. The forest giants used so extensively in the past are out of scale with many of the houses now being built. Instead, you should choose from a great variety of small-scale trees which come in a wide range of sizes and shapes, each fulfilling a specific purpose. Following are 31 fine trees, categorized by their general shape.

THE UMBRELLAS

These spreading, low-crowned trees are ideal for use on parking strips; where low wires are a problem; as specimens; or as additions to the shrub border for change in height, texture, or color.

Pink Bud Sargent crabapple. The normally low-spreading Sargent crabapple, grafted on a seven-foot trunk, forms this handsome 20-foot tree. In spring, pink buds open to pure white.

Almira Norway maple. This "different" maple refuses to grow up. Its mature height is only 16 feet. The crisp green, firm foliage gives the tree a strong silhouette. Leaves turn yellow in fall.

China-berry. Here is a densely foliaged southern tree that grows rapidly even under adverse conditions. Long clusters of lilac flowers in spring and yellow berries in fall are added features.

Redbud. This most popular of flowering trees is hardy in all parts of America. The tiny purplish blossoms outline the branches to form intricate patterns.

THE WEEPERS

their pendent branches impart a soothing, restful feeling—one of several reasons why they fit so beautifully into oriental gardens. But don't go overboard—such trees lose their effectiveness if too many are used.

Weeping cherry. Bright pink blossoms are artistically spaced along the gracefully hanging branches. When the blossoms fade to white, they resemble falling snow. Lustrous foliage replaces the blossoms in late spring for an effective summer display. Tree is hardy in all but the coldest regions.

Weeping beech. Rich green foliage covers the long branches which sweep the ground. The tree grows wide, so allow for its eventual spread of about 40 feet.

Weeping scholar-tree. The softly rounded head with uneven skirt of branches fits well into both formal and informal plantings. Height will probably not exceed 18 feet, so you don't have to worry about it outgrowing its place.

Cutleaf weeping birch. The lacy foliage and white trunk make this tree an outstanding specimen in any garden. For spectacular effect, use these birches to line a long driveway. Like all birches, they must be protected against borers, but it takes only a few minutes each year to apply protective insecticides.

Red Jade crabapple (shown in fruit). Even flowering crabapples come in weeping form. This variety has a showy display of white flowers in spring followed by tiny bright red fruits that polka-dot the long branches for many weeks in late summer.

THE PYRAMIDALS

The shapes of these trees are so well defined that many appear trimmed. These lend themselves beautifully for use along streets or as specimens in any part of the garden.

European hornbeam. If you are looking for a tree of outstanding shape which is practically free of pests, this is the one. Only light pruning is needed to give it a stiff, formal outline.

Southern magnolia. This fantastic tree is loved in the South and East for its large, waxy white blooms and big, leathery leaves. The tree is attractive all year round because the leaves are evergreen. Blooms appear all summer long.

American holly. The lustrous foliage and bright red berries of this handsome tree are favored for decorating at Christmas time. If you prefer another shape, you have a wide choice among many named varieties to be found on the market. Not hardy in coldest areas.

Chanticleer pear. This exceptionally fine selection of the callery pear has a plus feature for every season. It is covered with white blossoms in spring and shiny green foliage in summer. In the fall, leaves turn a plum color. The twiggy branches maintain the tight silhouette during winter months.

White fir. Long, flat, needlelike leaves that are comparatively soft to the touch help distinguish this fine evergreen from the spruces. It maintains a narrower profile than most spruces and other pines, so you can plant it in rather confined areas.

Paul's Scarlet hawthorn. Bright scarlet, double flowers in spring make this one of the showiest hawthorns. Small clusters of bright red fruits decorate the branches in fall and winter.

THE GLOBES

Trees with oval or round conformations have a less formal bearing than the pyramidal types. However, they look best when used in a formal manner, such as in pairs on front parkings or equally spaced along property lines. Also, they are fine for specimen use.

Globeheaded European ash. This one is a real lollipop. The almost perfectly round foliage mass arises from a graft made on a seven-foot trunk. Eventually, the tree will be 25 feet tall, but will maintain its rounded shape.

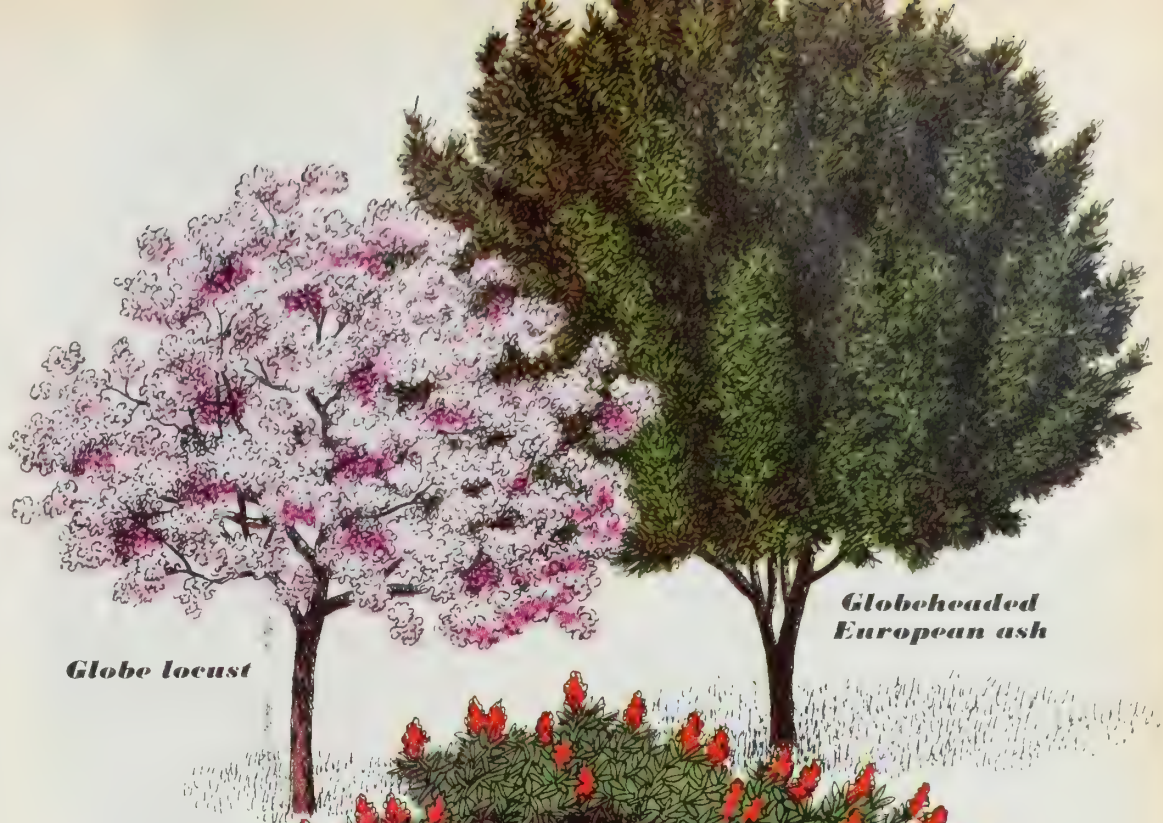

Flowering Globe locust. This giant ball of flashy pink flowers brilliantly signals the end of spring. The lacy, compound leaves are attractive all summer and give light, airy shade. The tree is excellent for use on a patio.

Ruby Red horse-chestnut. Spikes of flaming red flowers well spaced over the rich green foliage in late spring make this tree a sight to remember. This handsome 30-footer becomes an excellent specimen for property of any size.

Cleveland Norway maple. The top of this 30-foot beauty forms a tight oval of heart leaves that are a deep green in summer and a strong yellow in the fall. This tree will live for many years, and the sturdy branches will resist storm damage. Although small, these trees need 50-foot spacing.

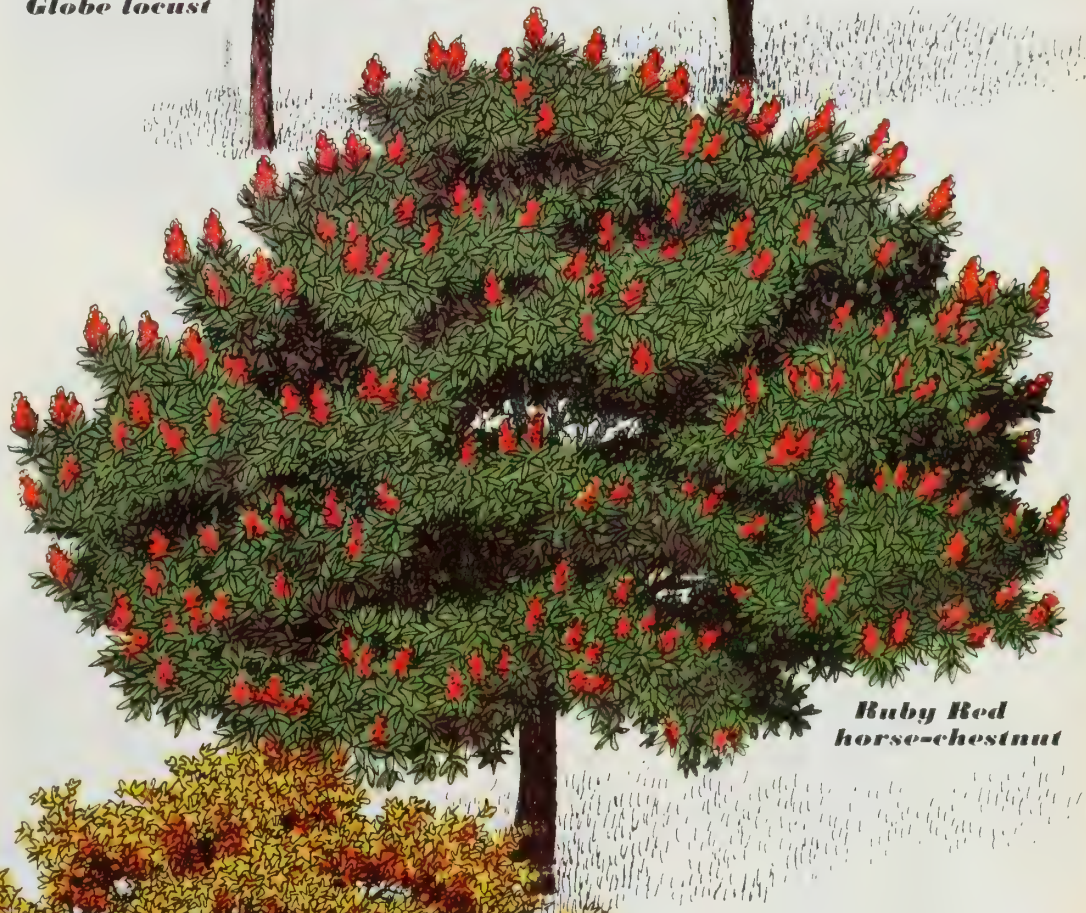

Saucer magnolia. The size (and quantity) of bloom this small tree puts out is almost unbelievable. Each branch from ground to tip bears large, tulip-shaped blooms that are white on the inside and flushed deep pink on the outside—there is a red variety, too. Despite its delicate look, the tree is quite hardy and survives even sub-zero temperatures. Continued

THE COLUMNARS

The branches of these trees arise from the trunk at an acute angle to give a tightly contained, narrow profile. They make fine accent points in the garden, along formal walks or drives. Or use them to screen out utility poles.

Washington hawthorn. Here is one of the best accent plants. It has a new look for each season of the year—white flowers in spring, green leaves in summer, red fruits from late summer into winter, and fine fall color.

Siberian crabapple. A bright column of rosy pink flowers makes this tree a standout in any garden. The small purplish red fruits which follow the blooms are bright accents through the summer and are too small to be much of a problem when they fall.

Olmsted maple. The beauty of the Norway maple plus true columnar form make this an outstanding tree for general garden use, particularly on parkings where overhead wires are often a problem. Bright fall color is an added feature.

Mayfield ginkgo (shown in fall color). This unusual tree is trouble-free, attractive, and has the identical fan-shaped leaves of other ginkgos. It has a diameter of only seven feet when it matures at 30 feet in height.

Rancho Sargent cherry. In spring, bright pink blossoms are followed by bronze leaves which turn to green for the summer, then to brilliant red in fall. This great tree is hardy in every state.

Wilson Columnar mountain-ash. The tight column of lacy foliage provides a touch of magic. Add white flowers in spring and clusters of red berries in fall and you really have something special.

THE SPREADERS

Generous canopies of foliage make these trees especially good for shade or for screening purposes. Exceptional foliage or seasonal bloom lift all the varieties shown here out of the "just shade trees" category.

Russian olive. Silver-backed, dusty green leaves give this tree an ethereal quality. The often-twisted and dramatic trunk is a match for the unique branching habit.

Goldenrain-tree (shown in flower). Small yellow flowers in pyramidal clusters cover the tree in midsummer and become showy, papery, bladderlike pods by fall. This quick-shade tree grows fast to reach its 30-foot height, but it's weak and short-lived.

Dogwood. Glistening white "blossoms" on layered branches make this one of the most beautiful spring trees. Or, you can choose from several pink dogwood varieties. Bright red berries and vivid autumn foliage color end the season spectacularly. Most dogwoods are not hardy in areas where temperatures drop well below zero for extended periods.

Japanese maple. Although comparatively small, this tree can carry a lot of weight in the garden. The foliage of some varieties is so sharply dissected that it gives the tree a lacy appearance. The leaves of some kinds are shades of red all season long—others are green until they turn red in the fall.

Sargent cherry. Generally acknowledged to be the finest of all the cherry trees, the Sargent cherry extends its wide-reaching branches and covers them with deep pink flowers in the spring and brilliant red foliage in the autumn.

A Treasury of Flavor Tricks

By Doris Eby, Food Editor

For hundreds of years, a mystique has surrounded herbs and spices. They've been credited with strange powers of healing the body—or freeing the mind—or even warming the heart. Today, we know herbs and spices can work magic in transforming everyday fare into something rare and special. Here's proof: a treasury of recipes that show you how to add exciting new flavor to breads, salads, meats, dips, desserts.

You'll find recipes sparked with old-fashioned herbs fresh from your garden . . . new ways to combine dried herbs and spices . . . and ingenious uses for packaged seasonings. Start with these ideas, then experiment on your own. Take warning, though—working magic with herbs and spices can be habit forming!

RIGHT: Popover Chicken—With a flavor reminiscent of licorice, Fresh Tarragon does wonderful things for chicken. Here we add it to popover batter poured around browned chicken. As the batter bakes to a delicious doneness, it puffs up around the chicken. Fresh Tarragon is more pungent than the dried variety, so be sure to use it sparingly.

Recipes begin on page 102

ABOVE: Fiesta Pot Roast—Turn an everyday pot roast into a festive specialty with Spanish Seasoning Mix for Rice. Accented with red and green peppers, the mix imparts its own delightful piquancy to the pot roast and gravy.

BELOW: Fresh Herbed Salad—Want to be a salad wizard? Start with a mixture of crisp fresh greens. Then, a flavor sparkle of chopped fresh herbs—mildly onion-flavored Chives, aromatic Sweet Marjoram, anise-flavored Tarragon, and cucumber-flavored Salad Burnet.

ABOVE: Herb Twists—Old-fashioned baking aromas drift from the kitchen, but these rolls are made the new-fashioned way. You begin with hot roll mix, then add a subtle herb flavor and fragrance with Dried Rubbed Sage, that favorite for poultry stuffing, and aromatic Dried Basil. Rolls are shaped into twists, then baked golden brown.

A Treasury of Flavor Tricks

BELOW: Spicy Coconut Chiffon Pie— Witness what Ground Cinnamon does for this delightful dessert. The familiar sweet-pungent spice is combined with two other traditional spices—Ginger and Mace. The blend is used to flavor flaked coconut as it toasts. Then the spicy toasted coconut is layered with vanilla chiffon filling in a baked pastry shell, and garnished with swirls of fluffy whipped cream.

ABOVE: Curried Ham Rolls— Exotic curry has become one of our most popular spice blends. And now you can serve curry in a hurry! This Curried Rice Mix combines rice and curry seasonings in one package—a perfect beginning for an easy-to-fix meal. Here, we top the pungent-flavored mixture with slices of boiled ham, then bake to an elegant finish.

RIGHT: Herbed Chicken Salad— Cooked cubed chicken and romaine, tossed with grated parmesan, and a tangy oil and vinegar salad dressing make this a hearty main dish salad. For crunchy texture and herb flavor, we've used Herb-seasoned Stuffing Croutons. Artfully seasoned with a select blend of herbs, the croutons are ready to use for many flavoring purposes—especially for soups, salads, and casseroles.

Continued

RIGHT: Mushroom-stuffed Lamb Chops— Use a little imagination to turn good substantial foods into something really special. Here, you combine Sour Cream Sauce Mix with chopped fresh mushrooms and a little dry sherry in a flavorful stuffing for lamb chops, broiled to perfection.

A Treasury of Flavor Tricks

ABOVE: Rose Geranium Cake—Capture a surprise garden-fresh flavor in a delicate white cake—you can do it with fresh Rose Geranium leaves. Then frost the cake with pink-tinted, rose-flavored icing and garnish with Rose Geranium leaves that have been coated with egg white and sugar.

RIGHT: Austrian Cabbage Salad—Ring in these flavorful variations next time you serve slaw. First, the cabbage is slightly wilted in hot water to give it a tender-crisp texture. Caraway Seed imparts its slightly sweet accent to the salad, which is laced with a spicy oil-vinegar dressing.

ABOVE: Crumb-crowned Halibut Steaks Here's an easy-to-prepare main dish with an even easier seasoning secret. Just combine Seasoned Coating Mix for Fish with melted butter or margarine, sprinkle atop broiled halibut steaks, then continue broiling till the topping is lightly browned.

RIGHT: Bacon-Onion Bread—Here is a batter bread that just brims with hearty bacon and onion flavor. The secret is Bacon-Onion Dip Mix, seasoned with zesty onion and pieces of smoky bacon. Prepare the batter bread—no kneading necessary—and bake to golden perfection in a loaf dish.

ABOVE: Creamy Mustard Sauce—Who does keep a jar of Prepared Mustard handy? It's an instant flavoring—sharp, tangy, bright colored. For our version of the classic mustard sauce, we've added whipped cream to make it light and fluffy. It's a delicacy—whether you serve it over green vegetables, such as broccoli or asparagus, or over meat such as ham lo ABOVE: Braunschweiger Pate—You can give that favorite standby, braunschweiger, a zippy new personality. Blend it with Green Onion Dip Mix, then frost with cream cheese seasoned with garlic spread. Serve with crackers.

See Buying Guide, page 122

BELOW: Spareribs Far East—You'll savor the distinctive oriental flavor of these spareribs. The blend of seasonings features the mild fragrance of crushed Coriander Seed, with an aromatic flavor somewhat like a combination of lemon peel and sage. Crisp and mildly tangy, these spareribs will be a welcome addition to your repertoire of favorite recipes.

Peppercorns, a prayer and a pinch of Accent®

It is only fitting that peppercorns—once so rare that they were used as a substitute for money—should enhance the flavor of the finest steaks. Just rub ¼ teaspoon of coarsley ground fresh black pepper into one side of the raw steak.

It's pretty hard to miss with this recipe if you take out a little insurance. Liberally cover both sides of the steak with Accent. Accent wakes up all the subtle natural flavors you might otherwise never notice.

Accent gives you all the flavor you paid for.

3 eggs

1½ cups milk

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour

¾ teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon cooking oil

1 tablespoon snipped fresh tarragon or 1 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed

Mushroom Sauce:

1 3-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained

1 tablespoon butter or margarine

1 can condensed cream of chicken soup

¼ cup milk

Brown chicken in 2 tablespoons cooking oil; season with a little salt and pepper. Place chicken in well-greased shallow 2-quart baking dish. In mixing bowl, combine eggs, the 1½ cups milk, the flour, and salt. Beat 1½ minutes with rotary or electric beater. Add oil and tarragon; beat 30 seconds more.

(Do not overbeat.) Pour over chicken. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 50 to 60 minutes or till done. Makes 4 to 5 servings.
Serve with Mushroom Sauce: In saucepan, cook mushrooms in butter or margarine for 4 to 5 minutes. Add soup; gradually stir in the ¼ cup milk; heat through.

Fiesta Pot Roast

4-pound beef arm pot roast

2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

2 tablespoons cooking oil

¼ cup catsup

½ envelope (2 tablespoons)

Spanish seasoning mix for rice

½ cup water

2 tablespoons vinegar

Trim excess fat from meat. Coat meat with flour. In heavy skillet or Dutch oven, brown roast on all sides in hot oil. Season with a little salt and pepper.

Combine catsup, seasoning mix, water, and vinegar. Pour over browned roast. Simmer, covered, for 2½ to 3 hours or till tender. Remove roast to platter and keep warm while preparing gravy. Skim fat from meat juices; add water to juices to make 1½ cups. Blend together
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour and ½ cup water; add to meat juices. Cook and stir till thick and bubbly. Makes 8 servings.

Herb Twists

1 13¾-ounce package hot roll mix

1 teaspoon rubbed sage

½ teaspoon dried basil, crushed

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

Prepare hot roll mix according to package directions, adding sage and basil to the dry mix.
Turn out on lightly floured surface; knead till smooth, 2 to 3 minutes. Place dough in greased bowl, turning once to grease surface. Cover and let rise in warm place till double, about 45 minutes. Punch down. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Turn out on lightly floured board.
Roll to 18x8-inch rectangle.
Brush half the dough, lengthwise, with melted butter or margarine. Fold unbuttered half over buttered, pressing gently, to make 18x4-inch rectangle. Slice dough crosswise into 1-inch wide strips. Holding strips by ends, twist several times; place on lightly greased baking sheet. Let rise in warm place for 20 minutes. Bake in hot oven (425°) for 8 to 10 minutes, or till golden brown. Cool slightly on rack before serving.

Makes 18 rolls.

Using Fresh Herbs

oung fresh herbs, prefy when flower buds are fiming—they'll have a avor than the more maeres. Wash leaves in cold water; pat dry. Snip finely with kitchen shears directly into measuring spoon so you'll cut the exact amount you want.

Plan on using three or four times as many fresh herbs as dried since the flavor is more concentrated in dried variety.

More herbs than you can use at one time? Freeze them and enjoy them the year round. To freeze herbs, select young, tender leaves. Wash, then blanch in boiling water 10 seconds.
Chill in ice water one minute;
pat dry. Seal enough leaves for one recipe in small freezer bag, foil, or clear plastic wrap. Clip all packages of same herb to piece of cardboard; label. Put in freezer. To use: while leaves are still frozen, snip into small pieces directly into casserole, soup, butter, etc. Continued

See page 92

Rose Geranium Cake

A fragrant and delicate cake, for that occasion when you want "something different"

24 rose geranium leaves
1 cup butter or margarine (2 sticks)
1¾ cups sugar
6 egg whites
3 cups sifted cake flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
½ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Rinse rose geranium leaves; wrap 5 or 6 leaves around each stick of butter or margarine. Wrap butter in foil or plastic wrap; refrigerate overnight. Remove leaves from butter; rinse and save leaves. Cream butter; gradually add sugar, creaming till light and fluffy. Add egg whites, two at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Combine milk, water, and vanilla. Alternately add dry ingredients and milk mixture to creamed mixture, beginning and ending with dry ingredients; beat smooth after each addition. Grease and flour two 9x1½-inch layer cake pans. Arrange 10 to 12 rose geranium leaves (including those saved from the butter) on bottom of each pan. Spoon batter over leaves. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 30 to 35 minutes, or till cake tests done. Cool in pans for 10 minutes. Remove layers from pans; cool on racks. Gently remove rose geranium leaves from cake bottoms and discard. Frost cooled cake with Rose Geranium Frosting.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Garnish with Frosted Rose Geranium Leaves: Wash fresh rose geranium leaves; thoroughly pat dry. Carefully brush with one slightly beaten egg white; sprinkle with granulated sugar till well coated. Allow to dry and harden on wire rack. Store in airtight container.

Rose Geranium Frosting

Prepare rose geranium sugar the day before—

*1½ cups rose geranium sugar
2 egg whites
⅓ cup cold water
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
Dash salt

5 drops red food coloring

To make rose geranium sugar:* Use a container with a tight-fitting cover. Pour ¾ cup sugar into container. Wash 3 or 4 fresh rose geranium leaves; add to sugar container. Cover with another ¾ cup sugar. Cover container. Let stand overnight. Remove rose geranium leaves before using sugar.

Place rose geranium sugar, egg whites, water, cream of tartar, and salt in top of double boiler (not over heat). Beat 1 minute with electric or rotary beater. Place over, but not touching, boiling water; cook, beating constantly, till frosting forms stiff peaks, about 7 minutes (do not overcook). Remove from boiling water. Add food coloring; beat till of spreading consistency, about 2 minutes.

The Frigidaire Horse Blanket Laundry.

(Or, what to do with a 12-year-old washer that was made before permanent press.)

Mrs. Camp wanted a new Frigidaire Jet Action washer. One with special cycles for all those new fabrics. (Her old 1957 Frigidaire washer was made before the days of modern synthetics.)

So she bought the new one. And put the old one in her barn at Glenmore Farm in Virginia. It's great for washing horse blankets and saddle cloths.

Buy a new Frigidaire washer this year.

And, if you still have it in 1981, think of how you might use it. Like, for towels in a car wash, dyeing fabrics in a dress shop, washing sails in a boat house, or sleeping bags in a summer camp...

Frigidaire bothers to build in more help.

you like zing in your cuisine, these recipes are for you. Each dish—fresh mushrooms, round steak strips, and beef stew—is cooked with either dry or prepared mustard. Try all three—you'll pleasantly be surprised.

Icy Deviled Mushrooms

elegant luncheon main dish—

1 pound fresh whole mushrooms
 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
 1 cup milk
 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 4 slices bread, toasted
 Remove stems from four of the mushrooms; flute caps and set aside. Chop stems and remaining mushrooms; sprinkle with the flour. In a skillet, cook the four fluted caps and the chopped mushrooms in butter or margarine till lightly browned; remove whole mushroom caps. Season mushrooms in skillet with a little salt and pepper. Stir in milk, worcestershire, dry mustard, and paprika; heat through. Spoon over toast. Garnish each serving with a fluted mushroom cap. Makes 4 servings.

Deviled Steak Strips

steak strips simmer to tenderness in a deviled tomato sauce—

1/2 pounds round steak
 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
 1/2 cup chopped onion
 1 clove garlic, minced
 2 tablespoons shortening
 1/2 cups water
 1/2 cup tomato sauce
 1/2 tablespoon vinegar
 1/2 teaspoon horseradish
 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 Trim excess fat from meat. Cut meat into thin strips about 1/2 inches long; coat with flour. In skillet, brown meat, onion, and garlic in melted shortening. Stir in 1 cup of the water, the tomato sauce, vinegar, horseradish, mustard, salt, and pepper. Cover and simmer for 1 hour or till meat is tender, stirring occasionally. Stir in the remaining 1/2 cup water, scraping browned bits from bottom of pan; heat through. Serve over noodles or rice. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Devilish Beef Stew

heartily family-style stew with zippy seasoning—

2 pounds beef stew meat, cut in 1-inch cubes
 2 tablespoons shortening
 2 cups water
 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
 1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt
 2 small onions, quartered
 2 cups bias-sliced carrots
 1 cup water
 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 In a 3-quart saucepan, brown beef, half at a time, in melted shortening. Sprinkle with a little salt. Add the 2 cups water, the mustard, and seasoned salt. Simmer, covered, 1 to 1 1/2 hours or till meat is almost tender. Add onion and carrot; cook 30 minutes more, till vegetables are tender. Stir the 1/2 cup water into the cornstarch; add to stew. Cook and stir till mixture is thickened and bubbly. Cook 1 minute more. Makes 6 servings.

COFFEE TIME IS CAKE TIME

By Patricia Pollock, Associate Food Editor

Whether you serve coffee at midmorning, at brunch, or after dinner, coffee cake makes an unbeatable companion. Here are three delicious versions for you to try.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Apricot Almond Coffee Cake

Tender and moist, it's a dessert special—

- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup dried apricots, snipped
- 1 cup water
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup shortening
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg
- $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground cinnamon

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar
- $\frac{1}{3}$ cup all-purpose flour
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- $\frac{1}{3}$ cup chopped almonds

In saucepan, combine apricots and water; simmer uncovered, 15 minutes. Cool. Drain, adding enough milk to liquid to make $\frac{1}{2}$ cup. Cream together shortening and granulated sugar. Add egg and beat well. Sift together the $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour, the baking powder, salt, and cinnamon. Add to creamed mixture alternately with the milk mixture, beginning and ending with dry ingredients; stir in apricots. Turn into greased $9 \times 1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch layer cake pan or $9 \times 9 \times 2$ -inch baking pan. Combine brown sugar and the $\frac{1}{3}$ cup flour; cut in butter or margarine till crumbly; add almonds. Sprinkle over batter in pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 40 to 45 minutes. Serve warm.

Chocolate Chip Coffee Ring

Bits of chocolate are a flavor bonus—

- 1 envelope active dry yeast
- $1\frac{3}{4}$ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup semisweet chocolate pieces

In large mixer bowl, combine yeast and $1\frac{1}{4}$ cups of the flour. Heat together milk, butter or margarine, sugar, and salt just till warm, stirring occasionally to melt butter. Add to dry mixture in mixer bowl; add egg. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for $\frac{1}{2}$ minute, scraping sides of bowl constantly. Beat 3 minutes at high speed. By hand, stir in remaining flour. Add chocolate pieces; mix well. Turn into well-greased $4\frac{1}{2}$ -cup ring mold. Cover; let rise in warm place till double, 45 minutes to 1 hour. Bake in hot oven (400°) for 12 to 15 minutes. Remove from pan immediately; drizzle with confectioners' sugar icing while still warm. Serve warm or cool.

Date Crumb Cake

This make-in-a-jiffy cake features a delectable date filling plus a crunchy topper—

- 1 14-ounce package date bar mix
- 2 cups packaged biscuit mix
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- $\frac{2}{3}$ cup milk
- 1 slightly beaten egg
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil

Prepare date filling and crumb mixture from date bar mix according to package directions. Pat $\frac{1}{2}$ cups of the crumb mixture on bottom of ungreased $9 \times 9 \times 2$ -inch baking pan. In mixing bowl, combine biscuit mix and sugar. Blend milk, egg, and oil; mix into dry ingredients till well mixed. Spread half of the mixture over crumbs in pan. Top with date filling; spread remaining biscuit mixture carefully over filling. Sprinkle with remaining crumb mixture. Bake in moderate oven (375°) for 25 minutes or till cake tests done. Serve warm or cool.

A BREAD, A MAIN DISH, AND A SALAD

See page 93

Bacon-Onion Bread

- 1 package active dry yeast
- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 package bacon-onion dip mix
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- ⅓ cup water
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
- 1 cup cream-style cottage cheese
- 1 egg

In mixer bowl, combine yeast,

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

1 cup of the flour, the dip mix, and baking soda. In saucepan, heat together water, butter or margarine, and cottage cheese till just warm. Add to dry mixture in mixing bowl; add egg. Beat at low speed with electric mixer for ½ minute, scraping sides of bowl constantly. Beat 3 minutes at high speed. By hand, stir in remaining 1½ cups flour. Turn into greased bowl. Cover; let rise till double, about 1½ hours. Stir down. Turn into well-greased 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf dish. Let rise till light, about 40 minutes. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 50 to 55 minutes. Cover with foil the last 15 minutes of baking to prevent over-browning. Remove from pan; brush with softened butter and sprinkle with coarse salt.

Crumb-crowned Halibut Steaks

- 2 12-ounce packages frozen halibut steaks
- 3 tablespoons butter or

margarine, melted

- 1 2-ounce package seasoned coating mix for fish

Place fish on cold rack of broiler pan; brush with 1 tablespoon of the melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with a little salt and pepper. Broil 5 inches from heat for 5 minutes. Turn fish. Brush again with 1 tablespoon melted butter; sprinkle with a little salt and pepper. Broil 5 minutes more. Stir remaining 1 tablespoon butter into seasoned coating mix; spread on fish. Return to broiler for about 5 minutes, or till brown. Makes 4 servings.

Austrian Cabbage Salad

- 1 small head cabbage, shredded (6 cups)
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons chopped green onion
- ½ teaspoon caraway seed
- ¼ teaspoon dried marjoram, crushed
- Dash pepper

2 tablespoons snipped parsley

Place cabbage in bowl; cover with boiling water. Let stand

5 minutes; drain well. Add oil, vinegar, onion, caraway seed, marjoram, ½ teaspoon salt, and pepper to cabbage. Toss; chill. Sprinkle with parsley just before serving. Makes 6 servings.

CLASSIC CAPE COD GOES MODERN

Yes, Modern in the sense of everything for the best in living comfort, efficiency, and conservation in design; and yet with all the charm, all the sense of security, and the rugged strength of its forebears. The dark, rough-textured walls, the immense rugged chimney, and the hardy texture of the roof shakes combine to enhance the time-tested practical nature of all Cape Cod home designs.

Taking a detour from closed-in feelings of old Cape Cod, this house opens to the outdoors with big window areas where Nature can add color to indoor living, and with all-glass sliding doors opening to the terrace. Cathedral ceilings add a sense of spaciousness in all rooms; the fireplace, backed by a barbecue unit in the dining room, adds to the sense of comfort and security. A plan that gives the parents an apartment of their own, and a wing for the children shielded from noise by the terrace-entry. Or, perhaps Grandpa and Grandma could take over the quiet apartment, and the young family the two-bedroom wing.

Plans for building this house are available at just $20 for the first set and $7.50 each for each additional set of same plan ordered at the same time. Complete list of materials required to build, $1. Send 25c for our Home Designs catalog which features more than 100 of our house plans.

AN APPETIZER, A MAIN DISH, AND A SAUCE

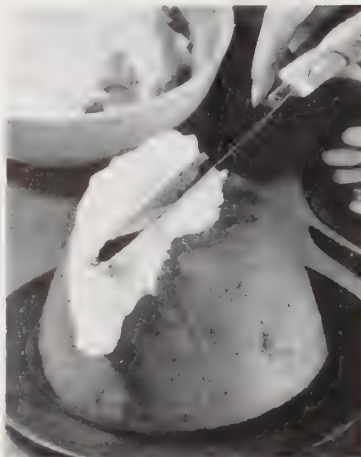

See page 94

Braunschweiger Pate

A flavorful appetizer mold for your next party

- 1 pound braunschweiger
- 2 packages green onion dip mix
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon garlic spread
- 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 1/8 teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce

Mash braunschweiger. Combine dip mix, sugar, and 2 teaspoons water. Add to braunschweiger; blend thoroughly. Form mixture into an igloo shape; place on serving plate. Chill. Melt garlic spread. Whip cream cheese with milk and hot pepper sauce. Blend in melted garlic spread. Spread cream cheese mixture over braunschweiger; chill. Before serving, garnish with snipped parsley and radish slices; serve with crackers or melba toast.

Spareribs Far East

Crispy spareribs enhanced with an exotic sauce—

- 3 pounds spareribs

- 1/4 cup cooking oil
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon coriander seed, crushed
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar

- 3/4 teaspoon hickory smoke-flavored salt

- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

If desired, cut spareribs into serving-size pieces. Place on rack in shallow pan. Bake in very hot oven (450°) for 30 minutes; drain. Reduce heat to 350°; bake 30 minutes more. Combine oil, soy, lemon juice, crushed coriander, onion, brown sugar, smoke-flavored salt, cumin, ginger, and pepper. Spoon or brush sauce over ribs on all sides. Continue baking 1 hour more, or till ribs are tender, basting occasionally with sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Creamy Mustard Sauce

Perfect for vegetables—

- 2 beaten egg yolks
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1 tablespoon garlic spread
- 1/2 cup whipping cream

In small saucepan, combine egg yolks, water, mustard, vinegar, sugar, and salt. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, till mixture is thickened, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Blend in garlic spread. Cool mixture thoroughly. Whip cream; fold into cooled mixture. Makes 1 1/2 cups sauce.

Part of a gas air conditioner may be lurking around your house.

Check your closets. Your basement. If you find a gas forced air furnace, you may own part of a whole house gas air conditioning system. All you need to do is add a gas cooling unit to it.

And you'll love Gas Air conditioning. It has no major moving parts in the cooling/heating cycle, so maintenance costs are low.

And maybe it can be financed into your home mortgage because of its long life.

So check around. Enjoy air conditioning in every room this summer.

After all, you don't have the whole summer off—why should your furnace?

Want more facts? Write PG&E, Room 434, 245 Market St., San Francisco, 94106.

MAKE THE OUTDOORS LIVABLE

How do you create successful outdoor living? Simply decide on the features you want and then execute them—one by one—in the best way possible. Here we zero in on four aspects of outdoor living you're likely to want. Pick any one or all of them. As you go along, you can make changes to suit your personal taste and the peculiarities of your lot.

All four projects use standard dimension lumber, which is available at any building materials dealer. And by planning for standard lengths, you'll have very little cutting to do.

Photographs: Hedrich-Blessing

Above: Blocks of wood (4x6s) cut to length at a lumberyard comprise this handsome outdoor floor. The blocks are treated with salt to prevent rotting. Here the blocks cover a concrete floor. The area is bordered by 2x4s (also treated) snugly fastened to the slab with galvanized bolts. The rugged effect was repeated on the door by cutting random lengths of rough cedar and running them diagonally. These tough, simple materials practically eliminate maintenance chores.

Architect: Robert Ekington, F.A.I.A.

Below left: This burly sun deck offers a special place for tanners over and out from a patio. Slightly spaced 2x4s make up the surface of the deck; 2x12s and 4x4s provide support. Four feet wide, the deck has plenty of room for pillows, lotions, books, and transistor radios. When you're having a party, of course, you could easily press the deck into service as auxiliary seating for guests or use it as a king-size buffet.

Above: This bold trellis puts a canopy over your outdoor living and reduces the glare of the sun on one side of your house. The major members are 2x8s. They're suspended from 2x2s screwed to 4x6 crossbeams. The posts are 4x4s. Unadorned, the trellis projects a bold architectural feeling. If you prefer a softer quality, you could suspend flower baskets from it, cover it with ivy, or incorporate some colorful swatches of canvas or plastic webbing.

Source: Lois Rea

Above: Some sun worshipers might prefer this rugged bench. It's two feet wide and has a high back so sunners can recline in the sitting position. The back also makes an ideal place to drape or dry out beach towels. The seat of the bench is made of 2x4s; the back of a 2x4 and a pair of 2x8s.

Prevent your family from raiding the guest bath.

Better put Aurora Bathroom Tissue in the family bath too, if you don't want them to snatch it from the guest bath. The fact is, once they sample Aurora's softness, delicate scent and beauty (there's a sensible white inner ply under a pretty pastel outer ply), they'll insist on having it every time. By hook or by crook.
AURORA.

With apologies to your husband we present the rearrangeables.

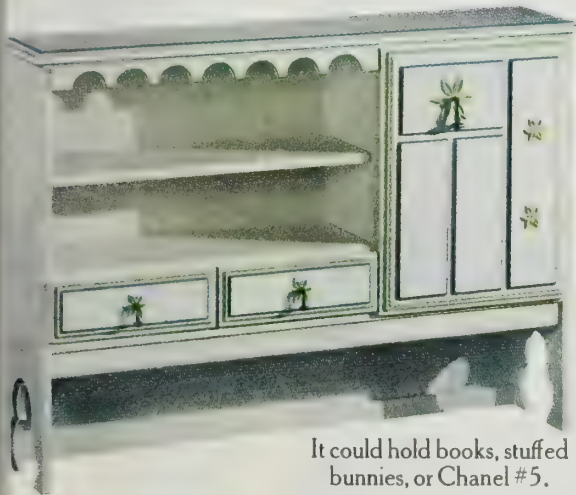

It's a desk. But it could be a hall table.

That's the great part about Olé. It isn't strictly for one room. Or even for one use. When a daybed has this much class, you could use it in a den if you liked.

For little girls, or big girls like you.

It could hold books, stuffed bunnies, or Chanel #5.

Try it on the chest. Or the desk.

Olé. It's by STANLEY

Try it on the dresser. Or alone.

When you no longer need a pleasant work area, move the pieces to the dining room and you've got a china hutch.

Top it with the round mirror or two tall ones.

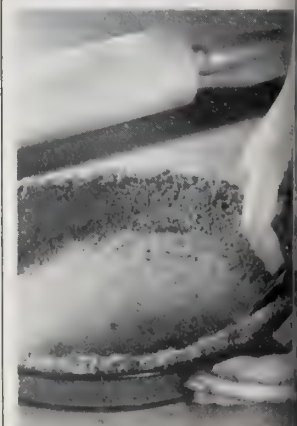

When you buy Olé, you're buying the freedom to change your mind. You'll own furniture that lives happily ever after all over your house. No matter how many times you exercise your woman's prerogative.

CRUMB CRU

Next time you prepare a crumb crust pie with a no-bake filling, use an easy-to-make ham cracker crumb crust to help you make a really good crumb crust, here are hints along with a basic recipe that has four variations to give your pies extra flavor.

Photographs: Photo

- To crush crackers, put them between layers of waxed paper or in a clear plastic bag with a rolling pin. Or, you can buy packaged graham cracker crumbs or a crumb crust mix.
- When you shape the crumb crust, be sure to press crumb mixture evenly and firmly into place. You'll find the bowl of a pie plate handy for pressing the crust down. Extend crumbs to the edge of the pie plate but not onto the rim.
- You can use a crumb crust either baked or unbaked. Baking gives a firmer texture, but remember to cool it thoroughly before filling. If you use an unbaked crust, chill it for at least 45 minutes before filling.

Basic Graham Cracker Crust

1 1/4 cups finely crushed graham crackers (about 19 cracker crumbs)
 1/4 cup sugar
 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
 Mix together crumbs, sugar, and melted butter or margarine. Press firmly into 9-inch pie plate. For unbaked crust, bake 45 minutes. For baked crust, bake in moderate oven for about 7 minutes or till crumbs are browned. Cool.

Crumb Crust Variations:

Peanut Butter: Follow basic recipe but use only 4 tablespoons melted butter or margarine and 1/4 cup creamy peanut butter. Mix well.
Spiced: To basic recipe, add 1 teaspoon cinnamon.
Orange: To basic recipe, add 1 tablespoon grated orange peel.
Nutty: To basic recipe, add 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts.

OWN YOUR OWN PALM TREE

als for culture indoors where comparatively high temperatures and low humidity prevail. Palms prefer an organically enriched soil that drains well. Water as soon as the soil surface feels dry to the touch. Place your palm where it gets bright, indirect light or a little direct, early sun. Feed with a houseplant food from April through October. You should clean the foliage every month or so with a damp cloth or with lukewarm soapy water. Support each frond with one hand while cleaning with the other. To forestall any insect infestations, spray with houseplant insecticide every ten days to two weeks. Wait until the plant is root-bound, and then move it to the next larger size pot. ■

THE LAMBREQUIN LOOK FOR WINDOWS

When you want to make windows appear larger—matched ones look a frame them with lambrequin of plywood or hardboard, with a fabric to match or contrast with draperies, ahesive paper, or regular paper. Finish edges with gimp, tassels, or fringe.

A flower-dappled lamb adds both size and character to this conventional bedroom. Roses were snipped a few yards of material matches the bedspread, glued to painted frame, covering lambrequin completely with fabric, leave a two allowance at inner and edges. Cut to permit sewing and fitting, then turn fabric underside and tack or staple in place. For a coordinated look, trim shade and bedside with matching border.

If you want your lambrequin reflect a period look, give it a shaped edge similar to a saw-toothed design. Draw cut pattern on heavy cardboard of plywood and cut with a saw. To underscore the period look, pad lambrequin with a thin layer of foam rubber before adding fabric covering of moire, damask, or cut velvet. Accent with tassels hanging in lengths of braid. If braid is too thick, staple to lambrequin. Otherwise, apply with glue.

Zounds! Ground Round Alá Kraft.

Three flavorful Kraft Seasoning Mixes. Ground beef never had it so good!

Ground beef can be grand—with a little imagination, and very little footwork.

Seasoning mixes from Kraft give beef a delightful new taste. And these quick ideas give beef an interesting new look. From left to right:

Meat Balls on-the Roll: Prepare your favorite meatball recipe, using 2 lbs. ground beef; brown. Add a package of Kraft Beef Stew Seasoning Mix and $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups water. Simmer 20 minutes. Serve with melted Kraft American Singles on frankfurter buns.

Spoonburgers: A teen dream with Kraft Sloppy Joe Seasoning Mix. Prepare as directed on package.

Spoon on French Bread. Top with shredded Cracker Barrel Brand Sharp Cheddar Cheese.

Take-it Easy-Tacos: Tacos take on a hefty flavor with Kraft Chili Seasoning Mix. Prepare as directed on package, fill fried tortillas with meat mixture and top with shredded Cracker Barrel Brand Sharp Cheddar Cheese and chopped vegetables, if desired.

These three Kraft Seasoning Mixes let you have endless ideas for bottomless stomachs. You get the good authentic flavor only hours of cooking give you otherwise. Get all three and give ground beef a thrill.

STYLISH SLIDING SCREENS

If you're tired of the same old picture window, then consider changing the scene with versatile sliding screens. They provide background interest for your furnishings; push them aside and shift attention to the view outside. They are two effective ways to stage-manage with screens.

Photograph: Hedrich Blessing. Designer: Robert Melin.

Shoji screens reflect the Oriental mood of this living room and also mask traffic from the street beyond. Translucent vinyl inserts, set in painted wood frames, filter the sunlight and add to the feeling of serenity. You can slide the screens ajar to brighten the room, keep them closed for privacy.

Photograph: Kranzlen Studio. Designer: Betty

The lacy design of these filigree plywood screens gives an unexpected spark to a rather ordinary dining area. The screens slide in metal tracks and can be pushed to one side, if desired. Another way to play up a picture window: fasten fabric panels to an overhead track and weight the bottom hems for a smooth-hanging effect with no pattern distortion.

“Housework is easier and there’s less wear on our carpets since we put Shepherd Casters on our furniture.”

SAYS June Lockhart
TV and Motion Picture Star

June says, “Making beds is a lot easier. With Shepherd® Casters on the bed I can push it out from the wall. There’s no more stretching and ching across the bed.”

2. “Many of the latest furniture designs feature Shepherd Casters. But you can also install them on the furniture you now have. We did. They look good and they make housework easier.”

3. “Cleaning behind and under furniture is back-breaking work. But with Shepherd Casters on the furniture, I push it out of the way and clean properly. It’s easier, faster and cleaner.”

“Carpets last longer if you rearrange the furniture now and then, because the wear is more evenly distributed. With Shepherd Casters I can move furniture myself. Rearrange an entire room in minutes.

5. PLUNK! June drops into a chair. “I do this to show people that furniture with Shepherd Casters stays put when you sit in it. To move the furniture, you have to push it from the back or the side.”

6. “Ordinary furniture legs make ugly dents or holes in carpets. But Shepherd Casters are kind to even the thickest carpet. If you have nice carpets, I suggest you put Shepherd Casters on your furniture.”

“There are seven different finishes. From a brilliant Bright Brass color to an elegant Antique Copper color. And you can choose from seven finishes to suit everything from cribs to nine-foot beds.”

8. “If a Shepherd Caster fails to work perfectly in the home, the manufacturer will replace it free. And this unconditional guarantee is for 25 years.” June adds, “This is the kind of product you like to tell your friends about.”

9. “I recommend you put Shepherd Casters on your furniture tomorrow. They’re in hardware and department stores everywhere. From $2.95 per set of four. I know you’ll be as pleased with Shepherd Casters as I am.”

FELINE FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS

Capitalize on today's wealth of distinctive animal statuettes the next time you want to create an unusual arrangement. We've chosen cats, but the assortment ranges from platypuses to panthers in high-glazed ceramic, glass, papier-mâché, and pottery. Once you've picked the animal, remember to keep the flowers in scale, and don't be afraid to add other accessories to point up and complete the composition. Curios and candlesticks work well with cats!

Above: A twosome of country-crude cats in stylized papier-mâché looks winning when placed on a bold plaid background and accompanied by two polished wood candlesticks of different heights. One cat doubles as a planter or a container for flowers. We combined feathery greens with a tall twirling tail of spiral eucalyptus. Planters can always be used for posies with the addition of a glass bowl or cup to hold water and needlepoint invisibly.

Below: Fireside chat with three little kittens! Here's a charming conversation piece for not only the mantel but any spot in the house. The kittens are really ceramic banks which are grouped around a small bellows. Glass container in back of the bellows holds a triangular arrangement of shiny greens and two varieties of mums. A perky butterfly atop the tallest mum enralls the cats and the viewers, as well. All elements are centered on a mat.

IT'S A DIFFERENT WORLD

The 75 Great Designers

During the great Renaissance, European craftsmen were busy designing the most beautiful furniture the world had ever seen. Although they inspired one another, each made his own significant design contribution. Now — we've gathered a number of their most beautiful ideas into one furniture collection called Renaissance. From Italy come the basic architectural shapes. And from England, the delicacy of matched veneers. The heavy, baroque carvings and imposing brass hardware are Spanish-inspired. And the fine wood inlays and door carvings are as French as Louis XV. For the first time, we've put it all together

LAST-MINUTE SALADS

Vegetable Salad Toss

This quick salad's a good way to use left-over cooked vegetables—

Combine torn salad greens with a canned or cooked vegetable, such as green beans, asparagus, or carrots. (We've used cooked crinkle-cut carrots.) Mix with a sharp French or Italian dressing, then garnish with an arrangement of additional cooked vegetables, and parsley or watercress.

Any-season Fruit Salad

Serve an arrangement of fresh fruit, and let guests and family help themselves—

Use fresh fruits in season. Cut them into serving pieces; dip in lemon juice or color keeper to prevent discoloration. Arrange cut fruit on large serving platter. Serve with mayonnaise or salad dressing, or dairy sour cream, and toasted slivered almonds or grated sharp cheddar cheese for topping.

Tomato Pinwheel

You can prepare this attractive salad in just a few minutes—

For each serving, cut a ½-inch thick slice from a head of lettuce. Place on salad plate and top with a creamy-type salad dressing, such as thousand island or green goddess. Cut a tomato half in half or 5 wedges, and arrange in a pinwheel design over dressing. Garnish with parsley or watercress.

FILL YOUR PITCHERS WITH SPRING

If you're suffering from a shortage of vases (and who ever has enough?), then trot out both functional and ornamental pitchers. They make effective containers for both long- and short-stemmed blooms. Flowering branches can be placed and bent into graceful curves without first impaling them on needlepoints. Weak-stemmed early spring flowers may be arranged with a minimum of difficulty, thanks to the depth of most pitchers. Here are some simple rules to help you make your flower-pitcher-perfect.

Don't let your arrangement obscure the outline of the pitcher. Soften the handle with flowers or trailing vines. Build your design so the low line falls close to the spout—but doesn't completely cover it. If the pitcher is glass, the stems become an integral part of the composition. They'll be more pleasing to the eye if you keep stems almost upright and close together. Follow these four ingenious "pitcher plans" for arranging the first flowering branches and spring flowers. Pictures from the top down:

Early American pressed glass pitchers feature a sunny combination of forsythia, daffodils, and ranunculus in water- and cream-size dispensers. Arrange the large one first, bending flowering branches at a right angle and inserting a ladder of daffodils near the spout. Let a cluster of green leaves drape softly over the handle. In the small pitcher, feature a highline of buds with open ranunculus grouped over the rim.

A pair of svelte Swedish crystal pitchers is arranged in an interesting abstract—one of them is tilted and held in place with floral clay. Insert magnolia branches loosely in upright pitcher with long branches extending over the spout. In tilted pitcher, place a compact cluster of tulips in wind-swept fashion over the handle. Note how close-together stems become a part of the harmonious design. Such arrangements are also effective centered on a tray or stand.

Mod-design pitcher and elongated feline form a delightful alliance. To make the arrangement, place two branches of flowering cherry in the center of the pitcher. In this type of design (unlike the classical Oriental styles), branches are allowed to cross each other. Next, insert tulips singly around branches to form a triangle. Allow the three long-stemmed tulips to bend over the handle of the pitcher. If needlepoints break the stems, fill pitcher with small stones.

Georgian silver pitcher teamed with a low crystal tumbler produces an effect of classic elegance. Fill the stately pitcher with graceful boughs of flowering quince. Bend the tallest bough into a semicircle and fill in with a curved bough to the left. Use tulip foliage at the base for a softening effect. In the small glass, place two parrot tulips, one at a sharp angle. Then unify the grouping by centering the two elements on a gleaming silver tray—or black lacquer is equally effective.

The Gilded Lily—for real. This cigarette table (18" high, 19" diameter) reflects the originality in Drexel's famed Et Cetera Collection. A bunch of gilded Madonna lilies bursts into full bloom to hold the glass top. The variety of design flavors and custom colors in Et Cetera is suggested by this handpainted Flemish cabinet and "bamboo" desk. Designed by Drexel Design Staff.

What makes Drexel furniture so special? Things like gilding lilies. As in Et Cetera.

The great Collection of the "unusual"—Et Cetera. Mirrors, chests, desks and so forth. Embellishments. With the flair for making your decorating different from anyone else's. And more exciting. That's the beauty of it—Et Cetera lets you gild the lily. Without first discovering a gold mine. Which goes to show Drexel's never-ending desire to please you . . . the added thought and extra effort that make Drexel furniture so special for you.

Every region has its favorite trees: magnolia and dogwood the South, flowering crabapple in the Midwest, hawthorn hardy cherry in the North. But the planting procedure is same—whatever the tree, wherever it is.

A tree is one of the most expensive items on your property so treat it with care and respect from the start. Think before you plant, because a tree is not easily moved (unless moving is no object).

Remember, a tree should complement your house, overwhelm it. Make it serve a definite function rather than waste precious space. Study your property and the siting of the house, so you know where you need shade (light or heat) or screening for privacy from nearby neighbors. Flowers, foliage, and colorful fruits are extra dividends. You'll find a guide for selecting on pages 82 to 87.

Once your choice is made, get the tree off to a good start by following the planting procedure shown here.

You can plant a tree bare root (left) or balled and burlapped (right) or out of a container. If you elect bare root (less expensive), dig a hole wide and deep enough to allow a natural spread of the roots. Set the tree as deep as it was in the nursery—determined by soil stain on the trunk. Set balled and burlapped trees so burlap is barely covered with soil—don't remove burlap. It will rot away.

Support a newly planted bare-root tree with a 2x2 stake, driven between the roots four to six inches from the trunk. For best protection against wind, the stake should be driven down 20 inches below soil level and stand four to five feet above, according to the height of the tree.

You stake and tie because undue wind movement disturbs the new roots, which need to anchor into the soil to establish the tree. Use wire to tie the tree, but run the wire through pieces of old hose so the trunk will not be cut and irreparably damaged. Twist all of the loose wire ends firmly around the stake.

Support a balled-and-burlapped tree (or one out of a container) with guy wires. Pound three short, sturdy stakes into the ground equidistant around the tree. Run hose-protected wires from trunk to each stake, and leave in place until the tree has taken hold—one to three years.

Science Finds Way To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching,
Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication with the ability, in most cases—to promptly stop burning itch and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement was reported by doctors who conducted the tests. Pain and itching were promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so. And it was all done without narcotics or stinging astringents of any kind.

The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like it! Preparation H also lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. Preparation H comes in ointment or suppository form. No prescription is needed.

Most newly planted trees need some pruning for one or another. If a tree has been dug bare-root and transplanted, this is like major surgery for a human being. Adjustment must be made to help it get going again. The damaged and reduced root system can't cope with the whole original tree. You cut it back in balance with functioning roots. Or, pruning-out may be in order to ensure a well-trained tree in future years. The drawing on the left shows what you will be starting out with—heavy black marks indicate where to make pruning cuts. On the right, you see how the final pruning job improves the tree structure.

Start at the base and remove any young shoots arising from the trunk. The first main limb is usually about two feet from the ground. Take out any young shoot growing straight up into the tree; eliminate one of any two limbs that compete each other, as well as any limb growing back into the trunk instead of outward. If two limbs form a sharp V, cut one at the base of the V to avoid later split-damage. Remove any two limbs that will shade each other, to admit light to the lower branches.

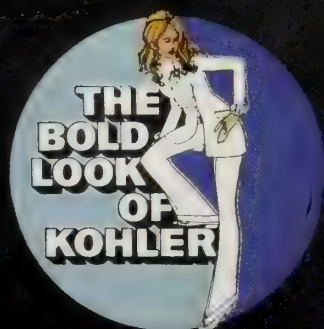

Get your tree off to the best possible start by wrapping the trunk at planting time (left) and by following a regular watering program (right). We stress the importance of watering because many people think a tree can shift for itself in moist gathering just because it's big.

Some new old thoughts in Early American

Think of Early American furnishings and some of the words that come to mind are "warm," "friendly," "cozy," and, of course, "old."

But when you think of Kroehler Early American, add the word "new."

For example, the sofa which one of the country's top interior designers chose for the room above is upholstered in one of fashion's newest fabrics—a 100% nylon that combines the feel of fine cashmere with the durability of the man-made fiber. Another notable feature is the "Sleepy Hollow" back, borrowed from the classic lines of high-back wing chairs.

And Kroehler has lots more new old thoughts for you in Early American and other traditional furniture, to say nothing of many exciting contemporary pieces. (See below.)

For more information, as well as how to find your nearest Kroehler dealer, please read the facing column at the right.

Wrapping the trunk is a protective measure against sunscald and borers. You can get a commercial tree wrap at your garden center. Start wrapping a couple of inches below the ground level and spiral up the trunk, stopping at the first limb. Then cut the wrap and tie at top to hold in place. Keep the wrap on for about two years, or until the tree is rooted and growing well. The tying cord will eventually cut into it, so loosen wrapping and retie each fall or spring. Note treatment at base of this tree: a framed-in mulch for neat appearance and protection from the mower.

To get proper moisture to a tree, try using the water lance we showed previously. Water reaches the root zone, as it should, and none is lost to the air. Water regularly every two weeks—each week during hot weather—for the first year or two, until the tree is well established. Withhold water when all the leaves drop, but soak the ground before winter sets in, and feed your tree with a special lance cartridge.

You buy evergreen trees (except very small ones) balled and burlapped. They've already been root-pruned at the nursery—to stimulate a great deal of root growth in a small area. This enables the transplanted tree to start growing more quickly in its new location.

Even so, handle balled-and-burlapped evergreens as if they were eggs. Ease the ball into the hole carefully so you won't crack it. Be sure to water regularly, especially the first season, and give the tree a good soaking before the ground freezes.

Evergreen trees are seldom pruned when planted, so that relieves you of one chore. However, you may later want to make such trees as pines, spruces, and firs more bushy. Do this by cutting back tips of new growth to the side shoots. Mugho pines send forth long "candles"; you cut these back two-thirds or more to stimulate several buds at the base for next year's growth. Prune just before needles on the candles open into leaves, which is about early June. Repeat each year until the plant is thick and shapely.

GUIDE TO GARDENING AND LANDSCAPING

This 52-page booklet, with numerous photographs and illustrations, provides dozens of helpful ideas and answers many of your garden questions. The booklet includes sections on landscaping, trees and shrubs, small fruits, flowers, the lawn, garden pests, tools and storage, and indoor gardening. Also featured are selected project plans for home improvement and garden equipment storage. Order your copy of Guide 218 today—just 50¢.

You may wish extra copies for friends or members of a garden club. The booklet is available at the following postpaid prices: Single copy—50¢; two to 49 at 40¢ each; 50 to 99 at 35¢ each; 100 or more at 30¢ each.

BUILT-IN BUFFETS— THREE WAYS

Need a service surface in your dining or family room? Don't let a shortage of space stymie you. These units show that good built-ins can fit almost anywhere. Begin by figuring out the most convenient location, make some measurements, and adapt one of these designs for your purposes.

Right. This basement bar-buffet does yet another job, on the sly. Concealed underneath are a washer, dryer, and set of laundry tubs. On washdays, the entire unit rolls out into the room on heavy-

Don't Take Pain To Bed With You

Measurin® is the only leading pain reliever with Timed-Release Action, so one dose at bedtime helps you sleep better at night and wake up without morning stiffness.

ARE you one of the millions of people who sometimes lose sleep at night because of headaches, aching muscles, sore joints, even minor arthritis pain... and then still feel stiff when you get up in the morning. If so, medical science has something especially for you; it's Measurin... the only leading pain reliever with Timed-Release Action to help you sleep better at night and wake without morning stiffness.

Stronger Action. Measurin contains the strongest pain relief ingredient you can buy. Dose for dose, Measurin is so strong it not only gives you fast relief... it keeps on working longer than any of the others, for restful hours of relief. That's right. Measurin is the only pain reliever that, dose for dose, gives you all this: fast relief, stronger action, and longer-lasting action.

Timed-Release Action. To do all this, Measurin uses the advanced medical discovery of Timed-Release Action. Each tablet contains over six thousand tiny relief capsules, and has twice the strength of an ordinary aspirin tablet. Some capsules release their strength at once for fast relief. A lot more release their strength gradually to build up stronger action... and to keep on working longer. You don't take Measurin again in four hours, like you so often need to do with the others.

Free trial offer. Measurin can help anyone who has aches and pains that cause sleeplessness, or cause them to wake with morning stiffness. To prove it, we'll send you a free trial package, plus a coupon worth 25¢ on any size. Send your printed name, address and zip code to Measurin, Box 170, Fairview, N. J. 07022. Limit: One to a family. Offer expires June 30, 1969.

Windows needn't get in your way. A slate shelf was incorporated into the up treatment for a dining room that a less-than-inspiring view.

Translucent glass, applied over existing windows, now blocks the look. The three 20-inch-wide panels are made of random-width pecky wood with a dark stain. Because the panels are hollow, wiring was easy. The measures nine feet by 16 inches.

dealership. Your problem is the same as for auto service: more vacation-season work than service departments can handle. Your best bet is to reduce the possibility of trouble on the road by having the entire rig carefully prepared before you leave home.

► 10. What about the insurance and licensing?

Rules vary from state to state, so check with local insurance agents and vehicle licensing officials in your state.

You certainly should have vehicle-type collision and liability insurance on the car or truck part of the unit. And there should be coverage of the living quarters and personal effects; this policy is much like homeowners insurance.

Some insurance companies charge very little extra for a leisure vehicle policy if you insure your automobile with the same firm. However, this is not universally true. We know of people paying about $500 per year to insure a motor home—so check this out carefully.

Licensing of trailers, light trucks, and pickups is not particularly expensive. A motor home, although built on a truck chassis, is licensed as a passenger car in most states.

► 11. Where do I park my camping rig when I'm not using it?

Some communities have zoning laws which prohibit outdoor storage of leisure vehicles.

Tent and travel trailers, compact trucks, and motor homes all store as a single unit. Even for motor homes and compact travel trailers, all can be stored in the garage space required for a car. Since most garages are too small for a motor home, most people lack the yard space for outdoor storage (even if it's legal), many families use commercial garage space. The range for outdoor storage is an area where zoning permits are required.

A camper body can be mounted slightly on jacks and the truck freed to be used as a truck. The unit is then lowered onto duty dollies for easy storage in a regular garage.

► 12. Do I have to buy a made travel vehicle?

No, there are many materials and appliances for modify, convert, or even completely build your own. Camper equipment dealers at the large mail-order houses have everything you need to build your own unit. ■ hookups, dumping stations, a source of water, outdoor barbecues or firepits, and community bath and toilet facilities.

Many large lumber companies and paper mills are now opening up their private forests for camping. While they don't offer many, if any, facilities, they do offer campsites which combine a lot of privacy and all the woodland you would ever want to explore.

► 8. Are the appliances in camping vehicles hard to operate? What fuel do they use?

In most cases, these furnaces, ranges, and ovens are just small versions of what you have at home. They generally use LP (liquefied petroleum) gas stored in small metal tanks. Refills are available at any LP gas dealer, usually in conjunction with a service station or rural heating dealer. (Check the Yellow Pages.) Refrigeration units operate on 12-volt electricity and/or LP gas. Economy-model leisure vehicles usually have iceboxes as standard equipment.

Water systems include a storage tank holding from 15 to 60 gallons. This is easily filled with a garden hose at campsites or service stations. Vehicles with showers and toilets have holding tanks for the "used" water, and these must be emptied.

Dumping stations are widely available in state and federal parks, private campgrounds, and at a growing number of gas stations. Dumping consists of hooking a large hose to the holding tank outlet, inserting the other end into the dumping station inlet, then opening a valve. While this chore won't ever be your high point of mobile living, it's really no more objectionable than putting out the garbage at home.

Most vehicles have a 12-volt electrical system which is an extension of the one in your car or truck. Many can also be plugged into regular 110-volt power. There's no shortage of electric living in leisure vehicles—many boast their own television sets.

► 9. What about vehicle service while on a trip?

You may have to look around a bit, because service facilities have not kept pace with the growing number of recreational vehicles on the road. New-vehicle dealers are the best source of service for interior equipment and accessories.

For the automotive part of the vehicle, go to a car or truck

AN INTERSTATE MAP THAT TELLS ALL

You can now obtain a map/directory designed specifically for interstate highways. If you make full use of all the information on one of these maps, you'll find it virtually impossible to get lost, hungry, run out of gas, or miss scenic adventures along the way.

Unlike general road maps, this simplified "strip map" focuses entirely on interstate routes, interchanges, and feeder highways. Detour and auxiliary information is also included.

Each map divides an interstate route into sections and designates each one with a letter of the alphabet. Under corresponding letters, an adjacent table lists exits along the section (using the same wording as that on the interstate directional signs) and the mileage from an indicated fixed location

Thus at any exit you can easily determine your progress to date, or the distance to an upcoming exit. In the same way, the directory lists motels, hotels, restaurants, and service stations with your brand of gasoline—as well as tourist attractions, recreation areas, and historical sites accessible from each exit.

These "new generation" maps are available free at most major service stations on the interstates. In case they are not available in your area, we made special arrangements to provide Travelaide maps to you at a nominal charge to cover postage and handling.

Simply fill out the coupon, enclose the proper amount of money, and mail to the address shown. Allow up to thirty days for delivery.

GET THE JUMP ON SUMMER COLOR

Whether you want few plants or many for your summer garden, the thinking time is over and the doing time is here. You'll be off to a fast start if you use one of the new plant starter kits now on the market. These kits come complete with everything you'll need. Just follow the simple instructions and you can be setting out plants and enjoying flowers ahead of your procrastinating neighbors. Plan all the outdoor locations now while the plants are growing and you are unhurried.

This seed-starting kit is a one-step affair—clean, and efficient. The seed balls are net-enclosed plastic balls which start out as disks. Soak them in water for a few minutes until they reach usable size. Then set them in a bed of milled peat and perlite, which is kept moist by a wick in the plastic pot. The water level to be maintained is clearly visible. Pots are kept moist in this way and need only occasional overhead watering.

Plant just two or three seedlings in each pot by pressing gently into the moist peat. When the seedlings show their first true leaves, thin them out and leave only the strongest one in each pot to grow. There's no need to fertilize because the growing medium provides adequate plant food. Last until the plants are ready for permanent location, islands of color in the garden.

Place the flat in a sunny window or under artificial light as a growing unit as shown. If you use a window sill, you need to turn the flat occasionally to avoid developing one-sided plants. (You'll know when to turn the flat, because the plants will lean toward the light.) Under overhead artificial light, you get sturdy plants that can be set outdoors without acclimation. We combined impatiens, geraniums, and petunias with excellent results you see.

THE WASTE BASKET

The Brentwood waste basket is too beautiful to waste away in a dark corner.

Use it as a planter, umbrella stand, or (in the case of one of our designs) magazine rack. You can even use it as a waste basket.

The new Duralene™ hand-rubbed finish looks like fine wood—yet resists scuffs, stains, moisture. Wipes clean with a damp cloth.

You can match the Bamboo style basket (shown here) with Brentwood hampers, tissue boxes, and other household items in the same style. Other baskets are available in many combinations of sizes, shapes, styles such as Traditional or Granada as well as Bamboo; or finishes such as Oak, Walnut, Moss Green, Antique White, or Mandarin Red.

You might guess that something so beautiful and versatile would be expensive. Guess again. The Brentwood waste basket shown costs only $8.95*.

BRENTWOOD

Puts an end to the Uglys

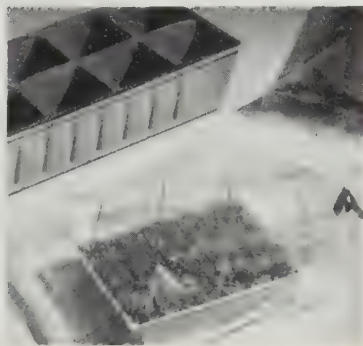

SUMMER COLOR

Continued

With another seed-starting kit, we had great success with geranium seed—the Carefree varieties that ultimately yielded heavily foliated plants with handsome flowers. Seeds were started in this germinating tray (included in kit, along with all other material) and we marked each row of vermiculite-and-peat cubes to avoid a hodgepodge that would upset our planned color scheme. This precaution pays off later with unbroken color blocks.

The planted-and-moistened germinating tray went into a plastic tent that eliminated any further need for watering. Planting and tenting were done on the 23rd of March; being suspicious of geranium seeds, we expected a long wait.

However, on the 9th of April, seedlings were ready to be transplanted to peat pots held firmly in a plastic tray. Note continued color identification, now with labels stuck in the growing medium. You transfer the encubed seedlings from germinating to growing tray with a spoon. If the seedlings look a bit frail at first, take heart, as we did—they'll be blooming by midsummer. ■

COOKING WITH WINE

Just in case all the fancy talk and mystique have put you off, here are some simple, helpful facts about cooking with wine.

Wine used in cooking acts as a seasoning only. During cooking, the alcohol in the wine evaporates, leaving the wine essence which gives a subtle flavor to even the simplest dishes.

How to Select Wines

Generally, during cooking, the volume of liquid is reduced, and flavors become concentrated. For this reason, the wine used for cooking should be a good one, though not necessarily expensive. Remember, the wine's flavor is what you are after. If it's poor to begin with, it can ruin even the best recipe. So select a quality wine with rich body and aroma that enhances the flavor of the food.

The dry red or white table wines, usually served with meals, are also used for cooking. The word "dry" in connection with wines, means "not sweet." Dry red or white wines usually have a very slight, pleasant tartness.

The most commonly used red table wines are burgundy and claret. Chianti, a dry red Italian wine, blends well in Italian cooking. The most popular white table wines include chablis, rhine, and sauterne.

Traditionally, red wines are used to bring out the full-bodied flavor of dark or red meats such as beef or game, while white wines are used with light meats, fish, and poultry. But even these basic guides are broken regularly by adventurous cooks who enjoy experimenting. For example, the classic recipe, Coq au Vin, combines red wine with poultry. And white wine often gives just the right flavor to casseroles made with red meat.

Vermouth and sherry, generally classed as appetizer wines, impart their own special flavors to many cooked foods.

Dessert wines, such as port, and cream or sweet sherry, are sweet wines served with the dessert course. They're rarely used in main dishes, but are ideal for desserts, such as zabaglione and ice cream sauces.

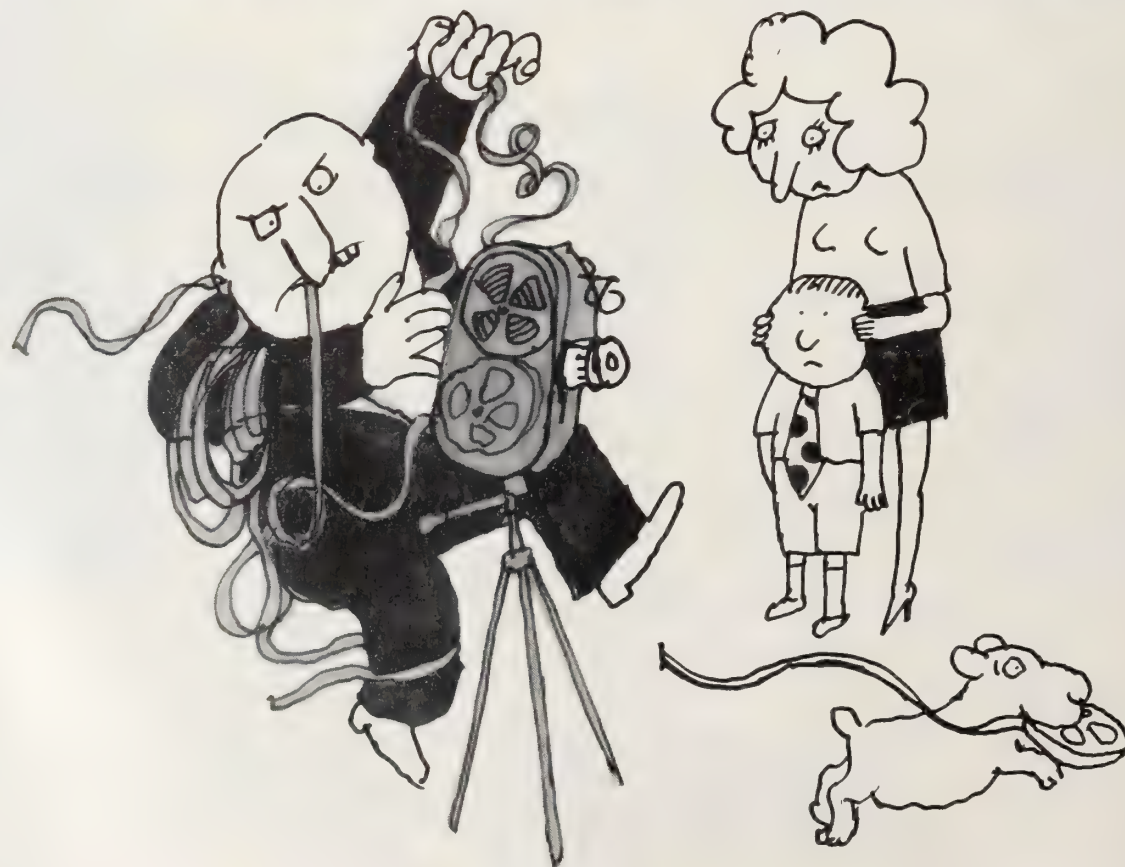

Wine Classifications

Names such as burgundy or chablis are generic or family names for certain types of wines having specific characteristics in common.

For example, burgundy is a dry, deep-red wine with a robust flavor. Claret is a dry, ruby-red wine, light in flavor. Chablis, a dry white wine, has a fruity flavor and a delicate pale gold color. Rhine wine is much drier than chablis, with a lighter body and a pale gold or green-gold color. The sauternes are golden-hued, full-bodied white wines, ranging from dry to sweet.

Some California wines are named after the main grape variety from which they are made. These are called "varietal"

Time was threading a movie camera involved a lot of fussing and cussing.

If names, but they still fit into the generic categories described earlier. The following chart lists generic names for red and white table wines, along with some of the varietal names under which each may be labeled:

Generic Name	Some Varietal Names
Red Wines
burgundy claret	Pinot Noir Cabernet Sauvignon Zinfandel
White Wines
chablis	Pinot Blanc Chardonnay
rhine wine	Riesling Sylvaner
dry sauterne	Semillon Sauvignon Blanc

Using Wine for Cooking

When you venture into the world of wine cooking, here are some suggestions you'll find helpful.

When you cook a meat that requires the addition of a liquid, replace a small part of that liquid with an appropriate wine. Or, add a little wine to your favorite recipe.

The important thing is to start by adding a small amount of wine so it doesn't overpower other flavors. It should blend with the other ingredients, creating a subtle indefinable flavor that makes guests and family pause to appreciate it.

Remember, if the finished dish tastes strongly of wine, you've used too much.

Here are a few ideas you may want to try:

Use burgundy to

- ... replace part of the liquid in beef stew.
- ... baste roast beef.
- ... replace part of the water when cooking beef tongue.
- ... pour over hamburger patties as they cook.
- ... flavor tomato sauces.

Use claret to

- ... flavor clear soups just before removing them from heat.
- ... baste a baked ham.
- ... braise lamb shanks.
- ... make wine butter for steak—stir a little wine into melted butter, cook long enough to reduce liquid, and serve.

Use chablis to

- ... replace part of the liquid when poaching fish.
- ... replace part of the water when cooking carrots or artichokes or tiny whole onions.

Use rhine wine to

- ... braise veal cutlets.
- ... replace part of the liquid in veal stew.

Use dry sauterne to

- ... baste a lamb roast.
- ... braise lamb kidneys.
- ... flavor sauerkraut.

Use dry sherry to

- ... substitute for a little of the liquid when preparing cake, pudding, or salad dressing mixes.
- ... glaze cooked sweet potatoes.
- ... flavor seafoods.
- ... flavor cheese fondue. ■

Kodak has changed all that.

Now there's nothing to thread. No fuss and fuss at all. Really changed things.

Just drop in the film.

The Kodak Instamatic M12 movie camera loads with a film cartridge. Just drop in.

We've changed other things, too. The M12 is nice and compact. Fits right in your palm.

It never needs winding because batteries do the winding for you.

And, best of all, the movies it takes are super 8, which are so much sharper and brighter than the regular 8mm kind.

We even made it palm-size.

The M12 is less than $30. In an outfit complete with wrist strap, batteries, and color film it's less than $35.

We have other models, too, at other prices. And since super 8 movies call for a super 8 projector, Kodak offers you a wide choice there, too. See your Kodak dealer to see how fussless and cussless Kodak has made movie-making.

Chevelles appeal to two age groups. Under 30. And over 30.

One reason Chevelles move so many different people is that there are so many different Chevelles to move.

You could buy a Garnet Red SS 396 Sport Coupe with domed hood, power disc brakes, sport wheels, beefed-up suspension and a whole lot more.

Or you could have a nice modest Tuxedo Black 300 Deluxe Sedan with a frugal 140-hp

See Olympic Gold Medalist Jean-Claude Killy, weekly, CBS-TV. Check your local TV listings.

Six and few if any extras.

Chevelles are different all right. From each other. And from other mid-size cars.

No other mid-size car handles quite this nimble, rides quite this quiet, or looks (in our humble opinion) quite this great.

No other mid-size car has an anti-theft locking system, Full Coil suspension with computer-selected springs, flush-and-dry rocker panels, inner fenders, and a lacquer finish. At least not at our price.

Chevelle, the most popular mid-size car there is.

The one with friends on both sides of the generation gap.

FAMILY TRAVEL

Plawin, Travel Editor

UN FOR KIDS IN THE CITIES

your summer vacation planning, we present some suggestions for trips all across America. You'll learn where to have summer fun in our big cities; at ski resorts; in historic Charleston, South Carolina; California's Redwood Empire; and rugged land around Medora, North Dakota. Start with the cities. Vital, vibrant, and repositories of some of man's greatest achievements, the big cities excite the senses, challenge the intellect, stretch the imagination. In putting together our page of city stories, we evaluated each city's attractions in terms of their appeal to children. But as you read, you'll discover that almost everything included here is high in adult appeal, too. In short, this is a collection of fun-filled vacations for the whole family.

ST. LOUIS

One of the charms of this sprawling, spirited city is the casual juxtaposition of past and present. Here are some of the sights—old and new. (In all our city stories, except as noted, where there are admission charges, the cost is about $1 for adults, half for children.)

Gateway Arch and the riverfront. Architect Eero Saarinen may not have had it in mind, but his soaring stainless steel arch rivals a roller coaster in its fascination for children. In each leg of the Arch, barrel-shaped capsules carry you to the Observation Room for a magnificent panorama of St. Louis. To get there—as well as to other riverfront attractions like the heliport, boat piers, Busch Stadium—take the Riverfront Trolley (10c).

Boat trips. The Huck Finn, a diesel-powered replica of a 19th century stern-wheeler, makes four one-hour narrated trips daily. The SS Admiral, a five-deck river steamer, makes an all-day cruise daily except Mondays and Tuesdays.

Busch Memorial Sports Stadium. St. Louis' colossal coliseum is home of the baseball and football Cardinals. If you aren't in town for a game, size up the 55,000-seat stadium and Sports Hall of Fame on an "acoustiguided" tour.

The Gay 90's Melody Museum, opposite Busch Stadium, is bursting at the seams with a colorful and tuneful collection of antique coin machines: nickelodeons, fair organs, calliopes, flip viewers.

St. Louis Zoo and Forest Park. Don't miss this world-famous zoo. During the summer there are free daily shows featuring talented chimpanzees, elephants, and lions, and in the Children's Zoo the kids can handle and feed many tame animals. For an Alice-in-Wonderland feeling, stroll through the gigantic walk-through Bird Cage. The zoo is in Forest Park, a verdant preserve where you'll also find excellent museums, outdoor concerts, a roller skating rink, picnic facilities, hiking trails, and lagoon boat rides.

Grant's Farm. Actually the home of August A. Busch, Jr., it is operated by Anheuser-Busch, Inc., as a public wildlife preserve, zoo, and historical shrine. You can ride a trackless train through the game preserve area where deer, bison, elk, and other animals roam free. Then visit the Bauernhof, a replica of farm estates of Europe, and the restored family cabin of President Ulysses S. Grant. Tours on the miniature train are by reservation only; write: Grant's Farm Tours, Affton, Mo. 63123, or call 843-1700. —Mary Ann Robertson.

NEW YORK

Walking is still the best way to discover New York. Sights and sounds rush at you with a tempo that is this great city's alone.

Shops and skyscrapers. Start at 34th and 6th Ave., where Macy's and Gimbel's face off in their legendary battle of the super stores. On Fifth Avenue, just one block east, is the Empire State Building. Take a swishing elevator ride up 102 floors to the Observation deck and see all of New York in miniature. From 42nd Street north on Fifth is a window-shopper's wonderland. You pass elegant Saks and Bonwit Teller; Best and Co., with its special collection of children's clothes; F.A.O. Schwarz, home of the newest, most wondrous toys. Kids can actually see themselves on TV during the guided tour of the RCA Building at Rockefeller Center. They'll enjoy watching a live television show and exploring the studios. The renowned Rockettes are just one block away at Radio City Music Hall, where you'll see a live variety show plus the movie.

Lunch and the park. For lunch, take your pick of dishes from glass-covered cubbyholes at the Automat. Or stop for a quick stand-up snack or sit-down gourmet lunch by the fountain in Central Park, where you can also rent a rowboat or bikes (best on weekends, when the park is closed to traffic). Other park delights are a 10-cent carousel ride and the zoo.

Boat trips. Your kids will love the breezy, 3-hour Circle Line Cruise around Manhattan Island. You'll pass ocean liners and tiny tugboats, plus 35 miles of famous landmarks (West 43rd St. Pier; adults $3.00; children $1.25). And the Staten Island Ferry costs a dime round-trip and passes the Statue of Liberty.

From Manhattan to the Bronx. One-day side trips to the other boroughs are adventures in themselves. You can visit remnants of the 1965 World's Fair at Willet's

Continued

Point in Queens, and cheer on the Mets at Shea Stadium nearby. The Yankees play in the Bronx, home of the world famous zoo, where kids can even ride a llama. The Children's Museum, Coney Island, the Aquarium, and Brighton beaches are all in Brooklyn.

For more information, write: New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, 90 E. 42nd St., New York, N. Y. 11200.
—Bonnie Altenhein.

SAN FRANCISCO

Introduce your family to San Francisco on the city's well-marked, 49-mile automobile tour. (Bus tours are available if you're not driving.) Spend some extra time at these special children's favorites. Fisherman's Wharf. This is the colorful home of the picturesque fishing boats that supply the steaming crab pots and sidewalk seafood stalls, and for import and curio shops, boat tours, old ships. Shop at nearby Ghirardelli Square and the Cannery. Crowds and traffic make it highly advisable either not to drive at all or to leave your car a few blocks away.

Wells Fargo History Room. In this room at the Wells Fargo Bank are authentic notched shotguns, gold nuggets, man-wanted posters, plus a real stagecoach.

Golden Gate Park. The Park is big—over 1,000 acres of lawns, lakes, trees, and flowers including 27 miles of footpaths and trails. You'll enjoy stopping at the Japanese Tea Garden, California Academy of Sciences' museum, planetarium, conservatory, aquarium, and arboretum. There are also boats to pedal, paddle, or row; tennis courts, and a playground. San Francisco Zoo. Over 1,000 animals and birds inhabit the zoo. Adjacent Storyland presents characters and settings from nursery rhymes.

Barbara's Tours. These are specially conducted tours for children five to 14. Write: 325 Mason Street; call 564-0328.

Public transportation. It costs only 15 cents a ride on the city's excellent system of cable cars, street cars, and buses. An unlimited ride pass (50¢) is available on Sundays and holidays (call 558-4111).

For trip planning details, write: San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau, Fox Plaza, San Francisco, California 94102. Jerry Reedy.

ATLANTA

It may be the metropolis of the New South, but Atlanta still has an abundance of magnolia-scented charm and special delights for kids.

Downtown and Grant Park. After you've strolled Peachtree Street from historic Five Points to Peachtree Center and the exciting Regency Hyatt House hotel, your next stop should be the Cyclorama at Grant Park. Here you'll see the spectacular panorama—with narration, music, and realistic sound effects—of the battle that sealed the fate of the Confederacy. Also in Grant Park is the Atlanta Zoo which has a special section just for children. Don't miss a visit to Wren's Nest, the home of Joel Chandler Harris, creator of the Uncle Remus and Brer Rabbit stories.

Sports and the Arts. Your family might enjoy a visit to Atlanta's new Memorial Arts Center which houses all the arts. In the summer you can see Broadway musicals at the theater in the new civic center complex. Professional sports provide an exciting family outing. The baseball Braves and football Falcons share Municipal Stadium south of downtown.

Dining out. Take the kids to The Varsity across the freeway from Georgia Tech University. It's reputed to be the world's largest drive-in restaurant and dispenses more hot dogs and soft drinks than anywhere else in the world.

Six Flags Over Georgia is Atlanta's newest and most exciting family entertainment center (10 minutes from downtown on Interstate 70 west; a regular city bus runs in the summer). On its 276 acres are scores of Disneyland-style rides, shows, and attractions all manned by college student hosts and hostesses. One ticket admits you to all activities for the day (adults, $4.50; children under 12, $3.50).

Stone Mountain, a short side trip from Atlanta, is a recreational park where giant figures of Confederate heroes are being carved on an 800-foot-high granite monolith. In the park are museums, antebellum plantation home, skylift, picnic campgrounds and family accommodations at Stone Mountain Inn.

For more information, write: Georgia Dept. of Industry and Trade, P. O. Box 38097, Atlanta, Georgia 30334.

EXPLORING AND DINING IN CHARLESTON, S. C.

One of the special delights of a visit to Charleston, South Carolina is capping your day of sight-seeing with dinner at one of the city's restaurants. You'll want to sample such low country Carolina specialties as Charleston's own she-crab soup, John Dent's cole slaw, beaten biscuits, hominy, stuffed oranges, corn fritters, breakfast shrimp, likker pudding, and buttermilk ice cream. Of course, you'll also find more conventional cuisine from steak to a wide range of seafood at such excellent restaurants as Perdita's, Henry's, The Colony House, Andre's Seafoods, the Sandbar, Lorelei, Everett's, the Trawler, and the Marketplace (which was formerly a church).

Start a tour of this aristocratic old city by ambling along the narrow lanes and cobblestone streets in the Battery. Next take the boat ride ($1.85; under 12, 85¢) across the harbor to Fort Sumter, where the Civil War began. Back in downtown Charleston, visit the restored and still active Dock Street Theater, America's oldest playhouse; the Hunley Museum, where you'll see a full-sized replica of the first submarine to sink a surface ship; the Old Powder Magazine; Provost Dungeon, where early American patriots were imprisoned by the British; and the Citadel, South Carolina's military college.

There are a number of ways to see the sights in Charleston. A walking tour guide map is available from the Chamber of Commerce at the Municipal Market. There are also bus and carriage tours and a harbor boat ride (each about $2; for children under 12).

You'll find family accommodations in the city's hotels and motels and at the campgrounds, two of them near the beach. For trip planning details, write: Charleston Trident Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 975, Charleston, S. C. 29402.

SUMMERTIME AT THE SKI RESORTS

For many families, the best possible time to head for a ski resort is when nobody's going—in the summertime. Those splendid lodges and restaurants, built to accommodate a peak winter influx of skiers, throw their doors to mountain-loving vacationers. Even better news: prices are usually lower than in winter. Not all ski resorts cater to a summer trade, but here are some that do:

Aspen, Colorado. Probably the biggest of all the summer programs is here in the coolness of 7,900-foot mountain air. Besides the chair-lift rides, there are hikes, horseback rides, jeep trips, fishing, and swimming, this town offers a wide range of summer schools (painting, fishing, photography, theater, music, and many team sports). For concert-lovers, Aspen has its famous Music Festival of classical and chamber music from June through late August. Aspen's restaurants and night-spots are justly famed, too. It's all so popular now that tourist reservations are getting scarce. For details, write: Aspen Visitors Bureau, Box 739, Aspen, Colorado 81611.

Vail, Colorado. A sign at the Vail town square announces that it was founded in 1961. In just seven years, it's become one of the top winter and summer resorts in the country. Built like a charming Alpine village, Vail adds a golf course to an already wide range of mountain attractions. The new Arnold Palmer Golf Academy has a complete lesson program for youngsters (and adults as well). Arts classes are available from excellent instructors, along with folk and square dancing, hayrides, chuckwagon or gourmet restaurant dinners, mine tours, and a Saturday night melodrama. Write for details to Vail Resort Assn., Vail, Colorado 81657.

Sun Valley, Idaho. In winter, there's little need to explain the magic of Sun Valley—swift ski runs, powder-snow-laden peaks, elegant after-dark atmosphere. But summer here is something else. Then Sun Valley becomes a gracious, self-contained retreat set in the primitive Sawtooth mountains.

Perhaps more than anything else, this blend of the rugged and the restful accounts for the enduring charm of Sun Valley in summer. You can have all the personal comforts of metropolitan living—daily maid service, exotic shops, and meals that range from hearty cafeteria fare to fresh pastries served in a European-style Konditori shop. With this come treats like weekly outdoor ice shows, terrace dancing, and music recitals. And you'll find enough outdoor activities to occupy the busiest family, including an 18-hole golf course, three swimming pools, a well-stocked stable, a trap-shooting range, hayride-barbecues, and backpacking trips to remote mountain campsites. For children, there are expertly run summer boarding camps (music to skating) and an elaborate tennis school.

As you stroll the boardwalks of Sun Valley's new shopping mall, it's almost like being in a Swiss village. Small shops, with their rough-sawn siding and shake roofs, line a stream-laced boulevard dotted with flowers and white birches. Here you can shop for fine wools and sport clothes, eat at old-time Ore House Inn, browse a boutique or book store.

For more information, write: Publicity Director, Sun Valley, Idaho 83353.

Crystal Mountain, Washington. This is a brand-new resort built just outside the northeast entrance to Mount Rainier National Park. Even when the park itself is jammed, Crystal Mountain frequently offers uncrowded lodging, along with ready access to all of Mount Rainier's facilities. Crystal Mountain has its own swimming, riding, pack trips, two chair lifts, and the nearby majestic Cascade Crest Trail. Complete dining and entertainment spas welcome summer visitors, too. And this year about 100 condominium apartments are available to families on a rental basis. For more information, write: Crystal Mountain, Inc., Crystal Mountain, Washington 98022.

Mount Hood, Oregon. Now over 30 years old, famous Timberline Lodge still provides superlative family vacationing. The huge stone and wood-beamed lodge building takes in a magnificent view of Oregon's western slopes on the one hand—and the perpetually snow-capped Mount Hood on the other. Skiing continues year-round, with the aid of chair lifts and the "sno-cat" vehicles that ply the higher snowfields. (Even non-skiers get a great kick out of the "cat" ride!)

There's a mammoth swimming pool, trout-stocked mountain lakes and streams, and a chance to hike through alpine meadows of flowers. Condominium apartments are now available lower on the mountainside; the lodge itself offers full resort-type accommodations. Write: Timberline Lodge, Oregon 97028.

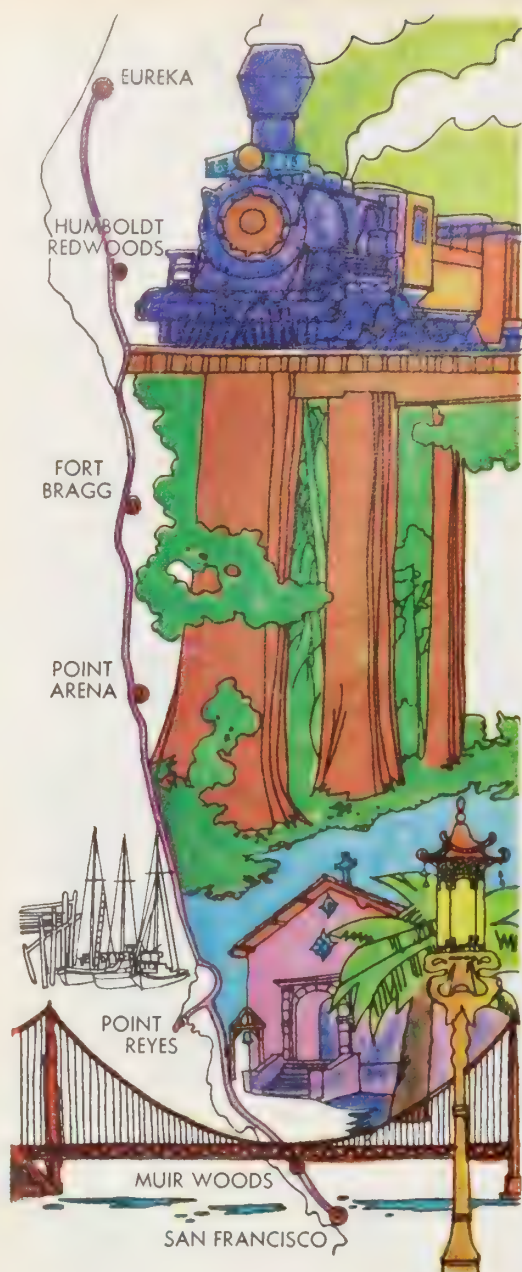

The Berkshires, Massachusetts. Tent-pitchers or backpackers, swimmers or antiquers, your family will find all it wants to fill summer days and nights at ski resort areas in the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts. You can watch internationally-renowned dance troupes, join in lively folk singing, hear the best jazz, enjoy Broadway stars in top-notch summer theater, and take great side trips from Highway 7 which is the north-south backbone of this region.

Let the kids clomp through two rare covered bridges and climb around the prehistoric rock garden at Bartholomew's Cobble. Go shopping for Early American items at Jenifer House in Great Barrington, and stroll along Norman Rockwell's Main Street in Stockbridge, home of the "Berkshire Theater Festival."

Try the fishing and swimming in October Mountain State Forest near Lee, and enjoy a dance program at Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow. Even if you're not a longhair music buff, visit Tanglewood near Lenox, summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Picnics are great in the hemlock gardens. Dip into history at reconstructed Hancock Shaker Village near Pittsfield and the Herman Melville exhibit in the town's Athenaeum.

It's all great family fare—and popular—so write well ahead for reservations to: Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield, Massachusetts 01201.

CALIFORNIA'S REDWOOD COASTLINE

Each year, thousands of San Francisco visitors cross Golden Gate bridge to the Muir Woods redwood grove and stroll along its crowded asphalt paths. Neat signboards tell you the remarkable story of sequoia sempervirens, the coastal redwood, tallest living thing in all the world. Muir Woods is a fine place to learn about this overwhelming tree. Here you'll find everything except peace and quiet.

Which, of course, are precisely what you must have to appreciate the unique experience of a redwood grove. Seldom in your travels will you ever feel the awesome hush of Nature the way it envelops you in these magnificent forests. The trees grow wide apart, as in a park, because their dense foliage long ago choked out any lesser growth below. A redwood grove insists that you walk in silence and contemplation as in a cathedral.

So drive north from San Francisco and Muir Woods into the true redwood country. Take slow but scenic coast Highway 1 up to Fort Bragg and Leggett—then U.S. 101 on an inland leg to Eureka.

Some mornings, you'll wake and find fog wrapping the coastline in a cocoon of silence. By afternoon, perhaps, all is sparkling sunlight, and the breakers boil and hiss in plain view. But on either kind of day, the redwoods await you. These same trees were mature when Christ spoke to his Disciples.

Best place by far to commune with these great trees is in Humboldt County, where a new freeway diverts traffic away from old Highway 101, the "Avenue of the Giants." Here you'll have more time to enjoy the stupendous groves. Then get away from even this bypassed highway. Walk beyond the "tissue bushes" left by thoughtless travelers, and hike deep into the forest. Your family will never forget the first day they left all the clamor of cities behind them.

You'll also want to visit one of several "demonstration forests" operated by lumbering companies in this area. Here you learn more details about the growth of the redwood tree: its incredible resistance to disease, fire, insects, and even civilization (short of actual logging). At Scotia, south of Eureka, you can tour a logging museum and lumber mill.

Northern California's coastline has a lot more to offer than redwoods, of course. Soon after you cross the Golden Gate Bridge, you're in the colorful bayside resort of Sausalito—reminiscent of many little fishing villages perched on hills above the Mediterranean. Shops and restaurants here are excellent.

A short distance beyond is Point Reyes, a newly established National Seashore. The road leads through pines and sand dunes out to the picturesque lighthouse at the tip of the point.

From here north to Fort Bragg, Highway 1 treats you to some superlative ocean drives and views—as well as hikes if you're wise enough to take the extra time. Prowl the beaches in search of driftwood, shells, and agates. Look for wildflowers atop the dunes and within crevices in rocky bluffs. (But don't pick!)

Best overnight accommodations along this drive are in San Francisco, of course, and in Little River, Fort Bragg, and Eureka. At Fort Bragg, you can even take the family on an exciting steam-train excursion up into the mountains (fare on the "Super Skunk," $4.50 round trip; children 5-11 half fare).

For a free illustrated booklet on this variety vacationland along the northern California coast, write: Redwood Empire Association, 476 Post St., San Francisco, California 94102. —Neil Kuehn.

T.R.'S DAKOTA HUNT COUNTRY

From the brink of Wind Canyon in North Dakota's Badlands—Teddy Roosevelt favorite retreat—the view is like a page from our prehistoric past. Hundreds of feet below, the Little Missouri River snakes past masses of tumbled rock and clay. Jutting up from the valley floor are bare, wind-carved buttes and ridges that stretch north in a tangle of blue, red, and orange. Only rarely is there any sound but the scouring wind, whistling through the cedars, biting into the soft, layer-calcified rock ridges.

In Roosevelt's day, the Badlands conjured up images of fierce weather, fierce Indians, and roistering 1890s mine towns. Yet today, if T. R. stepped into Medora—restored frontier town adjacent to Roosevelt National Memorial Park—he'd feel at home. Boardwalks edge blocky, weathered wood buildings, from the Rough Riders Hotel to Joe Ferris general store. At the park headquarters is T. R.'s own three-room cabin, brought from his legendary Maltese Cross ranch.

In Medora, you'll also discover nightly outdoor Wild West plays, buffalo barbeques, and trail rides into the hills above town. Then there's the historic "chateau" home of the Marquis de Mores, French duelist, fortune-hunter—and founder of Medora, North Dakota.

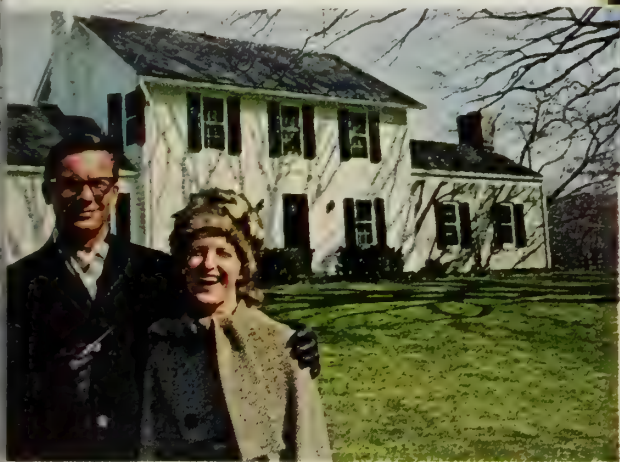

In 70,000-acre Roosevelt Park are more surprises. At the south unit, you see a burning coal vein, petrified trees, even prairie-dog towns. On the more remote north unit, you can walk the Cannon Rock-Coulee nature trail and take the winding, 13-mile drive through the eroded, desolate hills. —Peter Lindberg.

My Man was a King-Size Problem

(Confessions of a big man's wife)

My husband is big and handsome. I always enjoy going out with him, except for one thing — his clothes never fit him correctly. They weren't cheap clothes, either. They just weren't proportioned right for a man his size. His shirts and slacks were always skimpy, his jackets never looked right and his shoes were just not in style. I tried going shopping for him myself — but I'd just run myself ragged and come home in tears.

Then one day I saw the new KING-SIZE Catalog. 120 pages of smart, stylish clothing and shoes... sweaters, slacks and jackets — all specially designed for TALL and BIG men! Inseams to 42"; necks to 22"; sleeves to 38". And the finest brands, MCGREGOR, ARROW, MANHATTAN, JANTZEN, WELDON. Shoes from 10 to 16, AAA to EEE; DuPont Corfam, Hush Puppies, Bates Floaters and many others. Best of all, the new KING-SIZE Color Catalog is Free. Every item carries the famous KING-SIZE Money-Back Guarantee, "You must be satisfied both BEFORE and AFTER wearing, or you get an immediate refund or exchange."

If your tall man has the same problem, write for the FREE KING-SIZE Catalog. You will solve his problem... and your own.

Gentlemen:

I'm tired of dashing from store to store. Please rush your new 120 page Full-Color KING-SIZE Catalog of Apparel and Footwear for Tall and Big Men exclusively.

THE MAN NEXT DOOR

"Confidentially . . ."

The weather has been so changeable lately that I saw a convertible the other day with the top down and the snow tires still on.

Grandparents can be a subversive element, especially when they tell children their parents weren't the models of decorum and studiousness they remember themselves to have been.

When a woman needs a lift in spirit, she must go to all the trouble of a new hairdo. All a man needs is to spend a Saturday without shaving.

Peggy Bayless says that since their two children have grown up and left home, she gets a little lonesome every morning when she sees the four-slice toaster in the kitchen.

Eileen Cowan, our beautiful divorced friend, winks at old Mr. Greevy whenever they meet. He tips his hat and walks on with a new spring in his step. "I hope," says Eileen, "that some young sprout does the same for me when I am Mr. Greevy's age."

The Rev. George Hall is fond of comparing himself to a baseball manager. For example, he claims he scouted one rookie deacon who has good hands, knows all the moves, and should make it big as an elder.

Rosemary is at a confusing age. The decor of her room is a combination of stuffed animals and psychedelic posters.

Burt, Jr., anticipates a satisfying season of Little League Baseball. It's not that the team is going to be much better, but this year the sponsor of the club is a pizza parlor.

Some men have accountants to go over their income tax returns. About all the "help" I get is when one of the family cats decides to stroll across my Form 1040.

Christine says I have contributed very little work to our garden, but I'm sure my daily advice to the flowers whether to bloom or not to bloom must be worth something.

After a recent night at the movies, it occurs to me that adults shouldn't be allowed to attend science fiction films without a 12-year-old along to explain the technical details.

An old fad is revived in our neighborhood. I haven't checked the chronology, but is it possible that we now have a second generation of hula-hoopers?

Opinions about progress differ. I don't imagine, for example, that the turtle which is impelled to cross the road this time of year is particularly happy about six-lane divided highways.

Competition in outer space is a good thing, of course, but I don't particularly look forward to the day when I gaze up at a planet and have to worry about whether it's one of theirs or one of ours.

Art is not Judy's favorite fourth grade subject, which is why the tulip is her favorite spring flower. It's the easiest cut out of colored paper.

People aren't the only ones who try to make mountains out of molehills. See an irksome mole at work in my yard realized moles do it, too.

Cloud-watching is one of the few remaining family activities that are both fun and inexpensive. Everyone can join in. You seldom see a cloud formation that would be suggested for Mature Audiences only.

When the big white billows pile up, the children all discover different outlines against the blue April sky. At first they saw puppies and kitty cats, an occasional elephant, perhaps a hippopotamus, and other such juvenilia, dictated not so much by an actual similarity as by whatever storybook had been read last.

Judy still leans toward lambs and other cuddly objects but yesterday Burt, Jr., saw a cloud which he swore looked like an atom smasher (I couldn't argue with him).

It's hard to say what Rosemary sees. Usually she just sighs. Perhaps the clouds, to her, are fairy castles inhabited by suitably handsome princes.

I always try, as all ham-fisted fathers do, to introduce a note of whimsy. "Look," I said yesterday, "that cloud over there is a fat man lying on his back and snoring."

It turned out this was one time they had arrived at a consensus, expressed by Judy, speaking for them all:

"We already figured that out, Dad. It looks exactly like you."

It was a sudden end, for me, to an otherwise pensive family fun.

Combine 1 pkg. Beef Rice-A-Roni with 1 lb. ground beef and 1 egg, beaten. Shape into polpette or small meatballs (approx. 20). Brown on all sides in skillet. Combine contents of Beef seasoning packet with 2½ cups hot water. Pour over meat. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Thicken gravy, if desired.

Want to be sure your youngster will have funds for college? It's as simple as...

The time between baby blocks and college books will fly by faster than you think. That's why it's never too early to start planning. And that's where we come in.

With insurance from New York Life. Insurance that can help cover college costs. (And they can run as high as $15,000 over a four-year period.) Insurance that means the money will be there. Even if you're not.

Making sure college funds are available is something we know a lot about.

Our experience dates back to the class of '45—1845!

Our dividend payments to policyowners go back a long ways, too. Well over a century. Right now they're at an all-time high, bringing the cost of life insurance for millions of our policyowners to an all-time low.

Yes, Sears now has a Kenmore Gas Oven that cleans up after itself.

All you do is lock the oven door, set the controls and timer, and in an hour or two (depending on amount of soil) your Kenmore Gas Oven turns itself off . . . clean again!

Another thing. We taught it how to start, cook, bake, roast and shut itself off. And we taught it how to have a nice pot of hot, fresh-perked coffee all ready for you when you get up in the morning!

While we're at it let's not forget some of its other accomplishments. Such as its smokeless broiler; fluorescent-lighted backguard; a separate Teflon® coated griddle; an easy-clean porcelain-coated finish; and a beautiful choice of colors: White, Shaded Coppertone, Shaded Avocado.

Sears Self-Cleaning Gas Oven. We could call it the most educated oven in the world, except Sears, Roebuck and Co. already has the Kenmore Self-Cleaning Electric Oven that can do it all, too. Pretty smart ovens!

ARE YOU SMART TO BE YOUR OWN REMODELING CONTRACTOR?

Y, but only if you have the time and patience to supervise a variety of subcontractors—and cope with the headaches that can crop up. Then you might save 1 to 20 percent of the total price a one-stop remodeling contractor would charge for the whole job. This means savings of up to $400 on a $2,000 family room, or up to $700 on a new $3,500 addition. But you really must be able to run the whole show, or you could end up with a more expensive job. And that often happens when a homeowner-contractor bites off more than he can chew.

Generally, you're better off hiring a good remodeling contractor for any job that will require three or more different trades. This includes a modernized kitchen or bathroom, a remodeled attic, basement or family room, or a new room addition. Such work can require up to a dozen or so subcontractors—electrician, plumber, heating man, spackler, perhaps a mason and excavation sub, or even a carpenter crew.

Knowing how to find good subs and coordinating their work are two of the biggest advantages a good remodeling contractor offers. You also get the benefit of his expertise—including professionally drawn plans and specifications. He arranges for all permits and required inspections. He also can save you money by smart purchases of materials, in addition to getting his regular trade discounts on building supplies.

To find a good contractor, ask friends, relatives, and neighbors for the names of men who did good work for them. Call a few banks, especially those specializing in home improvement loans. Then call your local home-builder association, especially in winter when many builders take on remodeling work to keep their crews busy.

Next, get two or three bids. Don't necessarily take the lowest priced one, though. It could be low because key items are missing. And before signing with a contractor, check his references. These should include his bank, his main suppliers, and homeowners he has worked for. You might also call the Better Business Bureau about him, and visit his office or showroom to be sure he's well-established locally. Be sure he has contractor's insurance too; ask to see his insurance certificate, which covers items like workman's compensation, property damage, and personal liability.

The best way to avoid any misunderstanding is a written contract spelling out exactly what the remodeling contractor is going to do. This same advice applies when you serve as your own contractor and hire your own subs. Contracts should include full specifications, including the specific type and brand of materials used. They also should describe how the work is to be done (a plan helps here), and specify the completion date and payment schedule. Check also to see that the contractor agrees to clean up afterward—sometimes described in contracts as "debris removal." If a change is made while the job is under way, put it in writing, along with the extra cost (or saving) to you.

Sometimes you can avoid the biggest potential headaches and still save money by having a remodeling contractor do the tough parts of your remodeling work. For example, he could do the foundation and roofed-over structural shell of a new addition. Then you hire your own subs to finish the job. If you're a skilled handyman, you could save even more by doing some of the finish work.

If you decide to be your own contractor for all or part of the work, check the tips listed below. You also can use this checklist when you hire single-trade contractors, such as an electrician for new wiring.

1. Do your homework. Learn all about the particular work in advance. Shop showrooms and supply houses. Be sure that the materials or products you want are available.

2. Draw up plans and specifications, or have them done for you. A good architect can be valuable, especially for a major remodeling project. Provide copies of the plan and specifications for each sub.

3. Get a building permit, if required, plus adequate insurance. Be certain the local zoning allows the project you're planning. If not, you could be compelled to tear it down later.

4. Before you finish settling up with each subcontractor, get a statement from him that specifies he's been paid. This will protect you from a Mechanic's Lien—a legal claim filed against you to recover unpaid labor or material charges.

WHAT'S THE BEST WAY TO GET MONEY FOR REMODELING?

Money tight? Interest rates high? That may be true, but you still can find a variety of lenders—and rates—in many metropolitan areas. In smaller communities, your choice may be somewhat limited, but here are several good possibilities:

FHA (Federal Housing Administration)
Title I loan—available through many banks and savings and loan associations. The FHA does not grant the loan, but insures the lender against loss. The borrower stands the cost of the insurance—one-half percent of the loan amount. You can borrow up to $5,000 for as long as seven years at $5.50 per $100 per year for the first $2,500, and $4.50 per $100 for the remainder.

Title I loans often are discounted—that is, the interest is deducted in advance. That makes the simple or true rate almost double the stated rate, but still one of the lowest you can get. However, you usually can't use the loan for "luxury" items like swimming pools.

Bank or S&L home improvement loan—the regular remodeling loan offered by most lending institutions, usually for up to five years, sometimes seven. Currently, the interest rate is $6 to $7 per $100 in a few areas, but higher in most others.

Creditor life insurance, when required, may add 50 cents to a dollar per $100 to the cost.

These loans may be discounted or add-on. In the add-on variation, the interest is computed and added to the principal, with the total becoming the amount of the loan. Here too, the simple or true interest rate is almost double the stated rate, but there are practically no restrictions on the use of the loan.

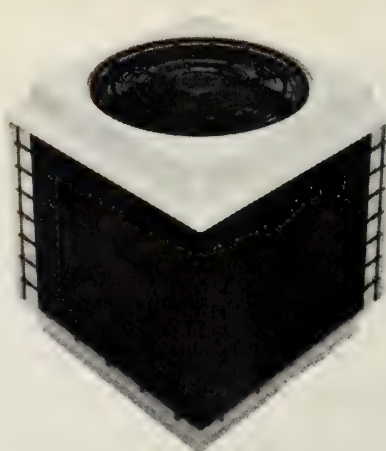

Contractor's loan—frequently arranged by contractors through finance companies, where rates usually are higher than most other lenders. That means $7 to $8 per $100 add-on and more in many places, or a high-interest second mortgage. The loans may be from one to five years, sometimes longer. The biggest advantage is that you don't have to shop for your loan.

FHA 203 (k) loan—designed for major improvements, though used infrequently. You can get from $2,500 to $10,000 for a one-family house for five to 20 years. The 203 now must be secured by a second mortgage at 7½ percent, and can't bring the total indebtedness over the FHA valuation of the house. You pay closing costs and the half-percent FHA insurance premium. Finally, the house (with certain exceptions) must be at least ten years old.

As a simple-interest loan, this one will cost less than any mentioned above. Yet because of the paperwork involved and the relatively low interest rate, this loan isn't the simplest to obtain.

Open-end mortgage loan—available only if your mortgage has a clause permitting you to borrow as much as you have paid and to extend the mortgage accordingly. Although there are closing costs, they usually are less than on a new mortgage. Still, you may have to pay present interest rates—even percent or more in many parts of the country—on the old indebtedness as well as the new. It's always a good idea to compute the interest cost for the life of the mortgage and compare it with the cost of other loans; your lender can help you with this computation.

Refinancing your present mortgage—advisable only if you need a large sum you can't get any other way. The amount you can borrow depends on your income, how much mortgage you've paid off, and the current value of your house. The closing costs should be less than if you were buying another house—if you refinance with the same lender. (And if you don't, he may charge you a fee for paying off your old mortgage in advance.) The monthly payments generally are low enough to be manageable, but here too, you'll pay today's higher interest rates.

Source	Rate	Amount	Term
Bank or S&L Passbook	$3 to $4 per $100 discount (equals 6 to 8% simple).	90 to 95% of account balance.	Varies—may be 1 to 3 years.

News from General Mills

Suddenly it's Spring! New birds fly in every day to join the ducks and geese on our pond. The ice has melted in the lakes. And there's new hope, new excitement everywhere, even in your letters.

☞ Pick-a-Posy Dessert is an idea from California. Just prepare your favorite sugar cookie dough using Gold Medal Flour; roll and cut into rounds or flower shapes. Insert a thin hibachi stick or wooden skewer (about 6 inches long) in each for stem. Bake and cool. Decorate cookies to resemble flowers, using candies and our Vanilla Ready-to-Spread Frosting tinted pastel colors. Fill 3-inch paper cups with softened vanilla ice cream; garnish with candies. Freeze. To serve, thaw slightly; insert a cookie flower in each.

☞ "I want something wild and wacky for an end-of-school party." Our suggestion: PERSONALITY PIZZAS. For the dough, mix 2 cups Bisquick and ½ cup water. Knead about a minute on lightly floured surface. Roll ¼ inch thick and cut into 3-inch squares. Place on ungreased baking sheet and pinch edges of squares to form rims. Spoon tomato sauce on each square; sprinkle with oregano. Now—everybody 'does his own thing' with bowls of sliced olives, onions, Parmesan, Mozzarella or Cheddar cheese, mushrooms, anchovies, shrimp, pepperoni, salami or you name it. Bake 20 to 25 minutes at 425°. Add a relish platter—and there's your party.

☞ "I'm cutting down on calories—spring-slimming time. Could you tell me please, the calories in your snacks?" Our snacks (Pizza Spins, Bugles and the rest) run about 40 calories to the half-cup. And here's another idea: Cheerios are only 50 calories to the half-cup. So for variety, melt 2 tablespoons butter in a heavy skillet, add 4 cups Cheerios and stir over medium heat about 5 minutes. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon garlic salt or onion salt. Only 75 calories in this ½ cup (the butter accounts for that extra 25 calories!).

IS THAT OLDER HOUSE WORTH BUYING?

What are the pros and cons of buying an older house? Every family can rate the importance of such factors as neighborhood, schools, churches, and nearness to work. But the dollars and cents comparisons are key considerations, too. Here are facts to help you make the decision.

Space. For a large or growing family, the older house usually provides more living space and more rooms than a new home at the same price. The rooms will probably be larger, too. You're likely to get an ample attic, more bulk storage space, and a full dining room—rather than a dining alcove. But you may find yourself with a single, undersized garage, no family room, and small (and too few) closets.

Extras. You often pick up a bonus in an older house because of its mature plantings, trees, and lawn. Even a modest five-year-old house will probably have $300-$400 worth of plantings. Compare these with the minimum landscaping in a new development house. Don't overlook the big savings, too, in carpeting and draperies that may come as part of your purchase price.

Mortgage. This can be crucial to your decision. Sizable savings are possible if you can take over the existing mortgage. The interest rate would be low, maybe five percent (ten years ago) or five and a half percent (five years ago). You avoid closing costs, though you must pay a small fee for recording the deed and modifying the contract.

But there are a few catches. Let's say the original mortgage of $15,000 has been reduced to $10,000. If the owner paid $20,000 for the house, he may be asking $25,000 now. Thus, you'd need $15,000 in cash above the mortgage. Do you have that much of a down payment?

Some mortgages contain a clause preventing such take-overs by providing that the mortgage becomes due and payable in the event of sale. Clearly, lenders are not eager to continue a five percent mortgage when they can issue new loans at far higher rates. They can, if they wish, find technical roadblocks to discourage the assumption of an existing mortgage.

Mortgage term. Usually 15-20 years on an older house, versus 25-30 years on a new one. Yet a good, modernized 40-year-old house could qualify for 25 years.

Down payment. Larger with an older house; a conventional mortgage through a savings and loan association is not likely to go over 75-80 percent of appraised value—as opposed to a possible 90 percent on a similar new house. However, you may obtain the extra 10-15 percent from the lender if it's insured by a private loan insurance organization.

Through a commercial or mutual savings bank, conventional mortgages on a home older than ten years are generally 66 to 70 percent. On a younger house, most of those banks grant 75-80 percent. VA mortgages permit a 100 percent loan, no down payment. FHA mortgages are offered on a sliding scale, with a maximum of 97 percent on the first $15,000 of appraised value.

Interest rates. About the same for old and new houses. Today's prevailing average is about eight percent, with variations across the country. In addition, there may be a requirement to pay percentage "points." (A "point" is equivalent to a one-time fee of $1 for every $100 in the mortgage.) On FHA and VA loans, now at 7½ percent (plus ½ percent for FHA insurance), the seller may be asked to pay 3-4 points.

Closing costs on an old house—when you take out a new mortgage—are no different than on a new house. If a house is very old and in need of much repair, a mortgage may not be available until renovations are made. You might obtain a mortgage commitment from a lender and then, after improvements have been completed, get the mortgage on the appraised value including the cost of the completed improvements.

Taxes. You're apt to pay lower property taxes—as much as one-third less—on an older abode than on a new home of comparable price and size. Generally, the older the house, the lower the tax assessment. Original assessments of 20 to 30 years ago have probably been raised, but not in line with newer construction. However, the community could have conducted a reassessment program, sharply boosting the taxes on old houses.

In any case, property taxes tend to be stable in a settled, built-up neighborhood. On the other hand, the tax rates in new areas may skyrocket because new schools, roads, sewers, and other facilities must be built. Caution: before you buy an older house, check with the town clerk or tax appraiser to see if your purchase price could substantially affect the assessment.

Maintenance. After you've refurbished a ten-year-old (or younger) house and moved in, the subsequent maintenance costs are approximately the same as for a new house of the same construction. However, heating a big older house, with limited or inferior insulation, runs up larger fuel bills. If you've bought an unpainted brick or stone house, the upkeep will be cheaper than for a frame, stucco, or painted brick.

Inside, much depends on how well the house has been kept. It costs more to repair a plastered wall than one of dry wall in a new house. Obviously, the older the home, the sooner you'll have to replace corroded plumbing pipes, improve inadequate wiring, or get new kitchen appliances. The roof is more likely to need repair; the furnace is close to the end of its average lifetime; a frame exterior may require new siding.

Construction and equipment. Houses built 20 to 30 years ago are generally of different, heavier construction. The walls, for instance, are usually wire lath and plaster, not dry wall. A house over five or ten years old is free of all the "new house bugs," and most things are in proper working order. To check furnace, plumbing, and such structural features as foundation walls, columns, and girders, the wise home buyer seeks professional help in advance. Home inspection services are available at $35 to $200, depending on the value of the house. Or you can ask a qualified engineer, appraiser, or architect to advise you on the difficult parts of the house. It's a sound investment.

Watering at ground level is good for crabgrass and other weeds, but does little good for your plantings. If you want your trees and shrubs to grow faster, stay healthier and have better blooms, root feeding is your answer. The Ross Root Feeder is perfect.

It will water and fertilize your trees and shrubs easily and effectively... all at one time. You simply connect it to your garden hose, dissolve the Ross Specialized Plant Food Cartridges in the see-through chamber and the penetrating tube releases the solution 27" deep... right at the root zone. Roots absorb the plant food solution and the sap stream carries it to every part of the plant, even your tallest tree.

And NOW by this same method there is a new Ross Systemic Insecticide Cartridge to rid your ornamentals of aphids, mites and other sucking insects for six weeks or longer. This is protection from the inside out that won't wash off... yet won't harm birds, bees or other beneficial insects.

For more beautiful, healthier and insect-free trees and ornamentals, use the Ross Root Feeder with the Ross Specialized Plant Food and Ross Systemic Insecticide Cartridges from early spring throughout the gardening season... available at your local lawn and garden supply dealer, or write for further information.

IS THAT OLDER HOUSE WORTH BUYING? Continued

Repairs. If an older house needs repairing, this needn't discourage you. In case a new roof will soon be needed, find out ahead of time how much the roof will cost. Then add this to the total price you will actually be paying for the house. Or, if you feel the price is already high enough, then offer the owner less—that is, deducting the cost of a new roof. If your offer is accepted, you'll still be getting the house at your original price—with a new roof included.

Either way, repairs needn't discourage you from buying an older house, so long as you can spot what things should be done, and you can determine what the costs will be. When the repairs are completed, you'll know exactly what to expect from those parts of the house.

On the following pages, you'll see sound advice on sizing up roofs and all other parts of the house. The articles labeled Fixing up an older house will help you look for and evaluate problems, determine what's necessary to fix them, and provide guides to some of the costs involved.

Resale value. Depending on how much you spend (and on what), you may or may not get back the cost of improvements when you eventually sell your house. Installing a second bathroom, modernizing the kitchen, and putting in a playroom should pay off in increased value. You can generally count on getting a full return for an investment in central air conditioning.

Building a swimming pool will add to the selling price only half of what it cost you. Paneling a den or improving the landscaping does not necessarily add to the sales appeal. The odds are against getting back your money on aluminum or vinyl siding, since it is an expected part of general upkeep.

Overall, your older house will appreciate in value largely because of the eventual higher costs of erecting an equivalent new house. Much will hinge on the rate of inflation, how your area holds up, and the way you maintain your property.

The shortage of residential property is expected to continue for some years. Prices of older homes have been going up faster than prices of new ones. Thus, in theory, an older house should return more when you sell.

The drawbacks. A family with very little cash and limited income might be better off buying a new home, because of the lower down payment. With a longer-term mortgage available for a new house, monthly payments should be relatively low. There is less risk involved, too, because the costs of repairs and upkeep are much more predictable than with an older house. In addition, you're more likely to find better floor plans, the latest equipment and appliances, and more convenience in today's typical new house.

How to decide. Make the decision as you would any other—start by comparing dollars for both the new house and the older one. What are the taxes? Cash needed? Mortgage provisions? Costs before you move in? Estimated maintenance expenses? Savings on extras? Future resale value?

Next, consider the personal, more emotional factors. (Only you can evaluate these.) In the final score, you'll probably find that on today's market you get more for your money with an older house. To build a house that's identical or comparable to a 10- to 15-year-old home, chances are you'd have to shell out up to 50 percent more money. Yet it would offer you much more than that older house!

Your wisest guideline: Narrow the field first, then choose the house that is within your means and is the most comfortable for you and your family. ■

FIXING UP AN OLDER HOME

May is a great month to take the first step toward that home improvement project you've been thinking about. Whether it's a new coat of paint here and there—or a major updating—now's the time to put your ideas into action.

Talk with a builder, materials dealer, or remodeling contractor displaying this sign. This month he's putting special emphasis on home improvement. He'll help transform your ideas into a new world of living enjoyment.

WALLS

A thorough inspection will disclose a lot about the condition of the walls in an older house. Cracked plaster, peeling or loose wallpaper, dirty and worn paint are all painfully apparent. Fortunately, the fix-up techniques are relatively straightforward.

Paint is an inexpensive, easy, and quick way to improve walls; and it's something you can do without a big investment in tools or time. Even the most inexperienced amateur can do this job successfully the first time. Surface preparation is vital, however. In many cases, this is only a matter of some brisk scrubbing to get off the worst of the dirt.

You can get by with painting right over wallpaper if it's sound. But if the paper has old-fashioned lapped joints, or if there are multiple layers, you'll have to remove all the paper. You can do this yourself inexpensively, but it takes time.

The best way is to rent a steamer and devote a whole day per room to getting the paper off. Or, you can spread the job over a longer period of time using a wallpaper stripping solution. If you don't want to do it yourself, you may have to find someone to strip off the paper before the painter comes. (Many paint contractors won't remove paper.)

The painter will do patching, but any major replastering will involve another tradesman. One more point on preparation: If the walls have been painted previously with glossy enamel, it must be sanded lightly to kill the gloss before new paint is applied.

You'll want to refinish the woodwork along with your wall painting. Here again, surface preparation is the most important step. If your woodwork has an old varnish or enamel finish, you must sand the surface carefully. If the old finish, varnish, or paint is cracked and peeling, you'll have to strip off the old finish with varnish or paint remover and start over. When painting woodwork, always use good quality gloss or semigloss enamel, or one of the new latex enamels.

Wallpaper makes a dramatic change in any room. Papering isn't as easy as painting, but it's a job you can tackle if you're reasonably handy. You can put new wallpaper over sound old paper, but don't line up new seams on top of old; they'll become twice as obvious.

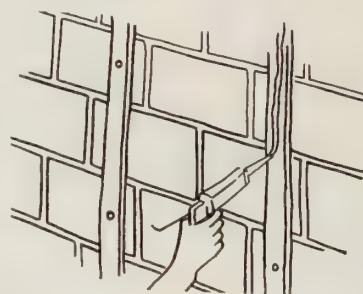

The same preparations (as for paint) apply to walls in bad shape. You can rent all the tools you'll need and do it yourself, or leave the job to a wall-papering contractor.

Modern wallpaper offers so many choices that you should spend considerable time shopping before settling on the type you want. The new vinyls are relatively expensive, but they offer a trouble-free surface for years to come.

Paneling is beautiful and durable, and it offers the once-and-for-all solution to problem walls. If you're confronted with really bad plastering—or so many layers of wallpaper you just can't face stripping it off—cover up your problem with paneling and be done with it. This, of course, doesn't rule out paneling for walls that aren't problems. The rich wood tones and sparkling colors now available will give new life to any room in any house.

Although you can install paneling with only a few hand tools, a power saw makes the job go much faster. A good job depends mainly on careful measurement, common sense, and perfectly plumb edges.

Fasten 1x2-inch wood furring strips to the wall to form a framework. Then, put up the paneling according to the manufacturer's directions. New adhesives make the job of fastening paneling to furring strips neater than nailing. Matching moldings for outside and inside corners complete the job.

There are many types and styles of paneling. You can buy solid-wood paneling; plywood paneling with surface veneers of almost any species (unfinished or prefinished); plastic-surfaced hardboard in various simulated wood grains or colors. New plastic laminates come in colors, wood grains, and textures. There's even wallboard with overlays of paper or vinyl in many patterns.

Prefinished products are fastest, and have a factory finish that would be hard to duplicate on your own. Unfinished paneling, on the other hand, is less expensive, and gives you the opportunity to apply a custom finish. Your personal taste and billfold will be the determining factors.

Adding new walls—or removing and altering old ones—should be considered when you are thinking about potential home improvements. Adding a new wall to make space more usable usually involves only straightforward carpentry work that shouldn't be expensive, whether you do it yourself or have it done.

Several wall panel systems now on the market make it possible to erect a new wall without the traditional 2x4 framing. Buy the panels, fasten them at the floor and ceiling, tape the joints where the sections butt together, and you're ready for painting. Framing for prehung doors can be set into these wall panels. Or, use the traditional method of 2x4 framing—covered with dry wall, plaster, or paneling.

Removing an existing wall becomes a bit more complicated. Generally it's not until you are well into the job that you realize how difficult it is. First, you must determine whether the wall is "load bearing"; that is, actually helping to hold up the house. Usually, a wall that runs at right angles to the floor joists is a load-bearing wall. If in doubt, get a professional opinion. In fact, removing a wall or opening up an arch, a window, or a door should be professionally done unless you're a skilled handyman who does his homework well. New framing is always necessary around such an opening, and covering up the traces of a wall which has been removed gets to be quite a job.

CEILINGS

Check carefully for ceiling damage in an older house. If there are extensive stains visible, don't attempt any ceiling repairs until you've taken care of the real culprit—a leaky roof. Otherwise, you'll just have to do it all over again. Cracks are the common result of normal settling; they can be repaired.

Painting is the quick and inexpensive way to refinish ceilings that have no special problems. The preparation method used for walls works just as well up here, and you can use the same type of paints, too. If your ceiling is badly cracked, a texture or sand-finish paint is the answer. To patch, use a new latex patching compound. Brush a coat of the compound over the cracked area, then embed fiber glass mesh in it. The second coat covers the mesh, forming a smooth patch that won't break open later. Then a coat of texture paint will make a near perfect cover-up.

Ceiling tile is the cure-all solution if you don't want to bother with peeling off wallpaper and patching cracks, or if you have a really difficult situation. A tile ceiling also gives a room a smart, contemporary look.

If you're fairly handy, install it yourself. Although few tools are required, a heavy-duty stapler is a must. Start by nailing 1x2-inch wood furring strips at right angles to the ceiling joists. Space them on 12-inch centers for 12x12-inch tiles, so all the tile joints will occur over the strips. Then staple the tiles to the strips, keeping them lined up properly. It takes planning to make it all come out right, but instructions included with tile will guide you.

Dry-wall panels work well on ceilings and are less expensive than ceiling tile. They're harder to install, however, since you have bigger panels to handle. "T" braces and a strong friend will come in handy. Cut the panel to size, nail it up, tape the joints, then paint. Dry wall is ideal for the basement, to conceal exposed joists. By nailing the dry-wall panels to the joists you can cover a lot of area for a very low cost.

Suspended ceiling systems bring those high ceilings down for a more contemporary look. A lightweight metal framework suspended from the ceiling joists—with a wall molding at the new ceiling height—supports the modular-size panels. For lighting, substitute fluorescent light fixtures designed on the same module as the panels.

Although a suspended ceiling looks like a formidable undertaking, it's actually rather easy. You have to use a little common sense when you cut the main frame members, but once this is done, the whole thing goes together as simply as an Erector Set.

With one of the new suspended grid units that hangs from the ceiling without touching the walls, you can put a new ceiling in your bathroom. The lighting is built-in, including a sun lamp if you like.

Other materials you might not have thought about for ceilings include various wood panelings. Teamed with light walls and contemporary furniture, a wood ceiling creates a dramatic effect.

Another way to add glamour to your ceilings is to install fake beams. You can buy boxlike vinyl beams that fasten to wood strips nailed to the ceiling, or lightweight plastic foam beams that you glue in place. With either type, you have to actually touch the beams to tell them from the real thing. You can make your own beams from clear 1x4s or 1x6s. Attach these over wood strips on the ceiling and finish them off with moldings to match trim around windows and doors.

FLOORS

There are many ways to recondition and resurface floors. Before making a choice, ask yourself these questions.

How much wear and tear will the floor get? How much care can you give it? How will it look in your decorating scheme? And, of course, how will the cost fit your home-improvement budget?

Choose wisely, buying the best quality you can afford. Don't saddle yourself for years to come with a hard-to-care-for floor just to save a few dollars.

Refinishing wood floors is both economical and practical for low-traffic areas like living rooms, dining rooms, and bedrooms. You can recondition a lot of area for a low cost per square foot. Almost any kind of wood floor can be given a new lease on life as long as the floorboards themselves are in sound condition.

First, sand off the old finish and smooth up the wood. You can rent a floor sander and do the job yourself. However, a word of caution: sanding a floor properly requires skill—so become familiar with both the tools and the procedure.

Choose a new stain finish from the many colors available, and protect it with varnish or wax. Resin varnish, or "gym finish" as it is usually called, gives a high-gloss floor, but may be susceptible to scratching. The newer urethane varnishes, however, are really tough and virtually scuff-proof. Wax finishes are more susceptible than varnish to staining. If you have your wood floors refinished professionally, the price per square foot is lower when you have them all done at one time.

Carpeting is becoming more popular every year. Long considered suitable only in the living room, it is now used in kitchens, bathrooms, and even outdoors. New materials have made carpeting one of the easiest types of floor coverings to maintain.

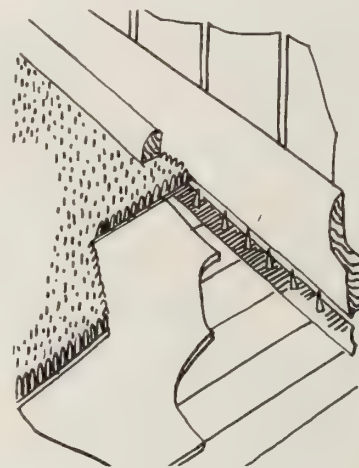

Besides the many conventional carpets available, you can now choose one of the new indoor-outdoor type carpets made of polypropylene. Available in conventional rolls or in carpet tiles, this floor covering is quite inexpensive and will take all kinds of abuse. Indoors, you can lay it either with or without a pad.

The tiles come self-padded; just glue them in place. Or install without adhesive by applying two strips of doublefaced tape at right angles across the room. Stick down a row of tiles both ways, then lay the other tiles in place. If one or two tiles need replacing later, just pick them up and put in new ones.

In more conventional types of carpeting, you can choose from several types of man-made fibers or natural wool. Each of the synthetics has particular qualities to recommend it. Nylon is the longest lasting; acrylics are made in a great many different types and styles. The new polyesters are noted for their brilliant, rich colors, and polypropylene is exceptionally color-fast and easy to clean. Natural wool has many of the good qualities of the synthetics combined in one material. However, it is somewhat less stain resistant.

Roll carpeting can be laid in two ways. In kitchens and bathrooms, carpeting with a backing pad can be glued down. In all other installations, tack stripping (below) is nailed around the perimeter of the room, and the carpet is stretched and fastened to this strip. If the carpet doesn't have a self-pad back, choose between a hair or foam pad. Foam, either rubber or rebonded urethane, is the more popular type.

Floor tile is a great cover-up for old floors in high-traffic areas. In kitchens, bathrooms, hallways, family rooms, and basements, tile offers a reasonable price per square foot as well as a beautiful and easy-to-maintain surface. And it's easy to install yourself. In an older home, install an underlayment of 1/4-inch plywood before putting down the tile.

Tile comes in three basic materials: asphalt, vinyl asbestos, and pure vinyl. Asphalt tile is least expensive but has some drawbacks in durability and maintenance. Vinyl asbestos is moderately priced but somewhat limited in style possibilities. Pure vinyl is the top of the line. Endless patterns and colors are available, and pure vinyl tiles can be heavily embossed to simulate brick, stone, and other exotic reproductions.

Sheet vinyl and linoleum both have the good wear and maintenance qualities of vinyl tile with the further advantage of almost seamless application. Many types of sheet vinyl have resilient backings for underfoot comfort. Linoleum, while somewhat limited in its design possibilities, is an economical and long-wearing floor material. Both sheet vinyl and linoleum are installed over the same underlayment materials used for tile, although felt underlayment may be substituted. Any sheet material will require professional installation for a good fit, however.

Seamless poured floors are becoming increasingly popular. This material comes as a liquid which is applied to the floor in several coats. The application of plastic chips before the last coat creates various patterns. Underlayment is generally required, but if the old floor is sound and smooth, you can usually do without it.

Application is no more difficult than painting a floor with a roller. However, you must work out a good schedule so successive steps are carried out on time—and without completely disrupting the household. This floor can be covered up the wall to eliminate baseboards, so cleaning is much easier.

3-Seat Kingswood Estate Wagon

Almost everybody's wagon now has a two-way tailgate.
and that's nice. But . . .
Not everybody fixed their roofs.
You see, if you don't cut back on the roof line and then curve the rear end, you've still got grief getting in and out.

You can't stand up straight, without getting a knock in the noggin.

So you still have to stoop in. And stoop out.

Chevrolet wagons aren't like that.
We've fixed the roof.

A step up. A step in. And you can sit right down, naturally. Our thoughtful built-in bumper step helps, too.

Saves a lot of monkey business, that's for sure.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

The first dishwasher detergent for dry-hards.

Dry-Hards are tough-to-clean foods—like eggs, fruit pie, oatmeal, meat fats, sauces—that dry and cake and stick. And stick. And stick. To plates. On forks. Filming glasses. Electrasol, fortified with 20% more active cleaning ingredients than other leading dishwasher detergents, really removes Dry-Hards. Lets your dishwasher give you cleaner, brighter, film-free dishes.

Test proves fortified Electrasol's superiority against Dry-Hards. Egg cup with Dry-Hard paste of egg, oatmeal and blueberry pie baked on for ten minutes at 330°F came out looking this way when washed in another leading dishwasher detergent.

Identical Dry-Hard egg cup—but cleaned in Electrasol, fortified with 20% more active cleaning ingredients than other leading brands. Try Electrasol. It removes Dry-Hard soils, prevents them from drying into spots on dishes, glasses and silverware.

WIRING

If your house is more than 20 years old and has never been rewired, you can bet that the wiring falls woefully below present minimum standards. Besides being a fire hazard, insufficient wiring plagues you with blown fuses, slow-heating appliances, a television that flickers every time an appliance goes on, and a welter of inconvenient and unsightly extension cords draped around every room. Also, current-starved motors and electronic gear are short-lived. And when you make home improvements or buy more appliances, you'll be adding to a dangerous overload.

Check your wiring first where the electrical power comes into your house—through a service panel known as an entrance box. This box contains your fuses or circuit breakers, and the main power shut-off switch. Often, the main switch will be labeled with the total number of amperes entering your house.

Homes built in the 1930s commonly had as little as 30-amp service, scarcely enough for lighting and a few small appliances. Even 60-amp service—14,500 watts—adds only enough power to accommodate an electric range and hot-water heater. For today, 100-amp service—24,000 watts—is minimum, and even then you have little or no margin on which to operate all your family's portable appliances.

Check the number and amperage rating of the various electric circuits. Fuses in older homes may be tucked away in unlikely places, so do a little hunting to find them all. The former owners may have replaced fuses with new ones of a higher amperage, to avoid the inconvenience of constantly blown fuses. This is a very dangerous practice—almost as bad as replacing burned-out fuses with pennies—since a fuse is a safety valve to protect against circuit overload. Most older homes are wired with number 14 wire requiring 15-amp fuses—so be suspicious of any 20- or 30-amp fuses you find, especially if your home has never had any new circuits added.

Rewiring an older home can mean anything from bringing in new and heavier entrance wires, a new breaker panel, and extensive in-wall repairs and new circuits, down to the simple addition of a circuit or two to beef up your present system. When installing new wiring however, electrical contractors in many areas are required by law to bring your entire electrical system up to minimum safety standards.

When planning your new wiring, include the following circuits: general purpose circuits for lighting, with additional outlets to eliminate all those extension cords; small appliance circuits to the kitchen, laundry, bathrooms, and dining area; if you have an extensive workshop, separate lighting and power circuits for tools; and additional individual circuits for major appliances—air conditioners, washer, freezer, hot water heater, range, clothes dryer, and so on. Make a diagram of the complete wiring system and mount it on the inside of the fuse box or breaker panel door. All new circuits should be number 12 wire, for full 20-amp circuits. Major appliances should have the wire size, voltage, and amperage tailored to their needs.

It's impossible to quote cost for rewiring except in terms of some kind of average installation in an older home. However, unless you have some special problems, the job will probably fall within the $300-$400 range. Installing a single 220-volt line for a major appliance will cost about $40, with another $20 if the line goes to the second floor.

GENERAL  ELECTRIC

FIREPLACES

A beautiful fireplace is one of the extras you often get with an older home, but it can also be troublesome. When you are considering buying an older home, it's well worth the money to have a competent repairman examine the fireplace.

Some things you can check yourself. Look for evidence of recent use. An exceptionally clean fireplace might mean that it can't be used. Check for loose bricks or a cracked iron lining in the firebox. Make sure the damper operates properly.

If it's practical to do so, go up on the roof and look down the chimney for a ceramic flue lining in good condition. Without such a lining, the fireplace may not be safe, and the cost of installing a new lining is prohibitive. A good chimney cap is also essential to keep out leaves, twigs, squirrels, and birds.

If you already own a fireplace that smokes or burns poorly, there are a number of remedies to try before bringing in the experts. Open a window or door to give the fireplace more draft. Often in well-insulated houses, there is so little outside air entering the house that the fire can't draw well. Turn off any ventilating fans, too, when your fireplace is in operation. If smoke billows out into the room, form a temporary hood by holding a board or scrap of plywood across the top of the fireplace opening. Should this help, install a permanent fireplace hood to solve the problem for good.

If your fireplace burns well but looks old-fashioned, giving it a new face is a logical way to update it. Remove the old mantel and other projections, then cover the old bricks with new paneling or other facing material. You can add a new hearth, too, by using noncombustibles like slate or ceramic tile.

There are new fireplace systems available to meet almost any situation. Except in unusual circumstances, masonry fireplaces are quite expensive to install in an older home. However, you can have that look with a built-in prefab fireplace.

One type has the firebox and other parts included in a framework which is installed on a masonry hearth and surrounded by more masonry. Prefab flue sections lead through the roof to a prefab chimney. Another prefab unit has all the fireplace components built into a completely insulated box. This fireplace requires no masonry whatever, and can be installed anywhere. Because it is so well insulated, standard 2x4 wall studs hold it in place and form the support for the wall surface that goes around the fireplace (see sketch).

Add a noncombustible facing material around the fireplace opening, keyed to your decorating scheme. Again, prefab flue and chimney sections complete the installation.

Freestanding prefabs are easiest of all to install. If you have an existing flue in your house, it's no trick at all to connect one of these units to it. Otherwise, prefab flue and chimney sections do the job. In a one-story house, the flue goes through the ceiling and the roof. In two-story houses, you can route the flue through a second-floor closet—or even up the outside of the house.

The fireplace itself needs no special installation. Although it's not actually necessary, you may want to provide some sort of simple hearth area, such as a piece of slate or a section of ceramic tile. For a look at some good examples, see "Ways to spark up a fireplace," page 150.

Costs: Repair and cleaning costs for fireplaces vary so widely that it's hard to make a meaningful estimate. For a serious structural problem with your fireplace, repairs can cost from $200 to $1,000 or more. A routine inspection costs $25 to $50. Cost of restyling your fireplace can vary from a few dollars for a new paint job to $200 or more for complete repainting. Depending on type and installation, a prefab fireplace will cost from $400 to $800.

Used to be, to get your kids in movies you had to spend a lot of money.

WINDOWS

Rattling windows with broken sash cords are more than just an annoyance. They cost you money from heat loss in winter, and cool-air loss in summer if you have air conditioning. It's not particularly difficult or expensive to fix up old windows, so start a campaign now to get all of them into first-class working order.

If broken sash cords in double-hung windows are a problem, replace them with chains to end the annoyance once and for all. (You'll have to remove the sashes and part of the window framing.) At the same time, replace or repair the weatherstripping.

You can short-cut this job by installing special leaf springs between the sash and frame. No disassembling is involved; just nail the springs in place. The windows won't operate as easily, but they will stay open and won't rattle. Other kinds of replacement window hardware are also available to take the place of the sash cord and pulley system. Some operate on a principle similar to the leaf springs, while others replace the pulley with a spring-loaded device that does away with cords and weights. Fitting these units requires some modification of the sash.

Windows stick either because they've been painted shut, or the sash is swollen. Use a thin-bladed knife to break the paint seal between the sash and the stop. If this doesn't work, pry the stop strip off and reposition it to give more clearance. You may also have to remove the sash and plane down the edges. Linseed oil applied to the sash will reduce future swelling.

Broken panes are easy to replace. Remove the glass and scrape away the old putty. Measure the window carefully, then have new glass cut at your glazier's or hardware store. Fasten the new pane with glazier's points, then putty with one of the new plastic, non-hardening glazing compounds.

Complete new windows may be necessary if your existing ones are beyond reasonable repair. Windows come pre-built, pre-glazed, and sometimes prefinished, ready to set into the wall. Because they come in many different sizes, you should have no trouble finding a replacement for your old window. However, consider improvement rather than just replacement. It's extra work, but your builder can increase the size of the opening and install a larger window or a set of windows to update the appearance of your house.

Other new modifications have been made to preassembled windows. Wood windows are treated against fungus and termites. Aluminum windows are anodized or have a baked-on enamel finish. Steel windows are galvanized and primed for the first coat of paint. Most quality windows come with removable sashes for easy cleaning. Removable muntin bars

(sketch) can give single-pane windows a traditional look. One manufacturer even makes vinyl-coated wood windows that never need painting.

Insulating glass is available from practically all manufacturers. This is actually two plates of glass with a partial vacuum between. This dead space gives it its insulating quality. While most people think of it for picture windows, don't discount the possibility of using it in double-hung and casement windows. It will eliminate the need for storm windows. Put permanent screens in place and forget the annual storm-to-screen change.

COST:

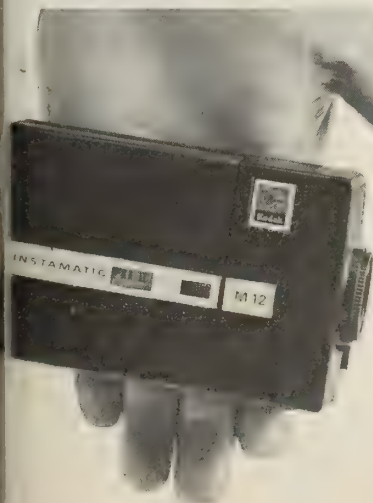

Minor repairs to windows cost very little, except for any outside labor. Since most contractors won't bother with this kind of repair job, you'll probably have to spend a few dollars and your own time to do them yourself.

New window prices vary greatly, depending on type, quality, and size. The cost of installation will hinge on the amount of labor involved in removing the old window and preparing the opening for the new one. An average installation probably falls within the $50 to $125 range. Continued

EXTERIOR SIDING

When updating the exterior of an older home, give some very serious thought to new siding. A wide range of materials is available with the warmth and traditional charm of wood, plus many qualities that wood lacks. Because they don't absorb moisture, they won't swell and crack paint. They aren't susceptible to mildew or rot, and they don't tempt an army of hungry termites.

Hardboard siding retains many of the natural attributes of wood, such as ease of handling and installation, but eliminates such problems as wild grain, splitting, and loose knots. It's available in boards or panels in many styles and textures, from traditional to contemporary.

Today, almost all hardboard siding comes back-sealed and pre-primed. Or, you can buy siding prefinished. The advantage here is that the paint is applied at the factory under controlled conditions that guarantee good adhesion.

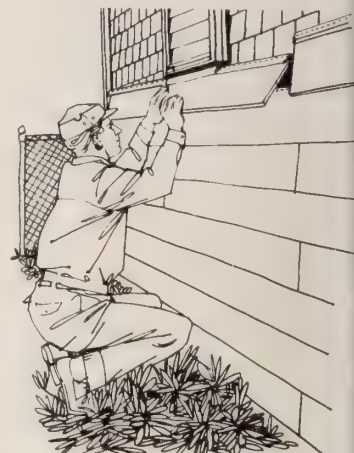

Vinyl-clad hardboard is a new and very significant addition to the hardboard product line. The color of the permanently bonded vinyl surface goes all the way through, so you'll never need to worry about painting again.

Aluminum, long popular as a siding material, is better than ever. Now it's available in the familiar clapboard style, in shingles, and in wide vertical strips that simulate plywood panels. It's an excellent choice where heat reflection is important. You can also have aluminum siding with a polystyrene backing that will guarantee real two-way insulation.

New acrylic, vinyl, and plastisol finishes on aluminum offer a truly maintenance-free exterior for your home. One manufacturer bonds a finish of polyvinyl-fluoride to the surface; it carries a 35-year guarantee. All you'll ever have to do to keep your home looking new is wash it down with a hose.

Solid vinyl, while the most expensive of the conventional siding materials, offers the ultimate in carefree living. The color you choose goes all the way through the vinyl siding—so scratches, no matter how deep, will never show. The worst hail-storm imaginable won't harm it, and the sun won't bleach it.

Originally in clapboard style only (sketch), vinyl is now available as a vertical siding. Like aluminum, you can have it either uninsulated or with a thermal barrier of polystyrene.

Wood siding, however, is far from obsolete. Large sheets of exterior paneling have really brought this familiar material into its own. You can have instant board and batten, or vertical grooves in wood. Paint it or stain it, or just let it weather.

In the field of maintenance-free exteriors, wood siding is making great strides. Latex paints have almost eliminated the cracking, blistering, and peeling problem. These paints are microscopically porous, so they allow the wood to breathe naturally. You can even have wood with a permanently bonded polyvinyl fluoride film. The manufacturers guarantee it will not need repainting for the life of the house.

Unless you're extremely skilled and have a lot of time on your hands, don't consider doing a new siding job yourself. It's a lot tougher than it looks. Trimming around windows, doors, and eaves—and forming trim pieces—are all precision operations, so leave them to a contractor.

For the love of Mike, make sure your patio doors have PPG Safety Glass.

Look for the name PPG Herculite® K Safety Glass on your patio doors or those that you intend to buy. They will take most wallops that shatter ordinary glass into large dangerous pieces as shown above. If PPG Herculite K ever does break, it simply crumbles into small granular fragments. Those long jagged edges will never threaten your child.

That's just one reason why today most patio-door manufacturers use tempered safety glass.

Sure, you can still own patio doors without safety glass. But, for the love of Mike, why? Buy where you see the red, white and blue shield of safety or the name PPG Herculite K.

PLUMBING

The problem with plumbing in most older houses is that there's just too little of it. Of course you can expect to have some leaks or drain stoppages from time to time requiring the services of a plumber, and you'll need to replace faucet washers and make other minor repairs yourself every once in awhile. But your biggest concern will be making additions to your present plumbing system.

New fixtures come in many styles, colors, and qualities. You'll find that the difference in cost between the cheapest and the best is really very little—and the installation costs are the same for both. So if you add a bathroom, the extra cost of quality fixtures will add only a tiny fraction to the total.

In addition to style and color, you should consider convenience, durability, and the ease of cleaning. Better toilets will have elongated bowls for greater water area. You'll find that there's a big difference in flushing actions, too—both in efficiency and quietness. Quality lavatories of vitreous china are best, followed by enameled cast iron and then enameled steel.

Size is a big consideration with lavatories. An extra inch or two is usually well worth a few more dollars. A cabinet for that new lavatory is also a good investment. Shop for readymades for ordinary situations, or have a lavatory built to your specifications.

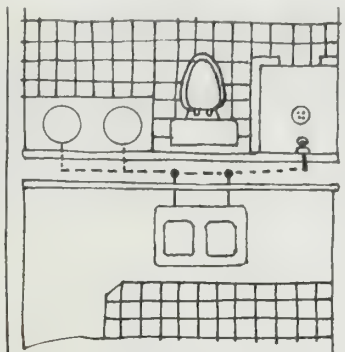

Full-size tubs are five feet long, 30 or 32 inches wide, and 16 inches high. They may be either enameled steel or cast iron. Steel is less expensive, but somewhat noisier. Kitchen sinks come in enameled steel and cast iron, too, as well as stainless steel. If you're replacing a kitchen sink, you may want a new counter top (see "Kitchens" in this series).

Replacement of an old-fashioned tub usually takes some building—so if you erect a short stub wall to accommodate the new tub, incorporate a storage cabinet into the plans.

Building an extra bathroom or a half-bath is a fairly expensive proposition, but the cost will be much lower if you can locate it near enough to existing plumbing lines (sketch) for short-run connections. Most building codes call for a stack or air vent (running all the way to the roof) within five feet of every drain. So if you can locate your new bathroom on the other side of the wall from your kitchen sink or existing bathroom, you'll save a good deal of money.

One alternative to adding a second bathroom is installing two lavatories in one extra-long counter. (Space may be a bigger problem than your budget.) Or you may want to consider a new lavatory for the master bedroom. Locate it adjacent to the dressing area and as near to existing plumbing lines as possible. By planning it to serve as many functions as possible, you will find this simple unit goes a long way to relieve the pressure on a single bath.

A new hot water heater might be necessary just to maintain the status quo of your plumbing. Even if your present unit still functions properly, you may have too little hot water available for your family. Each time you add something to make living easier—a washer, an extra bath, or a dishwasher—you force your existing water heater to work harder.

When you buy a new heater, get one with plenty of capacity—at least 40 gallons for a gas heater, 65 gallons for an electric model. Check the guarantee for the best indication of quality. A ten-year guarantee is the minimum you should settle for. You may have to pay a few dollars more, but the difference in price is very little for the extra quality you get. The quoted price will usually include installation, too.

KITCHEN CABINETS, COUNTERS, AND APPLIANCES

An updated kitchen in an older home is a good investment no matter how long you plan to keep the house. Essential for efficient housekeeping, a good kitchen is also a great plus when it's time to sell.

A new paint job is an inexpensive way to restyle kitchen cabinets that are well arranged but look worn or out of date. But remember, grease is a big problem in kitchens—so before you paint, give the surface a good scrubbing with turpentine or a wax-and-grease remover. Then sand the old finish to kill the gloss. Brush on two coats of good enamel or, for a really smooth job, rent a spray gun.

But don't stop there. Add decorative wood or plastic moldings to door and drawer fronts. This is simple, since these moldings come in sets with fancy corner pieces precut. Panels of vinyl wallpaper within the molding add a bright touch. Or, use an antiquing kit to add real character to your refinishing job. While shopping for hardware, pick up some ready-made storage units to make the insides of the cabinets more efficient.

Complete cabinet restyling kits are available. These include new door and drawer fronts, and plastic-laminate side and end panels. Measure your cabinets and send the dimensions to the manufacturer. He'll provide all new parts, precut and ready to install. It's a weekend's job, but you can convert any style cabinet into contemporary flush-front units of wood-grained plastic laminate.

New counter tops will really modernize your kitchen. Plastic laminate, ceramic tile, and stainless steel are the most popular choices. Discard the old top and start over; it's not worth salvaging.

Plastic laminate is the most popular counter top material. An enormous variety of patterns, colors, and textures is available in flat sheets to be applied to plywood with special contact cement. But before you rush into this project, read the instructions on the cement container. Contact cement is strong stuff. After two coated surfaces come together, they are impossible to separate.

The only correct way to apply plastic laminate on another surface is with a "slip sheet." Cut the laminate to size, allowing for some trim waste, and lay it on the proposed counter top. Then coat both laminate and plywood with the cement according to the instructions.

When the cement is no longer tacky, lay a sheet of brown paper—the slip sheet (above)—over the plywood, leaving a thin strip of the coated surface exposed along the back. Now, very carefully lay the sheet of laminate over the paper; line up the front edge, allowing some trim waste; and bring the rear edge into contact with the exposed surface along the rear. The laminate and plywood are now permanently bonded along this edge. Bend the laminate up so it bows from back to front, and very slowly withdraw the paper from between the surfaces. An extra pair of hands comes in handy here. As the paper is being withdrawn, bring the laminate into contact with the plywood from back to front.

After the two surfaces have total contact, roll out any air bubbles that may be present. You can use a roller made for this job, or borrow your wife's rolling pin. Trim the excess off the edges with a sharp, half-round file, being careful to cut on the downstroke only. Metal molding along the front edge and at the joint with the backsplash completes the job.

Most laminate counter tops are "post formed" (below)—the plastic surface is formed over the front edge of the counter and coved smoothly up the backsplash to make a seamless counter surface. Building supply dealers carry standard lengths and widths of the most popular laminate colors and patterns made up post-formed. Or, you can order any style you like, custom-made to your own specifications. Matching end caps, glued on where the counter meets an appliance, complete the installation.

Ceramic tile also makes a beautiful counter surface; it's tough and easy to keep clean. Special cove and corner tiles let you make a continuous top to fit almost any counter situation. Preplanning the top to take advantage of the finished size of the tiles will pay off in less trimming. However, even though you can install tiles yourself with patience and a few rented tools, a professional will get the job done faster.

Stainless steel requires professional installation. The craftsman will measure your old counter, then fabricate your new stainless top in his shop. Removing the old tops and installing the new ones can then be done in a matter of hours.

Need new kitchen cabinets? Take advantage of the complete planning services offered by cabinet dealers. They have many lines available, as well as specialty items for kitchen improvements. In fact, these dealers are the people to see any time you're stumped by kitchen remodeling. Most will perform any face-lifting you want, from new counter tops to a complete kitchen overhaul.

Built-in appliances will require some modification to your existing cabinets. See an appliance dealer about the installation. He can furnish kitchen cabinets and appliances in a package deal. You may even want to try your hand at installing the new appliance yourself. Dishwashers, ovens, and cook tops are designed to fit around standard kitchen cabinets with a minimum of fuss.

Check with your plumber and electrician for plumbing, electrical, and gas connections. Make the structural modifications yourself, then call in the tradesmen to make final connections.

ROOF

A leaky roof spells trouble, particularly if neglected—but it doesn't necessarily mean you need a new roof. Often, a simple patch or a replaced shingle or two is all you require to add years more service to the roof you now have. However, these solutions will work only if you catch the leak in time. Otherwise, the sheathing under the roof will rot, making large-scale repairs or a whole new roof imperative.

A roof forms three lines of defense against the elements. (Sketch) The outermost—and most obvious—line is made up of shingles. These take most of the beating weather deals out. Should water be blown up under the shingles, the tar-paper underlayment prevents it from damaging the sheathing. The sheathing itself—usually plywood—gives the roof its structural strength.

A simple annual inspection will help avoid the expensive damage a leak can cause. On a bright sunny day, check for loose shingles or other damage outside, then go up into your attic and look for rays of light shining through. You may be able to see water coming into the attic on a rainy day—but usually it's almost never leaking where you see the water. The leak is probably under the sheathing (sketch), coming into your living areas through a second weak spot.

You can usually tell if you need a new roof just by looking. Asphalt shingles that have lost most of their protective mineral granules; cracked and rotted wood shingles; or extensively damaged and broken areas in other types of roofing can mean that a new roof is in order.

You can re-roof your house yourself but it's hard work, rather dangerous—and you might run into complications you can't handle, such as large areas of sheathing replacement.

Your best bet is to get estimates from at least two roofing contractors. They'll help you decide on the best type of roof for your house, too. Roof pitch, geographic area of the country, style and color considerations, condition and type of your old roof, and price are all factors in your decision. Keep in mind that for very small additional cost, you can often buy better quality (or entirely different) roofing materials that will last as much as double the life of your new roof.

Asphalt shingles are the most commonly used roofing material. They're made of roofing felt, saturated with asphalt and surfaced with mineral granules. Asphalt shingles are classed by weight per "square" (100 square feet), in a range from 180 pounds to more than 300 pounds per square. FHA minimum standards for roofing call for 235-pound shingles.

Some of the new types of better quality shingles have an inner layer of fiber glass or asbestos, qualifying them for the highest rating in fire resistance. Some types also are interlocking or self sealing, making the roof practically impervious to wind damage. You can expect an asphalt shingle roof to last from 10 to 25 years; best-quality asphalt shingles carry a 25-year guarantee.

Wood shingles and shakes make a durable roof that will last 20 years or more. Three styles are available: smooth-surfaced, machine-cut shingles; thinly tapered shakes; and thick, hand-split shakes.

Some wood shingles come pre-stained or pre-sealed, or you can buy them untreated if you prefer. Untreated cedar shingles weather to a soft gray color. Wood shingles and shakes have no fire rating, but they do have the advantages of high insulation qualities and easy repair.

Mineral fiber shingles are made of portland cement reinforced with asbestos fibers, often coated with plastic. One new type has the color and texture of slate. Others resemble wood shakes. Available in many attractive colors, these shingles should outlast your house; but occasionally you may have to replace a shingle or two damaged by falling limbs. They are highly fire resistant, with either an A or B fire rating based on the method of installation.

Aluminum shingles are made of the same aluminum used for siding, with or without a baked-enamel finish. One new type is indistinguishable from hand-split cedar shakes. Aluminum shingles are an especially good choice for hot climates because the surface is a good reflector, and the material itself is not affected by extreme exposure to sunlight. Aluminum roofs are lightweight, and they last up to 35 years. Be careful about installation, however. If aluminum comes in contact with any other metal, electrolytic action can cause rapid deterioration.

Clay and concrete tile roofs will last for the life of your house and are absolutely fireproof. However, they are heavy—and installation is expensive. Also, repairs call for professional assistance. Both types of tile come in a wide variety of colors, patterns, and styles.

Slate roofs, too, last almost forever. They have many of the same drawbacks as tile roofs, though, in weight, cost, and difficulty of repair.

Built-up roofs of tar and gravel and roll roofing are used on very low-pitched to flat roofs. In an older home, uses for these two types are confined to the small roof over a back entry and the flat roof over a porch or addition. Life expectancy can vary from five to 20 years, depending on quality of materials and installation.

Continued

COSTS

The cost of your new roof can vary considerably, depending upon the condition of the old roof. If it has been re-roofed before, or the old shingles are really shabby, they will probably have to be removed. If new sheathing is indicated, the old shingles obviously will have to come off. Because of such variables, the actual cost of repairing or replacing your roof could run as much as double the prices quoted.

Roof type	Per "square" (100 square feet), installed
Asphalt shingles	$20-$40
Wood shakes and shingles	$30-$80
Mineral fiber shingles	$40-$85
Aluminum shingles	$50-$110
Clay and concrete tiles	$60-$180
Slate	$60-$100
Built-up and roll roofing	$20-$50

HEATING AND AIR CONDITIONING

Comfort control in older homes is a far cry from the sophisticated systems available in new housing. Now there's more to it than an operating furnace in winter, and open windows in summer. But you can make your vintage heating system easier to live with, and add most of the elements of modern climate control.

Have your heating contractor give your heating system a complete inspection, cleaning, and adjustment once a year. If yours is a forced-air system, you can greatly improve the comfort level and cut your heating bills by having everything balanced for even heating of all rooms, and adjusting the blower for continuous operation.

A major breakdown, of course, requires complete replacement. But there are other factors that might also make a new furnace worthwhile. An old coal furnace converted to gas or oil probably takes up basement space that you could put to better use. Any old furnace requiring constant repair is a prime candidate for replacement, particularly if the new installation can include central air conditioning for a reasonable cost.

You'll probably stick with the same heating system you now have—forced air, hot water, etc.—but you can easily change fuels if a savings is involved, and you can, certainly update the system. Hot air vents can be replaced with more efficient types, and new ducts added. Old-fashioned hot water radiators can be replaced with modern, less obtrusive styles.

Central air conditioning should be considered in any forced-air heating system updating, even if you only install a furnace designed so air conditioning can be added later. Many forced-air systems already provide for the addition of an air-conditioning unit. Although it may mean modifications to the furnace and some new or larger ductwork, it's easier to add central air conditioning to a forced air system than to any other type.

If you have hot-water heat, no ductwork is available for distributing the cooled air, so ducts will have to be installed. There are several systems in common use, one of which probably will fit your house. No matter how central air conditioning is installed, be sure your house is properly insulated. There should be at least six inches of insulation on the attic floor, plus good attic ventilation. Windows exposed to direct sun should be shaded, and the clothes dryer should be vented to the outside.

Although the cost of adding central air conditioning to an older home can be pretty steep, it's a good investment. You can probably add the cost right on top of the price when you're ready to sell. And central air conditioning can be paid for with a home improvement loan at low interest rates.

Room air conditioners are often an effective compromise when you don't want to invest in central air conditioning. They're easy to install, and can move when you do. There are many models to choose from in a wide price range; when shopping, you'll probably need some help from your dealer to get the correct cooling capacity.

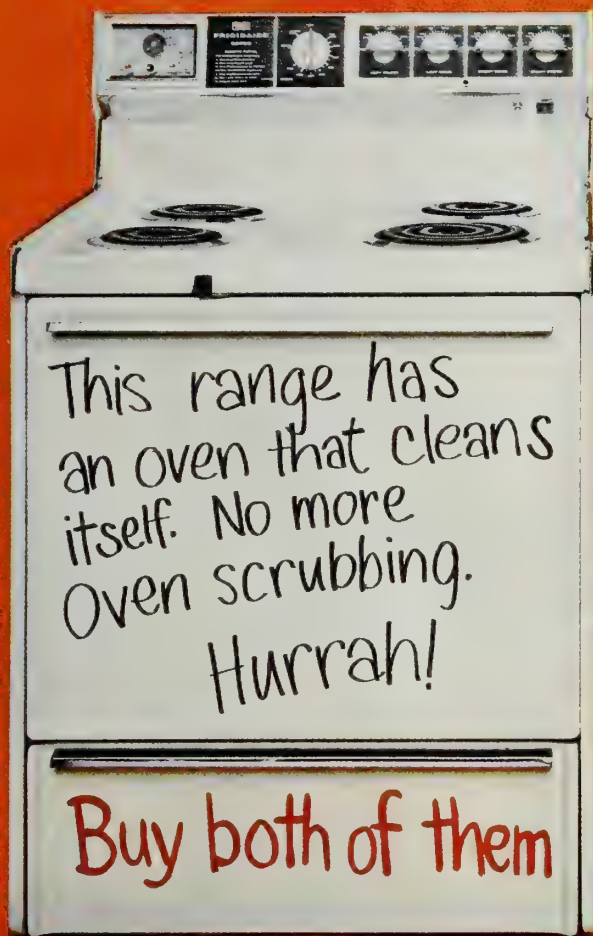

Relative humidity in winter is another factor in climate control for your house. Low humidity can cause a chilly feeling and stuffed-up noses, and make furniture dry out and crack. A humidifier can solve these problems. Many styles and types are available—from little $1 reservoirs to be installed in the plenum chamber of your furnace, to portable units disguised as small pieces of storage furniture. For homes with forced-air heat, the most efficient humidifiers are built into the furnace and spray a fine mist of water into the heated air. Continued et basements are a common problem with older houses, but don't resign yourself to living in one. Basements offer too much living and storage space to abandon. And if moisture problems are not dealt with promptly, they may lead to more serious foundation ills that can force you into expensive repairs later on.

Dampness in your basement comes from one of three sources: condensation, seepage, or leaks. Even a sound, well-maintained basement may be a little damp due to condensation. When warm, moist air from other areas of your house comes into contact with cool basement walls, the result is comparable to the "sweating" you see on a glass of ice water.

Beat the problem by getting as much water vapor out of the basement as possible. This means proper venting of your clothes dryer, and good air circulation throughout the basement. If you have a persistent problem, a dehumidifier is the answer.

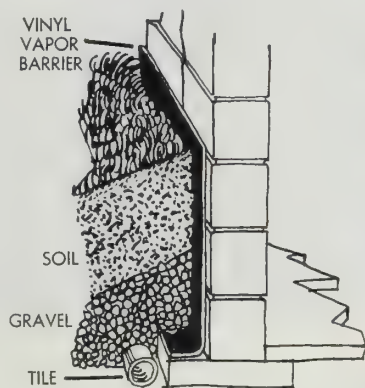

Seepage is caused by water finding its way in through pores in the foundation walls. Sometimes it's hard to tell seepage from condensation. If in doubt, leave a small mirror to the basement wall for a day or so. If moisture has not condensed on the mirror, but the wall is still damp, seepage is your problem. Your best defenses are gutters and good repair and downspouts that carry water well away from the foundation.

A number of paint-like products are available to treat mild cases of seepage. The most effective is an epoxy-base compound that can be applied to almost any foundation wall. Or, apply a layer of special waterproof cement over the wall.

In very severe cases—if the water table is higher than the basement floor and threatens to break the slab—you may have to break away a section of the floor around the walls and install a drain tile. In other cases, the solution is to excavate next to the foundation, then apply a waterproof barrier of tar or vinyl sheeting to the outer side of the foundation and bury drain tiles along the footing. These can be fairly expensive operations, but they will prevent structural damage that would eventually cost much more.

Leaks are the result of actual cracks in the foundation walls or the basement floor. These cracks might be a minor problem, caused by normal settling, or they may be the first indication of a major structural fault. Gutter and downspout overhaul, plus some strategic regrading, will often keep leaks from developing into major problems. You can seal them off from the inside with special quick-hardening cement and epoxy compounds, or excavate and install a waterproof barrier and drainage tiles (as advised for seepage).

Even if your basement is a major disaster area with walls about to buckle—or even if the whole house sags—all is not lost. The cure will cost a good bit, but probably not as much as you think. The house is temporarily supported with jacks and the earth outside the foundation wall excavated. Then the old wall is removed down to the footings and a new wall is laid up. A tile drainage system and waterproof coating applied to the new wall are musts to prevent recurrence of the problem.

If you're considering buying an older home afflicted by very serious settling, get professional opinions from several sources to be absolutely sure a new wall won't suffer from the same problem. This could be the best investment you'll ever make. While replacing a bad wall is relatively expensive, putting a stop to extensive land settling is very expensive.

COSTS

Do-it-yourself waterproofing paints	$8-$12 per 100 sq. ft.
Masonry coating applied to basement walls	$12-$15 per 100 sq. ft.
Moisture barrier applied to foundation exterior with drain tile installed	$25 per lineal ft.
Drain tile installed under basement floor next to footings	$1000 to $3000
Excavating and placing foundation wall	for average basement $800 to $3000

AN EXTRA BATHROOM IN A PACKAGE

How often do you wish for the convenience of an extra bathroom in your home? Every morning? You aren't alone. Many people, especially those owning older homes, are faced with the problem of sharing a single upstairs bathroom with the whole family.

One manufacturer has come up with a product to solve your bathroom addition problem once and for all. It's a packaged bath that requires only 4'-8" by 5'-2" of floor space. This bathroom in a kit can be installed—with plumbing roughed in—in about three hours. And everything is included except shower curtain, towels, and soap.

The bath in our photograph is the first installation in an older house. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Koehn of La Grange, Illinois, converted the butler's pantry off the kitchen of their 70-year-old house. The new bathroom took up so little space, there was enough room left over to create a convenient dressing room, too.

Contact a plumbing contractor and explain your plans to him. He will have to lay out and install all of the rough-in piping. Supply, drain, waste, and vent piping must all meet local building-code standards. A plumber will know what they are, and will carry out the installation according to the rules. From this point on, you may want him to install the new bath unit—or you may want to do it yourself. It's that simple.

Your entire bathroom will arrive neatly crated in separate units that slip through any 30-inch door. In the boxes you will find three basic pieces—the floor, lower wall section and tub in one piece, the middle wall section in another, and the ceiling and upper wall section in the third. These are all fiber glass reinforced plastic parts that fit together under any eight-foot ceiling to form the interior of the room itself.

The bottom shell goes first, of course, carefully positioned over the toilet waste pipe. Next, the pre-plumbed lavatory, which includes the piping for the tub and shower, fits into its niche. Then the two large upper pieces; their joints are tongue-and-groove with a rope-type sealant (arrow) to form positive seal when the window nuts pull the flanges together.

When the toilet has been simply set in place, hook the unit's integral plumbing to the rough-ins. Hang the medicine cabinet, install the light fixtures and other accessories, and the bathroom is complete.

You'll still need to build standard stud wall around the new room—it has straps that can be nailed to the studs. The cover the outside of the stud with wallboard or paneling. If you have an adjoining dressing area like the one above, you won't need a door. But you can frame and hang any standard swinging or sliding door in the opening. ■

THE COUNTER REVOLUTION.
SOMEBODY HAD TO START ONE.
SEARS DID.

It's a little embarrassing to realize that here in the midst of the space age, counter-top appliances are much the same as when Flash Gordon was our only astronaut.

At least that was the case, until we launched the Sears Counter Revolution in an effort to close the counter-top appliances gap. These are some of our latest gap-closers:

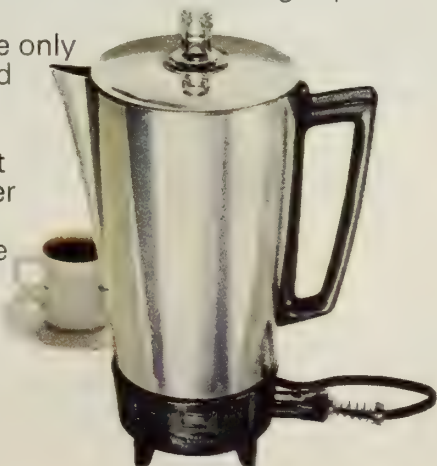

The Slimline toaster.

It has one toasting slot that's a little wider, and a full ten inches long. That means it can toast all kinds of long and round specialty loaves as well as two pieces of regular size bread. And it toasts extra fast because of a high speed heating element.

The Tasteless Pot. The only electric perk in the world that's stainless steel, inside and out, and immersible. It's the most cleanable percolator ever developed. That means you'll never get the taste of old coffee oils in a fresh-made cup of coffee.

A handmixer you can hang. The trouble with many handmixers is that they're underpowered, hard to store and unattractive. So we built one that's as powerful as a table mixer (it even mixes cement), gave it a cabinet you can hang up or stand up and made it in no less than 4 decorator colors. Sears Counter Revolution marches on.

Touch-N-Go Blender. In a blender you need lots of power. So we give you 800 watts. That's a lot of power. Eight speeds. Everything from "stir" to "liquefy". And a TOUCH-N-GO™ bar for split-second stopping and starting at the touch of a finger.

Yes, someone had to start the Counter Revolution. We're glad it was us: Sears, Roebuck and Co., where you can Charge It on your Sears Revolving Charge.

There are 21 counter-top appliances in 97 different models in Sears Counter Revolution. You have just learned about four.

A CLOSE LOOK AT USED CAR BUYING

About to shop for a used car? Then brace yourself. You're about to enter what can be an area of great uncertainty, confusion, and frustration.

Much has been written on the subject, but no article has appeared or will ever appear that makes selecting a good used car foolproof or easy. However, the following information should better the odds when you go car shopping.

WHERE TO BUY?

You can buy from a new-car dealer's used-car lot, an independent used-car dealer, or from a friend or other individual owner. We suggest you consider the choices in the order listed.

A reputable new-car dealer's used-car lot is probably your best bet, because he looks upon each satisfied used-car customer as a potential new-car buyer. To this end, cars that are too costly or impossible to make ready for sale are disposed of through other channels. Further, he must maintain a shop to service new cars—so he's better equipped to put used cars in salable condition.

This doesn't mean you should pass up all independent dealers. The best gauge of an independent is the length of time he has been in the used-car business. If he's been around for five years or more, he's evidently doing something right.

A dealer who handles used cars exclusively seldom has his own repair operation. Many of the larger used-car dealers do maintain a preparation department but its function is usually cosmetic—cleaning, touchup, painting, and polish.

The used-car dealer's primary source of cars is the new-car dealer, either directly or through auction. Auction cars aren't all dogs. Many dealers keep a car on their lot only for a specified time. If it doesn't sell within that time, or if they are overstocked or need ready cash, certain cars go to auction. What may have been a slow mover on one dealer's lot could end up on another's lot and be just the car you had in mind.

Buying from a friend, unless you are well acquainted with the car, can be one of the surest ways to terminate the friendship. Any used car can mysteriously become ill overnight. Bear in mind that any private-party transaction, whether with a friend or a classified advertiser, will carry no guarantee or provision for service if needed. Private-party newspaper ads may also be a front for a used-car dealer to peddle less desirable merchandise. If the ad includes a ridiculously low price or a tiny down payment and low monthly payments, beware!

If you do buy from an individual, be sure all paper work is in order and the title is clear before any money changes hands. In some states, you become liable for any money still owed if you buy a car with a lien against it.

WHICH MAKE AND BODY STYLE?

If you have a preference as to make, start your shopping by visiting the used-car lot of a dealer for that name plate. The reason: If the previous owner of the car was happy with it, he is likely to trade it on a new car of the same make. Thus his old car is on the lot with an implicit vote of confidence.

A four-door sedan usually represents your best buy in used cars. Hardtops (both two- and four-door) depreciate in price slower than conventional sedans; so as used cars, they command a proportionally higher premium than when new. Additionally, the rattles, drafts, and water leaks that arise from the lack of body pillars and door window frames are accentuated as the car gets older and weather-sealing materials deteriorate.

HOW OLD A CAR OFFERS THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY?

The best buy will usually be found in the two- to four-year-old group. For instance, a three-year-old car should cost about half what it cost new; it's also past the age of rapid depreciation. Under normal conditions, it will have been driven 30,000 to 36,000 miles, and should provide at least that many additional miles of service before major repairs are needed.

The one-year-old used car may seem to offer the most for your money, since depreciation takes its largest toll the first year and the car is still nearly new. But it could well be on the lot because of usually high mileage or because it gave the original owner an undue amount of trouble. Conversely, it may have been owned by a person who trades every year strictly for the satisfaction of having a new car, and it therefore could be a very low mileage car in excellent condition.

Of any two used cars at the same price, a newer, originally lower-priced car is probably a better buy than an older, originally higher-priced model. The newer one may depreciate at a slightly faster rate, but this will be offset by fewer and lower repair bills. Higher-priced cars usually have higher-priced parts and so-called gadgets that are expensive to repair. Stay away from models with high-performance engines and lots of power-operated accessories. Such accessories require expensive hoses, wiring, motors, bearings, seals, and other items that deteriorate with age and are expensive to repair or replace.

WHEN SHOULD YOU BUY?

Used-car inventories are closely tied to new-car purchases, so you'll have the widest choice when new-car sales are booming. In most areas, this means spring and early summer, closely followed by new car introduction time in the fall. Values in the fall may not be quite as attractive, however. The fall "car fever" seems to afflict used-car buyers almost as severely as new-car buyers, and this has a tendency to boost prices somewhat.

CHOOSING A SPECIFIC CAR

So much for the preliminaries. As your selection narrows to individual cars, there are some definite points to check—some you can assess, some on which you should seek professional advice.

Exterior: Has the car been repainted? If so, and it's less than five years old, was repainting necessary? Was the car wrecked, is the paint covering advanced rust-out, was the vehicle a cab, police car or rental unit? Remember that at the factory all glass, chrome, weatherstripping, and trim are installed after the car is painted. Also areas inside the door, trunk, and hood compartments were originally the same color as the exterior. Discrepancies in color, or considerable amounts of paint on normally unpainted areas are dead giveaways. No matter how skillful the painter, it's still not hard to find evidence of a repaint job. Continued

OF ENDLESS

GM Stylist Sue Vanderbilt, seen through sun roof of GM dream car, makes final check of appointments.

Who thinks women should help make dream cars practical?

Fisher Body does.

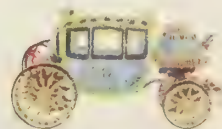

That's why they rely on stylists, like Sue Vanderbilt, to help design GM car interiors. Even when psychedelic fabrics are being experimented with, Sue's right there to make sure that the car at it covers is contoured and installed at just the right height to accommodate women's smaller frames. She also keeps in mind things like ladylike exits when designing GM's wider-than-ever door panels.

It's this practical approach to pleasing women that can make GM dream cars come true. So much of the buy is in the body. And Body by Fisher makes GM cars a better buy.

CARS IN YOUR FAMILY Continued

Don't be too concerned about a repainted hood. Engine heat plus atmospheric conditions lead to faster deterioration of the finish on the hood, and new paint may indicate only a localized problem there.

No car is ever the same after the repair of major accident damage. Exterior appearance may be renewed by the use of new panels, but the attendant welding and cutting will set up ideal conditions for internal corrosion. Even shiny bumper, new bumper bolts, or new bolts securing the grille are signals that some replacing has been done.

Check rocker panels, lower front fenders, headlight assemblies, and other vulnerable areas for indication of rust or repairs. Rust-pitted chrome on a repainted car indicates that rust damage was the reason for repainting.

Underbody: Don't stop the exterior inspection at the rocker panels. Pay a service station a few dollars to put the car on their lift so you can look underneath. Inspect the frame and body structure for new welds. Wreck-repairing welds are seldom painted; even if they are, they're easy to spot. Never pay top price for a car that shows evidence of frame or underbody repair.

While the car is still on the lift, check for leaks from the engine, transmission, and differential. Also inspect the inner surface of the wheels for spoke-like streaks of grease or brake fluid. Grease usually indicates worn seals—a minor repair unless grease has gotten on the brake linings. Brake fluid seepage means that wheel cylinders are shot and that the (as well as brake linings) will have to be replaced.

Check the exhaust system for leaks and rust-out, and give the tires a once-over. Don't put much stock in what tire might tell you about the care or condition of the car. Tire showing telltale evidence of major alignment or suspension problems are usually replaced by the dealer.

When the car is back on the ground, have someone observe while you drive it to see if the front and rear wheels track perfectly. If they don't and the car appears to travel slightly sideways—forget it. It's been in a major wreck!

Interior: About all you can hope to ascertain inside the car is an indication of abuse and hard wear. If the exterior passes inspection, the interior will usually follow suit. All dealers "detail" their better used cars. The detailing process includes general cleanup and minor repairs—repairing ripped upholstery seams, even replacing armrests, pedals, and floor mats.

If upholstery sections have been replaced, particularly on the driver's side, be suspicious of high mileage. If new seat covers, upholstery, and floor mats have been installed, the car may have suffered fire or flood damage. You can look at the odometer reading, but it's really little more than a conversation piece; only a few states have laws governing odometer rollbacks. Many dealers set the odometer back to the mileage they feel consistent with the general appearance of the car—after detailing. About the only time you can be sure of the odometer reading is when the dealer furnishes proof of a corresponding number of miles of manufacturer's warranty remaining on the car. In short, detailing is a fine art—so don't plan on discovering something left undone that puts a lie to claims made for the car.

Mechanical: Both a mechanical examination and a road test should be part of the game, but unless you're very mechanically inclined and have some specialized equipment, don't attempt any do-it-yourself tests.

The road test should include a general review of steering and handling. There should be no tendency to wander or pull to one side, either when you're driving or braking. The brake pedal should be firm and not sink to the floor when depressed firmly for at least a minute.

You can color-check exhaust smoke: black indicates too-rich fuel mixture (automatic choke or carburetor need adjusting); blue smoke tips you off to an oil burner. If blue smoke is apparent only during the first few minutes of operation but clears up after the engine is warm, valve guides are probably worn. If the car continues to smoke, it means worn piston rings and an overhaul job.

The road test is also a good time to make sure all instruments and accessories are functioning.

The best road test of all is to drive the car to a good mechanic or diagnostic center for a thorough "physical." This will cost from $10 to $20, but it can be the wisest used-car investment you ever made. A 30-minute to one-hour checkup by a diagnostic center can tell you not only what's wrong with the car, but also what may be expected to cause future trouble. Of course, you should get the dealer's permission to take his car in for the tests; but if he's reluctant, forget that car—and that dealer.

Guarantees: Many late-model used cars have factory warranty remaining. If the dealer indicates that the warranty is still in effect, ask for specific proof. Better Homes and Gardens' article on warranties (February, 1969) has complete information on late-model warranty coverages, transferrals, and costs. If the indicated mileage is low but there is no factory warranty available, find out why. Failure to keep the warranty up may indicate lack of proper maintenance by a prior owner.

Many dealers offer their own warranty on cars no longer in factory warranty. These usually fall into the 50/50 category for a specified length of time—30, 60, or 90 days. Under terms of the 50/50 warranty, the dealer will pay half the cost of parts and labor for repairs done in his shop for the length of time specified. This is where dealing with a reputable dealer really pays off. A shady dealer can juggle the repair charges to make it appear he is carrying his share, whereas in reality you'll pay most or all of the actual costs. And if there are items you feel should be repaired as part of the used-car deal, be sure they are done before you sign anything.

Talk to the previous owner: Many dealers will provide his name. In states where license tags remain on cars at trade-in time, it's not difficult to ascertain the previous owner. He can verify mileage, tell of any problems he had with the car, verify remaining factory warranty—in short, furnish more information about the car's condition in five minutes than you can uncover in five hours.

When you're looking at used cars, don't expect them to be perfect. The idea is to eliminate those with major defects and those with too many minor defects. There's no sure-fire way to assure your getting a good used car, but if you deal with a reputable dealer and spend the time to follow our advice, your chances of getting a winner are greatly increased. ■

The exclusive Amana features.

You should know about each of them when you're buying a refrigerator-freezer!

Model SR-22 F: white, avocado, coppertone or autumn gold.

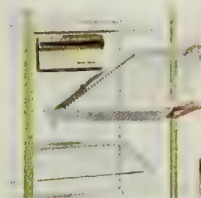

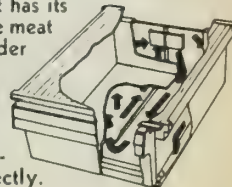

1 Amana's Twin Sensi-Matic Cold Controls give you separate temperature control over the refrigerator and the freezer. Set one without affecting the other. The temperature you set them for is maintained automatically. No defrosting ever—because no frost ever forms in the freezer or the refrigerator.

2 Amana's Add-On Automatic Ice Maker.

This sensible option lets you switch from regular ice trays (that come with your refrigerator) to automatic ice making. Add it now, or wait till you're ready for the added convenience of ice in party quantities. Costs you no more to add it later than if you add it when you buy your Amana. Installed in a few minutes.

3 The exclusive Amana Meat Keeper keeps meats market-fresh up to twice as long as ordinary meat trays because it's really a "refrigerator within a refrigerator." It has its own cold control that lets you regulate meat storage temperatures up to 10° colder than the rest of the refrigerator. The meat container is cradled in a blanket of circulating cold, but no blasts of cold air ever blow directly on the meat to dry it out. Even your butcher's display case doesn't keep meat as perfectly.

4 Amana's Patented Adjustable Canted Shelves are on recessed tracks, for 100% usable storage space. They let you organize refrigerator interior to suit yourself. Each sturdy shelf can hold up to 75 pounds.

The brand new Amana Hi Humidity Compartment has its own separate temperature/humidity control to keep vegetables cool and moist. The compartment is sealed off from the rest of the refrigerator, so super cool air can flow around and under the vegetable drawer without drying out the contents. You can keep lettuce and leafy vegetables country-fresh up to three whole weeks.

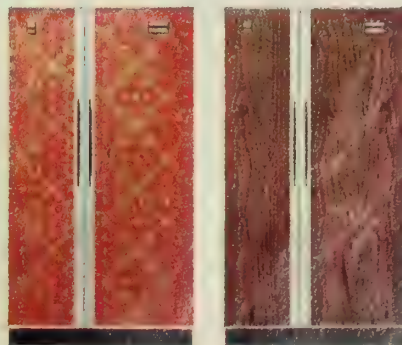

You get all these superior convenience features in the Amana 22 side-by-side (with 22.4 cu. ft. of storage space) and the Amana 25 (25.3 cu. ft.)—plus automatic door closers and the exclusive Amana 5-Year Total Appliance Warranty—the only one that covers parts and labor for five full years. Only Amana gives you this strong a warranty.

Both models are only 35¾" wide and both are available with Decorator Panels, in a choice of 329 patterns, colors or wood paneling. So see your Amana dealer—he has more to offer you for your side-by-side dollar.

Amana®

AMANA 5-YEAR TOTAL APPLIANCE WARRANTY: Amana warrants for 5 years from date of original purchase in U.S., free replacement or repair, including related labor, of parts found defective as to workmanship or material under normal use, and returned through Amana's dealer-distributor organization. Owner is responsible for local cartage, repairman's travel expense if required, replacement of gaskets, rubber or plastic parts and light bulbs. Any product subjected to accident, misuse, negligence, abuse, defacement of serial plate or alteration shall void the warranty.

WHEN CANCER STRIKES SOMEONE IN THE FAMILY

About 600,000 times every year, another American gets cancer. Suddenly, another family comes face-to-face with problems it is usually unprepared for—how to evaluate the chances of recovery, how to get the most from modern medical care, when to reveal or withhold unhappy truths, how to sustain the patient's hopes, whether home care is better than institutional care, how best to endure the uncertainties and the waiting that cancer so often involves.

There are no easy answers to any of these questions. But this advice from health authorities has been found to be realistic and helpful by other families confronted by cancer.

SIZING UP THE PROBLEM

Unlike a number of other diseases, cancer is seldom taken too lightly. Most people are fully aware of its dangers and may in fact be intimidated by them. They know that cancer victims are found in every age group, that the disease can take root in any part of the body, that it invariably spreads unless checked by proper treatment, and that considerable pain may accompany it.

Two of every three people attacked by the disease eventually die. But dwelling on such grim facts is pointless. There are other and more optimistic ways to look at cancer. Consider that some cancers can be prevented. This is true even in some of the worst forms of the disease—lung cancer, for example.

Cancer is no longer synonymous with death. Modern advances in the basic forms of treatment—surgery, radiation, and chemotherapy (drugs)—have brought us to the point where half of all cases could now be cured with available tools. (That only one-third actually are cured is attributed to neglect and delay.) Some cancers, if not foolishly ignored, are virtually 100 percent curable. Early cervical cancer diagnosed by a Pap test is one very heartening example.

Statistics have limited value in assessing a particular case. Knowing that the overall odds are fifty-fifty means little or nothing to you or your family. Every type of cancer pursues a different pattern, and no two patients respond in the same way. Only in movies do doctors seem certain of the prospects for recovery. No real M.D. makes doleful pronouncements about the patient having just "X" months to live.

The doctor does make every effort to size up the problem—and this must start with two vital questions: Where is the original site of the cancer? To what extent has it spread?

Current statistical odds on a five-year survival for the five leading sites of cancer are improving. For discussion purposes, "localized" cancer refers to a malignancy still confined to its original site. "Regional involvement" means the cancer cells have spread, but no farther than nearby lymph nodes. The sites, and the prospects, are:

- Skin. With skin cancer, there is an excellent chance for survival. Nearly 92 percent of all localized skin cancers can be controlled; there is seldom regional involvement. Surprisingly, men develop more skin cancer (22 percent of all their cancers) than women (12 percent).

- Uterus. Cancer here is virtually 100 percent curable in its earliest stage. Localized uterine cancer holds an 81 percent chance for complete control; with regional involvement, it is still 48 percent.

- Colon and rectum. This type of cancer strikes equally at men (11 percent of their cancers) and women (13 percent). Once again, if the cancer is localized, the prospects for control are good (70 percent). If there is regional involvement, the hope is still 37 percent.

- Breast. This is the leading cause of cancer deaths among women, accounting for 23 percent of all their cancers. Breast cancer also occurs (but rarely) in men. If localized, there is an 83 percent chance of complete control; with regional involvement, there still remains a 52 percent statistical edge for survival.

- Lung. The leading cause of cancer deaths in men, lung cancer accounts for 17 percent of all their cancers, but for only 3 percent in women. If the cancer is localized, the statistical odds for control are 27 percent; if there is regional involvement, the odds are just 5 percent.

Wider-spreading or "advanced" cancer is not included in these statistics, because at that point—though doctors can often achieve remissions—a permanent cure for the disease is unlikely.

TO ASSURE THE BEST MEDICAL CARE

One of the more disheartening cancer statistics is that half again as many people could be cured today as actually are being cured. A small degree of blame for this tragic discrepancy can rightly be placed on doctors. Being human, some doctors are better than others, and a few undoubtedly take less than full advantage of existing scientific techniques for fighting cancer.

But a much, much larger portion of the blame must be borne by cancer patients themselves. First, they delay appropriate treatment by avoiding simple tests—the Pap smear tests, for instance—that spot cancer in its earliest, most curable stages. Then, when they finally do consult a physician, they neglect (to a truly astonishing degree) to follow his recommendations. According to a study conducted in California, one of every eight cancer patients, by his own admission or a relative's testimony, fails to heed his doctor's advice. Physicians themselves put the figure even higher; they say one of four is more like it.

Fear or a lack of rapport with the doctor is usually behind such behavior. Some people are so terrified by the thought of having cancer that they simply cannot accept the doctor's diagnosis, and therefore disregard his instructions. Others shut their eyes and pretend the problem will vanish if they willfully ignore it for a time. In the California survey, four patients in ten waited more than three months to seek medical help after noticing the symptoms of cancer. One in every five waited longer than a year—during which time, of course, the cancer spread. In such cases, fear itself may be the biggest obstacle to recovery.

A more sensible delay might be spent looking for a doctor in whom the patient can bestow his full trust. The demands imposed by cancer on both patient and physician give special importance to the relationship between them. Mutual respect is essential. Every patient should locate a doctor who inspires his confidence, someone he can talk to honestly and freely. But excessive time should not be wasted in the search. Early treatment of any cancer is of utmost importance. And, obviously, a patient who expects to be helped should abide by his doctor's counsel.

No reputable physician will attempt treatment if he lacks the proper qualifications or thinks better care would come from someone else. The procedure in such instances is to refer the cancer patient either to another doctor with appropriate credentials, or to a medical center with unique facilities designed for treating cancer—places like Memorial Hospital in New York, the M. D. Anderson Institute in Houston, and Roswell Park Institute in Buffalo. Anyone admitted to such well-known centers is sure to get excellent care.

But referral to a cancer center is usually not necessary, nor is admission to one easily gained. Many leading centers deal mostly in research—the National Cancer Institute near Washington, D.C., for one—and they treat only a relatively small number of patients, often using untested methods. A patient who applies for admission (through his doctor) should be willing to accept the unpredictable hazards that experimental medicine may carry.

A WORD ABOUT "MIRACLE CURES"

It isn't surprising that cancer provides more opportunity for medical quackery than any other human affliction. The patient's constant need to sustain his hope, often despite discouraging prognosis, plays directly into the hands of entrepreneurs who market false hopes and "miracle cures" at a very substantial profit. Fraudulent treatments promoted by people who capitalize on a sick person's plight assume a stunning variety of forms: powerless drugs, ridiculous diets, "magic" machines with no function whatever, all sorts of pseudo-scientific mumbo jumbo that resembles witchcraft more than medicine.

The huge sum squandered on worthless products isn't the worst aspect of quackery. More important, a patient who relies on false cures usually leaves the care of a competent doctor to do so, thus depriving himself of the sound medical treatment that could ease his pain or lengthen his life. Quackery therefore is most menacing in the earliest stages of cancer—the period when any malignancy most readily responds to proper treatment.

"But this isn't to suggest," says one authority on the subject, "that quackery becomes more acceptable later on. Some people argue that in advanced cases, deception is a form of kindness. What's wrong with buying false hopes, they reason, when the patient has no other kind? Isn't the alternative more cruel? But the point is that he does have other kind. With the tools available to doctors today, and with the prospect of new discoveries at almost any minute, a patient has legitimate reason to be hopeful as long as he's still alive. The time to resort to quackery—which amounts to giving up—is never."

Since laws against quackery are not very effective in many states, recognizing a fraud when he appears is each patient's own responsibility. Here are some hints from the American Cancer Society for identifying a quack:

- He claims to have independently discovered a "secret"

A DOZEN FAMILIES PROVE YOU CAN UPDATE ANY HOUSE

Is yours the kind of family that would rather buy an older house and fix it up? Or maybe you're in an older house now and need some ingenious ideas to make it really sensational. Here we show you 12 families who did exactly that. The changes they made range from simple to substantial—and from the front entry to the back door. Each family got something they either couldn't buy or couldn't afford in a new house. So look closely at the ideas in every picture in our biggest home-improvement issue of all!

Photographs: Hedrich-Blessing. Interior Designer: Hal Spener, A.I.D. Source: Lois Rea

A Georgian colonial structure built in the late 1920s ended the search of Hal and Anne Spener, St. Louis, Missouri, for a house that would comfortably accommodate their family of four (teen-age son and college-age daughter). Handily located near the heart of the city, the house was soundly constructed and well maintained. It possessed a certain warmth and hospitality that was somehow missing from many of the newer homes they had considered.

Fortunately, no major structural changes were required. The previous owners, partial to a contemporary style, had removed all wood moldings, installed a redwood mantel and hung Danish modern shelves over the closed-up doorway to the sun-room beyond (See "before" photo above.)

To restore a more formal feeling to the living room, Hal replaced moldings and substituted an impressive mantel of Portuguese marble (bottom right). Shelves gave way to built-in unit with a more traditional appearance, and walls were repainted to complement existing carpeting in light chamois. Heavy white linen draperies were boldly bordered in black. This crisp black-and-white accent was repeated in slipcovered armchairs and in huge paper flowers which flank the mantelpiece.

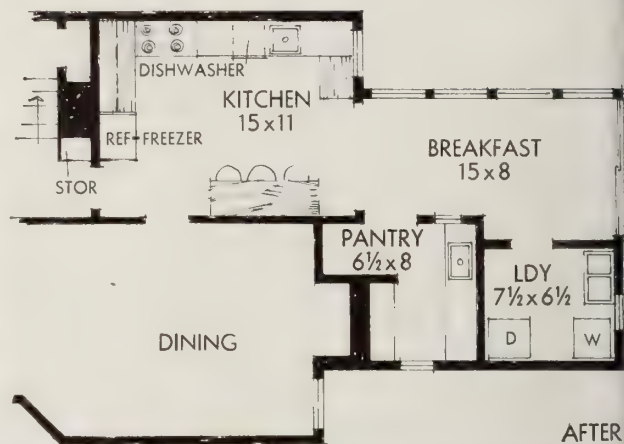

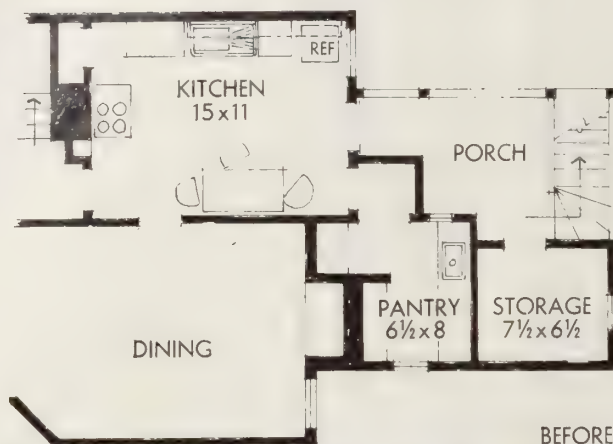

Throughout the house, the Speners made excellent use of patterned wallpapers and fabrics to give their period home a look of today. This is most evident in the sun-room (opposite, above right), where latticed paper, floral draperies, and zebra-striped chair cushions keep compatible company. Shelves were removed from those arched niches, and hanging pots of greenery now accent the garden-like atmosphere.

Sun-room wallpaper reappears on the breakfast room ceiling (left), paired with verdant floral—a room-expanding trick that suggests eating outdoors.

It's in the front entry (opposite, above left) that we find the smoothest blend of old and new. Here the charm of antique leaded glass is heightened by a stylized wall covering. A final practical note: The "welcome mat" sharply defining this distinctive entryway is easy-care vinyl tile.

A STUFFY KITCHEN NOW HAS A GARDEN VIEW

Victorian home of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Winkelstein, San Francisco, was charming but the kitchen lacked color and convenience. Both were achieved with minimal structural changes, without sacrificing original character of the room.

Removing some interior walls admitted light, and view. Then space was reigned so as to structure everything for family enjoyment.

In the bleak old kitchen (below), light entered through only one window. Makeover jumbled the old with the new in a jigsaw puzzle of disorder.

Now the choicest spot in this home is the garden room (right), where sliding doors lead to a deck bridging a gully. Glass walls stretch between existing porch posts; pull-up blinds shade late afternoon. Space below displays children's art.

Buying information, page 132

The one-time open porch and steps became the breakfast room, with floor raised to match kitchen and deck. Yard is now really an extension of the interior. The terrace is grassed for tumbling; another is bricked for bike riding.

A long table (right) is now the children's project center. Painting the old wainscoting cut some apparent height from the lofty 12-foot walls. The original pine floor was sanded, sealed, then stained dark oak.

The keyhole-shaped doorway and English Minton tiles on pantry wall beyond remain unchanged. The pantry's original arrangement of drawers and shelves holds glassware, china, and cleaning needs.

A cold-storage room beside the pantry adapted easily to a laundry center by utilizing adjacent plumbing facilities.

A GREAT OUTDOOR LIVING AREA FROM A DO-NOTHING BACKYARD

These homeowners had a dual dilemma: two small unconnected areas on different levels. The arrangement was frustrating for their own purpose and useless for entertaining. So they commissioned a landscape architect to draw up a plan for them to follow. The owner did all of the structural work on weekends and evenings; his wife took care of the planting.

The lower-level patio (left) was the major space addition. The 12x19-foot area is made up of aggregate-concrete modules separated by 2x4s. The stone retaining wall holds back a slope planted with dwarf polygonum to prevent erosion. First Lady marigolds and Golden Plume celosia edge the wall for close-by enjoyment for viewing from indoors.

The 11x13 greenhouse (above) was ordered as a kit and assembled as per instructions. It makes an ideal transition from family room to garden and outdoor living area.

For privacy, a 5½x16-foot-long screen was built with 2x4-inch posts and ¾x2 laths spaced one-half inch apart. It also makes a background for plants summering outdoors.

bove, you see the stark second-level kitchen entrance before it became a useful extension (right) of the outdoor living area.

The old retaining wall disappeared under an $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11\frac{1}{2}$ -foot deck that held 2x8-inch headers to which 2x4s were nailed. Easy-to-navigate steps have five-inch risers, ten-inch treads. The total multilevel arrangement is created unsuspected spaciousness for genuine relaxation—for a wider range of activities to satisfy all members of the family.

When the Richard Alcorns bought a stereotyped tract house in Novato, Calif., they moved in with remodeling and landscaping plans in hand. Attached garage converted into a kitchen/dining room, former kitchen became a den/card room, and small treeless yard got privacy, shade, and gardens.

The Alcorns started by knocking out the back wall of the dark and dingy garage (below). They installed French doors to flood the room with sunshine. Ceiling was dropped with wallboard and heavy 4x4-inch redwood beams. Beams also create a modular effect along one wall (left), pointed up with a bright paisley wallpaper. New kitchen absorbs the front portion of the garage (see floor plan).

Outside dining is enjoyed in the "lath room" (upper right). Just off dining and kitchen, the 7-foot-high room has 2x4 cross supports. The 1x2 laths of redwood provide a visual shield from close neighbors and filter the western sun.

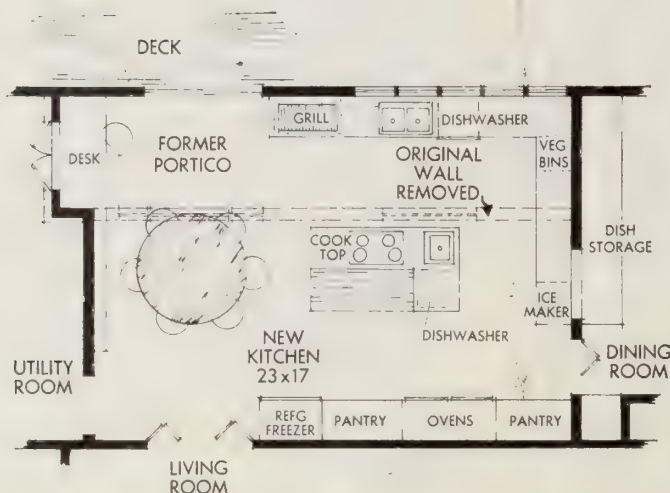

Opening into the living room, the old kitchen is now ideal as a den (lower right). Former utility space houses bar, TV.

A CRAMPED KITCHEN OPENS UP FOR A BUSY FAMILY

Want to gain space without robbing another room or building an addition? Take a tip from Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Baro, Toledo, Ohio, who "turned the outside in"—and changed a seldom-used portico into a full-time family kitchen.

Point number one: Rather than starting from scratch, make your home-improvement dollars go farther by using existing facilities wisely. Here, for example, the portico's roof, footings, foundation, and brick-lined (wired and ducted) walls gave the job a head start.

A room like this kitchen inspires full family participation. There's also space to spare for guests to join in. When food fixing is under way, no one has to miss out on the conversation. In fact, if the hostess wishes, everyone can lend a hand around the island table.

Before: Typical lineup of cabinets and sink jammed the unimaginative 11-foot-wide kitchen shown above. The only reminder of the once-confining room is a massive beam. Below it, an island functions like a chef's efficient worktable (left). Sink and dishwasher, reserved for pans and bakeware, utilize the original water and drain lines. This, in turn, frees a second dishwasher along the window wall (top right) for table service. On the same wall, a handsome mosaic, hood, and grill serve foods indoors or out—through a sliding door on the left. Dry foods and spices are both decorative and accessible on open shelves.

What features make this kitchen look and act much larger than it is? The open plan, wide passageways, white-paneled walls, light floor and ceiling. There's space for six to sit uncrowded around the table; close at hand, an alcove cradles desk, TV, and books (bottom right).

If family and friends like to congregate in your kitchen, consider adapting the basic ideas used here: 1) a work-in-action island; 2) surrounding walls of storage and appliances for warehousing supplies—foods, utensils, dishes.

A WONDERFUL OLD HOUSE JOINS THE 20TH CENTURY

Just how an old house can be revitalized and still retain much of its original character was demonstrated by this New Jersey family. They began by painting the exterior of their Victorian home one color to minimize its architectural flaws (lower right). Shutters were added to give the windows more importance and coordinate them with the front door. A final welcoming touch: carriage lamps flanking the entry.

The original steam heating system ("before" photo, above right) was retained as an economy measure. To conceal the ugly radiators, a boxed-in ledge was built around two sides of the living room (below) with a recess for the sofa bed. Moldings were applied to simulate paneling, and grilles were installed in front of the radiators. Fluted columns—three grooved boards glued together and attached to the wall—were constructed to hide the long vertical steam pipes.

Since the dining room was quite large, the owners decided to convert this space into a library/dining area. Record storage drawers were built under each window, with bookshelves above. Windows were then "curtained" with handsome louvered shutters.

Entry hall (above), was given a fresh focal point by removing a stained-glass window on the top landing and replacing it with a striking painting. Since walls were badly cracked, joint cement was applied in a swirl effect with a rubber glove. Another eyesore, a heavy door to the kitchen, was updated by splitting it in two and placing distinctive brass handles on either side.

A NEW KITCHEN/EATING AREA REPLACES A MAZE OF HALLS AND WALLS

BEFORE

Here's a house that grew without adding any new space. When some useless walls came down, that labyrinth of old closets, halls, and pantries opened up into a delightful kitchen/eating area for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sullivan of Boston, Mass. The architect duplicated the original doorway arch when creating new windows (below right), so the outward appearance remains traditional.

The old entry became another window, and the window in the butler's pantry was converted into a door to the terrace. People coming in from the side of the house now enter where a storage closet once was. But even with all this free-flowing traffic, the kitchen is still out of the way of any congestion.

Arching up from the oak parquet floor, the new windows open the eating area to a view of the brick-walled terrace and a fine private yard. The furnishings all match this mood—bright and contemporary.

The hallway (top right) offers easy access to the dining room, terrace, garage, and basement. Large yellow doors conceal a huge storage closet. The small bar is ideal for preparing lunches to be served on the terrace. And at party time, that little sink helps keep all the confusion of mixing beverages out of the kitchen itself. The space beneath the bar is the perfect spot to store paper plates and terrace supplies, as well as glasses and serving dishes.

One look at the new kitchen (below right) reveals that the "loss" of storage closets was really no loss at all. Those oak kitchen cabinets—plus that generous four-foot storage divider—will harbor everything needed for family meal preparation with room to spare.

Knocking out the supporting walls meant adding steel beams to support the floor upstairs. These beams were neatly concealed by a dropped ceiling in the kitchen. Unexpected dividend: an interesting contrast of ceiling height that visually separates the eating area from the kitchen.

SMALL IMPROVEMENTS ADD UP TO A GREATLY CHANGED HOUSE

Redo many small things well, and you'll end up with a completely new house. That was the experience of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Bamberger, Jr., of Baltimore, Maryland. Their house was lark, and many of the details made it seem cramped—as the before picture (left) shows.

Now the Bambergers call their 1936 Dutch colonial house “contemporized”—everything they did makes it more livable. The living room (below) changed most. Two sets of French doors (there's another left of the piano) replaced the old, small windows; the fireplace gained an attractive slate face. New dimmable lights make the room just as bright at night.

Small upstairs sitting room (above left) is only 10x10 feet, but two ideas manage to make it seem much larger. The recessed television frees floor area, and the new door is ceiling height to add to the illusion of greater space.

Even the hall at the top of the stairs (below left) takes on the new look. A closet was removed in order to provide more elbowroom here, and the shelf and colorful accessories make the area more than just a passageway.

A VERY ORDINARY SMALL HOUSE BECAME SOMETHING SPECIAL . . .

This is a very typical 1940s tract house—owned by the Milton E. Florence family of Des Moines, Iowa. Or, we should say, it was a typical tract house. Here is proof that wonders can be worked on family living (and in good looks) even when you start with something plain and poorly planned.

Shortcomings were obvious: no separate dining area, because the living room opened directly into the kitchen/eating area; and no welcoming front entry, because the outside door opened directly into the living room (below). Here are on the following two pages, you'll see how these problems—plus several more—were solved, and with only one structural change.

Creating a hallway (left) was simply a matter of placing four floor-to-ceiling 4x4 posts on each side of the room. Spaced four inches apart, the posts painted the same color as the walls. A Build-it-yourself storage cabinet/bookcase unit is scaled to dimensions of the new hallway. It not only holds books, magazines, and TV—the unit also defines the limits of the entry area. Laminated plastic rosewood covers the cabinet top, doors, and interior surfaces.

To play down the varnished woodwork posed a problem. (Mrs. Florence wanted it left unchanged because of its maintenance.) So the overall color scheme was matched to it. Result: a harmonious blending of all elements.

Smart slipcovers (above right) make the sofa and swivel chairs look like new. Tailored skirts on chairs hide "leg" look. Vertical fabric shutters replaced former drab window treatments. Now the central living area not only looks better, it works better. Rearranging existing furniture and adding some new pieces—vinyl upholstered recliner, small glass-top tables, and desk (lower right) increase the room's uses. But the most impressive change of all was the flooring.

Cont

... AND THEY FOUND A DINING AREA THAT WASN'T THERE!

Buying information, page 132

Dining for the Florences had been confined to the kitchen—a tight squeeze for five people. The solution shown here involved the only structural change in the entire house.

Originally, a semi-divider separated kitchen from living room (see "before" photo below and floor plans). By removing the divider at left, reducing the small wall at right to soffit height, and switching the refrigerator to the opposite kitchen wall (former eating area), three feet of extra space was gained. This added enough extra footage to the living room to accommodate the handsome dining table and five chairs. Now there's even room to pull the table away from the wall and add a sixth chair for guest at the other end.

Gold-painted wood accordion-fold doors, mounted on a ceiling track, (right) now close off the kitchen when desired. Bullet lights above the dining area give the right amount of light to let the tire family study, pursue hobbies, play games.

Because the kitchen (lower left) is well endowed with handsome appliances and cabinets, few changes were needed there. Walls were painted a quiet green to harmonize with counter tops. Wallpaper border (right) adds pizzazz and complements the patterned area rug.

What ties everything together is the striking new floor treatment. Practical cushioned sheet vinyl in rich brown covers every square inch of the rooms and the hallway—visual stretching every centimeter of space. Brilliantly hued area rugs feature extravagantly oversized abstract floral design. Their explosion of color, pattern and texture is exactly the right catalyst for the understated monochromatic color scheme. Paintings, prints, lamps, decorative pieces add personality and warmth to the Florences' new set. Now the overall look is contemporary, comfortable, and wholly inviting.

A CHOPPY, OLD-FASHIONED FLOOR PLAN GOES MODERN

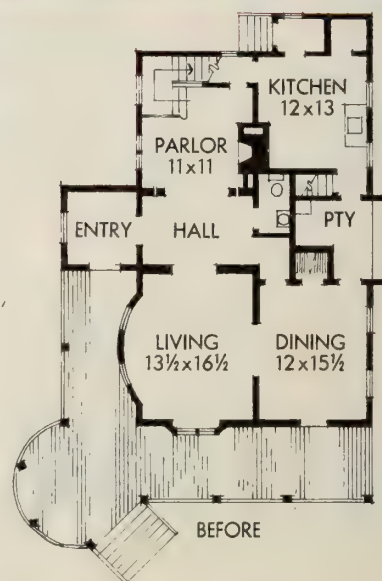

This used to be a typical 19th-century Boston house. Then Dr. and Mrs. Robert D. Griesemer moved in and promptly decided that the maze of rooms on the first floor had to go. The result is the free-flowing contemporary arrangement you see here. The low ceiling defining the dining area conceals steel beams that now furnish support for the upper level.

But not everything is new. The staircase (above) was left unchanged, as was the trim around the windows and doors. That unusual fireplace, built by some forgotten craftsman, had been hidden behind the wall; now it can be used for old-fashioned fireside dining.

The entertainment counter (top left on opposite page) boasts its own sink and refrigerator. There's plenty of storage for glasses, serving dishes, and party snacks. Convenient access from the living room to the snack center avoids any kind of traffic snarl in the kitchen.

The galley kitchen (top right on opposite page) is a real delight. There are counters on either side of range and sink, and the oak cabinets offer all kinds of storage space. The sparkling white counter tops—and those splashes of bright color on the range hood and kitchen door—add a fresh, cheerful feeling.

The living room (below right, opposite page) runs the width of the house. At one end, furniture is grouped for conversation. At the other, a bay window looks out to the front.

ANOTHER OLD GARAGE GIVES A FAMILY ROOM WITH PATIO

Sometimes the solution to a space problem can lie right under your nose. Take the case of these homeowners, hard pressed for a family room and more outdoor living area. Adding a room seemed the only answer—but where to put it? Instead they decided to convert a double garage (with a floor of about 450 square feet) that was only six feet from the kitchen. The owners enclosed the narrow space between the two units, using a plastic dome for the ceiling and a glass door to create a light and attractive area perfect for plants.

They replaced overgrown shrubbery (below) with low plants more in scale with the one-story home. The front of the garage was shut off and the back (shown at the left) was fitted with sliding glass doors leading to one section of the new terrace. The flooring was made of exposed aggregate, separated into geometric squares by 2x4s—the whole area extending in irregular conformation along the side of the kitchen. Here an expanse of wall needed softening so they put in an espaliered clematis to do the trick. A few plants in containers add color and require little upkeep.

The family room (right) is the most-used room in the house. Entertaining is no longer crowded because guests can readily overflow onto the adjoining terrace. Slatted flooring of the room makes for easy cleaning and contrasts well with the rough outside aggregate concrete. Architectural interest was created in the ceiling by retaining the exterior planes of the roof and using walnut-stained boards for design. Walls of the room were covered with grass cloth.

That free-form pool has a circulating pump—to keep the water down—and contains water plants that require little care.

The bench of redwood 2x4s rests on 4x4 legs secured in concrete. Its L-shape defines the limits of the terrace where it meets a down slope and provides yards of extra seating space. The shrubs in the background provide adequate privacy.

A WELL-PLACED GARAGE BECOMES A GREAT FAMILY ROOM

When Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spicer spotted this home in Larkspur, Calif., they couldn't resist it. The garage, nestled under two beautiful redwoods, offered an inexpensive source of the family room they needed.

Note that the garage was situated near both the living room and kitchen. The front was extended eight feet (left), there was additional space for a library and guest room. The back slope of the garage roof was retained, and the family room exists within the original structure of the garage. The roof peak was raised, so the pitch of the roof over the addition would repeat that of the main roof.

The car? It's not out in the cold. A new carport under the same roof line shelters it in great style.

Few major structural changes were necessary to create the family room (right). A gypsum-board ceiling was nailed to the existing rafters. Box beams fabricated from 1x4s and 1x6s relieve the heaviness of the ceiling. Sliding glass doors open the back wall to the garden and Louvers conceal and dress up two original garage windows; the third window was covered by brickwork behind the Franklin stove.

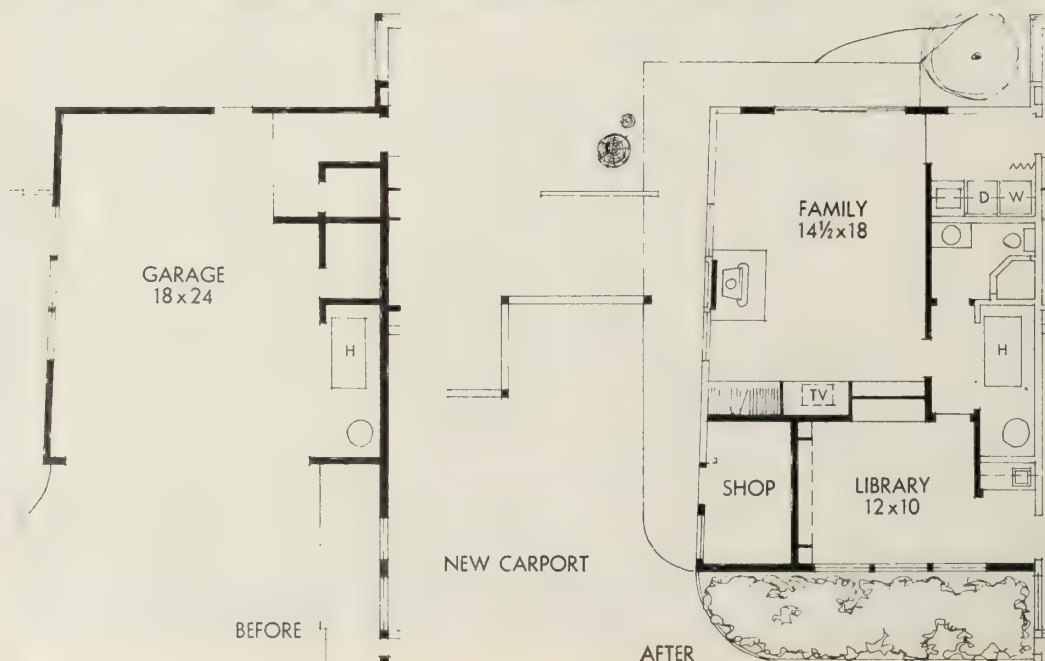

Because this is truly a family room, everything possible was done to make it childproof. The floor is vinyl, and a bright, fluffy rug is completely washable. The check fabric on the wicker furniture is snappy looking, and washable as well.

This storage wall (below right) was an essential ingredient in the family room. Not only is there space for such conventional items as games, craft items, Christmas decorations, but there's a special area for a card table and chairs. On the opposite side of this wall in the library has been used to full advantage by installing hi-fi equipment right in.

Floor plans (left) show exactly how much space was gained when a garage was lost. Not only do the library and family room emerge, but there's a new shop area off the carport for home auto repairs. And there's a laundry room right off the kitchen, plus a lavatory that serves the new addition.

spring fling

By Doris Eby, Food Editor, and Patricia Pollock, Associate

Celebrate this very special season with these fresh fruit and vegetable ideas:

Strawberry Sparkle Punch

You stretch that fresh berry flavor by making a strawberry puree to begin this cool-cool punch. Then to highlight the fresh flavor, add strawberry gelatin, lemonade concentrate, cranberry juice cocktail, and sparkly ginger ale. For a party touch, float an iceberg and add slices of the choicest berries.

Tiny Strawberry Soufflés

This delicate dessert is practically blooming with fresh berries. You begin with strawberry whipped dessert mix, then add succulent fresh strawberries. Stir in sour cream, dessert topping mix, plus just a hint of orange liqueur—and you've achieved a super-elegant finale to any warm-weather meal.

Pineapple Ambrosia Boat

You'll take a taste-trip to the Islands when you sample this pineapple dessert. The pineapple shell is filled with a sophisticated mixture of fresh pineapple, coconut macaroons, apricots, and toasted almonds—all moistened with orange marmalade. For a real spectacular, top it off with flaming rum at the table.

spring fling

Smoky Peas and Potatoes

Sweet green peas—fresh from their crisp protective pods—are one of the delights of spring. When you add small potatoes and a smoke-flavored cheese sauce (with bits of crisp bacon), you have a vegetable combo that can be the hit of the meal. Great with frozen peas to brighten meals year-round, too.

Chicken-Asparagus Bake

Tiny tips of green sprouting from the ground signal the new season—and the yearly arrival of fresh asparagus. For a very special casserole, team the tender spears with slices of chicken to enhance the delicate flavors of both. A mushroom sauce and crunchy almond topper make this almost a meal in one.

Lamb-stuffed Artichokes

You can count on the “royal” artichoke when you want a dinner spectacular. Here, we’ve stuffed the artichokes with a subtly seasoned ground lamb mixture, then drizzled them with a velvety Sauterne Sauce before serving. You’ll want to pass any extra sauce for dipping with the artichoke leaves, too.

Spinach-Shrimp Salad

For a change, star dark-green spinach—tender and crisp—in a colorful main-dish salad. Perky shrimp, avocado rings, and fresh orange sections nestle companionably among the spinach leaves. As a final touch, you add a slightly sweet Orange-French Dressing to bring out the best in all the fresh flavors.

Ruby Rhubarb Mold

Bring spring to a buffet dinner with this rhubarb-fruit salad. The strawberry-flavored gelatin is molded with jewels aplenty: diced fresh rhubarb, cream cheese cubes, and banana slices. Just add a dollop of the Fluffy Lemon-Orange Dressing to each serving for a special party look (and taste!).

Rhubarb Ice Cream

Our ice cream has a rosy blush, but you're sure to glow with pride when you serve it. Loaded with fresh rhubarb flavor, this creamy treat is just tart enough, just sweet enough. Serve as is, or mash some slightly sweetened strawberries to ladle atop the ice cream for a super-delightful sundae.

MAIN DISH SALADS

By Joan McCloskey, Associate Food Editor

With warmer weather right around the corner, you'll want to add to your repertoire of light and easy entrees. Try our cool candidates: three tasty and satisfying summertime salads.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Hot Tuna Salad

An elegant entree in a jiffy—

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 6½- or 7-ounce can tuna, drained and flaked | 2 teaspoons lemon juice |
| 1 cup diced celery | 1 teaspoon minced onion |
| ½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing | ¼ cup crushed corn flakes |
| ¼ cup slivered almonds,
toasted | 1 tablespoon packaged (shaker container) grated American cheese |
| 2 tablespoons chopped
ripe olives | 1 tablespoon butter or
margarine, melted |

Combine tuna, celery, mayonnaise or salad dressing, toasted almonds, ripe olives, lemon juice, and onion; toss lightly. Pile into four baking shells or individual baking dishes. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for 10 minutes. Combine crushed corn flakes, cheese, and melted butter or margarine; sprinkle over the hot salads. Bake 10 minutes more or till browned. Makes 4 servings.

Beef Supper Salad

A hearty beef and kidney bean salad, guaranteed to please the whole family—

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| ½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing | 2 cups cubed cooked beef |
| 1 tablespoon chili sauce | 1 8-ounce can (1 cup) kidney beans, drained |
| 1 tablespoon sweet pickle relish | 1 cup sliced celery |
| ¼ teaspoon salt | ⅓ cup chopped onion |
| | 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped |

Combine mayonnaise or salad dressing, chili sauce, pickle relish, and salt. In bowl, combine beef, kidney beans, celery, onion, and eggs. Pour dressing over bean mixture; toss lightly. Chill. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Luncheon Chicken Salad

A chicken dinner all in one dish—

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened | 1½ cups cubed cooked
chicken |
| ½ cup dairy sour cream | 1 13½-ounce can (1½ cups) pineapple tidbits,
well drained |
| Dash salt | 1 8-ounce can (1 cup) jellied cranberry sauce |
| ¾ cup sliced celery | |
| ½ cup chopped walnuts | |
| 2 tablespoons chopped
green pepper | |

Chill cranberry sauce; cut into cubes. In mixer bowl, beat together cream cheese, sour cream, and salt. Stir in celery, walnuts, and green pepper. Fold in chicken and pineapple tidbits. Chill mixture thoroughly. Top with cranberry cubes when ready to serve. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Campbelled eggs.

Cream of Vegetable Soup makes scrambled eggs everything they're cracked up to be.

CAMPBELLED EGGS

1 can Campbell's Cream of Vegetable Soup
8 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons butter

Stir soup until smooth. Blend in eggs. In skillet, melt butter; pour in egg mixture. Cook over low heat until set, lifting eggs gently now and then. 4 to 6 nourishing servings.

A salad without Wish-Bone es just a bowl of wet vegetables.

Many a salad dressing is so blah, the salad is left little better than wet.

It takes Wish-Bone® Salad Dressing to give a salad spunk.

Famous Wish-Bone Italian with all the sassy flavor, tender garlic and mild sweet peppers.

Rich and smooth Wish-Bone Deluxe French blended to please the whole family.

Spicy-sweet Wish-Bone Russian oozing with twenty-three herbs and spices.

Or try any of the other great Wish-Bone flavors: Classic French, Hickory Bits, Thousand Island, Green Goddess and Creamy Onion.

We're proud of our age.

This Kraft Natural Swiss is carefully matured to delicious golden age. It's aged at least six months. Which makes it lots richer-tasting, a mite drier and sweet as a nut. Good enough for dessert.

Strawberry Sparkle Punch

- 2 cups fresh strawberries, hulled
 - 1 3-ounce package strawberry-flavored gelatin
 - 1 cup boiling water
 - 1 6-ounce can frozen lemonade concentrate
 - 3 cups cold water
 - 1-quart bottle cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
 - 1-pint 12-ounce bottle ginger ale, chilled
- Put strawberries in blender container; cover and blend on low speed till fruit is pureed. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in lemonade concentrate till melted. Add the cold water, cranberry juice, and the strawberry puree. Pour over ice in large punch bowl. Slowly pour in chilled ginger ale. Makes about 30 servings.

any Strawberry Soufflés

- 3 3/4-ounce package strawberry whipped dessert mix
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1 pint fresh strawberries
 - 1/2 cup orange liqueur
 - 1 cup dairy sour cream
 - 2- or 2 1/8-ounce package dessert topping mix
- Combine strawberry whipped dessert mix and sugar; prepare mix according to package directions; Hull berries and mash 1 cup; slice and set aside remaining. Fold mashed berries and liqueur into whipped dessert. Stir sour cream till smooth; fold into whipped mixture. Prepare topping mix according to package directions; fold into strawberry mixture along with the sliced berries. Spoon into straight-sided sherbets or individual souffle dishes, extended with foil. Makes 12 servings.

Pineapple Ambrosia Boat

Another time, serve this mixture with ice cream

- 1 fresh pineapple
 - 1/3 cup snipped dried apricots
 - 1 cup crumbled soft coconut macaroons (4 cookies)
 - 1/4 cup chopped almonds, toasted
 - 1/3 cup orange marmalade
 - 1 tablespoon water
 - 1/4 cup rum (optional)
- Wash pineapple. Using a sharp knife, make a lengthwise slice, cutting off about 1/4 of the pineapple. With a grapefruit knife or paring knife, remove fruit from both portions of the pineapple shells, leaving about 1/2-inch sides. Discard smaller shell. Cut fruit into chunks, discarding center core; set chunks aside. Cover apricots with hot water. Let stand 5 minutes; drain. In large bowl, combine drained apricots, the pineapple chunks, crumbled macaroons, and almonds. Stir together marmalade and the 1 tablespoon water; toss with fruit mixture. Put pineapple shell in shallow baking pan; spoon fruit mixture into shell. Cover fruit and crown with foil; bake in moderate oven (350°) for 40 minutes. Uncover fruit (not crown); bake 15 minutes longer. Remove from oven and place on serving plate. If desired, flame pineapple just before serving: Remove crown. Heat rum over low heat; carefully ignite and pour over fruit. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Only Saran Wrap* keeps them miles apart.

TIPS ON MAKING FANCY SANDWICHES

Planning a special-occasion tea, reception, or open house? Put dainty sandwiches on the menu, then check these ideas to help you make them as special as the occasion. Drawings and directions tell you how to make them step by step.

1. Cornucopias: Trim crust from bread slices. Top with softened pineapple cheese spread. Roll into cornucopias; trim with ripe olive petals and chill, seam side down, till serving time. Or make Fold-ups by bringing two opposite corners of bread together at center; secure with wooden picks and add a water-cress sprig for garnish.

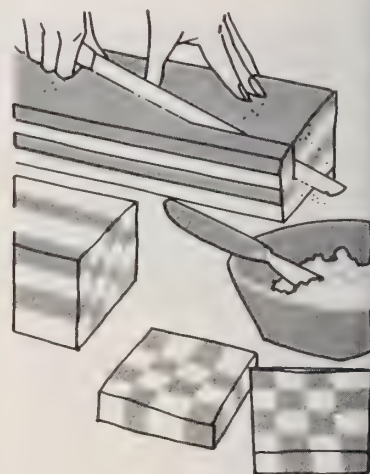

2. Parsley Pinwheels: Have bakery trim crusts from 1 loaf unsliced sandwich bread. Cut loaf lengthwise in slices $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick. Spread with parsley butter or cheese spread. For pretty centers, line up a row of stuffed green olives, crosswise, near end of each slice. Roll up, jelly-roll fashion; wrap in foil or clear plastic wrap, and chill. Before serving, place roll, seam side down, on cutting board; cut in $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch slices.

3. Checkerboards: Have bakery trim the crusts from two unsliced sandwich loaves, one white, one whole wheat or rye. From each loaf, cut six lengthwise slices, about $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch thick. Use your favorite filling or spread to put four slices bread together, alternating white and whole wheat. Make three loaves; wrap in foil, clear plastic wrap, or waxed paper, then chill. Slice each loaf in six lengthwise slices. Put four slices together with additional filling, alternating colors to make four checkerboard loaves. Wrap and chill once more; slice each loaf crosswise to make sandwiches.

4. Jigsaws: Cut bread slices in two-inch rounds, half white, half whole wheat. Spread half the rounds of each color with seafood or cheese spread for bottoms. Make tops by cutting circles from remaining bread rounds with hole of doughnut cutter. Fit tiny whole wheat circles into white rings and vice versa. Or cut bread rounds in strips or quarters; arrange atop spread, alternating colors. Another time, use cookie cutters for different bread shapes. ■

Parisian Chicken Dinner

Zesty potato-onion combo gives flavor plus to this skillet meal—

1/3 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
Dash pepper

2 1/2- to 3-pound broiler-fryer, cut up
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 cups potato slices,
1/2 inch thick
3/4 cup sliced green onion
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1 cup hot water
1 cup dairy sour cream

Combine flour, salt, paprika, and pepper in plastic or paper bag. Add chicken pieces, a few at a time, and shake to coat. In large skillet, brown chicken in butter or margarine. Push chicken pieces to center of pan and arrange sliced potatoes around chicken. Season potatoes with salt and pepper. Sprinkle sliced green onion over all. Dissolve bouillon cubes in the water; pour over chicken. Cover and simmer about 35 minutes or till chicken is tender. Remove chicken and potatoes to warm serving platter. Stir sour cream into pan drippings. Cook and stir till heated through. Serve with chicken and potatoes. Makes 4 servings.

Broiled Chicken Tangerine

Tangerine concentrate sparks the currant jelly glaze—

2 2- to 2 1/2-pound broiler-fryers, halved Cooking oil
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Dash ginger
1/2 cup currant jelly
1/4 cup frozen tangerine juice concentrate

Dash bottled hot pepper sauce
Break wing, hip, and drumstick joints of chickens so birds will remain flat during broiling. Brush with oil. Season with salt, monosodium glutamate, and pepper. Place, skin side down, in bottom of broiler pan, not on rack. Broil 5 to 7 inches from heat 15 to 20 minutes or till lightly browned. Turn; broil 15 to 20 minutes more. Brush chicken with Tangerine Glaze; broil 10 minutes more or till tender, turning and brushing each side twice with glaze. Heat extra glaze; pass with chicken. Four servings.

Tangerine Glaze: In small saucepan, combine cornstarch, mustard, and ginger. Add jelly, tangerine juice concentrate, 1/4 cup water, and the hot pepper sauce. Cook and stir till smooth.

SPRING CHICKEN!

Celebrate the season with that family favorite—chicken. And spring a surprise by serving it in one of these appetizing new entrées. Add the flourish of a tart glaze, a cream custard, or a special sauce.

Chicken and Stuffing Scallop

Top with a creamy pimienta cheese sauce—

1/2 8-ounce package (1 3/4 cup herb-seasoned stuffing mix)
2 cups diced cooked chicken
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 cups chicken broth
3 slightly beaten eggs
1 can condensed cheese soup
1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons chopped pimienta

Prepare stuffing mix according to package directions for cooking. Spread in a 10x6x1 inch baking dish; top with chicken. In saucepan, melt butter or margarine; blend in flour, salt, and pepper. Add broth and stir till mixture thickens. Stir small amount of mixture into eggs; return to mixture. Pour over chicken. Bake in slow oven (325°) about 35 minutes or till knife inserted halfway between center and edge comes out clean. Let stand 5 minutes; cut in squares. Garnish with sliced stuffed green olives, if desired. Serve with Pimienta Cheese Sauce. In saucepan, combine soup, milk, and pimienta. Cook and stir over medium heat till heated through. Makes 6 servings.

The rich gets richer.

Start® declares a coupon*

1. Start is not a juice or a juice product. There is no frozen can to defrost. Flavorful crystals dissolve with a swish of a spoon.
2. A can of Start makes 32 ounces of breakfast drink. A 6-ounce can of frozen orange juice makes 24 ounces.
3. Start contains more Vitamin C than orange juice.
4. Surveys show kids love the taste of Start. Many adults actually prefer Start to frozen orange juice.

Lamb-stuffed Artichokes

Drizzle each artichoke with the elegant parsley-wine sauce to serve—

- 4 whole fresh artichokes
- 1 pound ground lamb
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup snipped parsley
- 2 beaten eggs
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground nutmeg

Wash artichokes and cut off stem close to base. Cook in boiling salted water for 25 to 30 minutes or till stalk can be pierced easily with fork or leaf pulled out readily. Drain upside down. Cut off third of leaves with kitchen shears; move center leaves and chokes. Light brown lamb and onion in oil; drain. Add crumbs, parsley, eggs, salt, pepper and nutmeg; mix well. Spread lightly and fill centers of artichokes with meat mixture. Place in a 9x9x2-inch baking dish. Pour hot water around artichokes to depth of 1 inch. Bake, uncovered, in moderate oven (375°) for 30 minutes or till heated through. Make 4 servings.

Serve with Sauterne Sauce: In a saucepan, combine $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sauterne and 1 tablespoon instant minced onion; stand 10 minutes. Add $\frac{3}{4}$ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 2 tablespoons snipped parsley, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice; mix till well combined. Cook and stir just till mixture is heated through. do not boil. Makes 1 cup sauce.

Artichoke Dippers

A fun-to-serve hors d'oeuvre—

- 2 fresh artichokes
- 2 lemon slices
- 1 tablespoon cooking oil

Rinse artichokes. With sharp knife cut off about 1 inch from top. Cut stem close to base. Snip off sharp leaf tips with kitchen shears. Brush cut edges with lemon juice to prevent browning. Heat the cooking oil to a large pan of water. Bring to boiling; add the prepared artichokes and lemon slices. Cover and simmer 25 to 30 minutes or till stem is tender and a leaf pulls easily from the base. Using a spoon, remove center leaves and chokes. Serve hot or chilled with dipping sauce.

Curry Dip: Combine 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 1 teaspoon each onion powder, grated onion, prepared radish, vinegar, and a dash garlic powder; mix well. Makes 1 cup.

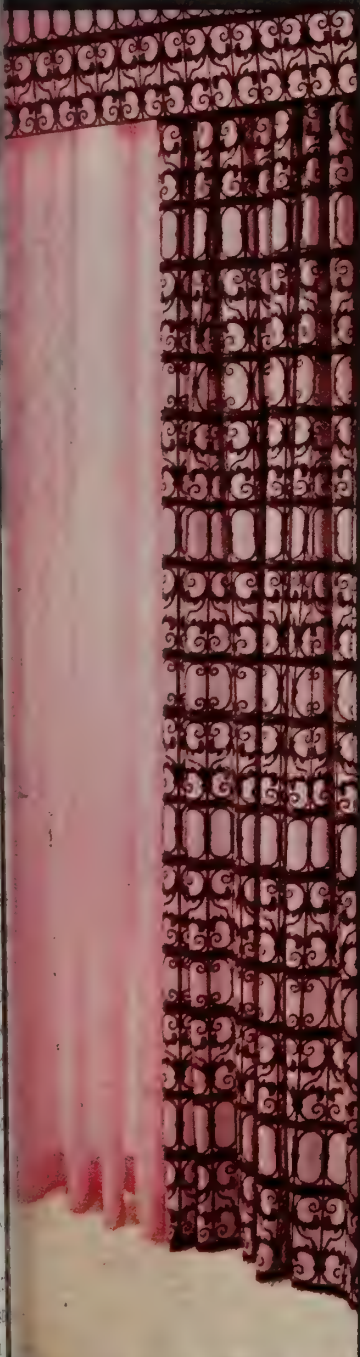

Lemon Butter: Melt $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine; stir in 2 tablespoons snipped parsley and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Makes $\frac{2}{3}$ cup.

RHUBARB AND SPINACH

See page 99

Ruby Rhubarb Salad

Cubes of cream cheese are a surprise in this party-special mold—

- 2 cups diced fresh rhubarb
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water
- 1 6-ounce or 2 3-ounce packages strawberry-flavored gelatin
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, chilled and diced
- 1 banana, sliced

1 egg
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
 $\frac{1}{8}$ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream
In saucepan, combine rhubarb, the $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, and the water. Cook, covered, over medium heat for 3 minutes, till rhubarb is just tender, stirring occasionally. Cool. Drain, reserving syrup. Add enough water to syrup to equal 2 cups; return to saucepan. Bring to boiling; stir in strawberry gelatin till dissolved. Add $1\frac{3}{4}$ cups cold water and the 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Chill till partially set. Add rhubarb, cream cheese, and banana; turn into 6-cup mold. To serve, unmold onto serving plate; serve with Fluffy

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Lemon-Orange Dressing: In saucepan, beat egg; add lemon and orange peel, the 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and the $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar. Cook and stir over low heat till thickened, about 5 minutes. Cool to room temperature. Whip cream; fold into citrus mixture. Chill. Makes about 2 cups.

Rhubarb Ice Cream

Top an apple pie with this creamy ice cream for an especially elegant dessert—

- 3 cups diced fresh rhubarb
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon red food coloring
- 2 egg whites
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar

Homemade creamy frosting won't spread this easy, taste this creamy.

Not even yours.

Betty Crocker Ready-to-Spread Frosting is homogenized. Homogenized so smooth it spreads easier, tastes creamier than your best butter cream frosting. Try Chocolate, Milk Chocolate, Vanilla, Butterscotch, Lemon or new Dark Dutch Fudge. Six delicious ways to top yourself.

The homogenized frosting.

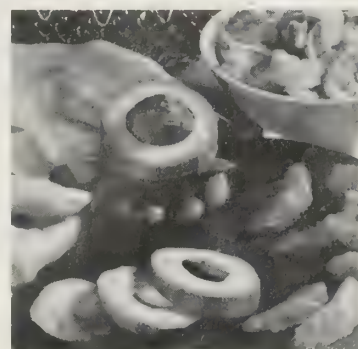

1 cup whipping cream
In saucepan, combine rhubarb, the $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar, and the water. Cook, covered, for 10 to 15 minutes or till tender. Cool slightly; add lemon juice, salt, and food coloring. Pour into an 8-cup refrigerator tray; freeze firm. Break into chunks; place in chilled bowl and beat smooth with electric beater. Beat egg whites till soft peaks form. Gradually add the remaining $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, beating to stiff peaks. Whip cream; fold into rhubarb mixture along with the egg white mixture. Freeze firm. Makes $\frac{1}{2}$ gallon.

Spinach-Shrimp Salad

Serve this attractive meal-in-one salad for lunch or light supper—

- 1 large avocado, peeled and sliced into rings
 - 1 tablespoon orange juice
 - 1 pound fresh spinach, torn in pieces (12 cups)
 - 2 cups cooked shelled shrimp (1 pound)
 - 3 oranges, sectioned
- Sprinkle avocado with orange juice. Combine all ingredients in salad bowl. Toss with Orange-

French Dressing: In screw-top jar, combine $\frac{2}{3}$ cup salad oil, $\frac{1}{3}$ cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon vinegar, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon grated orange peel, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each salt and dry mustard, and a dash bottled hot pepper sauce. Shake well and chill. Makes $1\frac{1}{3}$ cups dressing.

THIS KITCHEN REMODELING COMES IN A KIT

Looking for a fast, easy, and economical way to restyle your kitchen? A shortcut that lets you restore old cabinets without replacing or refinishing them?

If this sounds like wishful thinking, take a second look at the "before" kitchen (right). In just one weekend, a nonprofessional handyman transformed that worn, outdated kitchen (which was always needing paint) into a carefree, contemporary room. Secret? New suede-finish laminated plastic fronts—precut, predrilled, factory-engineered for each job, packaged, and shipped complete with hardware. And you get them at only a fraction of the cost of new cabinets.

Even if you're not especially handy, you should be able to remodel any wood or metal cabinets—kitchen, vanity, shop, lobby, built-in desk, or general storage. All you need are a few hand tools, electric iron (that's right, the same one you use for clothing), a decision in favor of one among four wood-grain finishes, and an accurate overall measurement of your existing cabinets.

No need to measure each door and drawer, either. Simply diagram the storage, then mark dimensions on the diagram to the center line between drawers and doors. The factory takes over from there, designing and manufacturing all new fronts to install easily and fit perfectly. No hard-to-handle adhesives or high-speed cutting needed.

Use an electric iron to bond the special matching laminate onto permanent surfaces—i.e., ends of cabinets, metal sink front, framing strips. Laminate included in the package is heat and pressure sensitive.

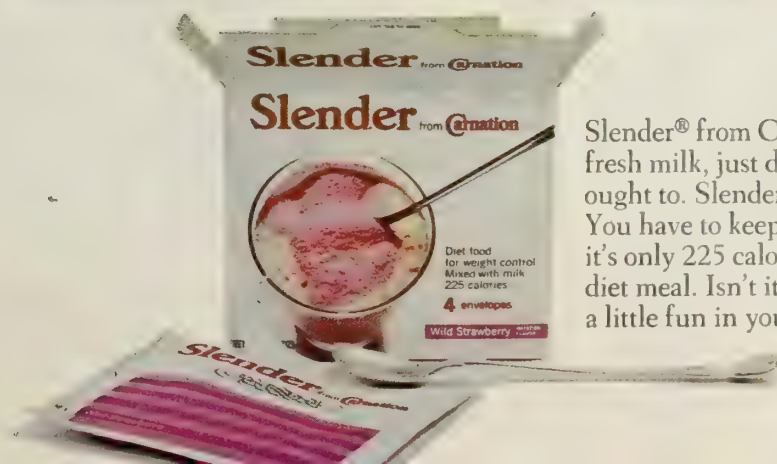

To fit unusual shapes or contours, mark (scribe) edge, then score with linoleum knife. Peel off paper backing, bend slowly along scored line. Later you'll need 1/4-inch drill, straight edge, steel tape, screwdrivers, handsaw, hacksaw, hammer, file. Turn to page 122 for step-by-step installation guide.

Add your favorite pulls and moldings if you wish. Or choose from several options available: four styles of knobs, trim, and medallions; three of pulls. To miter the moldings, you'll need a coping saw and miter box. Continued

KITCHEN REMODELING Continued

Scribe and trim laminate to fit. Remove paper backing. Clean, rinse, dry old cabinet surface. Set iron temperature on cotton. Iron on laminate. Wipe surface with a cold cloth.

Attach remaining screws to the frame through hinge holes just drilled. Remove screws attaching stile in Step 3. Drill through holes into frame. Check door level; tighten screws.

Doors and drawer fronts are precut to fit your kitchen and factory finished with laminated plastic. To assemble doors, apply hinges to predrilled holes with six screws provided.

Lower cabinets: apply drawer fronts first—working from corner or wall end toward open end. Remove drawer from cabinet. Saw lip off drawer front flush with sides of drawer.

Lay narrow hanging strip on flat surface beside door. Match predrilled holes to hinges on door. Partially fasten hinges: one screw in top, one in lower. Check cabinets with a level.

Center drawer handle on new front; predrill. Position new front over old and drill matching holes through old front. Drawer handle secures the new front to old.

Position door and stile against frame. First door hung must be level. Mark frame for drilling: insert pencil through remaining holes in hinge leaf on stile. Drill with 3/32-inch bit.

Add moldings, mitered at the corners, and medallions as desired. Glue and nail in place with 5/8-inch wire brads. Countersink brads; then conceal heads with matching stick filler.

BETTER BREAKFAST IDEAS

Pluperfect Pancakes

Wake up weary breakfast appetites with the wonderful pancake variations below. Or prepare your own favorite plain pancake recipe—and then for a morning surprise, stir in finely chopped cooked ham, walnuts, or fruits.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Apple Flaps

These cake-like pancakes are lightly spiced and tender—

Sift together $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt, and $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoon ground nutmeg. Combine 2 beaten eggs, $\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, and 1 cup apple sauce. Add to dry ingredients, stirring just till dry ingredients are moistened. Use about 2 tablespoons batter for each pancake; bake on hot, lightly greased griddle, turning once, till golden. Makes 18 pancakes.

Hawaiian Hotcakes

Serve sausage right in the syrup in this pancake topper—

Brown $\frac{1}{2}$ pound bulk pork sausage in skillet; breaking up meat as it cooks. Drain well. Sprinkle meat with $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons all-purpose flour; mix well. Add $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water and cook, stirring constantly, till mixture thickens. Stir in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup crushed pineapple and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup maple-blended syrup; simmer covered, for 10 minutes. Makes $1\frac{2}{3}$ cups. Serve over pancakes made from a mix or your own recipe.

The Counter That Cooks

Corning takes cooking out of the rut it's been in for over 100 years.

No coils, burners or grease traps. In fact, no crevices or ruts at all. Instead you cook on a smooth, easy-to-clean Pyroceram® surface that brings you Counterspace Cooking. (It's sealed, so grease and spillovers have no place to hide.)

Turned off, the entire Counter That Cooks is usable counterspace. When it's turned on, it's a cooktop with four cooking areas.

The Counter That Cooks comes with a complete set of Pyroceram Cookmates. They're flat and polished to make perfect contact with the cooking surface.

This means that on any of the four thermostatically-controlled electric cooking areas, the heat is so even you may never use a double boiler again.

Like any counter, a wipe with a damp cloth cleans off most spills and spots—including cooking spatters.

That's something to think about next time you try to clean your old-fashioned stove-top.

Get out of the rut.

Come to Corning's Spring Open House.

Corning appliance dealers across the country invite you to their Spring Open House. Drop by and see a demonstration of the amazing Counter That Cooks.

treatment" for cancer which nobody else can provide.

- He guarantees a "sure cure."
- He complains of being persecuted by organized medicine.
- His treatment bears his own name or that of a high-sounding organization whose members are never revealed.
- His greatest supporters lack a medical background—prominent statesmen, actors, writers, legislators.
- He uses testimonials from "cured" patients to advertise his treatment in glowing terms.
- He refuses consultation with recognized specialists.
- Even if he has a genuine M.D. degree, he also boasts a number of unusual degrees that may have come from correspondence schools—N.D. (Doctor of Naturopathy), Ph.N. (Philosopher of Naturopathy), DABB-A (Diplomate of American Board of Bio-Analysts), Ms.D. (Doctor of Metaphysics), M.T. (Medical Technologist).

Anyone who doubts the qualifications of a person offering treatment for cancer should check with his county medical society or the local unit of the American Cancer Society.

SHOULD THE PATIENT BE TOLD THE TRUTH WHEN HOPE DWINDLES?

This decision necessarily falls to the doctor, since he alone has complete access to the medical facts, along with an awareness of their implications. Some doctors feel obliged to give every patient except a child the full details of his case, even when the effect is crushing. Other doctors consider this to be gratuitous brutality and attempt to keep everything secret. The majority of physicians are somewhere in between: they reach a decision about what to tell whom on a strictly individual basis.

If the doctor isn't closely acquainted with his patient, he may consult another member of the family to learn something of the patient's personality. Is he emotionally mature? Is he given to depression? What other adversities has he confronted? How did he react on those previous occasions? Does he have any source of psychological support, such as his religion or a personal philosophy? The answers help determine how the patient should be told—in addition to how much—about his physical condition.

Many people never want to hear the truth, though they very often know or suspect it. They refuse to pick up the most obvious hints, even to the point of consenting to radical surgery without ever asking the doctor what's wrong. Other patients, oddly enough, reflect this same fear by begging to be told the harsh facts. "But you can tell they don't really mean it," says one doctor. "When someone says, 'Give it to me straight, doc; I can take it,' as often as not, he's desperately asking me to guard him from the truth. After you have treated a few hundred cancer patients, you learn to interpret their comments."

If the doctor decides silence is the right course to follow—either because the patient prefers it that way or because the truth might break his spirit—the family's cooperation is needed to insulate the patient from hard facts. Other times, there is full disclosure from the beginning. But in most cases, the dilemma is ultimately resolved by gently allowing the truth to sink in, more or less by virtue of its own heavy weight, at whatever speed the patient can accept it.

At each step, as dark facts are permitted to appear, sympathy, optimism, and a careful choice of words can temper their chilling effect. No cancer should be referred to as "terminal," for instance; adjectives like "progressive" and "advanced" are just as honest, but without the grim reminder of fatality. The patient's hope must be constantly and carefully protected by his doctor, family, and friends.

THE PATIENT'S—AND THE FAMILY'S—MENTAL OUTLOOK

Cancer is a uniquely difficult ailment to cope with, psychologically as well as medically. This is especially true when it is an advanced case. As one experienced nurse observes, "Few other illnesses combine so tragically the wearing qualities of a long illness with the tearing qualities of an acute one."

Especially in the diseases' early stages, if a patient is courageous and emotionally mature and if he is blessed with a sympathetic family, he sometimes responds with something close to serenity. When the cancer that later took his life was first diagnosed, Senator Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon remarked upon his "new appreciation of things I once took for granted—eating lunch with a friend, scratching my cat Muffet's ears and listening for his purrs, the company of my wife, reading a book or magazine in the quiet cone of my bed lamp at night, raiding the refrigerator for a glass of orange juice or a slice of toast. For the first time, I think I actually am savoring life."

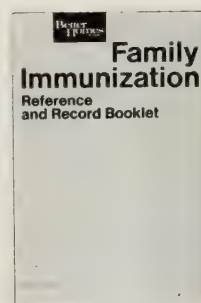

But all too often, in serious cases, cancer's dreadful attrition leads to attitudes less easy to live with. For example, a male patient who is forced to quit work may view himself contemptuously as an economic burden, interpreting his inability to provide for his family as a loss of manliness. Similarly, women who submit to mastectomies—the surgical removal of one or both breasts—often feel a symbolic negation of their sexual identity.

A surprising number of patients augment their real problems with feelings of self-loathing and guilt; the superstition that cancer is repayment for past sins has by no means disappeared. Among other unpleasant attitudes that commonly accompany cancer are despair, self-pity, hostility, resentment, and—especially when the chances for recovery are slight—a regression to the habits of childhood. This last is an unconscious attempt, some authorities believe, to recapture the security one knows as a child, when the prospect of death is infinitely remote and one day seems a very long time.

The family must not be unnerved by these attitudes, because the sensitivity with which they are handled can speed or delay a recovery. One woman reports that after a disfiguring operation, she went home from the hospital feeling gloomy and defeated. If her family had been similarly pessimistic, she would have wallowed in futility forever. Instead, supported her with optimistic understanding and she returned to a full, joy life. She adds that until then, she never realized how much her family loved her.

CAN COMPANY

It is not to overindulge the cancer patient in many ways as bad as to neglect him. Healthy members of the family must learn to think of, too, and should not let the presence of sickness distort the shape of their lives. As much as possible, normal living should continue as before, complete with a fullness of happiness and pleasure unimpaired by feelings of guilt. A family of martyrs preoccupied with misery is of little help whatsoever. In fact, the kind of life that releases nervous tension (always present in a household invaded by cancer) can renew a family's capacity to provide the patient with the understanding that restores his self-esteem.

HOME OR INSTITUTIONAL CARE?

Except when hospitalization is required for the proper treatment of acute conditions, many cancer patients can be cared for at home, an arrangement the majority prefer. Even the most cheerful institutional setting lacks the reassuring warmth of a family.

Most families are eager to have the patient at home, too; but they should realize that living with a person who has cancer can be physically as well as emotionally exhausting. Rehabilitation after major surgery is frequently a long and painful experience. Some operations leave the patient disfigured or with an artificial bladder or artificial colon over which he lacks normal control. Caring for a patient whose cancer is progressive imposes a number of special burdens, the least of which is watching his deterioration and coping with the conditions that accompany it.

The family must stand up against these various strains with an attitude of "What can we help?" rather than a feeling of being put-upon. Another basic principle is to share the burden justly: divide responsibilities of caring for the patient so that no one has to shoulder the load. And when needed seek outside assistance. A visiting nurse who takes care in the sickroom or a housecleaning woman who helps with daily chores can have a great restorative influence.

In spite of a loving family's best efforts, there may come a time, especially if the patient is progressive, when attempting to care for the patient at home is no longer advisable. This is obviously true when he needs the kind of treatment that an institution can provide. But just as often, for the good of his family, he should be cared for somewhere else. Extended exposure to misery and pain can cripple the spirit of the strongest adults; it is particularly dangerous to children. When his presence starts to undermine the stability of his family, the patient should move to a nursing home or other suitable institution. His doctor can help find a good one, and if it's located nearby he can still enjoy the comfort of seeing his family often.

WHERE TO GO FOR HELP

Nearly every community except the very smallest has an impressive variety of facilities where families can find help when cancer strikes. Church groups, the American Cancer Society, the Red Cross, public health agencies, unions, fraternal orders, the Veterans Administration, service organizations, welfare agencies—the list in major cities includes dozens like these. The forms of assistance are similarly diverse: counseling, nursing care, housecleaning services, free drugs and bandages, transportation to the doctor, prosthetic devices, and rehabilitation training.

Typically, the best place to start looking for assistance is at your local chapter of the American Cancer Society. In addition to the direct help it offers many patients, each ACS office has a counseling and information service—one of whose functions is to maintain a registry of all local medical and social resources and the kinds of help they provide. A family can thus outline its particular situation and be steered to the right agencies at once.

KITCHEN HANG-UPS

Why not give those drawer-bound cooking utensils a new role in the kitchen? Your beaters, strainers, dicers, and ladles can make decorative and functional wall accents. Hang them on a hat rack, or dangle them from a stove hood on meat hooks, or arrange random fashion on a backdrop of perforated hardboard painted a bright color.

Bring that old wooden hat rack down from the attic, brush off the dust, and fasten to a wall near the kitchen sink or work counter. Then accessorize it with a miscellany of small cookware. Such a grouping puts working tools within easy reach and adds a bit of collage-type art to your kitchen.

For a larger display, place shiny copper pans and skillets on an iron hanging rack and suspend from the ceiling.

That short wall in your kitchen can do more than collect children's fingermarks. It's just the spot for a cook-book shelf where you can also hang a collection of cooking utensils.

Build shelf of plywood and face the slant-top with 1 1/2-inch molding to keep cook book in place. Space screw hooks along three sides of the shelf and secure to wall with toggle bolts. For a final touch, fill in wall space above with an arrangement of framed botany prints.

NEEDLEWORK KITS

Whether you're a novice or an expert, you'll find handsome projects to fit your skills in our new Catalog of Needlework Kits and Patterns. Samplers, quilts, designer pillows, table linens, and more—for cross-stitch, needlepoint, crewel stitchery. Just 25c. Better Homes and Gardens, Dept. BHF, Des Moines, Ia. 50303.

HOW TO CARE FOR WOOD FLOORS

If the floor in your kitchen is hardwood, you can keep maintenance to a minimum by applying the right finish. Most durable are the high-gloss coatings, like those found in polyurethane finishes. Many brands are now available; check the label on the can before you buy. Look for the highest percentage of urethane compared to its carrying agent.

Daily vacuuming or dry dust-mopping prevents dirt from being ground into the finish. Besides this, you need only wipe up spills and water promptly. Never use an oiled mop between cleanings, since the oil tends to soften the finish.

For general cleaning, naphtha-base cleaners provide one-step floor care. Choose a cleaner with minimum wax if your floor is dark wood. (A heavy wax coat leaves light streaks.) Apply cleaner/wax with a cloth, turning frequently. Or, use both sides of disposable pads with an energy-saving electric floor polisher. Run the polisher with the grain of the wood, not across it.

To remove most stains and scratches, use floor-mark remover pads with built-in cleaner, or fine steel wool dipped in cleaner/wax. Instead of scraping up chewing gum, crayon, or candle wax, apply ice. This makes the deposit brittle so it crumbles. If alcohol leaves a stain, rub with liquid or paste wax, silver polish, boiled linseed oil, or a cloth dampened with ammonia. Then rewax.

Erase grease and oil stains this way: rub high-lye-content kitchen soap over the spot. Or, saturate cotton with hydrogen peroxide and place over stain. Then saturate a second layer of cotton with household ammonia and place over the first. Repeat until stain is removed.

Planning to recoat a floor? Use the same material as your present finish. But first, thoroughly clean and strip off all old wax with a liquid or powdered wax stripper especially made for wood floors.

Years of use and improper maintenance may have made your wood floor look scarred and worn beyond repair—but it isn't. Call a professional floor finisher or rent an electric sander to remove all traces of the old finish, scratches, and mars. Apply a preliminary coat of finish to main traffic areas first, then seal entire floor with three coats of finish. ■

It's a pretty, tough towel.

See all those little dents? Inside are tiny air pockets to soak up more and trap the trouble wherever you find it. Gala also makes napkins that are just as pretty.

What if you don't take "the pill"?

What if you're not quite ready to have your next child? What other highly effective method of birth control can you use—if not "the pill"?

The answer is: DELFEN* Contraceptive Foam. No other form of vaginal contraception is more effective than DELFEN, though it's used all by itself. And no other method is as ladylike and fastidious.

This pure white foam applies instantly, discreetly, in a single application. There's nothing to "wear," nothing to remove. It couldn't be simpler or more natural to use.

DELFEN also comes in cream form. Both products are available at drugstores throughout the U.S. and Canada. Without prescription. Why not have the security of DELFEN always at hand?

OPERATION CAMOUFLAGE

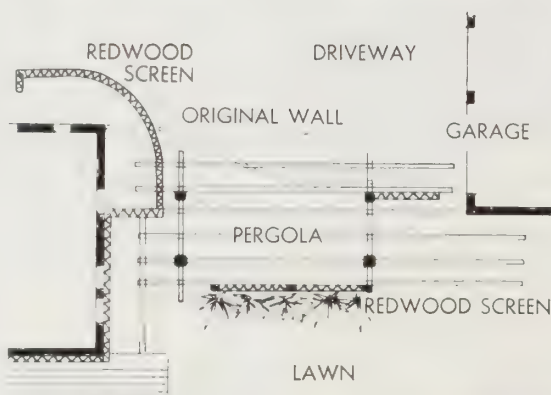

What to do about a cluttered driveway-garage area? Hide it, of course—but do it decoratively. Here's how one family swapped an inadequate cover-up for an effective camouflage that doubles as a display area for plants. Left: Formerly, a three-foot-high stucco wall topped by a grape-stake fence, edged the driveway to the garage. A wooden gate gave access to the garden. The whole setup failed to do the disguising job it was supposed to. Below: In remodeling, the old wall and fence were replaced by a 14-foot length of screen brought forward eight feet into the yard to permit a carport in the driveway. A matching screen six feet long lines up with the driveway edge, so the old garage is now hidden from the garden side.

Redwood palings (1x2½ inches) were mounted on 1x4 laminated stringers top and bottom. The palings were butted together and stained a soft beige—a neutral tone complementing all plants. A tree casts filtered light on one end of the fence, leaving the other in full sun. This permits combining both shade- and sun-loving plants.

The pergola was made of two 12-foot, 4x8 inch Douglas fir beams on two-inch diameter galvanized iron posts. The six joists are 3x8 fir, three 36½ feet long and three 28 feet.

All work was contracted, the cost amounting to about $150 for the screen and $400 for the pergola. By spacing the jobs through spring and early summer and doing some work yourself, you could make a similar improvement and keep the total cost within a smaller budget.

NEW WAYS FLUORIDE CAN PREVENT TOOTH DECAY

Even if your community doesn't have a fluoridated water supply—and even if your permanent teeth are fully formed—you and your children can still benefit from fluorides, which are now available in many different forms.

First, your entire family can benefit by using a fluoride toothpaste, even if your water is fluoridated. No matter what your age or the condition of your teeth, the fluoride in properly prepared toothpastes can help protect against further decay.

Several fluoride-containing toothpastes have been recognized by the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Therapeutics as effective in reducing tooth decay by about 20 percent. These toothpastes are made with a carefully formulated stannous-fluoride preparation. However, you should keep in mind that to be truly effective these toothpastes should be used in combination with a program of good oral hygiene—proper diet, careful brushing, and regular visits to the dentist.

Your dentist can provide further protection against decay by cleaning your teeth once or twice a year with an abrasive paste containing fluoride, then coating them for a few minutes or less with a fluoride solution.

For children, periodic application of a fluoride solution from age three into the teen years can result in about 40 percent fewer cavities. For adults, the combined use of fluoridated toothpaste, abrasive paste, and fluoride solution may produce a substantial reduction in new decay. These fluoride applications are safe and helpful for both children and adults, regardless of whether their water supply is fluoridated.

Fluorides in water eventually become part of the structure of a child's teeth as they are formed, giving the child lifelong protection against decay. Once the permanent teeth are fully formed, fluoride in water has less protective value. However, applying fluoride directly to the teeth—as with the paste or solution—can help because this results in the formation of a decay-resisting compound on the tooth surfaces.

But what if your water supply is not fluoridated, or if the amount of fluoride naturally occurring in your water supply is less than that recommended by the Public Health Service for your area? (Check the latter item with your dentist, the local dental society, or the city health department.) In these cases, you may want to supplement the fluoride in your child's diet.

A physician or dentist can prescribe fluorides as pills, drops, chewable tablets, lozenges, or in combination with vitamins if a vitamin deficiency exists. Whatever is prescribed, the dosage will be adjusted according to the age of the child and the amount of fluoride already in his water supply. These dietary fluorides must be taken regularly for many years in the amounts prescribed—no more, no less. So treat your child's fluoride prescription like medicine and store it out of reach of small hands.

Some dentists are studying the use of a plastic device somewhat similar to an athlete's mouthguard to apply fluoride to children's teeth in schools. The mouthpiece, which only a dentist or a dental hygienist should fit to your child's mouth, is filled with a gel that contains 1.1 percent of sodium fluoride. In one study, fluoride-containing mouthpiece reduced cavities by 80 percent among children who used it for six minutes a day during the school year.

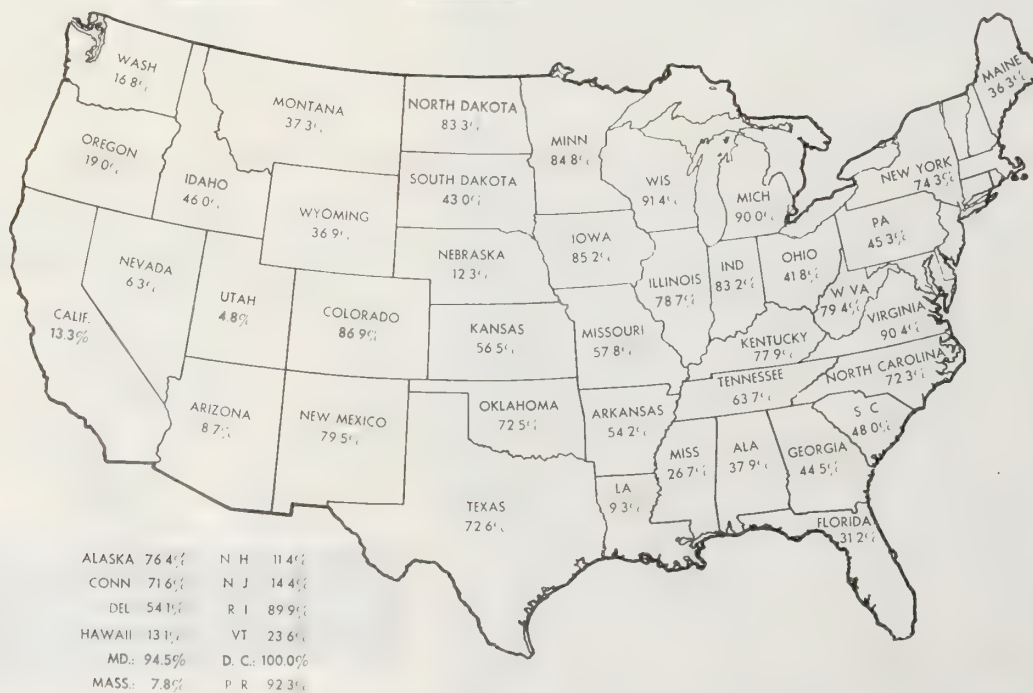

Your dentist may soon be using a combination of fluoride and phosphate to protect your teeth, since recent studies indicate that this combination is slightly more effective than fluoride alone.

Before too long, you may also be able to purchase breakfast cereals to which phosphate has been added. According to recent tests, eating these cereals regularly can reduce tooth decay in adults as well as in children. You can't buy the cereals now, but the Federal Food and Drug Administration is evaluating the test results to see if phosphated cereals can justifiably be marketed for the general public as decay preventives.

If you live in a rural area where community fluoridation is not feasible, you may be interested in purchasing a home fluoridation unit. If so, it's very important that you have it checked regularly by a qualified serviceman or engineer. Be sure it is adding the proper amount of fluoride to your water.

Remember, though, that a community fluoridated water supply is still the cheapest, most effective, and most convenient way of protecting your children's teeth. There is no valid reason why a community should not provide this public health measure. Concerned parents can share their share by helping to get a local fluoridation program in operation. So far, 15 states are now considering laws to make fluoridation mandatory for all communities. Only half of the American people live in areas which have fluoridated water supplies (check our map for your state's figure). Among that fortunate half, youngsters whose teeth are still in formative stages are the chief beneficiaries of the decay-resisting effects of fluoride. Adults who have grown up drinking fluoridated water are likely to have up to 65 percent fewer cavities than those living in non-fluoridated areas.

There may be an unexpected bonus from such a community program. Some dentists have suggested that adults who drink fluoridated water are less likely to suffer from debilitating bone and blood vessel diseases in their retirement years. ■

The number within each state refers to the percentage of its population having public water supplies with natural or controlled fluoridation, as of December 31, 1967.

ART TRICKS H CARDS

Don't throw away that deck of playing cards because they look too shabby for next bridge party. Cards can be used for playing in many decorative and interesting ways.

Give an interesting wall by using cards for a "suit-side" effect. Turn some out, and let show their colorful pattern. Or use just the decorative of the card for color interesting pattern.

family or game room, with worn tabletops with cards. Arrange them on a sheet of glass or paste on surface with an adhesive. Another good use: a folding screen to set "card playing" corner in room.

Amusing wall hanging, perfect hands one might dream about in poker, and other popular games.

Another good decorating idea: turn an old wastebasket into a card holder. Cover with coats of shellac. This method can be used on a rectangular serving tray. Arrange the cards in a decorative pattern.

For your next card party, use paper matchbooks with King, Queen, and Jack. Invitations to parties can be written on the faces of non-court cards. Especially appropriate for Valentine's Day party, in case you'd use "heart" cards.)

For special parties, use cards as eye-catching mobiles, placecards, or decorative placecards at the lunch table.

Cards to other uses about the home library to be bookmarks.

For sending snapshots in a slip prints between friends, use cards to protect back photographs in a purse or wallet with prevent wrinkling.

For family fun, keep an old deck in the glove compartment of the car for picnics at the beach.

For a pack or two for the when they're confined a lap tray is a help for a care or card-building your child's illness is the cards can be used when the isolation.

Half is not enough. Just try making half of your budget stretch to cover all the expenses for a month; it won't do the job.

Social Security can't do the job alone either because it was never intended to provide for more than part of lost income—whether that loss is due to death, retirement or disability of the breadwinner.

Your Lutheran Mutual agent can show you how to provide the rest. His business is solving loss-of-income problems.

HOW GOOD IS YOUR COMPANY'S PENSION PLAN?

Pension plans vary widely from industry to industry—and especially from company to company. Yet studies by the U.S. Labor Department, the Pension Research Council, and other groups show that good plans have many similar characteristics. Check the points below to see how yours stacks up.

- When can you retire? Under most plans, you retire at 65. But nearly all also permit early retirement at 60 or 62 (some even at 55). A few allow deferred retirement at 68 or 70 with company consent. In early retirement, though, you generally have to take a reduced pension, ranging from two to six percent less for each year under 65. Thus if your plan calls for a four-percent-a-year reduction, you get 92 percent of your pension at age 63.

- How much will your pension amount to? A good plan should give salaried employees at least half their final salary at age 65—after 30 or 35 years of continuous service. For hourly-rate workers, some formulas provide four or five dollars a month for each year of employment, possibly with some extras. A 30-year employee then would get $120 to $150 per month or more.

Many pensions are supplemented by social security benefits. Say you retire at 62 on a pension of $300 a month; you also are entitled to social security of $125 a month. Instead of your getting both ($425 a month), the $125 is absorbed into your $300 pension. However, more and more plans now provide both pension and social security benefits.

- Can you retire on disability? A growing number of pensions have such a provision. It generally applies to employees 50 or 55 years old with at least 20 to 25 years of continuous employment. The benefits often are the same as for early retirement and are boosted to the regular retirement level when the employee reaches normal retirement age.

- Are there death benefits? Many companies pay none through the pension plan, but make them available through their group life insurance program. In others, the pension plan refunds your pension contributions—or provides a lump sum payment of six months' to two years' salary. These death benefits usually are limited to older employees.

- Can you name a beneficiary for your pension? Some plans allow this, but then you usually must take a reduced pension while you're living. In return, your beneficiary (usually your wife) is guaranteed pension benefits for life. The amount generally is based on a percentage of your reduced pension.

- What happens if you leave, or your job is terminated before you're eligible? An increasing number of plans today permit you to "vest" or retain the pension benefits you've built up. Most restrict this privilege to employees 40 to 50 years old who have had 10 to 20 years of continuous service. In a few cases, benefits may be available upon job termination; in others, you get them at early or normal retirement age.

- Is your pension transferable to another company? Except for some civil service jobs and instances where unions negotiate multi-employer pension agreements, it isn't.

- Can the company curtail or discontinue the plan? Yes. The most common reasons are "business necessity" (i.e. bankruptcy), change of ownership, or inability to continue contributions. If the plan was approved by the Internal Revenue Service—as most plans are—the existing pension funds must be used for accrued employee benefits. ■

THE RIGHT WAY TO DO A TREE WELL

If you're planning to fill and grade the soil around a tree, proceed with caution. Too many fine shade trees have died when roots were smothered by fill-in. You can save your tree by taking the following steps.

This diagram shows how to provide for proper drainage and air circulation. First step is to spread tree food while the roots are nearer the surface than they will be after the fill-in. Next, lay four-inch drain tiles (A) end to end, starting about 16 inches from the trunk and running to the drip line of the branches. Drop outer end a foot lower than near trunk. Use same size tile in a circle to connect radials. At each juncture of circle and a radial, stand a six-inch bell tile (B), held erect with a pile of stones. Use stone, broken concrete, or brick to construct an open-jointed wall (C) around trunk of the tree, starting two feet from trunk and rising to the intended level.

Drawings: Sullivan

This profile shows what your project will be like before fill is added. Cover all ground-tile ducts (A) with coarse material—such as small rocks and stones, a layer of crushed rock then small gravel—to within about a foot of the top of the grade. Finish off with a thin layer of hay or similar porous material to prevent air spaces from being sealed. Now cover everything to the desired level with good topsoil. Cover tile openings in tree well with stones to prevent clogging. Cap bell tiles (B) with screen wire. To keep people from "droppin in," cover the whole well with an iron grate.

SOMETHING FROM NOTHING

The graceful arch and fluted columns which frame this niche dictate the very elegant decorating style. A richly patterned fabric covers the wall and sets this area apart from the rest of the room. Mirror frames and statuary reflect the opulent design of the wall covering. Small accessories are grouped interestingly on the glass shelf except when room is used for impromptu dining and shelf doubles as a buffet server.

For a less costly but still distinctive treatment substitute a plywood shelf—for the glass one—then paint it and the arch in the predominant color of the wallpapered background.

A poorly proportioned recess in the family room was put to work as a compact and workable home office. Working desk provides ample writing surface plus essential storage, yet occupies minimum floor space so it doesn't hamper the flow of room-to-room traffic. Staggered shelves put books within easy reach and enhance pattern already present in paneled walls and brick fireplace. Asphalt tile with a cool look provides easy-care and adds another pattern element.

Photograph: Lisanti, Source: Susan Jones M

Built-ins are an excellent way to utilize a recessed space that might otherwise be completely wasted. In this boy's bedroom, a closet and wall projection from an adjacent room created a hard-to-furnish niche. The solution: a custom-built chest that fills the area and adds needed storage.

To give the niche added impact, you could wallpaper it in a plaid, check or stripe pattern. Or, cover the wall in burlap for a textured effect, and paint the chest a bright accent color.

Every airline promises you a great vacation. But TWA backs it up with a million dollars.

The best plans in the world don't mean a thing, without the service to make it work.

So this year, TWA has promised its people a million dollar bonus if they give you exceptional service anywhere in the U.S.A.

It's all part of our great summer vacation plan to make you happier than the other airlines, and our people are behind it one million per cent with more than just service.

We have some incredibly low Family Fares and a fantastic assortment of vacation packages for you to choose from, called TWA Adventures East and West. You'll not only be amazed with all the things you'll be able to see and do, but at the prices you'll be able to see and do them at. And with our TWA Discount Book, the $100 worth of coupons will save you even more money while you're there.

We're even prepared for children. On the plane* we have hot dogs, hamburgers, books, games and a special stereo channel with songs and stories. For infants, there're bottle warmers, bassinets and diapers.

You can charge the trip with your TWA Worldwide Jet Credit Card, and take up to 2 years to pay.

So bring the wife, the kids, the baby, golf clubs, water skis. TWA will handle it all, and, with pleasure. After all, with TWA's bonus plan, the success of your vacation could mean as much to our people as it does to you.

NAPKIN TRICKS

Photographs: Hopkins

Most of the elaborate napkin folds you see in foreign table settings are far too complicated for our fast-paced entertaining schedules. But there are dramatic and relatively uncomplicated ways you can show off napkins on your party table. (You'll find these tricks especially helpful when flowers are scarce.) In addition to the folds we have shown, don't overlook the froth of napkin in a tumbler, the brilliant square in the center of a plate or the triangular or tube shape nestling beside a fork. You'll gather added interest with gaudy prints (made from yard goods remnants), a rainbow array for buffet, or a gorgeously confident collection of dissimilar patterns each bordered with black feather stitching just to show this was no accident! Try the four magician-fast folds, then go on to create your own.

Above: Boot and stocking fold. Spread napkin and fold into a narrow strip diagonally. Take one point and tie a knot four inches from the tip. Spread material to look like a foot. Fold the rest of the fabric under to resemble the rest of the boot. Try this napkin fold with bright plaids, checks.

Left: Candle flame quartet. You'll find this arrangement of flamboyant napkins makes a successful focal point on a long buffet table. Press out creases in a starched linen or starched napkin. Lay flat and fold one corner into a right-angle triangle. Start rolling from the end of the triangle, keeping the roll even with the long side of the triangle. Stuff ends into napkin rings which serve as stands. Add small bowls of greens or flowers at either end if desired.

Below left: Polka dot lotus. So easy to do, you can enlist your youngsters as assistants. Hold a freshly starched napkin by the four corners, shake out till you reach the center point, then pull through a medium-sized curtain ring. Combine with tropical-flowered plastic plates and a low centerpiece.

Below right: Envelope fold. Turn one side up four or five inches. Fold down on the end the opposite way. Pull the two other sides underneath, leaving a rectangular pocket for silver. For crowded seating this assures each guest he has his own silver and napkin.

"Foster Farms chickens are 50 years behind the times - and every day we work hard to keep it that way"

"Out in the valley, we haven't forgotten how Sunday dinner used to taste at grandma's house.

We kids used to walk in that steamy kitchen, fluff off our mittens and checkers, cheeks all red from the cold. And there'd be the coffee and pictures on the walls, and a big shiny stove.

"And ah, those smells! Homemade rolls hot from the oven. Real garden vegetables. Pies cooling on the table. The chicken golden on the outside, crisp and tender inside, nestled among carrots and onions and dumplings. The kind of dinner you can close your eyes and remember any time you get a little hungry.

We haven't forgotten, no sir. We've increased the size of the fryers to nowadays you get more meat and they're a little more moist and tender. You still get all the flavor that comes from corn feeding, and we're still up before the rooster crows to get the chickens to your store good and fresh.

"It sure isn't easy staying fifty years behind the times, but we think it's worth it.

"Next time, look for our chicken, then tell us what you think."

HOW TO CHOOSE A WATER PURIFIER

How good is the drinking water in your home? Does it have a musty flavor or can you taste chlorine? In case you've forgotten how good pure water tastes, make this simple test. Purchase a bottle of distilled water from grocer or druggist. Use it for ice cubes, perking coffee, preparing frozen juice, making soup from can or mix, cooking vegetables. This will help you decide how much a water purifier can mean to your family.

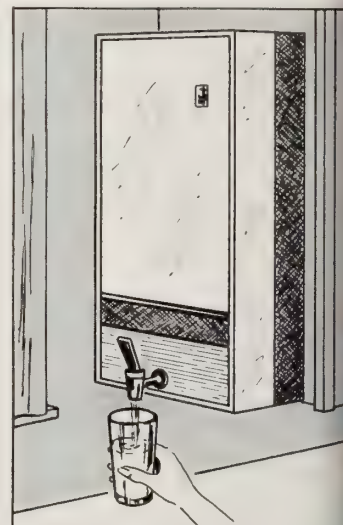

To enjoy the advantages of good-tasting water, you need not fill the larder with bottled water. A home water purifier will do the job easily and economically. For example, a simple little box like the one above sits on counter, attaches to sink faucet. No plumbing or electrical connections are needed. Just attach to the spigot and tap water will flow through activated charcoal to remove objectionable taste, odor, and discoloration. Prices for this unit start at $25. One that works for both hot and cold water costs under $100 (available in department stores). Replace charcoal cartridges every six to eight months.

Another purifier needs no counter space—it connects, instead, to the cold water pipe beneath the sink. One type of cylinder like this filters out unpleasant taste and odor. A companion model removes rust, sand, dirt, and turbidity. Each costs about $40; cartridge replacements: $3 to $13.

Cylinder type requires less than two hours for a professional installation, including inlet and outlet valves to shut water off for easy cartridge replacement. For maximum life from a cartridge, purchase a $19 kit containing a separate faucet for filtered water only, plus all necessary pipes and parts.

Until recently, no single water softener unit could both soften water and effectively correct such severe problems as iron, sulfur, and acidity. Now there is a multipurpose water conditioner that serves an entire house. It attaches to the main intake pipe to feed treated water into every tap—both hot and cold—in your home. Rent this for $10 per month, or purchase one for about $450 plus installation.

The most promising new development in water treatment is used in the above compact appliance, ideal for kitchens. It costs $200 plus installation, rents for $6.50 monthly.

This purifier uses a simple but efficient technique called "reverse osmosis," and operates without chemicals. A cellulose acetate membrane removes cloudiness, rust, detergent salt, bad taste (including chlorine), and water hardness—without use of salt or chemicals.

No electrical connections are needed; water pressure alone operates this device which connects directly to a cold water pipe. Its purified water is automatically replenished when drawn from the tap.

If you choose this new appliance, your family will enjoy the benefits of pure water for drinking, cooking, and hobbies, too. It's great for houseplants, photo developing, steam irons and vaporizers, boat and automobile batteries, and household aquariums.

How to track down bugs and weeds

Suburban Power Sprayer

Equipment for your first encounter
Forget the rifle—it's not lions you want.

You're after the bugs, weeds and plant diseases that threaten your lawn and garden.

Your ammunition: pesticides. Your weapons: Hudson sprayers and dusters—the ones that put the pesticide exactly where it's needed for best results.

Choose from these:

Hudson compression sprayers. Best for average-size yards. They're versatile—spray flowers, shrubs, small trees, lawn. Easy to use. Easy to spray under leaves where bugs hide.

Hudson dusters. Rather dust? Admiral* dusters cover plants thoroughly—even undersides of leaves—with a fine, enveloping cloud.

Trombone® sprayers. They spray at high pressure, reach to tops of 25-foot trees. Pump pesticide from any container. Great for close-up spraying on flowers and shrubs, too.

Hudson power sprayers. Let power take over on big jobs. Just fill tank, start engine. Choose 10-gallon Spra-Boy®, 12½-gallon Suburban* or up to 50-gallon Matador®.

Our way vs. other methods of hunting

Ours is the precision way to apply pesticides. It's the way to get best results—no harmful drenching, no wasteful spreading.

With a Hudson sprayer, you control:

1. Pesticide mix. So you can apply materials at recommended strength.
2. Spray pressure. You can use higher pressure for complete coverage of plants. Or use lower pressure with weed-killers to prevent drift.

Admiral Duster

3. Spray pattern. You can adjust nozzle to just the right pattern, from fine mist to long-range stream.

When to start hunting

Some people spray or dust only when they spot trouble—aphids on stems, holes in leaves, drooping plants.

Trouble is, damage is already done. Besides, many bugs and plant diseases are under leaves. It's hard to spot them. That's why many experts use an ounce of prevention. They start protecting all plants in early spring. Apply spray or dust—whether there's trouble or not. They follow this routine every week or 10 days all season long.

Now about those trophies
They'll be outside—

Trombone® Sprayer

Before you buy any wagon, think twice...Dodge did.

Dodge had "second thoughts" about the new Monaco wagon—they went something like this:

An optional dual air-conditioning system, with a rear unit to keep those in the back cool.

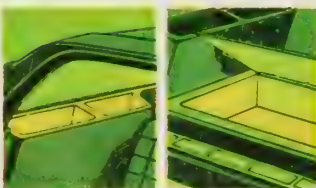

New Monaco gives a real brake to those who keep things in tow:

optional heavy-duty drum brakes or front disc brakes.

Monaco's Dual Action tailgate really swings—out for people, down for bulky loads (like a 4-by 8-foot plywood sheet).

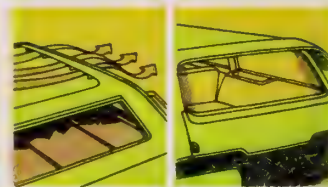

For versatile storage, Monaco really has you covered, with two rear storage compartments—

one right up where you can get at it, another where uninvited people can't. (Hint: Peek under the floor.)

And if you're inclined to recline, be Monaco's guest. The new optional reclining front passenger seat is waiting. Just flip a switch, sit back, listen to a little stereo. Speaking of stereo, Monaco offers that, too—an optional 8-track stereo-tape player is available. AM? FM? You get both with Monaco's optional AM-FM radio, featuring FM multiplex.

The wind spoiler keeps road dust and fumes away from the rear window. For smudge marks, the optional tailgate window washer and wiper keeps the window clean, with just the press of a dash button.

Good grief, we haven't even mentioned the optional Trailer-Towing Package . . . and . . .

Catch a wagonload . . .

Boat rental agencies across the land offer approximately the same equipment and facilities. Rates for a houseboat range from $245 to $325 a week. Here are the top ten houseboating waters in the country: Continued

TAKE YOUR FAMILY HOUSEBOATING

Houseboating has become one of the country's happiest vacation pursuits. It combines the best elements of both camping and water sports, and it's one of the best means we know to guarantee uncrowded vacationing. Fleets of houseboats ply waters from the lakes of northern Minnesota and Wisconsin to Florida's Everglades and California's lakes and river deltas. Now there are over 50 outfitters across the country that rent these boats. Read on to see how a Better Homes and Gardens family fared on their own houseboat adventure.

Florida Everglades—Houseboaters explore the remote glades of this 2,100-square-mile subtropical, half-land, half-water national park. Many families favor the Shark River country, where the wildlife is spectacular and there are numerous winding creeks to explore.

Southern Highland Lakes—The International Houseboat Derby on Georgia's Lake Lanier has drawn up to 80 boats. TVA and other man-made lakes from Georgia through Tennessee and from Kentucky to Arkansas and Missouri offer superb houseboating, with the accent on fishing and swimming.

Thousand Islands—The idyllic Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence River are home to scores of houseboats, which roam the back channels along historic shores. You can also cruise New York State's fabled Barge Canal and Lake Champlain.

Father of Waters—Houseboats rented at such Mississippi River ports as Dubuque, Iowa, and La Crosse, Wisconsin, promenade up and down the river. Sandbar picnics, fishing, swimming, and lazy idling on back lagoons provide happy hours. Houseboaters in the main channels must keep an eye open for barges and fast cruisers. There's more good houseboating on such tributaries as the St. Croix, the Missouri, Illinois, and Ohio. Some houseboats make the river run from the Midwest clear down to New Orleans.

North Woods—Rainy Lake, Minnesota, and other pine-encircled lakes of northern Minnesota and Wisconsin are among the most popular of all houseboat areas. Good fishing and hunting in season—navigating the routes of the voyageurs—and the carefree life make this region tops for houseboating.

West Coast Deltas—You can poke into the thousand miles of waterways which crisscross deltas of the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers in California. Some 70 rental houseboats ply waters with names like Steamboat and Disappointment.

California Mountain Lakes—Shasta and Trinity Lakes in the big pine country of northern California contain their own fleets of rental houseboats. The rugged mountain scenery is as magnificent as any on the continent.

San Juan Islands—The 3,000 miles of protected inland waters of Puget Sound make the Northwest a houseboater's paradise. The San Juan and comparable Canadian islands are picturesque nightly tie-ups for houseboating families.

Idaho's Coeur D'Alene—Houseboaters swim and fish off their boat's "porch" in Lake Coeur D'Alene, which is one of the most beautiful lakes in the land. There are many beaches for sunning and two rivers to cruise.

Heart of Florida Lakes—The blue lakes of central Florida, set down among the orange groves, are prime houseboating and fishing country. Some boaters prefer the lazy waters of the St. Johns River, the only major river in this part of the United States which flows north.

For information on rental houseboats in the region of your choice, write: International Houseboat Manufacturers Association, Box 610, Jeffersonville, Indiana 47130. Do your trip planning early, because most boat rental agencies require reservations well in advance.

EXPLORING THE LAND OF THE MAYAS IN MEXICO

In Yucatan, archaeology comes to life before your eyes. Although their great pre-Columbian cities lie in ruin, many of the ancient traditions of the Mayas still survive. In the countryside, you'll discover Mayas who even today inhabit plastered mud and wattle huts with thatched roofs, and practice slash-and-burn farming methods. Many of them dress in the traditional white garments and speak their ancient tongue. The small Mayan boy who shines your shoes in the plaza at Merida looks up at you with an enigmatic grin that could have come from a frieze on the crumbling walls of nearby Chichen Itza or Uxmal.

Yucatan has long been the richest treasure house of ruins in archaeologically rich Mexico. In the 1840s, John L. Stephens and Francis Catherwood explored, sketched, and wrote about the incredible lost cities hidden in fever-ridden jungles. Today, this showcase of the Indian past is only a modest airline trip from Mexico City. You can stay in air-conditioned deluxe hotels such as the Merida, the Colon, or the Pan Americana in Merida. (Five new hotels are now under construction there.) The fabled ruins of Chichen Itza, Uxmal, and Izamal are all easily accessible.

At Chichen Itza, you can stay at the luxurious Hotel Mayaland, Hacienda Chichen, or new Hotel Chichen Itza; swim in a tempting pool; and dine on the finest of cuisine. Then stroll over to Las Monjas and the other incredible sights of this once-great Mayan city: the Temple of the Warriors, the Round Tower, the Great Temple of Kukulcan. At Uxmal, 58 miles south of Merida by bus or taxi, are the Nunnery, the Governor's Palace, and the House of the Prophet atop its towering pyramid.

Take time to visit some of the lesser known ruins, too. It is a 21-mile journey by jeep over a stony track from Uxmal to Sayil. Also in this area are Labna and Xlah-Pak. Kabah, 12 miles from Uxmal, is right on the Merida-Campeche highway and is a must because of the restoration being carried out there. Tulum, which dates from about 435 A.D., can be reached by sea and air from Cozumel or by small plane from Merida.

You also will want to see Dzibilchaltun. A city of 100,000 people as long ago as 1,000 B.C., it contained at least 25,000 buildings—refuting the long-held concept that Mayan cities were only religious centers for an agricultural people.

As a change of pace from visiting the mysterious Mayan past and present, fly from Merida to Cozumel, an idyllic vacation isle only 12 miles off the Yucatan coast. The town of San Miguel has a pair of good hotels and plenty of friendly people, and there are resort hotels at San Juan Beach. Swimming, fishing, skin diving for pirate shipwrecks, and cooking lobsters on San Francisco Beach are the leisurely pursuits. Six miles off the tip of Yucatan is the even more idyllic Isla Mujeres, with two small hotels and beautiful coral reefs and lagoons—a skin diver's delight. This island can be reached by launch from Puerto Juarez on Highway 180.

October to April weather in Yucatan is near perfect, but wear sunglasses because the light can be blinding. In the summer, days are hot, nights cool.

How to get there. Pan American flies to Merida from Miami or New Orleans. American, Eastern, Braniff, Western, Pan Am, Mexicana, and Aeronaves fly from U. S. cities to Mexico City, connecting with Aero Maya or Compania Mexicana de Aviacion to Merida. Ferrocarril del Sureste and Autobuses de Oriente provide train and bus service to Merida from Mexico City. For trip planning details, see a travel agent.

STATE PARKS

WHERE YOU DON'T HAVE TO ROUGH IT

Even if yours is not a camping family, don't cross state parks off your summer vacation list. There are a surprising number of state park systems that are far from being an exclusive domain for campers or rugged outdoorsmen, but are actually great family recreation resorts. In fact, you can't classify your accommodations as "roughing it"; some state park lodges are downright luxurious.

Take Cacapon State Park near Berkeley Springs in West Virginia, for instance. George Washington wrote to his friends about this beautiful area. Cacapon Mountain dominates the view from anywhere on the broad plain beneath it, and today's park is laced with hiking and bridle trails, scenic vistas, and a lake for swimming, fishing, and boating.

The lodge at Cacapon sits in a picturesque valley. It is air conditioned and has 50 modern guest rooms with private baths and dormer windows that afford private panoramas of this magnificent landscape. Public rooms include a walnut-paneled lounge with a huge fireplace, a club room, snack canteen open 24 hours a day, rec room for dancing, table tennis, shuffleboard, and other games—and a restaurant where you'll find native dishes like buckwheat or blueberry pancakes and country ham. You might prefer to stay in the Old Inn; this rough-hewn log building resembles an overnight tavern of the 1700s, with rooms paneled in chestnut and knotty pine. Vacation cabins at the park run from economy to deluxe, but all are completely furnished for light housekeeping with utilities, cooking utensils, dishes, towels, and bed linens.

The tab for these comfortable accommodations is quite reasonable. Guest rooms at the lodge cost about $17 a day for four in a room; the inn rooms are $6-$8 daily for a double; standard cabins rent for about $80 a week for four.

At resort-style state parks, there is a wide range of planned recreational activities for summer guests. You'll never lack for something to do, but you can also find solitude for total relaxation if you prefer. For a great family vacation you can't beat parks in these states:

West Virginia—Besides Cacapon, the state has ten state parks with lodges or cabins; several boast fine swimming pools or beaches. Other recreational activities available include boating, riding, hiking, playgrounds, picnic areas, nature programs, and an array of outdoor games like badminton, volleyball, archery, and croquet.

Room rates in park lodges run from about $9 a day single to $17 a day for four; cabins, about $80 a week for four. Make reservations for summer months well in advance.

The top resort-style parks are Cacapon and Blackwater Falls (both have lodges and cabins); North Bend, Mont Chatteau, and Hawks Nest (lodges but no cabins); and Babcock, Bluestone, Holly River, Lost River, Tygart Lake, and Watoga (all have cabins). For more information, write: West Virginia Department of Commerce, Room 404 East, State Capitol, Charleston, West Virginia 25305.

Kentucky—Irvin S. Cobb once said if it cannot be found in Kentucky, it cannot be found. While this might be a little far-fetched, the statement could well be applied to Kentucky's state park system, acclaimed as one of the greatest at a price to fit every pocketbook.

Of Kentucky's 36 state parks, 12 are designated resort vacation areas with plush lodges and cabins, full dining room service, and a wide range of recreational activities. Lodge rates are $10 single, $16 double; cabins, about $24 a day for four. Make reservations for summer months by March 1.

The resort parks are Buckhorn Lake, General Butler, Carter Caves, Cumberland Falls, Jenny Wiley, Lake Cumberland, Kenlake, Kentucky Dam Village on Kentucky Lake, Natural Bridge, Pennyrile Forest, Pine Mountain, and Rough River Dam. For more information, write: Kentucky Travel Division, Department of Public Information, State Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Tennessee—Days of Davy Crockett are long gone, but in some parts of Tennessee, particularly the state parks, the scenic splendor has changed little since Crockett's time.

Today, nearly all of Tennessee's 22 state parks have vacation cabins. Three—Montgomery Bell, Paris Landing, Henry Horton—have lodges; and two others—Fall Creek Falls, Pickwick Landing Dam—will offer lodge accommodations by the spring of 1971.

Rates in park lodges run from $8 single to $14 for four persons; cabins, from $70 a week for four. Reservations for the summer months should be made no later than May 1.

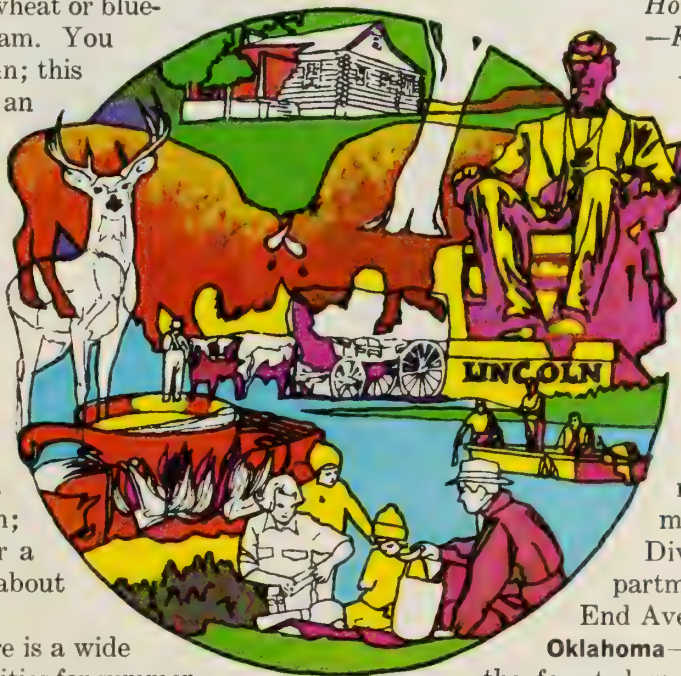

Paris Landing, the finest park, is on the west bank of Kentucky Lake; it offers sailing, motorboating, fishing, water skiing, swimming, and the full range of other park activities. For more information, write: Tennessee Division of Tourist Information, Department of Conservation, 2611 West End Avenue, Nashville, Tennessee 37203.

Oklahoma—The state's 22 parks stretch from the forested mountains in the east to the rock cliffs of the mesa country in the west, and they include the best of vacation activities—water sports, hiking, riding, fishing, golfing. Sequoyah state park even provides a year-round heated fishing dock, stage-coach rides, and great chuckwagon parties. All but six of the parks offer resort-style accommodations ranging from posh lodges to unusual tree-house cabins, duplexes, and rustic housekeeping cabins. Every state park lodge is set on the shore of a sparkling lake.

All the parks are open year-round. Rates range from about $13 a night double in the lodges to about $85 a week for four in a cabin. There are lodge rate reductions for a stay of seven days or more, and general reductions on all accommodations in the fall and winter seasons.

Parks with lodges and cabins are Roman Nose, Quartz Mountain, Fountainhead, Arrowhead, Lake Murray, Texoma, and Sequoyah. Those with cabins only are Boiling Springs, Osage Hills, Greenleaf, Tenkiller, Robber's Cave, Lake Wister, Great Salt Plains, and Beaver's Bend. SHOPPING FOR MOUNTAIN CRAFTS IN NORTH CAROLINA

The Blue Ridge Parkway in western North Carolina cuts through a land of many uncommon pleasures for travelers—an ideal climate, rugged mountains, sheltered valleys, scenic lakes, camping and recreational areas, and a fascinating collection of towns and shops where you can find the delightful work of mountain craftsmen. Their handicrafts—from fine dulcimers, banjos and guitars, to furniture, dolls, and loomed goods—are available in many shops along the parkway. At some stops, you can watch the craftsmen at their workbenches and looms.

Begin your tour of this land of crafts from either the south or north. We started from the north in order to end our journey in Asheville, a lovely mountain city with excellent overnight accommodations and a center for the sale and display of the crafts of the Southern Highlands.

The Blue Ridge Parkway is literally the “backbone” of the great scenic region that embraces the southern (and highest) portion of the Appalachian mountain range. For 469 miles it follows the highest ridges between the Shenandoah and the Great Smoky Mountains national parks, attaining altitudes of over 5,000 feet and averaging between 3,000 and 4,000 feet. It's designed for gypsy-like travel on a ride-awhile, stop-awhile basis—with numerous overlooks, parking areas, and lodges for overnight stays. You may leave or enter the parkway at a number of state and federal highway interchanges. For a map directory of accommodations and attractions along the parkway, write: Superintendent, Blue Ridge Parkway, P. O. Box 1710, Roanoke, Virginia 24008.

Your first crafts stop on the North Carolina portion of the parkway is at the Brineger Cabin in Doughton Park. From May through October, you can watch handweaving demonstrations on an antique loom in the cabin, and purchase small handicrafts—wood carvings, woven goods, ceramics, and baskets. A tour of the grounds will give you a good glimpse, too, into mountain life of the 1800s.

Several miles south of Brineger Cabin visit Wildcat Rocks, from which you can look down 1,500 feet on what was once a mountain family homestead, now a dramatic exhibit of isolated mountain life.

Next, stop at the Northwest Trading Post on the parkway near Glendale Springs. This shop is an outlet of the Northwest North Carolina Development Association, Inc. It features the region's fine homebaked foods, sugar cured hams, sourwood honey, antiques, and handicrafts—from banjos, chests, and chairs, to rag dolls, wooden puzzles, games, and the crookedest looking canes you'll see anywhere (made from the branches of mountain laurel and other native trees). The trading post is your best bet for crafts shopping outside of Asheville. Prices range from 50c to $100.

At the U. S. 421 junction is the Overlook Motel and Gift Shop. Each unit of this motel (at 3,500-foot elevation) overlooks 50 miles of mountain peaks. In the adjacent gift shop are handmade pottery items, hand-blown glass, and other locally made souvenirs. Near here are the resort communities of Boone and Blowing Rock, where you'll find plenty of comfortable overnight accommodations, along with interesting crafts shops—like Blowing Rock Crafts, home of the Goodwin Guild weavers since 1812. Here you can watch master weavers at work, and buy authentic hand-loom pattern reproductions of early American coverlets, afghans, place mats and tablecloths.

Your next stop on the parkway is at the Moses H. Cone Memorial Park, a 3,600-acre park laced with horse and carriage trails. The adjoining Julian Price Memorial Park has excellent campground, picnic, fishing, and hiking facilities. At Cone Park is Parkway Crafts Center (open May through October), where you can watch working members of the Southern Highlands Handicraft Guild and shop for the finest in mountain handicrafts. However, the items for sale are often classed as works of art and priced accordingly. You won't find as many of the doodads and novelty items here as you'll see at some other crafts shops. 6

About 13 miles northwest of the parkway near Spruce Pine is the Penland School of Crafts, which teaches weaving, pottery, metalwork, enameling, and graphics. Many people take their vacations at this summer school.

There is a small gift shop, and visitors are welcome to watch the students at work. But the output here is more art than mountaineers' handiwork.

Between the parkway and Spruce Pine on Rt. 226 is Woody's Chair Shop, where the fifth generation of this family of chairmakers carries on the work. No nails or glue are used in the main structure of their colonial-design chairs. And not far north of the parkway on Rt. 80 is Celo, a Quaker settlement where you'll find a candle shop reputed to have the largest collection of handmade candles in the world.

At Mt. Mitchell State Park, stop and climb to the summit of this highest peak in eastern America (6,684 feet). Near the parking area just below the summit, there's a Southern Appalachian Studies Craft Shop in the lounge of the restaurant building.

Asheville is headquarters for the Southern Highlands Handicraft Guild, so you're not surprised to find the city dotted with handicraft shops. The guild's two shops here are Allanstand Mountain Crafts and Guild Crafts. Allanstand's, established over 50 years ago, is a landmark in the area. At the Biltmore Handwoven Homespun Shops, you can take a free tour and see homespun created—from fleece to finished fabric. At the Stuart Nye Silver Shop, you watch handcrafters of sterling and copper jewelry at work. Other shops worth visiting are Buckner's Antique and Reproduction Shop, Candlelight Crafts, and the Spinning Wheel American Crafts.

For a week each July, Asheville hosts the Craftsman's Fair of the Southern Highlands. At the fair, craftsmen explain their work and their way of life in these mountains. For more information on this entire region, write: North Carolina Travel and Promotion Division, P. O. Box 2719, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602. ■

WAYS TO SPARK UP A FIREPLACE

Do your building or remodeling plans call for a fireplace? If so, don't settle for the ordinary—these photographs show you how to do it without a terrific investment. To learn how easily fireplaces can be installed these days, see "Fixing up an older home—Fireplaces," page 28.

Right: You can even involve a fireplace in your furniture scheme. This manufactured unit sits on a ceramic-tile table that's 102 inches long by 44 inches wide.

Don't Take Pain To Bed With You

Measurin® is the only leading pain reliever with Timed-Release Action, so one dose at bedtime helps you sleep better at night and wake up without morning stiffness.

ARE you one of the millions of people who sometimes lose sleep at night because of headaches, aching muscles, sore joints, even minor arthritis pain... and then still feel stiff when you get up in the morning. If so, medical science has something especially for you; it's Measurin...the only leading pain reliever with Timed-Release Action to help you sleep better at night and wake without morning stiffness.

Stronger Action. Measurin contains the strongest pain relief ingredient you can buy. Dose for dose, Measurin is so strong it not only gives you fast relief... it keeps on working longer than any of the others, for restful hours of relief. That's right. Measurin is the only pain reliever that, dose for dose, gives you all this: fast relief, stronger action, and longer-lasting action. Timed-Release Action. To do all this, Measurin uses the advanced medical discovery of Timed-Release Action. Each tablet contains over six thousand tiny relief capsules, and has twice the strength of an ordinary aspirin tablet. Some capsules release their strength at once for fast relief. A lot more release their strength gradually to build up stronger action...and to keep on working longer. You don't take Measurin again in four hours, like you so often need to do with the others.

Free trial offer. Measurin can help anyone who has aches and pains that cause sleeplessness, or cause them to wake with morning stiffness. To prove it, we'll send you a free trial package, plus a coupon worth 25¢ on any size. Send your printed name, address and zip code to Measurin, Box 174, Fairview, N. J. 07022. Limit: One to a family. Offer expires June 30, 1969.

The Wash & Wear Floor.

You are looking at one of man's newest discoveries since floors were first invented. A beautiful sheet vinyl floor that just wipes clean.

It's not at all like a tufted floor. And not at all like a conventional vinyl linoleum floor. The GAF floor has a clear non-porous vinyl surface that can't absorb dirt.

But besides washing very quickly, our floors also wear out very slowly. Because we use a thick layer of vinyl and put the pattern underneath the vinyl. The pattern illustrated is Roma and it's based on the traditional cobblestones you see in Italy.

We make it in six warm and sunny colors because we think your home should be warm and sunny too.

We also make hundreds of other patterns because we want to make sure there's one that's just right for you.

If you'd like to see them, just go round to your nearest flooring dealer.* And ask him to show you what he has in wash & wear.

FENCE YOURSELF IN

Everybody needs some privacy these days, outdoors as well as in. A fence offers just the right amount of protection from the hurly-burly world outside. A hedge could do the job for you, if you don't mind waiting a few years, but wood fencing is practically instant.

Architect: Nyberg, Bissner and Burns, A.I.A. Landscape: Yosh Kurimoya

Below left: This attractive eight-foot screen, an extension of the facade of the house, creates a private garden away from neighborhood activity. To build it, use 1x6-inch redwood boards and battens; break the solid expanse at intervals with 22-inch openings to allow for air circulation. Cover each opening with a lattice of 1x2 lumber strips nailed horizontally one inch apart to vertical 2x4s. Oregon-grape holly makes good textural contrast with the wood—upright juniper would serve the purpose in very cold areas. A ground cover hides base of the fence.

Below right: If you really want to enjoy your garden, you have to cut off that grubby association with the utility area. This redwood fence will give you two completely separate worlds. Set 4x4 posts in the ground and level them to hold the structure. Run six 2x2s horizontally between the 4x4s and nail a 2x2 midway between each post—as well as to each side of the posts. Then nail 1x1 strips be-between the 2x2s and your job is nearly done. Finish off the back with sheets of outdoor-grade $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch plywood. Put azaleas to the left of the gate and Burford holly and monkey grass to the right. In cold climates, substitute Froebel spirea, Sarcocoe euonymus, and festuca grass. Above left: If you are disturbed by the driveway view from your garden, here's a fence that can change the scene. Get 4x4 posts and bore a hole into the bottom of each one to receive the pipe foot that you'll sink in concrete. You also have to bore two holes in the pipe and post so they can be bolted together. Run four pairs of 1x2 stringers between the posts, spacing them one inch apart. Nail verticals on opposite sides, alternating 2x2s and $\frac{3}{4}$ x $\frac{3}{4}$ s—for a near-closed effect that allows movement of air. Make the planting simple, but tasteful, for minimum upkeep and a sophisticated look. Above right: If you're plagued by traffic sounds, you can reduce the level of noise and gain privacy by constructing a solid eight-foot-high fence. For durability, use 1x8-inch cypress boards and nail a 1x2 strip at each joint. Cap the top edge with 1x6 redwood and you have a completely rot-resistant fence. Stain it any color you desire. You'll want shrubs to soften and enhance the setting. These are crape-myrtles; in colder areas, substitute privet or honeysuckle. Underlay the pea gravel with plastic sheeting, slit at intervals to allow penetration of moisture—and to cut down the number of ever-germinating weeds. Loose gravel is a sensible extension of the textured concrete walk and serves as a permanent mulch around your plantings. A plant cover would only create maintenance problems.

Take the bite out of garden insects with Isotox.[®] Spray it on roses, flowers, trees, shrubs and around dwellings. Isotox kills mites and chewing insects on contact. Does an inside job on sucking insects. Isotox is absorbed by the leaves and the plant itself. Gives systemic control up to 2 weeks.

New ORTHO[®] Spot Weed and Grass Killer goes after weeds in those tight spots—driveways, sidewalks, walls and around ornamentals. Zaps annual and perennial weeds on contact. Yet won't sterilize the soil. Won't harm innocent by-standers. Like rosebushes. New aerosol can delivers a jet stream with deadly accuracy. You can't miss.

THE MAN NEXT DOOR[®]

"Good heavens, I assumed you would come in a plain wrapper."

Christine notes that with the price of food what it is today, it's completely understandable to cry over spilled milk.

It's funny how a man's attitude can fluctuate regarding frozen dinners. It depends on whether his wife is well or whether he suddenly has to do all the cooking.

Pretty divorcee Elaine Cowan says we've got to do something about foreign cars that keep the same styling for years. She can't tell whether the man behind the wheel is driving something right off the showroom floor or a ten-year-old clunker.

Recalling the golden afternoon when I carved our initials in the big oak in Finney's pasture, Chris maintains young people aren't as romantic these days. My theory is that they're just as romantic, but carrying a knife is now considered a sign of delinquency.

Spring housecleaning in our garage was only half the battle. The other half was stopping neighborhood children from rescuing articles we left for the junkman to pick up.

Man's dream of a perpetual motion device was almost realized in our church Sunday, says Dad Hillis, who explains with a smile that he sat behind a four-year-old boy.

Our county government has worked out a plan to let citizens pay taxes with a charge card. Christine predicts it's only a matter of time until the county gives trading stamps.

Ned Carter's daughter-in-law is so proud of her garden, he hasn't the heart to tell her that if you put tomato plants in the ground there's almost nothing anyone can do to prevent tomatoes.

Teen-agers study things that didn't even have names when I was in school. But to my amazement, they haven't learned you get appendicitis if you bite your fingernails.

Our family saw a far-out movie the other night. Boy met girl, fell in love, ran into complications, got them straightened out, married, then lived happily ever after.

Grandma Hillis says many men who got their start with elbow grease are trying to get by now with pure snake oil.

The edge of bankruptcy can be defined as that period between the day the first child starts kindergarten and the day the last child finishes graduate school.

Bill and Isabel Norman no longer are arguing about whether to replace their wheezing automobile. Another driver took care of that decision when he ran a red light and met them at an intersection.

Christine says I look quite trim these days. According to the fitness chart, she says, I'm at the sluggish seven-year-old level and holding my own very well.

The commencement speaker at our local college advised the seniors never to take themselves so seriously as to attempt a commencement address.

Christine's favorite old beau paid us a visit, with his wife, while driving through town. Pleasant people, but I couldn't figure why Chris enjoyed it so much.

"Because he's such a nice man?" I asked. "No," she replied, "because she's such a fat lady."

Sometimes when I get discouraged about the state of the world, it's comforting to know we're living in what people 40 years from now will call the Good Old Days. I like to believe that the gloomy youngsters who now wear long hair and tight pants will be old fogies then, boring each other with glowing reminiscences of the Sixties.

They'll probably tell their children—who are not likely to be very interested—how you could get a good steak dinner for $6, and a pair of leather shoes for $35.

I can almost hear them: "Automobiles weren't very comfortable, really. They were hard to crawl into and out of, and a bit dangerous to drive, but everyone could have one and you could buy a tank of gas for $5."

Forty years from now, it might even be worth mentioning that in the Sixties a lot of very expensive land was devoted to golf courses, and there were even picnic tables beside many highways. It also may be worth noting that most people still lived in houses with grass and trees around them, and that we grew flowers and children chased fireflies at twilight.

But who'd believe a wild tale like that?

Don't cry, it's an Armstrong vinyl floor.

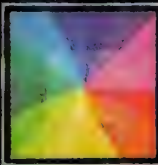

Armstrong created rugged Vinyl Corlon® floors because kitchens don't lead a soft life... especially if there are kids or pets around the house.

You can spill most anything on a Vinyl Corlon floor and never give it a second thought. The floor is nonporous, so the mess can't soak in and hide beneath the surface.

Corlon is more than practical. It has a deep-glow color that makes the whole kitchen come alive. It has a bright, glistening shine that makes the room look sparkling clean.

You'll never cry over an Armstrong Vinyl Corlon floor in your kitchen.

Why did the Philadelphia Biddles, who could afford any dryer in the world, choose a Kenmore from Sears?

The Ernest Biddles, Jr., and their baby daughter, Silsbee, spend lots of time at Ernie's grandparents' pool in Gladwyne, Pa.

But is that a clothes dryer from Sears, Roebuck and Co. in a main line suburb?

"Yes, we were so delighted with our Sears Kenmore we talked Ernie's grandmother into putting a Kenmore dryer near the pool," says Betsy Biddle.

"I'd never had a dryer before Silsbee was born. Now I don't know how I could get along without one. I love taking complete care of my baby—but I hate to iron. Happily, our Kenmore adjusts automatically for permanent pressed clothes. So no more ironing! I just fold the clothes and put them away or right back on Silsbee.

"But, what really sold me on my Kenmore dryer is that it has something called a Wrinkle-Guard. It actually keeps wrinkles from setting in when the drying cycle is through. You know how wrinkles always set in if you're not there when the drying cycle ends.

"Well, my Kenmore keeps tumbling the clothes around after they're dry, giving them a good tumble every 5 minutes, for over 2 hours. So no more wrinkles.

"Oh, I know you can pay more," Betsy Biddle added. "But I don't see how you can get a better dryer than a Sears Kenmore."

JUST HOW MUCH DOES YOUR PERSONAL INSURANCE COVER?

Most home and car owners are insured by package policies designed to cover practically all the contingencies an average family might run into. These policies seem so complete that it's easy to forget that there still may be circumstances where you don't have adequate insurance protection.

For example, say your family owns a few antiques, an heirloom diamond ring or two, or an expensive camera. More often than not, you'll find that homeowner and fire and theft policies won't fully cover these items.

Then too, in many states a homeowner's policy—which includes many coverages in one contract—usually covers some contents only up to 50 percent of the value of the policy. If you have a $20,000 policy on your home, for instance, the contents coverage then would be $10,000. Even a rough inventory of your home today probably would show your belongings, from color television and washer-dryer to sporting equipment, total more than 50 percent of your policy. And remember that when there is a loss, you won't recover the full cost of replacement—instead, except for items like jewelry, everything is depreciated according to the time it's been used.

While you're checking out these personal insurance loopholes, consider these factors too:

Coverage for outboard motorboats normally is limited to $500 in most homeowners policies. If your boat, motor, and equipment are valued above this, you may well need special insurance. Be certain, too, that you have liability protection that covers you while operating (and wing) the boat—and covers anyone you let use the boat and motor as well. And if you store your boat and motor away from your home, you may find theft coverage doesn't apply in all cases.

► Borrowed items, such as a silver serving bowl or service, are covered in most cases by homeowners policies. But check to be sure that personal property you've leased is covered—either by the leasing firm or your own policy (which often is less expensive).

► Many liability policies provided by employers apply only to cars owned by the employer. Thus, if you rent a car, remember the employer-car policy often doesn't extend to rental cars—and a few car rental companies cut costs by providing limited liability coverage. If your own auto insurance liability coverage is ample, though, you can feel comfortable in any rental.

► Many homeowners policies have accident liability limits of $25,000 an incident. In this era of large personal-injury judgments, these limits might not be enough for your family situation. An additional low premium, though, can boost your coverage to $100,000 or more.

To cope with insufficient liability limits, you might also consider the relatively new "umbrella" policy. Designed to supplement the liability protection of the usual personal insurance program, it can be written in amounts up to five million dollars. The premiums range from $50 to $100 a year. If your basic coverage qualifies you for this policy, you can be confident you won't suffer financial disaster from an expensive injury or damage suit.

For the reasons discussed above, you may want to run a quick inventory of your household possessions—and your personal insurance policy. Then check with the agent handling your homeowners insurance to be certain that unusual items are covered—and that the amount of the policy is adequate. If not, a larger or supplementary policy may be in order.

And while you're at it, it wouldn't hurt to discuss your current auto liability coverage with your insurance agent.

HOW MUCH CAN YOU EARN AND STILL COLLECT SOCIAL SECURITY?

Actually, you can earn a good deal of money and still collect social security benefits. And this is true even though social security law permits you to receive full benefits only as long as you earn less than $1,680 a year.

If you earn more than $1,680, you forfeit some benefits. Say you make between $1,680 and $2,880; then you forfeit a dollar in benefits for every two dollars earned. On earnings above $2,880, you forfeit a dollar in benefits for each dollar in earnings. But this isn't the whole story. First, not all your income may be counted as earnings by social security. Private pension payments, interest on savings accounts, dividends on stocks, profits on the sale of securities, and rents and royalties—none of these is considered earnings, and you're not penalized for them.

Second, a key clause in social security law permits you to collect full benefits in any month that your earnings are not more than $140 a month. This applies no matter how much money you earn in the other months. Assume you earn $3,000 during four summer months, and then don't work the other eight months. Continued

Editor's Note: From time to time, it pays to check your social security record—and this is especially true if you've changed employers often. To find out just what your social security earnings status is right now, fill out the coupon on this page. Then put it in an envelope and mail to: Consumer Services, c/o Better Homes and Gardens, 1716 Locust, Des Moines, Iowa 50303.

According to law, you can collect full social security benefits for those eight months.

A third important and often overlooked rule covers self-employed persons—businessmen, salesmen, professionals, carpenters—who reach 65 but continue to work some. In these instances, you can collect your full monthly benefits, regardless of total earnings during the year, for any month you show you are not performing substantial services. This means a retired individual in business for himself can work part of a month, earn up to $3,000 or $4,000 or more, and receive full social security benefits.

But to work and get full benefits, a self-employed individual has to show that he was substantially retired during the period. Then it's up to the social security examiner handling the case to make the decision. He'll weigh such items as: whether the retired person worked less than 45 hours a month (if he worked over 45, his benefits may be withheld or adjusted); what levels of skill were involved in the work; how much money the individual has invested in the business; how his work compared with the job he had before he retired.

Because of these social security provisions, many self-employed people today receive considerably over $1,680 a year and still collect benefits. So if you reach retirement age and plan to keep working, don't automatically assume you'll lose your benefits. Instead, apply for benefits and leave it up to the social security office to decide whether your benefits will be adjusted. (Of course, when you reach age 72, you can earn as much as you want and still draw full benefits.)

ARE YOU SURE YOUR HOSPITAL QUALIFIES UNDER YOUR HEALTH INSURANCE POLICY?

To collect on your hospital-expense policy, you must be treated in a hospital that meets the policy's specifications. The best way to find out whether you're eligible is to look at your policy, see how it defines hospitals, and then check to see which nearby hospitals meet this policy definition.

Specifications do vary from policy to policy. Some simply state that it (1) be an institution for the treatment of bed patients by qualified physicians, (2) have a graduate nurse on duty at all times, and (3) have an operating room for major surgery. Others may just require that the hospital meet certain standards of the state, and be considered a hospital by the local community.

Besides this, you often may find additional requirements like these:

The hospital must be licensed by the state if the state requires a license.

The hospital must be accredited by the Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation. (Surprisingly, many are not.)

The hospital must be a general hospital. Some policies exclude psychiatric, tubercular, and other special-treatment institutions. Nursing, convalescent, or rest homes generally aren't covered either—nor are rehabilitation centers. However, some health insurance policies may pay partial benefits for a limited stay in a nursing home after hospitalization.

► Confinement must be in the resident or in-patient section of a hospital. Even so, some employees' group and other policies pay for short stays—or for outpatient treatment in clinics or infirmaries, usually for accidents or sudden illness. You'll also find that federally owned or operated hospitals almost always are excluded from policy coverage unless the patient has to pay. Foreign hospitals are sometimes excluded, too.

Blue Cross usually doesn't pay full benefits for confinement in nonmember hospitals. And if the hospital belongs to a Blue Cross plan in an area other than your own, your benefits generally are determined by the payment schedule of that area.

If you're covered by Medicare, you receive full benefits in any participating hospital in the country. You get partial benefits in a nonparticipating hospital, providing it meets Medicare specifications. In an emergency, though, Medicare may pay full benefits in a nonparticipating hospital.

So although your health insurance policy should cover you in most hospitals, check now with your insurance agent, doctor, or your local hospital—before an emergency arises. ■

Understanding through food

A woman we know who works in the field of community relations tells us that food is a fast shortcut to friendship. In a PTA in an ethnically mixed neighborhood, she says, try a Cookie Party. Ask the mothers to bring a sweet enjoyed in their own homes or countries. Place the food on a pretty table, pass the plates—and first thing you know all the women are tasting and sharing recipes like old friends.

Cereals 'round the clock

Follow the supermarket carts where retired people shop—you see them stocked with cereals—Wheaties, Total, Cheerios and Kix. Why? Because older couples find cereal and milk, sometimes with fruit, makes just the light meal they like, whether it's breakfast, lunch or supper. So now we call them cereals 'round the clock. Good nutrition anytime you're hungry.

New warm weather dessert

It's such a comfort feeling to have fresh fruit in the freezer—and a lot of fun making an easy cake to go with it. Betty Crocker Sunkist* Lemon Frosting. There's a fresh lemon flavor in our new mix. On a hot day you might serve it like sherbet and strawberries, or with our new Betty Crocker Sunkist* Lemon Frosting. It's a delicious new dessert.

Greatest thing in ironing since steam: Stainless Steel.

Toastmaster brings you the hardest, smoothest ironing surface ever made. Stainless steel irons right over rough spots like zippers and buttons, without scratching. And since there's no coating to wear off, it resists sticky starch build-up. The finish stays so smooth, it won't snag the most delicate lingers. And when you add just the right number of steam holes (eighteen), you've got the smoothest iron ever.

YOUR GUIDE TO CAMPING GEAR

Beginning camper or veteran, you still have to decide on what to take with you, and how much of it you need. The kind of camping vehicle you use is the major factor in determining the amount and type of gear.

But, before deciding which camper best suits your needs, bone up on the latest and newest equipment—there's lots of it available. Visit nearby state parks or private campgrounds and talk with owners of several types of camping vehicles. Then, rent equipment your first time out if you aren't sure about just what to buy. But, be sure to reserve one well ahead of takeoff date because rental units are snapped up fast, especially during July and August vacation season. If you're a first-time camper, ask for a thorough explanation of how to use and care for the equipment.

You can rent anything from camping trailer to tents, sleeping bags, stoves, heaters, inflatable boats, water skis, and other recreational equipment. Or, to avoid a cross-country haul, you can prearrange for camper rental at your destination. There are over 200 franchise centers in the U. S.

To insure a trouble-free vacation with everything you need, plan a weekend shakedown outing at a nearby park first. There you can familiarize yourself with the rig and discover any defects or malfunctioning equipment to report while your dealer is still within easy reach.

It's also smart to get acquainted, in advance, with the facilities available at various types of campsites. For example: franchised campgrounds offer golf course, swimming pool, recreation hall, baby sitters, planned youth activities. And, once registered, you can pick up mail, reserve next night's campsite, and use pull-through sites with utilities, coin laundry, showers, restrooms, and a well-stocked grocery. For a current list, write: Kampgrounds of America, Inc., P. O. Box 1138, Billings, Montana 59103.

WHAT TO TAKE: Some items are basic to all types of camping. Keep these permanently in your wheeled vehicle so it's easy to "pick up and go." Tent campers, too, can store their equipment in sturdy cardboard cartons that quickly load in car or station wagon for a fast "getaway" come the weekend or vacation time. Most campers buy or assemble basic cookware and housekeeping needs kept strictly for camping. But if you plan to camp only once or twice a year, it makes sense to select items from those used daily at home. Don't take expensive things. They could be damaged or left behind in camp.

CLOTHING: Take along time-saving, permanent press fabrics. If camping in mountains above timberline or in northern climate, include heavier clothing; insulated jackets, warm head covering, gloves, thermal underwear, wool sweaters, and turtleneck shirts, fleece-lined boots or rubbers.

For chilly mornings and cool nights, hooded sweatshirts are great because they retain body heat. Wear one to bed over pajamas. Pack that rain gear within easy reach in your vehicle. It could be raining when you pull into camp.

Take only a limited (four-day) supply of rugged clothing. You are going camping to enjoy the outdoors, not set the fashion. Even the smallest towns, many campgrounds, and state parks have coin laundries. For weekend camping, one outfit should do. Remember: hiking boots, ponchos, extra sweaters. Ponchos now come in children's sizes. Continued the indoor-outdoor carpet that could get by on looks alone.

But we don't think that's good enough for you. Because once you've chosen just the right color for your decorating scheme, and put all that beautiful carpet down, spillers, grinders, stompers, and crumblers can take over.

So we made Wearathon carpet tough. The kind of tough that makes a carpet lose all track of time and look beautiful season after season. The kind of tough that makes Wearathon stain-resistant, easy to care for, and a whole lot more than just beautiful.

FOOD: For a smooth first-day menu, it's a good idea to prepare a one-dish casserole before leaving home. A hot dinner soon after arriving in camp that first night leaves time to explore the campground before dark or enjoy a dip in the lake. Thereafter, you can replenish your larder at supermarkets and roadside stands.

BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS, JUNE, 196

Which Sweeta Girl is 37? 40? 48?

Guess their ages...and you could win a round-the-world fashion fling!

No purchase required. It's easy to match the ages! Do it, and you're in the running for a 21-day round-the-world fashion fling! 2—first class on Pan Am*, expenses paid. London, Paris, Brussels, Rome, Tokyo—and more!

Everywhere you go, you'll select fabulous fashions and fabrics to be designed for an internationally elegant wardrobe just for you! You'll get:

- 2 Japanese silk special occasion dresses
- 2 French voile evening dresses
- 2 Italian velvet cocktail dresses
- 2 pairs of shoes and 6 handbags (Italy)
- 2 English wool sportswear suits
- 2 Belgian linen sportswear ensembles
- 1 fully let-out Canadian mink stole

102 other prizes, too! 2 second prizes: beautiful "Four Seasons" wardrobe from Ean-Picone. 100 third prizes: Hamilton Ladies' Diamond Watches! 1000 fourth prizes: Christian Dior Perfume Trio!

All compliments of Sweeta, the no-calorie sweetener that's good as sugar!

We don't claim Sweeta® can perform miracles. But it sure makes life a little sweeter.

BETTY. A professional model. One of her secrets is Sweeta.

JACKIE. A coffee hound, she figures Sweeta cuts out almost 120 calories a day.

DIANA. She has 4 daughters. A perfect size 7. And Sweeta helps her stay that way.

Which Sweeta Girl is 37? 40? 48? The right answers are waiting in your store.

Put your estimate of the girls' ages in the circles. If you're correct, you're eligible for the random drawing for the prizes. (Remember, you can check the Sweeta display in your drugstore or supermarket for the right answers!)

Enter as often as you like. Mail each entry separately along with the word "Sweeta" cut from the display card on the Sweeta package (or the word "Sweeta" printed on a 3" x 5" piece of paper) to:

Sweeta Sweepstakes, Box 262
New York, New York 10046

Your entry must be postmarked by September 2, 1969 and received by September 15, 1969.

NO PURCHASE REQUIRED. Winners will be selected from correct entries in random drawings conducted by the D. L. Blair Corporation, an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. Only one prize per person. Sweepstakes open to all residents of the U.S.A. except employees and their families of E. R. Squibb & Sons, Inc. and its advertising and sweepstakes agents. Void where prohibited.

Residents of Missouri should not include a proof of purchase or facsimile. (Sweeta displays will not appear for checking in Wisconsin stores). All Federal, State and local regulations apply.

"Arthritis? ME?"

Don't be so surprised.
It can happen to anyone.

Many people, especially young people, find it hard to believe when a doctor tells them they have arthritis. They just have a few little aches and pains... it couldn't be anything as serious as that.

In fact, though, arthritis is a disease of all ages. And, more often than not, it starts with minor pains. The aching in your joints when you wake up. The twinge in your shoulder when you reach for something.

The first thing to do when you notice these symptoms is see your doctor. Early treatment is extremely important; it can prevent serious consequences later on.

As part of this treatment, aspirin is what doctors consistently recommend. Aspirin, though it costs so little, is by far the most widely acclaimed and most widely used of all drugs for hours of relief from minor arthritis pain and its stiffness.

Since many drugs contain aspirin and advertise its benefits, it's important to remember this: Bayer® Aspirin is pure aspirin, not just part aspirin. Bayer is pure aspirin, and aspirin is what doctors recommend.

If you think there is any chance your little aches and pains might be a warning signal of arthritis, see your doctor.

When he recommends aspirin, get Bayer.

Bayer works wonders

Continued

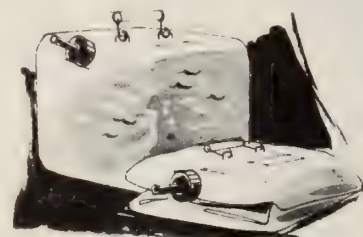

You'll want the following:

Tablecloth clips and wire plate holders are necessary for a Western trip. The wind blows paper plates and cloth off a picnic table faster than you can replace them.

Longtime campers favor sturdy beer boxes (about 40 cents each) for storing staples, cooking and housekeeping equipment. Varnish, paint, label each for easy identification. Cutouts at each end make them easy to lift and carry.

The plastic water carrier shown below dispenses water at the turn of a spigot. Its cube shape sits anywhere you put it. When empty, it folds flat. Handle makes toting easy.

BEDDING: Sleeping bags are the most convenient bedding for any type of camp—a must for tenting. They provide all-weather warmth and store compactly. Cotton or disposable liners, tied or snapped inside, prolong sleeping bag life.

For a one-trip outing, reusable disposable sleeping bags keep you warm in temperatures above 40 degrees. Tuck in a couple of extra wool blankets in case of cool or damp weather.

If you choose conventional bedding, remember beds must be stripped each morning and bedding stored elsewhere. The only exceptions are the overcab bed in pickup camper, rear bed in some motor homes, and trailer bedroom where beds remain made up ready to use even in travel. Contour sheets are a help.

RAINY DAY ACTIVITIES: Expect a few rainy days to confine you in tent or camper. Good time-passers are crossword puzzles, guessing games, checkers, cards, scrabble, and tic-tac-toe. Bake cookies, make fudge or popcorn, read jokes aloud to occupy time. Teen-agers love to have a transistor radio along. Remember to take ear plugs.

If it's warm enough, arm the family with ponchos and boots and take a hike in the rain. Light, bright ponchos are most easily seen.

BABY IN CAMP: If you're camping with an infant, a baby carrier of cotton duck with cantilevered aluminum frame that straps on your back lets baby go along on hikes.

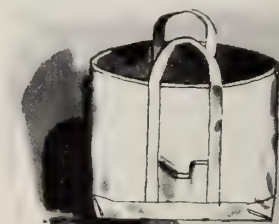

Include: bed (collapsible car bed serves nicely), mosquito and bug-proof netting for outdoor naps, plenty of head-to-toe stretch pajamas, cap, warm jacket, a blanket or two.

A plastic dishpan serves as a bathtub; a jumper chair occupies baby's time and also doubles as a feeding table. Add a bundle of disposable diapers and a zippered plastic bag for storing soiled ones.

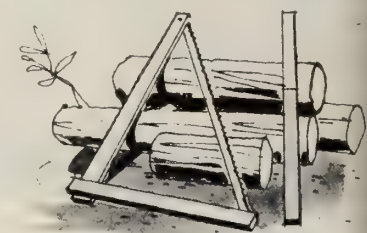

For a weekend campout, bring sterilized water from home in a tightly sealed container—crosscountry, buy distilled water. Mix with canned or powdered milk to make baby's formula.

CONVENIENCES YOU'LL WELCOME

Transporting block ice is no problem even for youngsters with a carryall bag like the canvas one below. This holds a 50-pound block and doubles as a bag for wet swimsuits.

A good-working saw is essential in camp. This one folds to save space, yet cuts anything from logs to poles.

A portable, odorless toilet is the greatest invention for camper in many moons. It can serve a family of four three or four days before emptying. Transporting the lower part to a dumping station or toilet is a simple matter.

An aluminum caddy solves the problem of where to put fishing rods. It is dustproof, waterproof, and can be mounted, for example, on the V-shaped tongue of a tent trailer.

UP OFF YOUR KNEES, GIRLS. THE NO-WAX FLOOR IS HERE.

(INTRODUCING SHINYL VINYL. IT HAS A BUILT-IN POLISHED SURFACE THAT TAKES THE PLACE OF WAX!)

If you're a member of that sad sisterhood who have to get down on their knees to care for their floors, arise!

Your floor-flunky days are over.

Now you can throw away your wax. Give up stripping down. And toss your rug shampoo into the trash can.

Now there's Shiny Vinyl™ from Congoleum.

With a beautiful No-Wax shine. To last for the life of the floor. A finish that can't be greasy-gravy-ed to death. Heeled-and-toed-away.

Or matted down by accidental egg-drops.

And no harm done if you can't clean up instantly.

Even kids can't hurt Shiny Vinyl. With their pull 'em, yank 'em, drag 'em along toys.

Or their thundering feet.

Because Shiny Vinyl is Kid-Cushioned®.

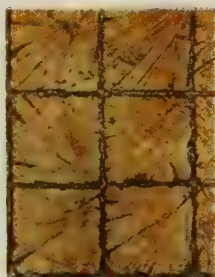

It has a sound-proofing cushion of foamed vinyl underneath. That "gives in" under pressure from above. And then bounces back fast. To look the way it looked when you bought it.

Undented.

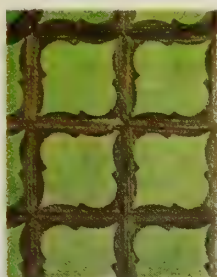

And undaunted.

A thing of beauty forever.

Untouched by human knees.

We care about your home...almost as much as you do.

Maybe if we dressed up the bottle,

You'd see it as the beauty aid it can be.

Would it really help if we prettied up the Ironized Yeast bottle? We don't think so. Ironized Yeast can have something to do with how you look. But it's not the bottle that does this, it's the tablet.

You see, as a woman you lose iron regularly during menstrual periods. You can lose enough to cause iron deficiency anemia. When that happens, you may not look as beautiful as—deep-down—you know you really are.

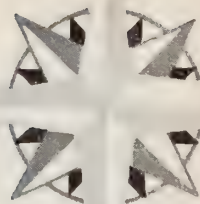

Fact is, you need twice as much iron as a man. You need it every day. So, get your iron from Ironized Yeast. It's the same kind of iron found in most doctors' prescriptions for iron, so you know it's good.

Take Ironized Yeast regularly. Then you shouldn't have to worry about iron deficiency anemia.

Come to think of it, if we added a ribbon, we might have to raise the price. We think we'll leave it at 60 tablets for only 98¢.

VACATION DRIVING SPECIAL

Vacation driving is different—a far cry from stop-and-go, short-hop, in-city driving. To help prepare you and your car for the season, we offer this comprehensive guide, packed with everything from car maintenance suggestions to basic safety rules, driving techniques, and turnpike tips. We recommend you read it, clip it, follow its suggestions, then drive carefree all summer!

GETTING THE CAR READY

Have the cooling system checked and serviced. This should include flushing the entire system and refilling with new coolant (preferably ethylene glycol base antifreeze). Have all belts examined for wear and adjustment (include power steering and air conditioner belts.) The thermostat and radiator pressure cap should be checked for proper type and operation. Radiator and heater hoses should be inspected for leaks and signs of deterioration.

Have the car lubricated, and oil and oil filter changed. Buy an extra quart of oil to carry in the trunk as insurance against running low when you're miles from nowhere. While the car is up on the lift, have the entire exhaust system checked for leaks or signs of impending failure—which high-speed driving may bring about while you're on vacation.

Check tires for uneven wear, nails, bulges, cuts, and signs of tread damage. If tread wear is uneven or bumpy, have wheel alignment and balance checked. If there is less than 5/32-inch tread depth remaining or if you have any doubt about the condition of the tires, install new ones before your trip. The old set might last for several thousand miles of town driving BUT trip driving means high temperature build-up and heavier-than-usual loads. Have all lights checked for burned-out bulbs, faulty switches (especially stop light), and have headlight aim checked. Check and replace windshield wiper blades if necessary and be sure windshield washers are operating.

Good brakes are a must for trip driving. Have the linings checked (all four wheels). Brake lines and wheel and master cylinders should also be checked for any fluid leakage. When the drums are off for the lining check, have self-adjusters checked for proper operation.

Have a good tune-up mechanic go over your car. The points, spark plugs, and other parts of the ignition and fuel system should be in top condition. An out-of-tune engine uses more gasoline and can be a safety hazard. Recent tests showed that a vacation-loaded car in need of a tune-up required 22 percent more distance and 25 percent more time to pass a vehicle traveling 50 miles an hour.

If you plan to tow a trailer on your trip, be sure the trailer is in top shape too. Check brake and signal lights, hitch, safety chains, and tires carefully. Trailer wheels, due to their smaller size, must turn faster than those of the car—check wheel bearings and repack if needed. If you've never towed a trailer with the car before, certain alterations may be necessary. Most new car dealers can advise you of any recommended special equipment or alterations.

Avoid overloading your car. Many vacation-bound cars are overloaded, and in most cases the overload is greatest in the rear of the car. The result is a badly out-of-balance car—light on the front end, tail heavy, and often with improperly inflated tires in the rear. Check your owners manual for maximum load-carrying capacities for your car and its tires. Stay within these limits and strive to maintain a weight balance by loading heavy objects as far forward in the trunk as possible, even on the floor of the back seat if practical. Another solution is the use of a rooftop carrier for heavier articles. Be sure the carrier is mounted well forward to help equalize the load. If the loaded car assumes the attitude of a planing speed boat, better install some type of overload springs, shock absorbers, or load-leveling device.

MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Impala Custom Coupe

If elegance is understatement, you're looking at the understatement of the year.

Impala Custom Coupe.

Even sounds exclusive, doesn't it? Like something outrageously expensive, made for the "I-always-go-first-class" individual.

To the first-class part: yes. But outrageously expensive? Hardly. Chevrolet builds it.

Now look again. At what makes the Custom Coupe elegant. At the distinctive roof line, so like a limousine. At its full door-glass styling. At its massive grille.

But Impala's good taste also comes from what we left off: the rampant slashes of chrome some cars tack on to justify their price. (We've got a name for cars that claim they're in the same class. Social climbers.)

Impala Custom Coupe is just what it sounds like. And, certainly, the people who buy it have money to spend. On other things.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

If your trip is to be extensive and will take you into unfamiliar parts of the country, you might consider joining one of the auto clubs, using the free tour services offered by most major oil companies, or purchasing a travel guide for the areas you plan to visit. Membership in the auto clubs is not expensive and the services available can make your trip much more enjoyable. Once you have determined your general route, the auto club or tour service will map in detail the area to be visited, showing the best routes to take, and suggesting interesting side trips and attractions. If you indicate that yours will be a camping trip, you'll also get a listing of camping areas. Garages and service stations that offer dependable service at reasonable prices are also listed so that if you do have trouble you'll know where to go.

While on the trip, there are several everyday maintenance chores that should be tended to. Check the tires daily (to get an accurate reading, check when tires are "cold"). Inspect the battery daily and have radiator, oil, and transmission level checked daily or whenever you stop for gas.

Automotive necessities to take on your trip:

Duplicate keys	Litter Basket
Credit cards	Valid driver's license
Sunglasses	Valid car registration
Fire Extinguisher	Tool Kit
Flashlight	First aid kit
Maps	Aerosol tire inflator
Lug wrench and jack (be sure it works)
Flares and/or other warning devices
Insurance information card (be sure coverage and premiums are up to date).

SAFETY INSIDE THE CAR

Everyone in the car should have seat belts—and use them. Small children do best in special seats or harnesses made for them. Older children who like to look out the window can be placed on pillows, then belted in place (be sure the belt contains no slack).

Children should not be allowed to stand up or lean out windows (seat belts solve this problem). Don't give them suckers or ice cream on a stick that could injure eyes or mouth in a sudden bump, swerve, or stop. Take along plenty of toys and games for play but no large, heavy, or sharp-edge toys—and allow nothing on the package shelf.

Children should ride in the back seat where there's more padding and less danger of injury in a sudden stop. Take along food for snacks but no drinks in glasses or bottles—use paper cups.

Never start a journey on an empty stomach. A low blood-sugar content is one of the commonest sources of fatigue and drowsiness, and the most unsuspected. But a heavy meal that would put you to sleep in front of the TV set at home should be avoided too. While you're driving, light and easily digested meals are your best bet—avoid lots of fats and starches. Munching candy or tidbits high in sugar while en route will help keep you awake and alert.

DRIVING WHERE YOU DON'T OFTEN DRIVE

Mountain driving requires specific skills and alertness. Remember that a car engine loses eight to ten horsepower with every 1,000-foot increase in altitude. It's not uncommon to lose up to 50 percent of your car's horsepower in mountain driving, so allow extra latitude for acceleration and passing.

The combination of higher altitude and extra strain on the engine could cause your car to overheat. If you have air conditioning, turn it off and pull off the road as soon as possible. If the overheating is accompanied by visible steam, stop the car's engine immediately. The cooling system has probably lost most or all of the coolant, and continued running will ruin the engine. If no steam is evident, do not turn the engine off. Put the transmission in neutral and run the engine at well above idle speed until temperature returns to normal. Except for known loss of coolant or an emergency, never stop an overheated engine after a heavy pull. To do so will stop air and coolant circulation. The engine will overheat badly, and serious damage can result.

If the engine cools down, leave the conditioner off and proceed to the nearest source of service for a checkup. If the engine doesn't cool down, look under the hood for the trouble. Check fan belts, and hoses, and the radiator for leaks. Don't remove the radiator cap—you'll think Old Faithful is in there. Don't proceed until adequate cooling is restored.

Another possible source of trouble in mountain driving is the braking system. The higher altitudes plus heavy usage result in overheating. The fluid may boil and/or the linings glaze to cause brake fade. This is a temporary situation, so at the first sign of fading (brake pedal feels mushy) pull off the road and wait for at least half an hour. Always try brakes before long downgrades and apply intermittently and sparingly to avoid overheating. Also down-shift the car to a lower gear (standard or automatic transmission) to let the engine help with braking on long or steep inclines.

Desert driving needn't pose problems if your car is prepared for it. Before taking off across a wide expanse of desert, check tires carefully—don't have them overinflated for this portion of the trip. Be sure the radiator is full and if the engine has shown any tendency to overheat, take along extra water. Have the gas tank filled and the oil level checked. Keep an eye on the temperature gauge. Air conditioning is great for desert driving but if the system is of marginal capacity, it may cause engine overheating.

Sudden storms (rain or sand) frequently occur in the desert. You're smart to pull off the road and wait them out as they are usually of short duration. If you feel you must go on, use low-beam headlights and drive carefully.

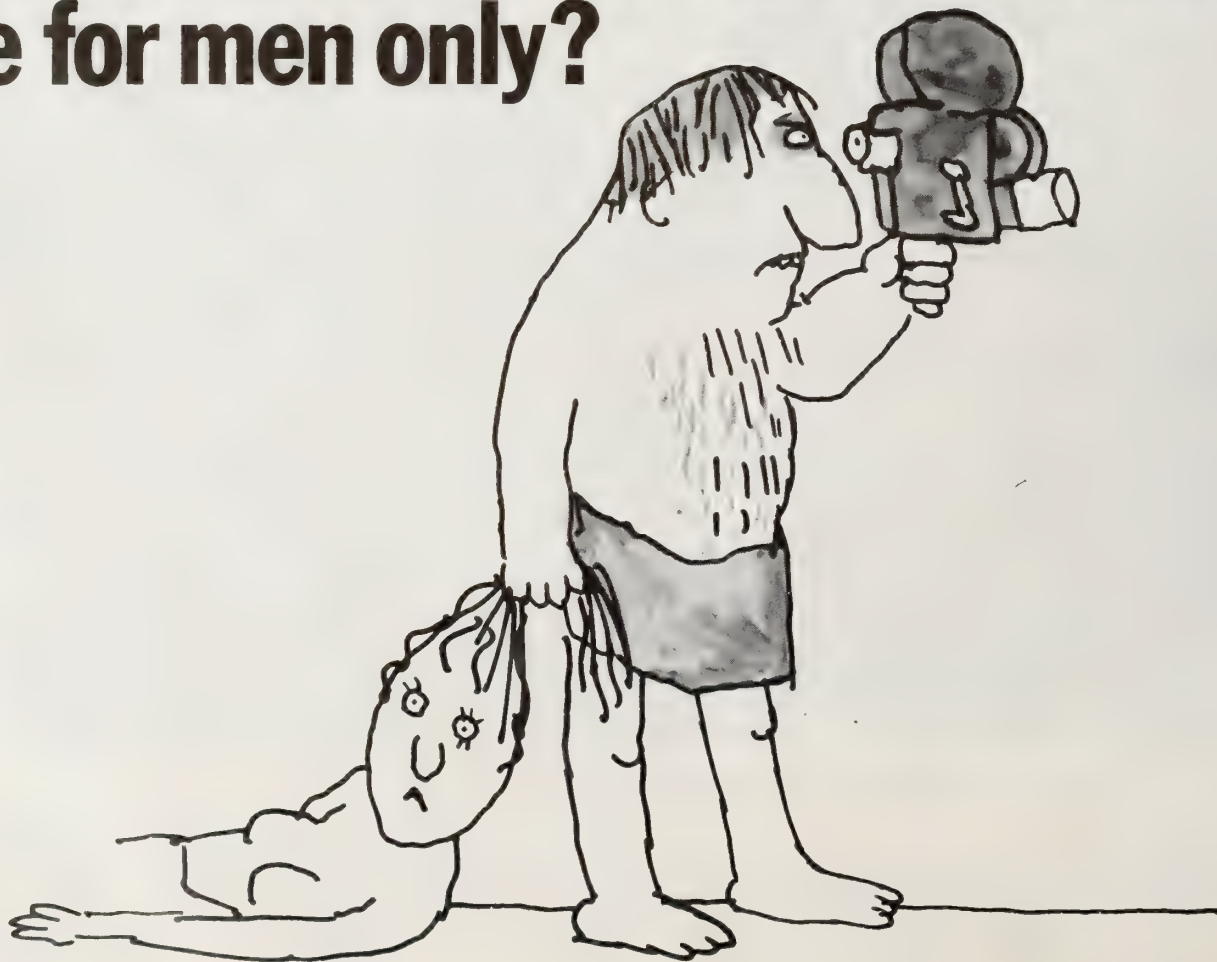

Driving in the rain is extremely hazardous (accident rate often increases three to five times during a rainstorm). Highways that have been dry for extended periods of time can be especially treacherous during a rainstorm. During dry periods, oil drippings and fine tire dust accumulate. This buildup combined with rain produces an extremely slick coating on the road surface.

Heavy rains often produce ideal conditions for "hydroplaning." Tires actually leave the road at speeds of 50-60 mph and skim along the surface of the water, resulting in loss of steering and braking ability. This can occur at speeds as low as 35 mph if the car is overloaded in the rear, or front tires have inadequate tread. If you must drive in a heavy rain, slow down, allow extra space between you and the car ahead, and at the first opportunity increase tire pressure by about one-third (don't try this on cheap or badly worn tires).

Wet weather driving can also result in wet brake linings which lose their braking ability. Check braking ability often, especially after going through deep water. Repeated light applications of the brakes to generate heat will speed up the drying of brake linings.

Freeway and interstate driving is very different from normal day-to-day driving. You should have a "navigator" to watch an up-to-date map carefully and prepare you well in advance for exits and entrances. Note we said up-to-date map last year's map may be confusingly outdated in many areas. Once on the freeway, maintain a speed consistent with other traffic but don't latch onto a group of cars traveling at the same speed. This is the preliminary to a multiple car pile-up. If you miss an exit, go on to the next one. Never stop, back up, or try a U-turn.

Remember when movie cameras were for men only?

Always enter the superhighways with plenty of gas. Running out of gas is listed as one of the major causes of car trouble on the interstates. Imagine being in an inner lane with cars zipping by at 70 mph and you with a dead engine! Even if your car has the momentum to carry you to the shoulder, you'll have no power for maneuvering and no assistance from power steering or power brakes. If you're fortunate enough to get to the shoulder, get everyone out of the car and well away from traffic. If you can't make it to the shoulder, get all occupants out of the car and clear of traffic as quickly as possible.

Driving on country roads can be like exploring the unknown. The best advice is to progress slowly, be alert, and expect anything. Watch all signs and road markings and don't be surprised to find that crossroads, narrow bridges, and sharp curves are inadequately marked. On gravel roads, slow down and keep your wheels in the well-worn grooves. If you must leave the grooves to meet a car, avoid sudden steering or braking—loose gravel is treacherous. In hilly areas, be prepared for the unexpected just over the crest of a hill—a car in the wrong lane, a piece of machinery barely moving, or livestock on the loose. Watch for a triangular-shaped red and orange sign. It indicates a slow-moving vehicle (usually farm machinery) traveling at a speed of less than 25 mph.

Night driving in unfamiliar territory should be approached with caution. Eyes that test perfect in vision tests have only 75 percent vision at night and this, combined with the narrow light tunnel of your headlights and increased fatigue, helps explain why night driving is considered two and a half to three times as dangerous as daytime driving. If you know you'll be driving at night, wear sunglasses during the day, but get them off when darkness starts to descend.

Be sure headlights are clean. A single day's accumulation of dust and bugs can cut their output by half. Even clean headlights on high beam provide only about 350 feet of vision for good eyes. At 60 miles per hour, it takes 366 feet to stop, which means you're overdriving your headlights by about 16 feet. On low beams, you're overdriving your lights at much lower speeds.

WATCH FOR SPECIAL INFORMATION SIGNS

Always heed "Deer Crossing" signs. Over 80,000 deer are killed by automobiles annually. If you come upon deer or other animals at night, dim your lights, blow the horn in short blasts, and apply brakes. Bright lights cause animals to freeze in their tracks or jump into the road; dim lights allow them to decide which way to flee from the road (but don't count on it).

Rural railroad crossings are another hazard. While they are always marked, many of them do not have warning signals that can be seen at night.

"Truck crossing" signs will naturally cause a good driver to slow down and be alert for signs of trucks or other activity. However, the trucks themselves don't constitute the only danger. Many times there are rocks, loose gravel, sand, or other debris on the road. If there have been recent rains, there may be wet mud tracked into the highway which can create a skid hazard.

Kodak has changed all that.

With the M12, you just drop in a film cartridge. Any woman, man, or child can do it.

There's never any winding with the M12 because it's battery-driven.

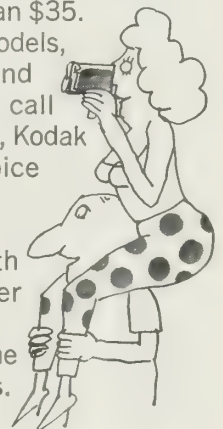

It fits right in the palm. A woman can carry it as easily as her purse. In her purse, in fact.

And it takes the super 8 movies that are much brighter and sharper than regular 8mm.

The M12 is less than $30. In an outfit with wrist strap, batteries and color film, less than $35.

We have other models, too, at other prices. And since super 8 movies call for a super 8 projector, Kodak offers you a wide choice there, too.

Give your teenagers a place to cool it.

Your old refrigerator in the rec room . . . a new one in your kitchen.

A turned-on idea for everyone in the family!

Your second refrigerator is just the place to keep soft drinks for the kids, and that's just for starters. Bring home a watermelon. Pick up a gallon or two of cider. Cool refrigerated pies. Keep your husband happy with his own beer cellar. And for special events, what better place to store sandwich trays or gelatin molds or a big, wild punch bowl?

You'll enjoy yourself in the kitchen, too, with a refrigerator all your own. A new one, completely frost-free. With automatic ice-maker. Adjustable shelves. Mat keeper. Wheels, for easy, roll-away cleaning. And more space than ever before, in every section. A wrapped up in a lively new color or decorated front.

1. Adapted from the original bentwood chair designed in 1870, this table and chair grouping in sleek, shining chrome-plated steel is the very essence of contemporary living. The 27-inch-high table is topped with heavy plate glass and can double for dining or games. Companion chairs with easy-wipe black vinyl cushions have a comfortable seating height of 16½ inches.

Table, approximately $267; chairs, about $133 each. Medallion Limited, N.Y., N.Y.

2. This adjustable chaise promises satisfying siestas. The sturdy extruded aluminum frame is spanned by two-inch-wide vinyl straps—individually attached for quick repair or easy color change. Frame and straps are offered in a variety of colors. Seating height of chaise is 18 inches; matching dining chair and ottoman, 17½ inches. The 16-inch-high occasional table is surfaced with tempered smooth-rough glass.

Chaise, around $150; dining chair, about $50; ottoman, approximately $40; table, about $50. Brown-Jordan, Newport, Arkansas.

3. Perk up your patio or playroom with this cushioned-for-comfort rocker and chaise in a floral design. Comfort stems from flexible foam-padded slats encased in weatherproof vinyl and individually attached. Lightweight steel frames are coated with chip- and scratch-proof baked-on enamel. Folding service cart and side table are topped with reconstituted marble—stronger, lighter, more durable than marble itself.

Chaise, about $60; rocker, around $43; cart, approximately $40; side table, about $25. Samsonite Corp., Denver, Colo.

4. Two portable props for the easy life—a drop-front coffee chest and dual-purpose Bermuda chair—both of select brown rattan. Coffee chest, 18x34x16 inches high, is wood-lined with ample storage for glasses, bottles, games.

Companion lounge chair adapts to dining with a quick adjustment of the arm straps. Back folds flat for storage.

Chest, about $75; chair, approximately $18. Hurricane Int., San Francisco, Calif.

5. This rattan bar and stools make an occasion of a refreshment break. Bar is 63 inches long, 24½ deep, and 40 inches high with a moisture-proof slate-finish top. Two shelves hold glassware, ice bucket, etc. The 30-inch-high stools are cushioned in vinyl. Other cover choices plus 18 frame finishes.

I like to be dainty, too

Oh, I don't wear long dresses and carry parasols all the time. That's a very tiny part of being a girl. But it's nice to feel really feminine and dainty sometimes.

You know when it used to be hardest for me to feel that way? During my monthly period. But that's because I used to use those bulky sanitary napkins. Now I use Tampax tampons so I'm never uncomfortable.

Tampax tampons are worn internally so they can't show and odor can't form. I don't have the feeling everybody knows. I can wear anything I wish any time. Even skin-tight stretch pants or a bathing suit. I can be as active as I want or I can just be lazy. But with Tampax tampons, I never have to worry about feeling unfeminine or undainty. Maybe you should be using them.

6. Breakfast or bridge—enjoy either one at this plastic-topped, 32-inch-square card table, hand-crafted of seasoned Philippine rattan. Matching side and armchairs are 32 inches high and cushioned in vinyl-covered polyurethane. Corner étagère is 69 inches high and fitted with five wooden shelves.

All pieces in this group are offered in a wide range of colors with standard or glazed finish. No waxing necessary. Just dust with a soft, moist cloth.

Table, about $122; armchair, around $78; side chair, approximately $74; étagère, about $157. Ficks Reed Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

7. It swings like an old-fashioned hammock, but looks as new as tomorrow. Scandinavian-designed chair with durable chrome steel frame is luxuriously upholstered with a foam-filled, vinyl-covered pad. New swing design permits chair to be used within six inches of a wall, taking only one-third the space needed for a regular recliner. Choice of five upholstery colors for the chair and matching ottoman.

Chair and ottoman, about $100. Rojan Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

8. Gracefully contoured for luxurious comfort and enduring good looks, this Rangoon rocker with its low silhouette is well suited for conversation, television viewing, or just relaxing. Each piece of rattan used to execute this flowing design was carefully shaped and hand-fitted individually. Extra thick cushioning is offered in solid or patterned covers. Choice of 18 handsome frame finishes.

Rocker, approximately $130. Hurricane International, San Francisco, California.

9. Why not supplement your more conventional type seating with this imaginatively designed shell-shaped swing? Hand-woven of India cane on wrought iron frame, it can be suspended from porch ceiling or installed indoors as extra seating. Use singly, or when space permits, hang in pairs.

Two-position occasional table, also made of India cane, has a tubular steel base which locks at two heights: 16 and 22½ inches.

Swing, approximately $40; table, about $35. Calif-Asia, Los Angeles, California.

Why did
Mrs. Skitch Henderson, who could afford
any refrigerator, want a Sears Coldspot?

Composer-conductor Skitch Henderson and his wife Ruth live in one of New York's most fascinating town houses.

In the kitchen are some of the 40 to 50 antique clocks Skitch has collected. The wall tiles come from Spain. The walnut chopping blocks and the unusual plate tree from France. And the refrigerator-freezer is from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

"There's never been anything like our Sears Coldspot," says Ruth Henderson (who does all the cooking in the Henderson household). "It's a 3-door convertible—all completely frostless. It's the first refrigerator I've ever seen that you tailor to fit your needs.

"One side is a marvelous roomy refrigerator. The other side is a two-door freezer. But the top half can actually convert from a freezer to a refrigerator.

"All I do is turn a dial if fresh fruits are in season, and this upper section becomes more refrigerator space.

"I turn the dial back after a party and I get more freezer space for leftovers.

"And I don't know how we ever got along without that wonderful ice-maker in our Coldspot."

Suddenly, as the 40 clocks chime 7 o'clock Ruth Henderson laughs, "You can always tell when it's dinnertime at the Hendersons."

Carrier's secret flip top.

See it in action.

If you want what's new in room air conditioners—the good-looking Cosmopolitan by Carrier—you'd better go after it this month.

And you'd better insist on a demonstration. Otherwise you might not recognize the Cosmopolitan as an air conditioner.

At least not till you see it flip its lid.

This happens when you open the left-hand louvered door and press the "cool" button.

Carrier's attractive top panel flips open—automatically.

Cool, clean, dry, air flows out the full width of the top opening. Starts cooling you off in just ten seconds.

You can aim the air flow to the farthest corners of your room. Or into adjoining rooms. Without drafts or hot spots.

There's a control for bringing in fresh outdoor air. And another control to exhaust indoor air and odors.

And its sensitive thermostat keeps things just the way you want them. Very, very comfortable.

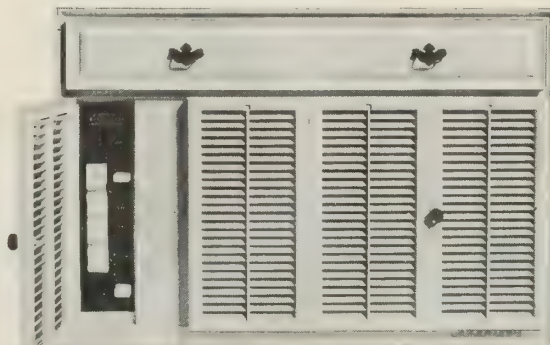

The Cosmopolitan is just one of the cool ideas coming to you from Carrier.

Remember Carrier. Forget the weather.

It's just part of your room decor...

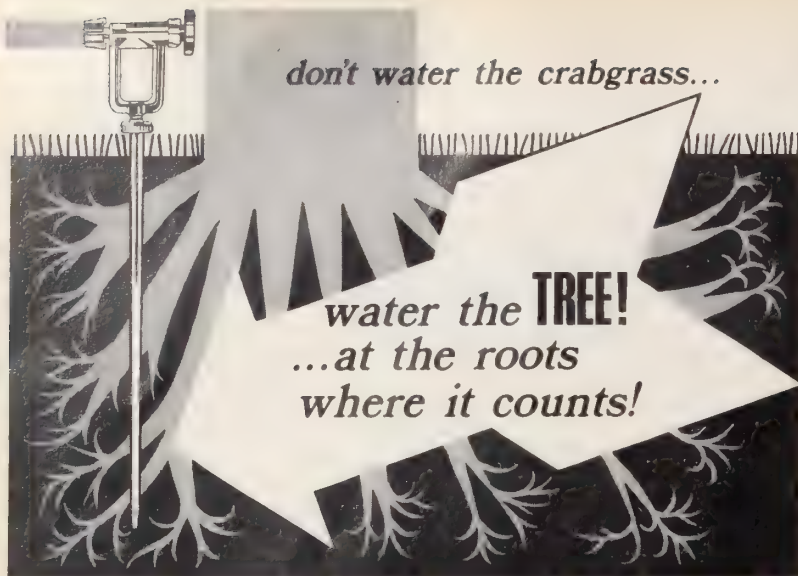

until you press a concealed button.

Top panel opens automatically to let cool air out.

Conditioned air arcs up, out and down. Fills entire room with draft-free comfort.

Watering at ground level is good for crabgrass and other weeds, but does little good for your plantings. If you want your trees and shrubs to grow faster, stay healthier and have better blooms, root feeding is your answer. The Ross Root Feeder is perfect

It will water and fertilize your trees and shrubs easily and effectively . . . all at one time. You simply connect it to your garden hose, dissolve the Ross Specialized Plant Food Cartridges in the see-through chamber and the penetrating tube releases the solution 27" deep . . . right at the root zone. Roots absorb the plant food solution and the sap stream carries it to every part of the plant, even your tallest tree.

And NOW by this same method there is a new Ross Systemic Insecticide Cartridge to rid your ornamentals of aphids, mites and other sucking insects for six weeks or longer. This is protection from the inside out that won't wash off . . . yet won't harm birds, bees or other beneficial insects.

For more beautiful, healthier and insect-free trees and ornamentals, use the Ross Root Feeder with the Ross Specialized Plant Food and Ross Systemic Insecticide Cartridges from early spring throughout the gardening season . . . available at your local lawn and garden supply dealer, or write for further information.

What does douching with DEMURE® have to do with your HUSBAND?

A lot. Every husband wants his wife to be feminine . . . in every sense of the word. And Demure Liquid Douche lets you discover how completely feminine you can be.

Delicately scented Demure is the different douche perfected by a leading gynecologist. So Demure does much more than old-fashioned home remedies or medicinal-smelling powders. It gently cleanses and freshens. Makes you feel very special. But more than that, Demure deodorizes. Deodorizes so thoroughly, so pleasantly, you know you're the woman your husband wants you to be. Feminine . . . in every sense of the word.

Shouldn't you discover Demure . . . the liquid douche perfected by a leading gynecologist.

HOW TO HANDLE A HEARING LOSS

The world of the hard-of-hearing is a forbidding place. Barriers to fulfillment are everywhere. Frustration abounds, and loneliness prevails. Despair is commonplace. Yet most of its inhabitants reside there by choice.

Current estimates indicate that six million Americans are walking around in varying degrees of deafness, all serious enough to constitute a handicap. No one can predict the exact number who will conquer their disability, or how many will let it conquer them. One thing, however, is sure. The dismal world of silence would be reduced to a ghost town if the hard-of-hearing were to take advantage of the escape routes open to them. Unfortunately, many deafened people seem strangely reluctant to do so, often suffering needlessly for years before seeking help. The question is, why?

Much of the blame must be placed on misconception and misplaced pride. There is, for example, a tendency to equate hearing loss with old age, but the association is unjustified. While it's true that hearing, like every human faculty, tends to deteriorate with advancing age, it's equally true that youth alone does not provide immunity to hearing difficulties. In fact, almost three out of five persons with impaired hearing happen to be under 65 years of age, and two million of them are children. Still, some people feel that admitting to a hearing loss is equivalent to announcing that they are past their prime.

Another misconception is that failure to hear is a shameful condition. This dates back to the stigma attached to the deaf in earliest recorded time when ignorance and superstition prompted people to mock and torment the hard-of-hearing. It was assumed that they were mentally deficient or deranged, and therefore deserving of such treatment.

Fortunately, prejudice against the deaf has lessened greatly with enlightenment. What is still true is the inferiority feeling in the mind of the hard-of-hearing person. Yet it's really not appropriate to today's circumstances. The irony is that the person who attempts to conceal his hearing problem is, by virtue of his mistakes and irrelevant answers, himself helping to perpetuate a ridiculous notion.

A hearing loss of any consequence is, after all, no secret, particularly not to the sufferer. Should he choose to "look the other way," he is, in effect, forcing his companions to cope with his problem, and he can be reasonably certain that they will not accept the burden indefinitely. If people consistently fail to communicate with him on a mutually satisfactory basis, they may well stop trying and ignore him instead. Or, worse yet, avoid him altogether. Then what alternative has he but to begin his lonely retreat into isolation?

HOW CAN YOU TELL IF YOUR HEARING IS BAD?

Hearing loss differs from most other afflictions in at least one important respect. It is not characterized by pain or physical discomfort. If it were, there would be no overlooking it. But because it is usually a gradual, stealthy process, it can easily develop into a real handicap before it commands attention. Unless, that is, one is attuned to its other warning signals.

It goes without saying, of course, that self-diagnosis in any health problem is not only useless, but may be dangerous. However, you should be alerted if you have trouble hearing at the movies, at church, or at other public gatherings; are unable to readily locate the source of a sound; have difficulty in understanding what is being said, unless you are directly facing the speaker; find yourself complaining that people are mumbling or slurring their words more than they used to; and are continually asking people to repeat words or phrases, though they feel they're speaking loud enough.

If you have persistent problems of this type, there is good reason to suspect that your hearing is at fault and you should, without delay, seek the counsel of a qualified physician. "Waiting to be sure" is only inviting nervous strain and tension to compound the problem. Certainly all doubt about whether to take action should be erased if you have difficulty in understanding conversation when others, under the same listening conditions, are apparently having no trouble whatsoever.

In children, the signs of hearing loss are somewhat more elusive. All too often youngsters are labelled "unmanageable," "slow," even mentally retarded, while the true source of their unacceptable behavior and their learning difficulties is faulty hearing.

It stands to reason that a child who feels "left out" will attempt to claim attention by whatever means are available to him. Misbehaving is one unfailing method. And it would indeed have to be an exceptional student who could maintain interest in his school work when he cannot hear properly. As it is, children with hearing loss repeat grades four times as often as children with full hearing. In most cases, early detection could have assured them of a normal education.

The child whose hearing is below par rarely complains that he doesn't hear well. His actions are the clue to his problem, and it takes a watchful parent to interpret them as such. Some typical symptoms which, in combination, might indicate hearing loss in school-age children are:

- ▶ Turning up the volume and sitting close to the TV set
- ▶ Repeated failure to respond when questioned or called
- ▶ Frequent requests for repetition (saying, "What?")
- ▶ Cocking the head to one side when listening
- ▶ Speech or voice peculiarities, such as lisping or strained voice quality
- ▶ Intent observation of a speaker's face
- ▶ Discipline problems

The most obvious indication of impaired hearing in toddlers is, of course, failure to learn to speak. Since language is learned through imitation, the child who does not hear sounds certainly cannot repeat them. But even before speech is due to develop, a lack of response to sounds should alert the parents to the possibility of hearing problems.

The baby with normal hearing will not only react to loud noises by blinking his eyes or "jumping," he will also turn his head toward his mother when she calls softly. On the other hand, the "good" baby who seems oblivious to household sounds, both ordinary and otherwise, may actually be suffering from a hearing deficiency.

Only scientific testing can reveal the extent of the hearing problem, but recognition is the acknowledged first step toward solving it.

WHAT GOES WRONG?

Hearing is a complicated process that can be affected in various ways, and by a variety of agents. The ear, like any precision instrument, is composed of many delicate parts. Unless all of them are in good working order, the entire hearing process is disrupted.

If, for example, the outer ear is blocked by a malformation of the ear canal, sound cannot penetrate to the eardrum, and hearing is consequently impeded. Excessive wax, if it forms a hard mass in the ear canal, can produce the same effect.

Or, sound can be retarded when the sound waves from the eardrum are inefficiently conducted to the inner ear by the ossicles, a linkage of three tiny bones located in the middle ear. These bones—malleus, incus, and stapes—must be undamaged and able to move freely or faulty transmission occurs.

A problem can also arise with the Eustachian tube, a narrow passageway that leads from behind the eardrum to the back of the nose. Normally, air pressure is kept equalized on each side of the eardrum by the tube, but if it is blocked, a vacuum forms in the middle ear. This, in turn, leads to weakened vibrations of the eardrum and ossicles, and sound is likewise weakened.

All these flaws are related to the manner in which sound is transmitted, or conducted, by the ear, and the loss they produce is called "conductive." In fact, however, it's customary to speak of three different types of sound "conduction" in hearing. There's air conduction, which is the transmission of sound waves through the external ear passage as far as the eardrum; bone conduction, the transmission of mechanical vibrations from the eardrum through the incus to the stapes; and nerve conduction, the transmission of the electrical "nervous impulses" (or messages) from the inner ear to the brain. Both air and bone loss reduce the quantity of sound that is heard; a nerve loss affects the quality of sound as well.

The inner ear plays its part by converting the sound waves it receives into electrical impulses that travel along the auditory nerves to the brain, where they are finally translated into recognizable signals. (Also, it just so happens that the inner ear is linked with the mechanism controlling our sense of balance.) When the auditory nerves are in any way damaged, as is the case in nerve loss, the brain receives a distorted message, and speech, even if it is loud enough, sounds like indistinct mumbling to the listener.

A third type of loss, described as "mixed," is some combination of bone and nerve loss and involves defects, often related, in both the middle and inner ear.

Auditory defects can occur at any age, and for a variety of reasons.

At birth: If deafness is a family trait, it can be passed along from generation to generation just like blond hair and blue eyes. However, hearing loss in the newborn more often develops during gestation. It may have been due to a viral infection—German measles in particular—that attacked the mother in the early months of pregnancy; or it may have been brought on by an Rh incompatibility between the mother and fetus; certain drugs ingested by the mother; premature birth; or difficult and prolonged labor.

In early childhood: The most common cause of childhood hearing loss is inflammation of the middle ear, medically known as otitis media. It may be due to an infection caused, for example, by a virus cold complicated by inflammation of the nose, throat, sinuses, and ears. Enlarged adenoids or allergic reaction also may account for it. Whether the by-product of infection or not, otitis media should be promptly treated. If neglected, it can lead to chronic hearing difficulty or more serious diseases.

Other diseases, such as meningitis, measles, and mumps, also threaten hearing in young children, as does unusually high fever, a head injury, or a blow to the ear. In addition, some children are diagnosed as having "nonorganic hearing loss." This means that they can hear normally but fail hearing tests because of an emotional, not an auditory, disturbance. Such children, of course, require psychiatric attention.

Teen-age: Repeated upper respiratory infection continues to be the chief troublemaker during the teens. Auditory difficulties can also be triggered by infection from sea water lodged in the ear, and damage to the eardrum from diving too deeply or from ocean breakers hitting the ear. Less common, otosclerosis, a disorder that puts bony deposits on the stapes and immobilizes it, begins to manifest itself in late adolescence.

How about some tailor-made tires? These tires are designed for the job they are to perform.

For the front (left): A 78-series tire (about one inch wider than conventional tires) with an easy-to-steer straight nine-row rib tread design.

For the rear (right): an even wider 70-series tire with an asymmetrical tread design offering all-weather traction for the driving wheels.

Both tires feature an entirely new body structure composed of a two-ply rayon belt over a two-ply polyester cord body. In addition, there are two layers of steel wire segments directly beneath the tread. The unique construction gives the tires excellent traction (both stop and go), maximum stability and steering control, double the resistance to cuts and punctures, and a guarantee of 40,000 miles tread life.

By Doris Eby, Food Editor and
Helen A. Dawson, Kitchens and Equipment Editor

Go when the spirit moves you—and make good food part of the fun. Today's wealth of take-along gear lets you live like a gypsy and dine like a gourmet, with fresh air for an appetizer. Here's how . . .

Beachcombers never had it so good! To transport your feast to the beach (left) choose a sturdy hardwood basket with carrying handles and a hinged cover. Take along folding beach chairs for comfort, a mini phono-radio for background music. climax the cookout with Double-Decker Pizza Burgers—made ahead and carried in a cooler to the beach. Grill them on the spot over the portable grill, top them off with mozzarella and pepperoni, then stack in buns. To bring out the best in the burgers, serve rosy Raspberry-Pineapple Fizz. You bring along the “ice cubes,” made with unsweetened raspberry-flavored soft drink powder and pineapple juice, in a wide-mouthed vacuum bottle. To serve, pour sparkly lemon-lime beverage over the cubes in insulated tumblers. Dessert is a natural—what else but crisp, ice cold chunks of watermelon?

For a lazy-day outing, let everyone build his own Ham-Slaw Sandwich (below). The coleslaw stays cole in a four-quart ice bucket with a two-quart inset pan.

Assembled above are some seaside props designed to make eating on the beach less work and more fun. The wire baskets are for broiling hamburgers, steaks, hot dogs, or fish; skewers of assorted sizes are for appetizers or kabobs; lightweight insulated plastic pitcher and tumblers serve up the beverages.

If you've never tried popcorn on the rocks (right), now's the time. Our Hobo Popcorn couldn't be simpler. Just seal unpopped corn and cooking oil in individual packets, then let everyone have the fun of popping his portion over the coals. The portable table has a seaworthy plastic laminate top—fine for serving the popcorn, Peanut Butter Oatmeal Bars, and beverages. It also makes a sturdy carrying case for the two vacuum bottles and plastic food box. King-size though it is, that plastic cooler is light as seaweed.

With a camper as your castle, it's no trick at all to sit down to a sizzling steak dinner with all the trimmings (left). Here most of the cooking was accomplished in the built-in "campantry," complete with all the conveniences of home: sink, two-burner stove, ice chest, and pressurized water system.

Set the serving table with sizzling platters of Mustard Buttered Steaks. Dad can cook the steaks on a carry-along grill (beware of poachers—that aroma gets around!). Alongside is a plastic-lined wicker basket full of Rice Mushroom Barbecue which you cook tidily in sealed foil. Every good steak deserves a salad, and here it's a tossed green salad that keeps its cool in a sealed plastic bowl.

But you don't have to own a camper to eat like a king. A portable gas grill (above) will serve nicely. This one is porcelain enamel; it's powered by a disposable propane cylinder. You can use the top of the unit as an extra cooking surface or as a food warmer. Here the grill is loaded with succulent Mushroom Bacon Burgers (rich relations of the plebian hamburger). If you want to turn them out with assembly-line efficiency, you can shape up the man-size patties before takeoff so they're all ready for broiling at campsite.

At right, a colorful cache of easy-care enamel: ladles, cereal bowls that double for dessert or salad, and a tall, four-section food carrier.

As you'll discover when you shop the sporting goods stores, all sorts of intriguing devices are available to make family camping carefree. For example, the jet-action stove (below) accepts either wood chips or charcoal, serves up a cooking fire in two minutes flat. The durable steel charcoal lighter also acts as a camp stove and an outdoor heater; the aluminum catalytic heater is flameless, ignites safely with alcohol or white gasoline. That all-purpose LP-gas lantern is lightweight, easy to store, and just as dependable as the night is long.

down the hatch—and no galley slaves needed!

No, you don't have to settle for hardtack and a barrel of rum aboard ship. You can serve up a first-class repast with the greatest of ease if your cargo includes some seaworthy helpers. Such things as a portable grill, a hibachi, and battery-operated appliances.

You're well on your way with our portable and foldable grill (above) with battery-operated rotisserie. It will do yeoman service and come up smiling because it's surfaced with chip-proof enamel. That keg alongside holds charcoal, and the long-handled electric fire starter will speed up the action (where electricity is available). Or, reach for the box containing a new solid-state fire starter—small white bricks that trigger charcoal into a hot glow.

Put that battery-operated rotisserie to good use preparing Plum Glazed Turkey Roasts (right). As the boneless roasts rotate over the coals, you brush them with a glaze made from canned plums. Meantime, on the grill, you cook up a colorful Vegetable Skillet Salad starring zucchini, tomatoes, and onion.

Hot-off-the-hibachi hors d'oeuvres (left) will make a hit with hungry mariners. Set out a tray of skewers, ready for cooking over the hot coals. We combined sirloin strips with green pepper squares, and salami cubes with olives. Zippy Avocado Dip and Shrimp Cheese Sauce stand by, ready for dunking.

Whether fresh-caught or frozen, salmon always scores with outdoorsmen—especially if it's Grilled Salmon Steaks (below) with a lemony marinade. Old and young salts will also go for that platter of Sausage-Krauters. Fast and fun to make—just grill a variety of sausages (we chose knackwurst, smoked sausage links, and franks), pop them into hot buns, and top with a heaping helping of caraway-kraut relish.

A picnic doesn't have to mean charred hot dogs and sticky fingers. We'll show you how to set the prettiest table in the park . . . fill it with the best food in a month of Sundays . . . and set an all-time speed record for post-picnic cleanup (you cook with foil and set the table with paper).

Assembling a feast like this (left) is fun for the whole family—because everyone gets into the act, from building the fire to manning the barbecue brush. And you don't have to wait long, because much of the work has been done at home—for example, the Crab Apple Glaze for the ham. (Some glaze goes on the crab apples, too, before you heat them in foil over the coals.) Onion Potatoes also come to the park ready to go onto the fire. They're sliced in thick slabs and spread with butter or margarine zipped up with dry onion-soup mix. Glimpsed on the picnic table: a plastic family-size picnic basket that's one-finger light, and a two-gallon jug made of insulated plastic.

Even if the park grill is crowded with other people with the same idea, you're still in business if you brought along your own portable barbecue (below). This sassy red one has fold-up legs so it packs easily, and the grill is adjustable. Enamel server and cups take care of coffee (or, in this case, piping hot P-Nutty Cocoa). Spread out below, more amenities for civilized picnicking: a paisley-patterned enamel casserole (filled here with Orange Baked Beans), temper-saving pot holders, and a really man-size apron in bold Roman stripes.

In plotting picnic menus, put the accent on food that's good—and easy. Our trio of examples (above) includes Hot Corned Beef Sandwiches, Stuffing Bread, and Broiled Fruit Cup. Again, each item is handily sealed in foil for cooking, so cleanup is a cinch.

As for pretty and practical paper table settings, the woods are full of them (right). Take your pick from an eye-popping array of plates, hot and cold cups, place mats, tablecloths, and napkins. You'll find endless variety in design, color, size—and thoughtful extras" such as vinyl coating to keep laden plates from getting damp—and compartmented plates to isolate hot dogs from colelaw. Lay in a good supply, so you'll be set for a passel of picnics.

just a family picnic
in the park—but wow!

this elegant patio brunch is a breeze

Sumptuous as it looks, this delectable brunch (right) is a snap to assemble. All it takes is the right equipment and shrewd planning. To start things off with a flourish, serve Orange Champagne Cocktails. Then follow through with breakfast steaks, hot off the electric automatic griddle. (The serving cart helped transport supplies from kitchen to patio.)

That Orange Butter Coffee Cake was made ahead, to avoid last-minute brunch crunch. And yes, you can serve piping hot coffee on the patio. This insulated plastic coffee maker, unplugged, keeps coffee hot for about an hour.

To really impress the brunch bunch, concoct Apricot Ham Crepes (above). You can cheat a little by making the crepes beforehand. The serving is the thing: heat the crepes on the butane stove and ladle on hot apricot sauce. For drama, ignite brandy in a long-handled ladle and spoon it over the crepes just before serving. Great day in the morning!

An elegant brunch deserves a beverage to match—like these four (left): Tomato Vermouth Cocktail, Summer Sangaree, Rose Frappé, and Mint Sparkle. For a real show-stopper, offer Pineapple on a Spit—a whole fresh pineapple cooked over the coals and basted with orange-liqueur glaze.

On the patio steps (below) are helpers to make outdoor entertaining easier: an electric warming tray with pull-out warmer drawer; a squatty porcelain enamel casserole; portable butane camp stove on a foldaway stand; porcelain enamel coffee pot; foldaway rolling barbecue cart; stainless steel barbecue tools. The big barbecue kettle is ideal for the apartment balcony or upper-level deck: a bracket secures kettle to rail, and special construction eliminates any danger of sparks.

Even if you venture far, far off the beaten track, you're still within range of food to match those Paul Bunyan-size appetites. The trick is to acquire carry-along gear you can throw into your car on the spur of the moment.

Take, for example, the bonanza of picnic baskets (right). The woven hardwood one in the lower right-hand corner has a removable tray, ideal for that time-honored favorite, fried chicken (make it Sesame Chicken with its crisp, nutty-flavored coating, and watch the excitement as your family digs in). That capacious basket alongside is loom-woven fiber over a hardwood frame. It's fitted with cutlery, cups, and plates so you can set up housekeeping anywhere. Next, a woven hardwood basket with a slide-open cover that accepts dishes when you're serving. Perched on the tree trunk: a wealth of woven willow baskets in sizes and shapes to fit every need.

And if you really believe in traveling light, check the complete camp/picnic service for four that stores neatly in a large kettle (above). The non-stick fry pan doubles as the kettle cover.

Wherever you're headed, you can enjoy Campsite Chicken Chowder en route, kept steaming in an insulated plastic ice bucket (the bail handle makes it easy to carry). Bring the chowder from home, or cook it on location over an open fire. It's easy—all ingredients except water come in packages or cans.

For the ultimate in tailgating, equip your wagon with a mobile storage unit (below) which holds all the essentials—permanently. Just lift it in and out of your wagon whenever the spirit moves you. (See page 107 for details.) Here the unit is serving up a traffic-stopping roadside breakfast of Double Corn Cakes made from pancake mix, cornmeal, and cream style corn, all cooked on the folding propane camp stove. Go-alongs include crisp bacon strips and fruit cup sparked with orange-flavored breakfast drink powder—a great start for any day.

ONE COLOR SCHEME ALL THE WAY!

By Peg Rumely, Home Furnishings Editor,
and Nelda Cordts, Associate Editor

Are you and your family keen about a certain color scheme? Then let it flow from room to room throughout your home. Don't worry about monotony! We'll show you all sorts of ways to avoid sameness. Actually, the idea is much like the variation on a theme in music. Here, the basic color scheme provides the theme, and each room interprets it in a different, but harmonious way.

To indicate how it's done, here and on the following pages are three different homes decorated by David Eugene Bell,

A.I.D., of Bloomingdale's. Mr. Bell's strategy? To take full advantage of today's limitless variety in patterns, textures, and hues found in just one color. Notice, too, how using a one-color scheme in varying emphasis gives a different look to each room. There's an illusion of extra spaciousness because the color scheme's continuity is unbroken.

Shown here is a contemporary home located on a lake. Mr. Bell plays up nature's colors by bringing them inside and exploiting their intensities.

Photographs: Lisanti, Inc. Source: Estelle Bond Guralnick. Builder: Green Brothers Realty Trust

Above: See how this boys' room adroitly captures the warm sun tones of the color scheme. The rugged restraint of ceiling, walls, and carpet establishes the background for the thrust of color in several pieces of painted furniture, plaid bedspreads, posters, and paintings.

Above: Here decorating follows the pattern pace started in the living room and enlarges upon it. Result: great decorating action in a limited space. White is just the right sparkle accent. Bare wood floor and beamed ceiling provide good levelers for this color extravaganza.

Left: It's in the living room that the color scheme kicks off—launched by the striking avant-garde print. Note how myriad hues of the orange, yellow, green, and blue palette are interpreted. Each accessory picks up one of these colors while the stringent punch of sharp orange and brilliant blue covers the major areas.

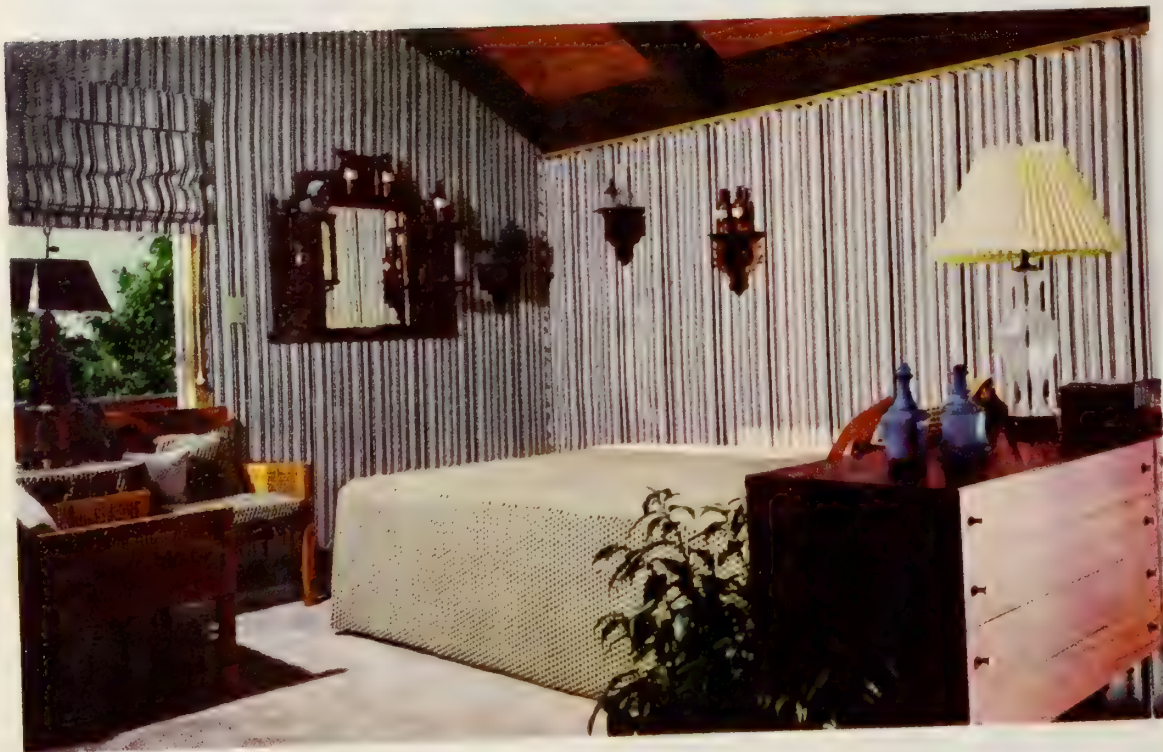

Above: Generous amounts of expanding yellow and white visually stretch this kitchen and eating center. Adding exceptional flair to the decorating are the striped vinyl floor, orange vinyl fronts on the cabinets, and an old pedestal kitchen table teamed with canvas director chairs. Follow-along print appears in Roman shade.

NEUTRALITY: A WINNING STRATEGY

Colors can speak softly and still be powerfully persuasive. And we'll prove the point with a "no-color" scheme. Watch it flow quietly through a contemporary house, with devastating effect.

Below: Subtle colors gain authority when they're interpreted in a daring juxtaposition of patterns. In this master bedroom, wide swaths of soft neutrals and warm wood tones keep the peace.

Below: This small but inviting guest room/studio demonstrates the expansive power of a muted color scheme. Abetting the expansion are a small-scale desk, sheer curtains, and a room-stretching mirror. Steerhide rug, striped pillow, and polka-dot patterned cushion manage to introduce pattern into the scene.

Below right: Choose a subtle color scheme, and you're free to come on strong in other decorating departments, such as pattern and texture. Here, the sky is the limit—with jungle-print wall, geometric-patterned rug, glass-steel table and bentwood chairs, and raffia draperies. Yet the total effect is potent, not overpowering.

Above: Another nice thing about the members of the neutral family—they're wonderfully convivial. And that's important, with the potpourri of furniture styles you're apt to find in today's living room. In this one, white walls provide the anything-goes backdrop for a friendly interplay of patterns and periods: the natural brick fireplace, beamed ceiling, harlequin-patterned rug, multi-armed floor lamp, and modern sculpture. The neutrality of the scheme means there's no color clash, no generation gap.

Left: Here that ubiquitous no-color scheme gives the kitchen a slick-as-a-whistle look. Ingredients: snake-print wallpaper, gray-brick vinyl floor, black vinyl cabinet inserts. Stainless steel table and chairs and metal chandelier add shine.

HERE, A TOTAL TAKE-OVER BY STRONG COLORS

Red, white, and blue give you a color scheme everyone will salute. But what makes this particular showing of the colors special is the witty way it's done. The spirit of '76 is set to the tempo of today, giving the whole house point and punch.

Right: At first glance, this room looks traditional but underfoot there's the bright bounce of washable vinyl. Patterned tiles have been inset into white ones to simulate an area rug. Note how the reflective strength of the white backdrops the red, and how pronounced a bit of blue can be. Wallpaper restates living room and foyer pattern.

Interior Designer: David Eugene Bell, A.I.D., of Bloomingdale's

Above: Even if it's handkerchief size, a bathroom can make an important restatement of a color scheme. Here it's done with a flamboyant feather print, exaggerated by a big mirror and damped down with splashes of white. Notice, too, that every accessory has something to say in support of the spectacular color scheme.

Above: When you happen on something that uniquely interprets your color scheme, it bears repeating. Take, for example, the contemporary calico print in this entry. It captured not only the colors but the then-and-now mood of the scheme, so it was used for all it's worth—here, and in the living and dining rooms.

Left: In the living room, red comes on strong—but not too strong. Its warmth is carefully controlled by the interplay of patterns and textures in the braid rug, striped draperies, wood floors. The calico print plays a significant role too—establishing continuity with foyer and dining room and, paradoxically, helping divide this long living room into both convivial and contemplative zones.

Above: One good way to stick to a color scheme all over the house—without being stuck with it—is to switch the background color. In this master bedroom, it's a switch to restful blue on walls and in the carpet. Another device: allying two strikingly different patterns—a bold plaid and an Early American documentary print. Here it's done to make the room equally appealing to husband and wife.

MULCH AND EDGE YOUR FLOWER BEDS FOR EASY MAINTENANCE

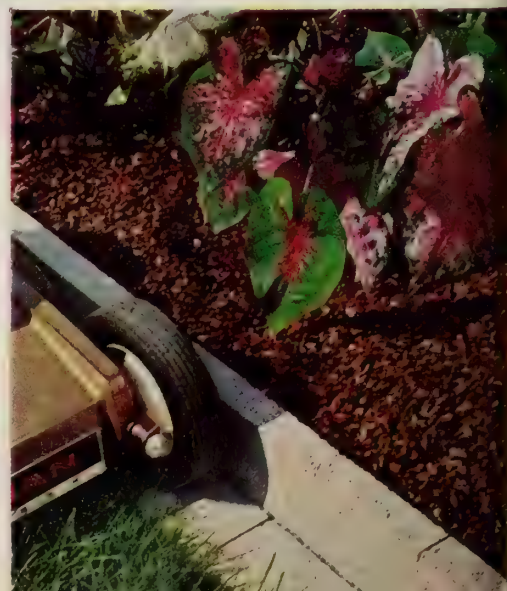

These simple work-savers are often overlooked. Mulches reduce weeding, conserve moisture. Edgings make for trim beds, easier mowing. Costs shown are per-square-foot of mulch, lineal foot of edging. Use local mulches (all do a good job); edgings are nationally obtainable.

Photographs: de Gennaro, Hopkins

Above: Redwood sawdust and aluminum edging combine well to keep this annual border tidy. Redwood sawdust is most plentiful along the West Coast, where it is widely favored in landscaping because it does not decompose quickly. The aluminum is soft and tractable—bends readily to follow any line you want it to. It comes in rolls of different widths to suit your needs, and is easily cut with heavy shears. Here, Petite Yellow marigolds and Early Bird Blue asters fill an area that demands low, bushy plants with a lot of flowers. Redwood sawdust—12c; aluminum—10c.

Right: Cocoa bean hulls and concrete bricks contrast sharply; they also give colorful caladiums a rich brown background and an easy-care mowing strip. The cocoa bean hulls are lightweight and readily distributed—yet they won't blow away in the wind. As they decompose at the end of the growing season, dig them thoroughly into the soil to help make a good tilth. The hulls are particularly good at conserving moisture, which is all to the good for caladiums. Concrete bricks (4x4x16) face patio blocks (2x8x16) to form edging. Cocoa beans—22c; bricks, blocks—17c.

Right: Bagasse and redwood 2x4 edging protect this border of Chinese hibiscus, giving it a well-tailored look. Bagasse allows penetration of water and air to the soil below, but also does the primary job of any mulch—eliminating the drying effects of sun and wind. Redwood is rot resistant, so you can expect long use from it. The tropical hibiscus is shown here; in cold areas, substitute the hardy perennial variety that dies down in winter. Its blooms are much bigger, sometimes almost of dinner-plate size. Allow space—it grows more than you expect. Bagasse—20c; redwood 2x4—20c.

Above: Pine straw and bricks are a fine combination for protecting beds of acid-loving plants such as azaleas, rhododendrons, and camellias. The pine straw is slightly acid and so helps to maintain soil acidity as it breaks down. Unless the mulch harbors disease, you don't have to replace it from scratch each year. Merely add to it each spring, keeping about a three-inch thickness. Water and plant foods will percolate through and into the soil beneath. The azalea pictured is Rose Glow, an evergreen variety. In colder areas, use deciduous forms. Pine straw—17c; clay bricks—11c.

Right: Ground corncobs and composition edging keep this bed of Buffalo and Golden Mound chrysanthemums neat and clean. If you dry-feed, pull back the mulch and replace it after applying fertilizer—or use a lance that pierces the layers of corncobs. A white mold may appear on the corncobs, but it's harmless and no cause for concern. As the mulch deteriorates (in two years), simply add to it as required. Our special edging, though 1/2-inch thick, easily bends around gentle curves and is chemically treated to discourage any encroaching weed growth. Corncocks—7c; composition edging—12c.

Above: Hay and redwood 2x4s take the worst woes (weeds and frequent watering) out of your vegetable garden. Loose hay, available all over the country, is inexpensive and does a remarkably good job of protecting delicious food crops. While this is not an ornamental mulch, it serves its purpose in line with the economy of growing your own vegetables. Redwood provides some extra flair. Hay—5c; redwood 2x4—20c.

Above: Fir bark and heavy steel edging are heavy-duty materials. The coarse-textured bark looks best when used with large plants, such as these Sargent junipers. The $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch-thick steel edging is four inches wide. With the aid of inserted flat iron stakes, it firmly holds a gravel walkway in place. Fir bark—22c; steel edging—50c.

VACATIONING IN THE WILDERNESS

Last summer, high in the Chilkoot Pass in Alaska's snowcapped St. Elias range, two men and five teen-aged boys stretched out their sleeping bags in the shelter of giant boulders. Fastening aluminized plastic space blankets over themselves to break the wind and keep in body heat, they snuggled down for a night's rest. All day they had backpacked over snowfields, jumbled rocks, and rolling gravel of a trail gold rushers broke through this wilderness in 1898, and they were bone-weary. Still, before he went to sleep, one boy said, "I know after today that I could have survived in caveman days."

More and more, fathers and sons (and mothers and daughters, too) are backpacking over wilderness trails. If family beginners observe commonsense rules established by such groups as the Sierra Club and Boy Scouts, they can venture into the wilderness without fear.

A successful backpack starts long before you take to the trail. Pick an area and get the best trail maps and booklets you can obtain. U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey topographic maps, U.S. Forest Service and National Park Service maps are best. Plan your hike so you won't be attempting too much in a day. (Eight miles a day under pack is a good hike.) It takes a least five hours of hiking to cover that distance, and you should leave time for making camp, cooking, and enjoying the fascinating things that pop up along the way.

Every comfort you have in camp at the end of a day's hike is a burden on your back during the day. Few hikers carry along such amenities as air mattresses, and they find all kinds of ways to cut down weight. A number 10 tin can and a small aluminum kettle are all the cooking gear you need if you stick to one-pot meals. Carry prepackaged commercial dehydrated food, a collapsible canvas bucket, and collapsible brush saw (instead of an ax—responsible for most camp accidents). There are lightweight backpack tents, but a six-by-eight-foot polyethylene tarp shelters two people and weighs less.

You'll also need a windbreaker and sweater for protection against sudden mountain chills and night cold; sleeping bag; rain poncho; sneakers for wear in camp; an extra change of clothing; spare socks and underwear; a toilet kit—plus handkerchiefs, first-aid kit, aspirin, insect repellent, mess kit, toilet paper, and a flashlight with spare batteries.

Carry all this in a camper pack and frame with a waist strap to hold the pack in tight, so it saddles the load on your hips where it belongs. Wear sturdy hiking shoes or boots (lug soles are best), woolen or cotton hiking socks, tough pants without cuffs, visored cap, and a warm, long-sleeved shirt.

When you are ready to start out on the trail, let somebody know where you're going. In a national park or forest, check with a ranger to see if the trail you plan to hike has any special problems.

Once on the trail, the leader should set a rhythmic pace that is comfortable for even the shortest legs in the party. After holding to a steady pace for about an hour, stop for a rest. When you stop, don't slip out of your pack; sit down and lean back on it. Drink water freely—particularly if you are in a hot and dry climate—so you won't become dehydrated by your exercise.

When crossing a stream, don't jump from one rock to another. If you cannot cross on a log or stepping-stones, take your shoes and socks off and wade. If the bottom is rough, leave your socks off, but put shoes back on to protect your feet. Wet socks cause blisters, and so do bunched, thin, or wrong-size socks, or failure to cut toenails square.

When you arrive at a campsite, pick a place for your fire and bed. Gather all the kindling and firewood you need before starting your cooking fire, and build it in a cleared area so you won't endanger your camp and the woods around you. Take turns with cooking, fire building, dishwashing, getting water, cleaning up the campsite and burning trash. Even the smallest child should help with the chores, for then he'll feel very much part of your expedition.

Before it gets dark, remove rocks, sticks, and pine cones from your bed site, and if necessary, spread out pine needles, dried grass, or leaves for cushioning. Put down your ground covers and sleeping bags, and you are ready to slumber beneath the stars.

Here are some of the best backpacking trails in the country:

Mount Rainier National Park in Washington. Wonderland Trail circles Mt. Rainier for 90 miles and is ideal for a backpack jaunt of about a week. The trail provides all kinds of hiking conditions and is a good place for a beginner to practice his skills. Campsites with shelters are eight to 12 miles apart.

Glacier Bay National Monument. You fly into this Alaska wilderness of spectacular glaciers and mountains. From base camp, you hike over ridgetops to viewpoints overlooking rivers of ice. Through mature forests at the coast to the beginnings of a forest beside the glaciers, you can "hike back through evolution."

High Sierras, California. The John Muir Trail runs 200 miles from Tuolumne Meadows in Yosemite National Park to Whitney Portal beyond 14,495-foot Mt. Whitney. It's challenging, but has been traversed by hikers from five to 77 years old. Mountain hiker Joseph Wampler (Box 45, Berkeley, California 94701) leads parties over the trail, with horses to carry the packs and equipment. A doctor goes along, too.

Bob Marshall Wilderness of the Flathead and Lewis & Clark national forests in Montana. Outstanding backpack trails in this primitive mountain retreat range from the three-day Gates Park Short Loop to the seven-day, 60-mile hike to the South Chinese Wall.

Big Bend National Park in Texas. Before starting one of the wilderness desert trails in this mountainous park, check with a ranger. You must know how to use a topographic map, but if you are aware of the hazards of desert hiking, you're safe enough. Carry plenty of water (a gallon a day is recommended). Rangers also suggest you take a snakebite kit and be careful about cacti and other plants which can inflict painful wounds if you ram into them.

Shawnee National Forest in Illinois. The Ozark-Shawnee Trail winds for 115 miles through the ancient Shawnee Hills from Grand Tower on the Mississippi River to Battery Rock on the Ohio. Hollows and summits, caves and bluffs, prehistoric petroglyphs and a buffalo trap make this a top midwestern trail.

Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior. A three-day backpack trail runs along this 45-mile island, on which moose and wolves live (they won't bother you). No roads are permitted on Isle Royale, which provides some of the best backpacking—and get-away-from-it-all adventure—in the North Woods.

Appalachian Trail. This 2,000-mile footpath runs from Mount Katahdin in Maine to Springer Mountain in Georgia; it can be hiked in four months. Most hikers follow the trail from one access point to another, which makes possible backpacks for a weekend, a week, or two weeks. A hike from Katahdin to the New Hampshire state line is 279 miles, for example, and the Long Trail section from Sherburne Pass in Vermont to Massachusetts is 95 miles.

THE COUNTRY MUSIC SCENE IN NASHVILLE

You don't have to be a connoisseur of country music to get a kick out of Nashville's country music boom—and its reverberations on what was once a quiet southern city. It's interesting to observe simply as a phenomenon, like the Grand Canyon and Niagara Falls.

Make your first stop in Nashville the Grand Ole Opry House (between Fourth and Sixth Avenue, North) built originally as the Union Gospel Tabernacle. Inside, you'll sit on the original Tabernacle pews, hard enough to make the most brazen sinner repent; souvenir pillows are mercifully sold in the lobby. But once the show begins, you'll forget the lack of creature comforts, for the freewheeling excitement on stage and the roof-raising response of the audience are contagious (and slightly deafening as well).

One of the most engaging qualities of an Opry performance is its feeling of spontaneity. Visitors and children wander onstage from the wings, lines are flubbed, microphones fail, and flashbulbs crunch underfoot as fans vie for shots of in a plane crash; the homes of Webb Pierce, Tex Ritter, Skeeter Davis, Faron Young, Jim Ed Brown, Eddie Arnold. You'll pause at the house of Audrey Williams, widow of the legendary Hank, to view the $40,000 cabana out back and the Civil War cannon in the front yard. If you get hungry, there'll be a stop at Minnie Pearl's Chicken Hut.

You'll tour Music Row, the area around 16th and 17th Avenues south of Division Street which houses the bulk of the activity in Nashville's multi-million-dollar music business. At Columbia Records, you'll see a studio suspended on springs to keep out noise of planes and traffic. It was here that Jeannie C. Riley recorded her $3 million hit, Harper Valley P.T.A. Climax of the tour is a visit backstage at the Grand Ole Opry to see the stars' dressing rooms, color portraits, and a colorful array of stage sets.

To round out your close-up look at Music City U.S.A., visit the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, 16th and Division (adults $1; children under 12, 50c; preschool, free). Start by viewing a ten-minute color film on the history of country music, narrated by Tex Ritter. Next see how a record is made, and look in on a demonstration recording session. Then wander into the "hall of fame," with bronze plaques and portraits of the

their favorites. It's amateur night and Ed Sullivan and a three-ring circus all rolled into one—and it's fun. June through October, there are two Saturday night shows; the rest of the year, one Saturday night (reserved seats $3; general admission $2; children $1). Seats are at a premium, especially during the summer, so write for tickets well ahead to: Opry House, Opry Place, Nashville, Tenn. 37219. Year-round there are Friday night shows.

For a different view of the country music phenomenon, climb aboard a WSM Music City Tour bus (Saturdays). Your guide will point out the wooded clump where Gentleman Jim Reeves died biggest names of Country and Western music and memorabilia of the stars: Eddie Arnold's first guitar, the hat Minnie Pearl wore at her Opry debut, Earl Scruggs' and Burl Ives' banjos, Gabby Hayes' boots, the high-button shoes and suit worn on shows for 18 years by the Duke of Paducah. One display case is devoted to relics salvaged from the 1963 plane crash that took the life of Opry songstress Patsy Cline; it contains her favorite wig, mascara wand, hair brush, and battered Confederate-flagged cigarette lighter that still plays Dixie.

For more information, write: Nashville Chamber of Commerce, 310 Union Street, Nashville, Tenn.—Mary Ann Robertson.

Start by viewing a ten-minute color film on the history of country music, narrated by Tex Ritter. Next see how a record is made, and look in on a demonstration recording session. Then wander into the "hall of fame," with bronze plaques and portraits of the

their favorites. It's amateur night and Ed Sullivan and a three-ring circus all rolled into one—and it's fun. June through October, there are two Saturday night shows; the rest of the year, one Saturday night (reserved seats $3; general admission $2; children $1). Seats are at a premium, especially during the summer, so write for tickets well ahead to: Opry House, Opry Place, Nashville, Tenn. 37219. Year-round there are Friday night shows.

For a different view of the country music phenomenon, climb aboard a WSM Music City Tour bus (Saturdays). Your guide will point out the wooded clump where Gentleman Jim Reeves died biggest names of Country and Western music and memorabilia of the stars: Eddie Arnold's first guitar, the hat Minnie Pearl wore at her Opry debut, Earl Scruggs' and Burl Ives' banjos, Gabby Hayes' boots, the high-button shoes and suit worn on shows for 18 years by the Duke of Paducah. One display case is devoted to relics salvaged from the 1963 plane crash that took the life of Opry songstress Patsy Cline; it contains her favorite wig, mascara wand, hair brush, and battered Confederate-flagged cigarette lighter that still plays Dixie.

WALKING TOURS OF CANADA'S GREAT CITIES

Vancouver—In this Pacific Coast city we worked out two half-day walking tours for you, both starting at the gleaming new public library at Robson and Burrard Streets downtown. The library itself usually has special exhibits relating to Canadian history or culture.

Walk west on Robson and you enter the "International Quarter" of Vancouver, with fascinating shops purveying exotic foods, imports, toys, fabrics—plus tea shops and restaurants. You'd probably never discover this area in a car; that's why many tourists miss it.

Then go two blocks north to Georgia Street and continue walking west to Stanley Park, one of the most famous city parks in North America. Canadians really use their parks, so you'll see a great variety of people here—including a big summertime hippie group (along Beach Avenue). Relax—they're not hostile, even to American tourists!

Take time in Stanley Park to see several big totem poles, the zoo, an outstanding aquarium, and many brilliant-hued flower gardens. You may even observe a cricket game in progress—and you'll certainly have some fine views of Vancouver's harbor and its colorful floating marine gas stations.

Your second half-day stroll takes you from the public library north on Burrard to the ferry and passenger ship terminal, and then east on Hastings Street. You pass Eatons department store (an excellent place to buy Canadian and British goods), and a few blocks later you are in Chinatown.

This bustling district is second in size only to San Francisco's on this continent. Some of the shops are well worth browsing through—there's even a genuine Chinese supermarket—and you'll find restaurants and exotic theater-restaurants here as well.

After walking on Hastings as far as Main Street, return to the downtown area along Pender Street, Chinatown's other main thoroughfare.—Neil Kuehn.

Quebec—Start your walking tour of this ancient walled city at the Chateau Frontenac, famous old hotel landmark of Quebec. Stop first at the Musee du Fort, with its sound and light diorama of the battles of Quebec, and the Wax Museum, which traces the city's history. Both are across the Place de Armes from the Chateau.

Also on this square is the Anglican Cathedral. When you enter it, time goes back for you almost two centuries. The cathedral's vaults contain extensive and accurate records of births, marriages, and deaths in the Parish since 1768.

Several blocks west on St. Louis Street, turn right on Du Parloir for a tour of the Ursuline Convent, founded in 1639. From here walk north to De La Fabrique and St. Jean Streets (lined with scores of shops and restaurants) and west again to Cote Du Palais and the Hotel Dieu Hospital, one of the oldest in North America. In the chapel are paintings by old masters and furniture and silver dating to the 17th century.

Return to St. Jean and head east to the Basilica, which contains rich art treasures and paintings. In its crypt are buried 900 persons, many of them notable figures in the history of Quebec. Around the corner are the Archbishop's Palace and Quebec Seminary, and behind it, old Laval University, one of the oldest schools on the continent.

From here, wind your way down steep De La Montagne Street, through Quebec's Latin Quarter, to the Lower City beneath the great stone wall. At the foot of Notre Dame Street is the ancient church of Notre Dame des Victories. Inside are paintings by Rubens and Vandyke and some truly unique woodcarvings. In 1608 Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec, came ashore just a few steps away from this spot.

Several blocks behind the church is Hotel Chevalier, dating from the 1750s and restored as a museum. From here, walk to the elevator that will lift you to the Chateau's Dufferin Terrace. At the top of the steps to your right is a lone cross that marks Quebec's first cemetery. The elevator entrance is in the restored home of Louis Jolliet, the famous explorer, where there is now a delightful little coffee shop.

You'll also want to visit—by car or bus—the Citadel to watch the colorful changing of the guard or the stirring retreat ceremonies.

Toronto—Start your walk downtown at Toronto-Dominion Centre, a modern business and shopping complex at King and Bay Streets. Browse the variety of shops in the subterranean concourse, then take the elevator to the 55th-floor Observation Gallery of Toronto Dominion Bank Tower for a sweeping view of the city and a look at the Eskimo art exhibit.

Next head north on Bay to Queen Street for a look at classic Osgoode Hall. The odd iron gates around the lawn were built originally to keep out cows! Then tour the fabulous new City Hall complex, an outstanding architectural symbol. There's an observation deck on the 27th floor, and daily tours of the complex.

Walk east on Queen to Yonge Street, the downtown shopping thoroughfare, and turn north on Bond to the restored Victorian home of patriot and rebel William Lyon Mackenzie (at Dundas and Bond Streets). From there go west on Dundas across University Avenue to lovely Grange Park and the Art Gallery with exhibits ranging from old masters to psychedelic.

Now head north on University—a long walk—to Queen's Park and Ontario's Parliament buildings. You'll enjoy visiting the historic legislative chamber and corridor displays. On the west side of Queen's Park crescent is the Canadiana Gallery—with glass, silver, furniture, handicrafts, and historic exhibits—and the campus of the University of Toronto. At the north end of Queen's Park (at Bloor Street and Avenue Road) is the Royal Ontario Museum, a must stop. Housed here are exhibits recording the life and arts of man and one of the world's most comprehensive Chinese collections, complete with a Ming tomb. Then walk east to Yonge Street to catch a subway back to the downtown area.

For more information on any of these cities, write: Canadian Government Travel Bureau, 100 N. LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois 60602.

THE CHARM OF THE PAST IN SAVANNAH

The perfect charm and beauty of the place will be the first impression you'll have of historic Savannah, Georgia. The city is famous for the graceful little squares, or parks, that dot the downtown area. Planned as central areas for water, fortification, and protection for the Oglethorpe colonists, these squares are now filled with flowering plants, giant shade trees, fountains, and monuments. Around them stand some of the oldest homes and buildings in America.

Start your tour of Savannah's past with a walk through this area, pausing to rest in these refreshing little parks. Visit the Owens-Thomas House, a beautiful example of English Regency architecture (Lafayette stayed here on his famous visit in 1825); Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences, housing a fine collection of portraits, paintings, and antique furniture; Juliette Gordon Low House, where the founder of the Girl Scouts was born; Christ Episcopal Church, whose first ministers were John and Charles Wesley, later founders of the Methodist Church; Green-Meldrim House, personal headquarters for General Sherman during his occupation of the city.

Next move on to the waterfront area. If it's lunch or dinner time, stop in at the Pirates' House, a restored inn where legend has it Treasure Island's Captain Flint died shouting, "Darby bring aft the rum!" Rum is still served here, as well as a superb menu of seafood and American dishes. A few blocks away is Factor's Walk, a picturesque row of offices and warehouses along the Savannah riverfront, once headquarters for "King Cotton." The Savannah Area Chamber of Commerce occupies the ornate Cotton and Naval Stores Exchange building here. Stop in for walking tour maps.

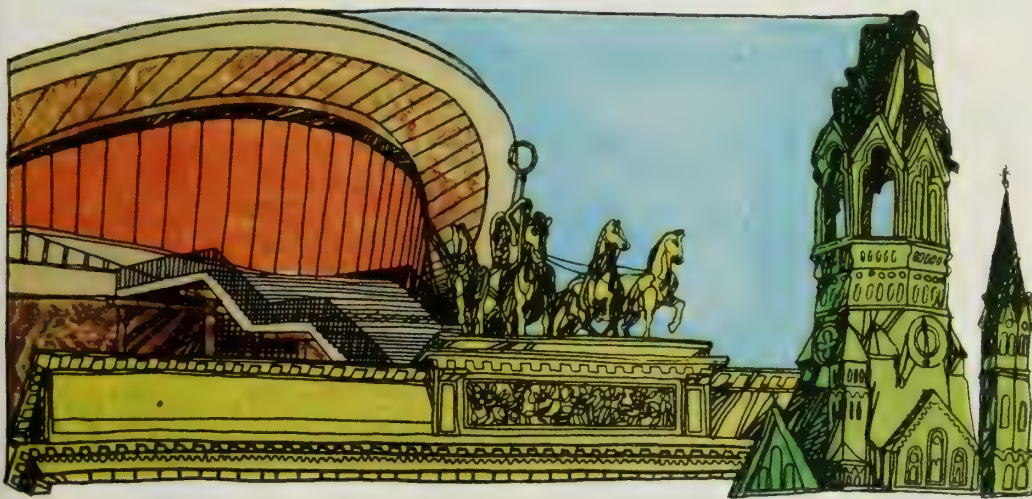

A level below Factor's Walk is River Street, paved with cobblestones brought as ballast in early sailing ships. Along the street today are the fascinating Ships of the Sea Museum; the Cruz del Sur, a full-rigged sailing ship you can visit; and the Factor's Walk Military Museum.

But you won't want to spend all your time browsing the past. For great family fun, head for Savannah's beach and resort area on the coast. The long white strand of Savannah Beach on Tybee Island is a local favorite. Just north of here is Hilton Head Island, site of magnificent uncrowded beaches, excellent resort inns, and two championship golf courses. To the south, on Wilmington Island, is Savannah Inn and Country Club, a family resort with a wide range of facilities.

For more details, write: Savannah Area Chamber of Commerce, 100 East Bay St., Savannah, Georgia 31402.

BERLIN: GERMAN GLAMOUR CITY

Ask a knowledgeable Berliner what it is about the city that charms so many U.S. visitors, and he may well reply, "It's so much like Chicago." That's because West Berlin is a town that takes its fun seriously. Its visitors face an overwhelming array of eateries, nightclubs, and shops—not to mention a long list of outdoor delights, from Germany's largest zoo to a gigantic open-air theater.

To all this, native Berliners (and there are three million) would add one more magnetic ingredient—Gemütlichkeit. Difficult to define, Gemütlichkeit is an elusive blend of where you are, who you're with, what you're eating, and the special way all this makes you feel. With ample reason, Berliners will tell you there's more Gemütlichkeit per square inch in Berlin than any other city.

Yet for many Americans, there's another fascination to this compelling metropolis, ravaged some 20 years ago by bomb and shell. That's Berlin's inescapable aura of history, ancient and immediate, that can hit you any time: the curious hush inside Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial church, where soaring, blue-windowed walls shut out street noises; the grandeur of the towering, columned Brandenburg Gate; the twinge of apprehension as you hand your passport over to the Red guard at Checkpoint Charlie on your way to spend a few hours exploring East Berlin.

To do Berlin justice, give it no less than three days. Start with a day's guided bus tour, split between West and East Berlin. Then, with landmarks established, you can easily rent a car or use Berlin cabs (a bargain by U.S. prices).

Whether they plan it or not, most visitors are drawn to the two-mile-long Kurfürstendamm Boulevard, packed with sidewalk cafes, boutiques, theaters, and crowned by the 22-story Europa Center. Though it takes willpower, save time for attractions like the 500-foot radio tower, the inviting Tiergarten (largest of Berlin's many parks and site of the starkly modern Congress Hall), and Charlottenburg Palace, ornate relic of royalty.

The Berlin tourist office can help you pick from the maze of fine restaurants—from the elegant Ritz to the cozy, old-world Kottler (complete with zither player). They'll also steer you to some memorable nights out, whether you prefer spots like Die Spitze, gathering spot for artists, a rooftop tanzgarten, or one of Berlin's 18 theaters.

Air travel to Berlin is simpler than you'd think. One airline—Pan American Airways—even offers four weekly direct flights to Berlin from New York. You leave at 9 p.m. and arrive at 11 a.m. Berlin time. Basic excursion fare is $376, round-trip economy class $527.60, first class $873.—Pete Lindberg.

THE BEST STORAGE UNITS WE'VE SEEN

Nine of the most exciting storage ideas ever! Not conventional closets or ordinary bookshelves—these units create rooms, set up party centers, or move your whole wardrobe within reach. Here's your chance to put things where you can get at them, and wake up your home, too.

Photographs: Bill Hedrich Hedrich-Blessing Interior Designer: Eugene Levin Associates, Inc. Source: Lois Rea

Photograph: Suter, Hedrich-Blessing. Source: Elizabeth Lunt

Far left: This wall is a real conversation piece. And it's just as efficient as it is good looking. The alternate arrangement of lacquered doors and walnut shelves is attractive, but it's what's behind the doors that's unusual. The single door at the left and the double doors at the far right store glassware and party supplies. But the double double-doors in the center fold back to reveal something really special—a party sink built into the counter bar. Supports under cabinets are plywood boxes sheathed in black plastic laminate. Closed cabinets are 16 inches deep, shelves a foot deep. The solid birch doors are fifteen inches wide and finished with acrylic lacquer.

Above: If you can spare just 20 inches along one wall of your bedroom, you have a spot for this spectacular wardrobe storage unit. In addition to the hanging space furnished by an ordinary closet, there are shelves for purses, drawers for socks, a special place for shoes, and all sorts of compartments for small items.

Doors and drawers are solid birch with an "antique" glaze of gold on white. The screen in front of the shirred fabric in the door panels is expanded aluminum anodized bright gold. This unit spans 13 feet of wall.

Left: This was just a niche in the wall—a dead space six feet wide, two feet deep. Now it's alive and working. The sink and tile-topped bar save steps to and from the kitchen when you're entertaining. And when the party's over, the doors close to give a distinctively masculine accent to this brick-walled room.

Right: You can have a storage wall and still keep it a secret. Here, a once-blank wall becomes a floor-to-ceiling storage area. Close the doors, and the wall's practical side is neatly concealed. Now there's plenty of space for china, party gear, and other paraphernalia that never had a place of its own.

The area is closed off behind four pairs of metal bifold doors—a standard item at your building supply dealer's. These are painted to pick up the colors of the furniture, but you could just as easily color-blend them into the walls.

Below: Tired of staring at four blank walls? Why not consider this a total treatment. Closed, it's a handsome, massive bookcase; but every panel opens to a second storage area. There's a nook for the television and a special spot for camera supplies. Soft drink cartons are stored at the far end, and the double doors in the middle open into a spectacular beverage bar.

Birch was used here, but you could make almost any wood fit your situation. While piano hinges are sufficient for the cabinet doors in front of the television, you'll need heavy floor-mounted hinges to carry the loaded bookshelves.

Far right: Here is a divider that thinks it's a piece of furniture—and rightly so. Made of oak, stained dark red, it creates a dramatic backdrop for this antique English desk.

Traffic flows smoothly around either side into the dining room where the unit presents its other face—a buffet with storage cabinets.

STORAGE BY THE BOX

Above far left: This handsome unit visually separates the den from living and dining areas. The portable fireplace is ready-made; the flanking cabinets were custom designed to conform with the fireplace.

You could vary this arrangement with the addition of other units, or just use one and give the fireplace a corner location. Recessed bases under the units make them seem to float over their gravel base. Walnut with plastic laminate tops are used here, but you could use any materials to make this group fit your situation.

Below far left: The wall-hung buffet in the dining room provides excellent serving shelves on two levels, plus abundant space for silver, china, crystal, linens, small appliances.

The buffet looks like a built-in, but was designed to move with the owners. With a few adaptations, the unit could function as a handsome freestanding divider.

Above left: Here's proof a unit need not be sizable to divide a room effectively or create a hardworking storage area. Six feet long and just over four feet high, this one separates living and dining areas. It could also be used to create a quiet little nook at one end of your living room.

The striking bases meant for low tables are exactly right here. Particle board was used for the doors as a guarantee against warpage.

Below left: Sit back and relax while the shelf side goes to work for you. The bottom shelf is designed to hold record albums, while the top is for books. Before you build a unit of your own, ask yourself, "What's going in it?" Then tailor it precisely to your particular needs.

THE VINYL WORD ON KITCHENS!

By Helen A. Dawson, Kitchens and Equipment Editor,
and Georgia V. Young, Associate Editor

Vinyl now is the final word—for an easy-care kitchen that's as good-looking as your living room. We designed this one ourselves. All its surfaces are completely clad in protective, washable plastic. Yet the results look so much like their counterparts—wood, leather, ceramic, parquet—that you'll find it hard to tell the difference. Until you see the price: only a fraction of the cost of the "genuine" article.

Washable vinyl coats the stucco-like ceiling of acoustical panels. Oversize squares of embossed vinyl pattern the floor with Byzantine tracery. In between, the paneling, storage, work top—even the furniture—are mix-and-match molded plastic.

The rosewood pattern, for example, feels like wood . . . but wears and cleans like vinyl; resists heat, stains, moisture. Light sanding removes scratches—touch-up kit repairs nicks. This vinyl veneer conforms to beveled edges, rounded corners, sculptured designs. Already protecting some furniture (such as this table and the chairs), vinyl veneering now offers patterns unlimited for paneling and storage units. Soon a matching work top may include a warming area for foods.

These new vinyls that keep their good looks year after year portend the demise of kitchen drudgery—in fact, the end of the kitchen as we think of it today. Choose plastics to coordinate with all your appliances. Here, for example, the charcoal storage units blend—both in line and color—with the black glass door on the elegant, all-automatic electric range. And rosewood, below, repeats the copper tones of the cooking surface and lower oven.

Fragrant flower carts that once dotted cobblestone corners are gone, but not forgotten. Here their color and charm inspired a trio of contemporary table settings. To create your own garden-fresh table, start with a centerpiece of brilliant summer flowers, set off with a translucent sheer or sun-dappled checked cloth. Or, you can dot the tabletop with bright stepping-stones of place mat shapes. Now add your prettiest china and silver (remember, your elegant table trimmings translate beautifully to terrace or patio).

Today's table settings offer you a tremendous choice: from abstract-design pottery to delicately banded fine china, from streamlined stainless to intricately patterned flatware, and from understated to ornate crystal designs. Whether you're planning to entertain indoors by candlelight or outdoors by sunlight or moonlight, check our tables first for ideas.

Left: A romantic tea table with a splendid arrangement of multi-hued roses and bold-figured sheer cloth provides a perfect background for fine china and silver. Kashmir pattern plates, Rondelay flatware, and Early American pattern beverage service add to the elegant effect.

Below left: Next to a sunny latticed wall, light lunch is served with verve! The sprightly spring mood is captured in a tall bouquet of delphinium, daisies, and cornflowers piled in a pottery pitcher. On the misty floral table throw, Gold Riviera pattern china and Grand Carino gold plate flatware.

Below: Sunset supper on the terrace is a triumph of cool understated patterns. Vivid ranunculus and anemones in centerpiece are only table accent. Gold-checked cloth complements the subtly bordered Belcanto pattern china and the fine tracteries of Flower Song stainless flatware.

Mustard Buttered Steaks

Spread on mustard butter for devilishly delicious steaks—

4 T-bone steaks, cut about 1½ inches thick

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
2 tablespoons prepared mustard

Slash fat on edges of steaks. Broil over medium coals for 6 to 7 minutes on each side for rare, 8 to 9 minutes on each side for medium.

Stir together the softened butter or margarine and the mustard. Spread half the mixture on steaks; broil 1 to 2 minutes longer. Turn steaks and spread with remaining butter mixture; broil 1 to 2 minutes more. Makes 4 servings.

Rice Mushroom Barbecue

Wrap the rice mixture in foil, then cook it on the grill for a delicious accompaniment—

1½ cups packaged precooked rice
1 3-ounce can (2⅓ cup) sliced mushrooms
1 cup cold water
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Tear off a 3-foot length of wide heavy foil; fold in half to make a square. Form foil into a pouch. Add the uncooked rice, undrained mushrooms, water, onion, worcestershire sauce, and salt. Stir carefully to mix. Dot top with butter or margarine.

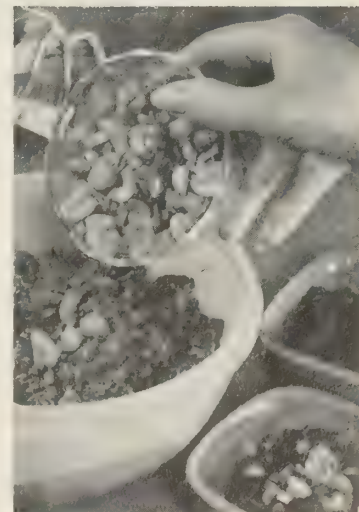

Fold edges of foil to seal pouch tightly. Place on grill over hot coals for 15 to 18 minutes. Before serving, open foil and add an extra pat of butter; fluff rice with a fork. Makes 4 servings.

Mushroom-Bacon Burgers

Extra-special burgers for extra-eager appetites—

1 pound ground beef
1 3-ounce can chopped mushrooms, drained (about ½ cup)
4 slices bacon, crisp-cooked, drained, and crumbled
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
4 hamburger buns, toasted
Combine ground beef, mushrooms, bacon, onion, worcestershire, and salt; mix thoroughly. Shape into 4 patties. Broil for 8 to 10 minutes. Turn; broil 8 to 10 minutes more or to

NEXT MONTH

EXCITING NEW PROJECTS FOR YOUR PATIO—Make this the summer that you go all out for outdoor living. To start you off, here are ideas for great-looking patios . . . screened areas . . . greenhouse "rooms" . . . get-away-from-it-all retreats . . . and more!

"We bought a portable KitchenAid dishwasher in 1962 and haven't spent a nickel for repairs," says Mrs. Pauline Curtis of Ferndale, Michigan. "By the way, we have 5 children and we've run our KitchenAid at least 4 times daily for the past 7 years."

"My first KitchenAid dishwasher lasted 16 years, and all I replaced was a door spring and switch for $5 or $6," says Mrs. Corinne Barker of Pratt, Kansas. "A few years ago, I got a new KitchenAid, even though the old one was still going strong."

Back in 1951, E. L. Briggs of Burnsville, North Carolina, bought this KitchenAid dishwasher. "It was in constant use every day," he said. "During those 18 years, all I ever had to do was replace a 60¢ light bulb."

3 happy families. 41 years of dishwasher use. $6.60 for repairs.

Who wants a dishwasher that's always breaking down?

Not the people in this ad.

That's why they all bought KitchenAid dishwashers many years ago. In a total of 41 years, they spent a grand total of $6.60 for repairs.

And their stories aren't unusual. Many of our customers tell us how little they've had to spend on repairs.

So if you want a dishwasher—but don't want a lot of repair bills—get a KitchenAid. Its built-in dependability will cost less in the long run.

For all the details on how a KitchenAid is built better to work better and last longer, see your dealer. (He's listed in the Yellow Pages.) Or write KitchenAid Dishwashers, Department 9DC-6, The Hobart Manufacturing Company, Troy, Ohio 45373.

Vermouth Cocktail

Take-off on the traditional Mary—
1 cup tomato juice, chilled
1 cup dry vermouth
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup tomato juice, vermouth, and lemon juice in jar or screw-top jar; adjust to taste. Shake well and chill. Serve in tall glasses with ice. Makes 4 servings.

Apricot Crepes

Can be prepared ahead, combined with ham and apricot sauce at serving time—

If you thought Open Pit® was just for barbecues, taste what it does for this dish of Pork and Beans.

New idea from the chefs at Good Seasons®—Saucy

4 slices bacon, cut in thin strips
 $\frac{2}{3}$ cup finely chopped onions
2 cans (16 oz. each) pork and beans
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup Good Seasons Open Pit Barbecue Sauce, any flavor
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

Sauté bacon and onions in large saucepan until onions are tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil. Cook 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Makes 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups, or 4 to 6 servings. And they disappear fast!

Three great flavors for cookouts and cookins.

ed Breakfast Steaks

In our shopping bag we have put together a spaghetti dinner that you can cook in about 12 minutes. Luckily, it doesn't taste like a spaghetti dinner you can cook in 12 minutes.

We did everything you'd do if you had the time. We shopped. We squeezed and pinched. Not one onion or tomato or anything else gets into our sauce unless it's sensational. We make sauce the way an Italian makes sauce. And then we fuss over it and simmer it and stir it and stir it until it's just right.

Our cheese tastes like aged Italian-style cheese. Our thin spaghetti is easier to wind.

Our convenient dinner comes in three varieties...

Spaghetti with Meat Sauce • Spaghetti with Mushrooms • Spaghetti with Meatballs.

We do the shopping. You do the cooking.

Double Corn Cakes

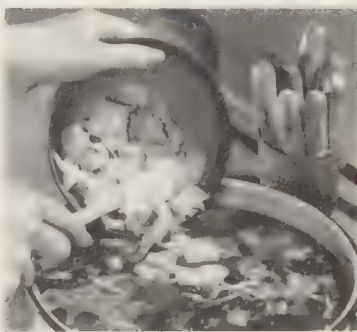

Cream-style corn and cornmeal make these double good—

1 cup packaged pancake mix
1 cup cornmeal
1 1-pound can (2 cups) cream-style corn
1 cup milk
2 slightly beaten eggs
2 tablespoons cooking oil
Stir together pancake mix and cornmeal. Combine corn, milk, eggs, and oil; add to dry ingredients, stirring just till moistened. Drop batter from $\frac{1}{4}$ -cup measure onto hot, lightly greased griddle or skillet. Turn once. Makes about sixteen 4-inch pancakes.

Campsite Chicken Chowder

1 envelope dry tomato-vegetable soup mix
1 quart water
1 1-pound can (2 cups) kidney beans, drained
1 1-pound can (2 cups) mixed vegetables, drained
1 8-ounce can (1 cup) tomatoes, cut up
2 5-ounce cans boned chicken

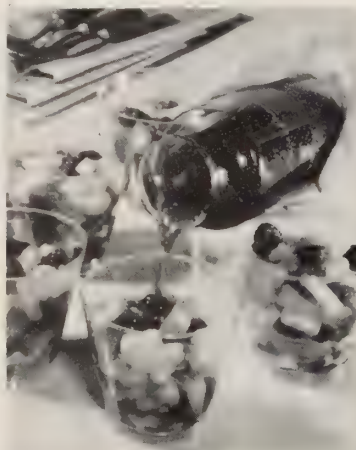

In large saucepan, combine dry tomato-vegetable soup mix, water, beans, mixed vegetables, and tomatoes. Add chicken. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

1-2-3 Fruit Cup

1 $13\frac{1}{2}$ -ounce can ($1\frac{1}{2}$ cups) pineapple tidbits
1 10-ounce package frozen raspberries, thawed
3 tablespoons orange-flavor breakfast drink powder
1 11-ounce can mandarin orange sections, drained
Drain pineapple tidbits and thawed raspberries, reserving syrups. Stir together reserved syrups and breakfast drink powder. Divide pineapple tidbits, raspberries, and mandarin oranges among 6 plastic cups or sherbets; pour on syrup mixture. Makes 6 servings.

Sesame Chicken

$\frac{2}{3}$ cup fine cracker crumbs (about 15 crackers)
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sesame seed, toasted
2 $\frac{1}{2}$ - to 3-pound broiler-fryer, cut up $\frac{1}{2}$ of a 6-ounce can ($\frac{1}{3}$ cup) evaporated milk
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine, melted

Combine crumbs and toasted sesame seed. Dip chicken pieces in evaporated milk, then roll in crumb mixture. Pour melted butter or margarine into 12x7x2-inch baking dish. Dip skin side of chicken pieces in butter; turn over and arrange, skin side up, in baking dish. Bake, uncovered, in moderate oven (375°) for 1 hour or till done. Cool. Cover and chill till serving time.

Now you can get ice and cold water without raiding the icebox.

Push the cradle marked "Ice" and cubes drop into your glass. You can even fill a whole ice bucket. Push the other one and you get a cold drink of water. You can use both dispensers at the same time. All without opening a door.

Now open the door and GE gives you 23.5 cubic feet of cool in a refrigerator only $35\frac{3}{4}$ " wide and 66" high. Plus some other surprises for you.

Like a convertible seven-day meat keeper that keeps unfrozen meat fresh and ready to cook for an entire week. Or just a flip of a lever and you can use it for more vegetable storage. Slide-out, tempered-glass shelves are easy to clean and spills don't drip through. A no-frost system that keeps everything, including the freezer, completely frostless.

GE also gives you an automatic icemaker that feeds cubes to the dispenser in the door. And there's a big storage bin that keeps a party supply of ice on hand. There are even wheels—so you can roll the refrigerator out and clean behind it.

See the icebox you don't have to raid for ice and a cold drink. The new Americana, just one model in our 1969 lineup. Go where GE is sold and see them all.

You'll seldom need service on a GE refrigerator, but it's nice to know we're nearby.

Orange Baked Beans

Equally easy cooked over the coals or on your camp stove—

- 1 1-pound 15-ounce can beans and pork in tomato sauce
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup catsup
- 3 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon worcestershire sauce

Stir together beans, brown sugar, catsup, orange concentrate, onion, and worcestershire. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

P-Nutty Cocoa

A quick-energy treat to enjoy around the campfire—

- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup peanut butter
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chocolate syrup
- 1 quart milk

Measure peanut butter and chocolate syrup into saucepan. Stir to blend. Add milk, a little at a time, stirring till ingredients are blended. Heat almost to boiling. Pour into mugs or cups and top with marshmallows. Makes 6 servings.

Ham with Crab Apple Glaze

Spiced crab apples provide both glaze and garnish

- 1 1-pound 11-ounce jar spiced whole crab apples
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 fully cooked center cut ham slice, about 1 inch thick

At home before the picnic, prepare Rosy Ham Glaze: Drain spiced crab apples, reserving $\frac{1}{2}$ cup syrup. Combine reserved syrup and the brown sugar in small saucepan; heat and stir till boiling. Wrap crab apples in foil; seal. Cool syrup mixture and pour into crab apple jar.

At the park, drizzle a little glaze over crab apples; seal foil and place at edge of grill till heated through. Grill ham over low heat for 10 to 15 minutes on each side. Brush with glaze; cook 1 to 2 minutes. Turn; brush second side with glaze and cook 1 to 2 minutes. Pass warm crab apples with ham.

Onion Potatoes

Great prepared at home in the oven, too

- 6 medium baking potatoes
 - 8 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
 - 1 envelope dry onion soup mix
- Scrub potatoes. Cut each crosswise into $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch thick slices. Blend butter or margarine and onion soup mix; spread on one side of each potato slice. Reassemble potatoes; wrap each in foil, sealing well. Bake on grill over coals for 45 minutes to 1 hour or till done, turning once. Makes 6 servings.

Strawberry Dumplings

A fresh berry dessert crowned with rich dumplings wins Cook-of-the-Month honors for Fast Strawberry Desserts—

- 1/3 cup sugar
- 2/3 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 cup milk
- 1 pint (about 2 cups) strawberries, hulled
- 1 tablespoon sugar

In a saucepan, combine the 1/3 cup sugar and the water. Bring mixture to boiling; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Stir in vanilla. Sift together flour, the 2 tablespoons sugar, the baking powder, and salt. Cut in butter or margarine till mixture is crumbly. Add milk and stir just till well combined. Place berries in a 1 1/2-quart casserole; pour hot sugar mixture over. Immediately drop dumpling dough in 8 to 10 spoonfuls over berries. Sprinkle dumplings with the remaining 1 tablespoon sugar. Bake in a very hot oven (450°) for 25 to 30 minutes, or till dumplings are done. Serve warm from casserole into individual dessert dishes. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Great French Flavor Revolution.

New Wish-Bone® Classic French Dressing. So revolutionary it has exciting Sauce Viande instead of ordinary tomato sauce. So it isn't even orange. And the flavor? Slightly wild with a spiciness all its own. The Sauce Viande gives it a tangy taste unlike any French Dressing you've ever known. Because it isn't like any French Dressing you've ever known. It's new Wish-Bone Classic French Dressing. A revolution in French flavor.

STORAGE IDEAS FOR CAMPERS

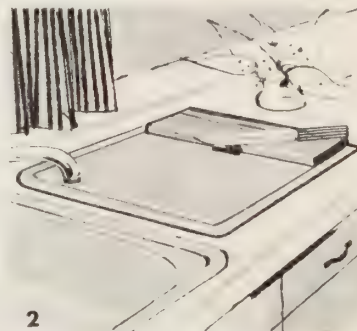

For you vacationers on wheels, here are a few "household hints" to help you enjoy the carefree life in trailer, camper, or motor home.

When storing foodstuffs in the cabinets of a towed or driven vehicle, remember they'll be subjected to much movement in travel and therefore require special packing. To avoid shifting, pack shelves tightly with heavier items at the side nearest to the front of the vehicle. A double dinnerware rack (sketch 1) with cushion-coated steel frame holds a full set of dishes for eight and also acts as a buffer in the cupboard to keep things from sliding all to one end in travel.

To banish rattles, stuff a pillow in front of the cabinet and the door. Or, line shelves and drawers with rubber matting (sold by the yard in department stores) to help prevent dishes from shifting and clattering. In a rented camper, use old turkish towels or discarded rubber-backed place mats cut to size. You will find they make cleanup of spills easier, too.

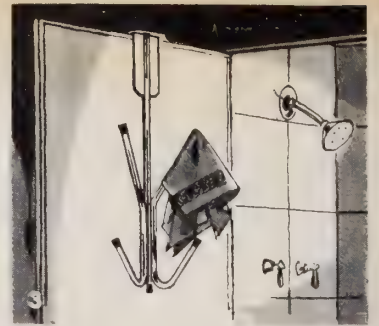

Elsewhere in the kitchen, pincurl clips keep paper towels from unraveling, blowing in the wind, and unwinding on the holder. Eggs, kept cartoned, are best cushioned against shock of road travel. Protect the galley's counter top with a heat-resistant pad (sketch 2) from department or hardware store. This one also includes a cutting board.

Buy soft drinks in cans, or leave bottled ones in the carrying carton. Buy an inexpensive foam cooler and fill it each day with ice cubes. When you want a cool drink, just fill thermal plastic glasses with cubes and pour.

A soft plastic dishpan or polyethylene crisper provides extra storage in the refrigerator, holds canned pop, or stores pots, pans, cereals inside the oven. Plastic won't abrade and it quiets rattles.

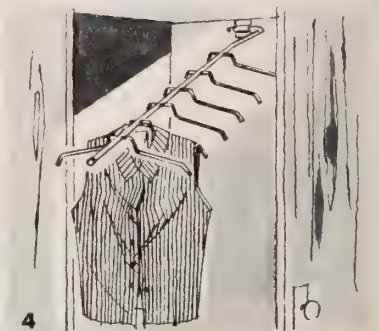

It is one thing to fill the medicine chest with toiletries, but it is quite another to keep them in there if the chest has sliding mirror doors. Anchor doors with a small rubber wedge in the sliding track. Cut one from a faucet washer.

A place to hang dripping raincoats in camp can be a problem. One solution: a portable hook (sketch 3). Hang it over the shower room door. Use it also for wet washcloths and swimsuits.

Multiple skirt, blouse, and trouser hangers (sketch 4) save precious closet space.

Kraft Toppings make a simple supper super

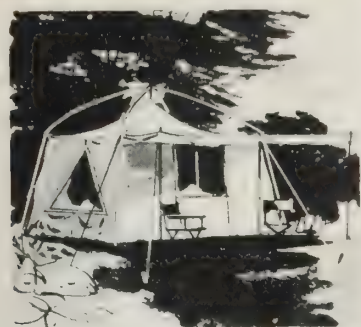

Great idea when time and fare are spare.

Splurge on dessert! One that Dad and the kids all love. Ice cream and ready-to-go Kraft Toppings. Keep a jar or two on your emergency shelf.

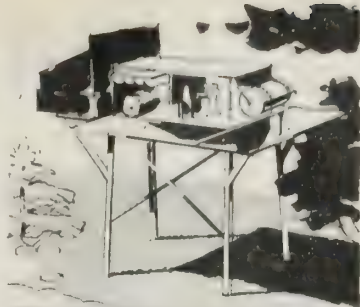

TIPS FOR TENTERERS

Tents today come in a wide variety of sizes and shapes. Ones with an outside aluminum frame set up in minutes. This 10x12-foot one (below) sleeps four comfortably.

If you need more sleeping space, buy an additional small tent instead of a single larger one. A second tent offers more privacy and is easy to erect. Even a child can assemble some of the small two-man styles. These are easily relocated, too.

For those of you still searching for a satisfactory chuck box or camp kitchen, there are many styles of readymades and plans for do-it-yourselfers. A camp kitchen like the one above really takes the chaos out of cooking. When shopping, look for strong folding-leg supports and sturdy handles. Be sure it's compact and easy to carry. Bulky ones are too unwieldy when loaded.

Propane fuel in throw-away cartridges is easy to use, safe, and convenient. One firm has converted its classic gasoline lantern to burn propane. These lanterns make good tent-warmers before bedtime, too, as do new flameless catalytic heaters.

Whether traveling by car or station wagon, load the cargo area so the icebox is accessible for lunch and snacks. Also, pack items such as camp stove, cooking utensils, matches (in a moisture-proof box) near tail-gate or trunk opening. They're the first things you'll want when you reach camp.

A rooftop carrier makes tent, sleeping bags, soft duffle bags, and other miscellany easy to unload. For a tent, sleeping bags and extra blankets are a must. When buying an air mattress, pick a model with a snap corner that pops undone when filled with the right amount of air. This takes the guesswork out of inflating it. Don't forget the foot pump—it only costs a few dollars.

Drawings: Dick Larson

If you prefer cots, you can find double-deckers and low seven-inch ones (below left) that fit lengthwise under double bunks. All have folding aluminum frames.

Portable stacking drawers like the ones below store clothing, towels, boots yet take very little tent space. Besides the basic gear, don't forget to take the following:

poles for tent and fly	stakes
ground cloth	stakes
air mattress	foot pump plastic dishes	dining fly
plastic dishpans	drainer
nested cooking kit	cooler
plastic tablecloth	tools

Broiled Fruit Cup

Serve warm for brunch or dessert—

- 1 1-pound can (2 cups) peach halves
- 1 cup fresh strawberries, hulled
- 1 8¾-ounce can pineapple tidbits, drained (⅔ cup)

4 to 6 tablespoons brown sugar

Drain peach halves, reserving syrup. On double thickness of foil, place a peach half, cut side up. Top with a few berries and pineapple tidbits. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of the brown sugar, then top with 1 tablespoon of the reserved peach syrup. Fold foil loosely around fruit and seal tightly. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Broil over hot coals 8 to 10 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Hot Corned Beef and Cheese Sandwiches

- 1 12-ounce can corned beef, broken in small pieces
- 4 ounces sharp process American cheese, diced (1 cup)
- ½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 8 onion rolls or hamburger buns, split and buttered

Mix together corned beef, cheese, mayonnaise, relish, and onion. Spoon into buns; wrap in heavy foil. Heat over medium coals 12 to 15 minutes, turning several times. Makes 8 servings.

Stuffing Bread

Serve this well-seasoned loaf with broiled chicken or turkey—

- 1 1-pound loaf French bread

- ½ cup butter or margarine, softened
- 1 tablespoon grated onion

½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
Cut bread loaf diagonally into 1-inch slices. Combine butter or margarine, onion, and poultry seasoning; spread on

BUTTERSCOTCH TREATS

Photographs Photography, Inc.

Here are two treats that really make the most of that great butterscotch flavor—the unmistakable blend of brown sugar and butter or margarine. To score twice with the family, try both recipes: the chewy chocolate-raisin-butterscotch candy and the spicy nut-crusted butterscotch pie.

Raisin Praline Crunch and Caramels

A butterscotch candy you can prepare two ways

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1 cup dark raisins | 1 cup brown sugar |
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup butter or margarine | 1 cup semisweet chocolate pieces |

To prepare Crunch: Place raisins in buttered 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Combine butter or margarine and brown sugar in saucepan; cook to hard crack stage (290°). Pour over raisins; top with chocolate pieces, spreading as they melt. Chill till firm. Break into bite-size pieces.

To prepare Caramels: Place raisins in buttered 8x8x2-inch baking pan. Combine the $\frac{3}{4}$ cup butter or margarine and the brown sugar in saucepan; cook and stir to hard ball stage (254°). Pour over raisins. Top with only $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of the chocolate pieces, spreading as they melt. Chill till firm; cut in small pieces.

Spiced Butterscotch Pie

Short-cut crust and pudding mix make this double quick—

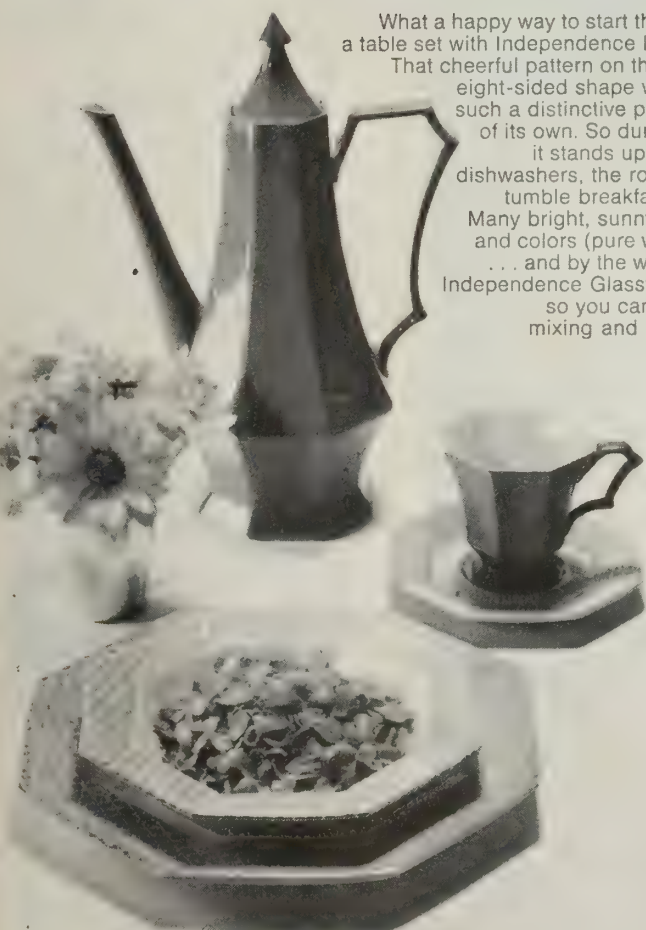

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 stick pie crust mix | Dash ground ginger |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup finely chopped nuts | 1 4-ounce package butter-scotch pudding mix |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground cinnamon | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup whipping cream |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground nutmeg | |

Prepare pastry according to package directions; roll out and sprinkle with nuts; roll lightly to press in. Fit pastry into 8-inch pie plate; flute edge. With a fork, prick bottom and sides. Bake according to package directions; cool. Add spices to dry pudding mix; cook according to package directions. Cool 5 minutes; turn into pastry shell. Cover surface of pudding with waxed paper. Chill. Remove waxed paper from pie. Whip cream; spread atop pie. Sprinkle with additional chopped nuts, if desired.

Corn flakes to consommé

What a happy way to start the day... a table set with Independence Ironstone.

That cheerful pattern on the unique, eight-sided shape which has such a distinctive personality of its own. So durable, too, it stands up to ovens, dishwashers, the rough-and-tumble breakfast crowd. Many bright, sunny patterns and colors (pure white, too) ... and by the way there's Independence Glassware, too, so you can have fun mixing and matching.

Independence Ironstone,

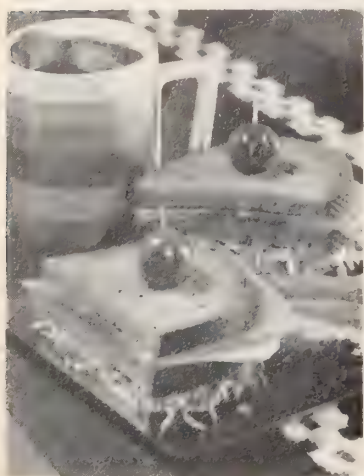

The same setting, a swift change for dinner. Suddenly, there is a simple, quiet elegance to your table. Colors and patterns capture the rich glow of candlelight, silver and linen. Hearty breakfast to gracious dinner—Independence Ironstone plays this dual role with easy versatility. And the price will make you smile... a starter set as low as $14.95. Do write for the free, colorful booklet illustrating all the patterns.

Ham-Slaw Sandwich

Mustard slaw sparks this make-it-yourself sandwich—

1 6-ounce can ($\frac{2}{3}$ cup) evaporated milk
2 tablespoons sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons vinegar
3 cups finely shredded cabbage
18 slices Russian rye bread, buttered
12 slices boiled ham
Combine milk, sugar, salt, and a dash pepper; stir well. Add mustard, then vinegar. Chill; toss with cabbage. Chill till serving time. For each sandwich, top one slice bread with about $\frac{1}{3}$ cup slaw mixture, then another slice bread, then 2 slices boiled ham. Top with another slice bread. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Peanut Butter Oatmeal Bars

Chocolate fudge frosting with a sweet buttery drizzle tops these delicious bar cookies—

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup shortening
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup granulated sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup peanut butter
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon baking soda
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup cocoa powder
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
2 to 3 tablespoons boiling water
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla

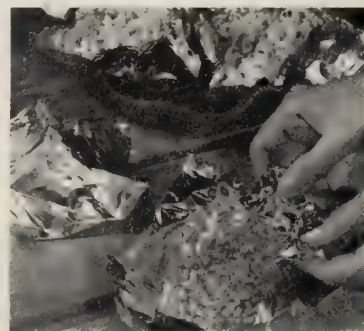

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
3 to 4 teaspoons milk
Cream together shortening, granulated sugar, brown sugar, peanut butter, and the first $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla till fluffy. Add egg and the $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk; beat well. Sift together flour, baking soda, and salt; add to creamed mixture. Beat just till well combined. Stir in rolled oats. Spread evenly in greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 20 minutes. Cool thoroughly.

Sift together the 2 cups confectioners' sugar and the cocoa powder. Quickly stir in the melted butter or margarine, the boiling water, and the second $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla; beat till smooth. Spread quickly and evenly over cooled cookies in pan. Heat and stir the 2 tablespoons butter till golden brown. Stir in the 1 cup confectioners' sugar and the 3 to 4 teaspoons milk. Drizzle over frosting. Cut in bars.

Hobo Popcorn

This treat is as much fun to make, as it is to eat—

4 teaspoons cooking oil
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup popcorn
Cut an 18-inch square heavy-duty foil into 4 squares. In center of each, place 1 teaspoon oil and 1 tablespoon popcorn. Bring the 4 corners of foil to center, making a pouch. Seal edges well, allowing room for expansion of popcorn during cooking. With string, tie each pouch to a long-handled barbecue tool or stick. Place pouch directly on hot coals and shake constantly till corn is popped. Season with melted butter and salt. Makes 4 servings.

BETTER BREAKFAST IDEAS

DAIRY BAR SPECIALS

Of course breakfast wouldn't be breakfast without the big three—juice, milk, and coffee. For a refreshing switch, try combining them as we've done here. Both of our recipes begin with milk; one is flavored with orange juice, the other with coffee. Results in both cases: delicious!

Orange-Strawberry Wake-up

A nutritious snack idea, too—

In blender container, combine 1 cup orange juice, one 10-ounce package frozen strawberries, partially thawed, 1 egg, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup non-fat dry milk powder, and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cold water. Cover; blend till mixture is smooth. Pour into 4 glasses; garnish each with an orange twist and a fresh strawberry, if desired. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Cool Coffee Eggnog

Great with warm muffins—

Stir 4 cups milk into 2 beaten egg yolks. Add $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons instant coffee powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, and $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, till mixture coats a metal spoon. Chill. Just before serving, beat 2 egg whites till foamy. Gradually add 3 tablespoons sugar, beating to soft peaks. Add to coffee mixture and mix thoroughly. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Plus Glazed Turkey Roasts

A dry glaze to use later on your turkey roasts, too—

2 3 to 4-pound rolled turkey roasts, thawed
1 pound 14-ounce can purple plums, drained
1 cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
1/2 teaspoon worcestershire sauce

1. Tie each turkey roast together securely with twine, if necessary. Insert spit rod through center of roasts; attach holding rod and test balance. Wrap turkey roasts tightly in foil, crimping ends of foil tightly against spit rod close to roasts.

2. Attach spit to rotisserie; roast over medium-hot coals for 3 hours. Remove foil; brush with Plum Glaze. Insert meat thermometer. Roast 15 minutes or till thermometer registers 185°, brushing occasionally with Plum Glaze. Let stand 10 minutes before slicing.
Plum Glaze: Sieve plums. Add orange concentrate, worcestershire, and 8 to 10 drops red food coloring; mix well. Bring to a boil; boil 15 minutes.

Sleep on a new sheet every night.

That's what it feels like when you put Stevens-Utica® No-Iron sheets on your bed.

All crisp and cold and clean. And that's how they look all week long.

Because Stevens-Utica No-Iron sheets don't wrinkle.

And, as the name implies, you don't have to iron them. All you have to do is throw them into the washing machine and then throw them into the dryer.

They iron in there.

Then you just fold them up or put them back on the bed.

And they come in patterns and in solids. These we call Flowerpatch.

They're fifty percent cotton, fifty percent polyester and all percale.

We'll even tell you where you can buy sheets like these. Just call 800 243-1890. In Connecticut the number is 325-4336. And, by the way, the call is free.

Vegetable Skillet Salad

Zucchini and tomato star in this attractive combo—

2 medium onions, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 3-ounce can (2/3 cup) sliced mushrooms

4 medium zucchini, thinly sliced (5 to 6 cups)

1 teaspoon salt

Dash ground pepper

2 tomatoes, cut in wedges

In skillet, cook onion in butter or margarine till tender-crisp.

Drain mushrooms, reserving 2 tablespoons liquid. Add zucchini, mushrooms, reserved mushroom liquid, salt, and pepper to skillet. Cook, covered, till squash is tender-crisp, about 8 minutes. Add tomatoes; heat through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Hibachi Skewers

Everybody gets into the act as he cooks his own appetizer—

Beef sirloin, cut in 1-inch strips
Green pepper squares
Cubed salami
Stuffed green olives
Pitted ripe olives
On skewers, weave sirloin strips around green pepper squares. On other skewers, alternate salami and green and ripe olives. Broil on hibachi over hot coals for 3 to 5 minutes. Serve with Zippy Avocado Dip and Shrimp Cheese Sauce.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Zippy Avocado Dip: Seed, peel, and mash 2 medium ripe avocados. Stir in 1 tablespoon chopped canned green chilies, 1 tablespoon onion juice, 1 clove garlic, minced, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, and $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt; blend well. Cover and chill. Makes $1\frac{1}{3}$ cups.

Shrimp Cheese Sauce: In a saucepan, stir together 1 can frozen cream of shrimp soup, thawed, 1 cup shredded sharp process American cheese, and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sauterne. Heat till cheese melts and ingredients are blended. Serve warm. Makes 2 cups.

Grilled Salmon Steaks

Salmon steaks go gourmet with this tangy marinade—

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup cooking oil
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup snipped parsley
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons grated onion
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon dry mustard
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt

Dash pepper

6 fresh or frozen salmon steaks, thawed

Combine oil, parsley, lemon juice, onion, mustard, salt, and pepper; mix well. Place salmon steaks in shallow dish; pour on marinade mixture. Let stand at room temperature 2 hours, turning occasionally. (Or mari-nade in refrigerator for 4 to 6 hours.) Drain, reserving marinade. Place fish in oiled wire broiler basket. Broil over medium-hot coals for 8 to 10 minutes, till slightly brown. Baste with marinade and turn carefully. Brush again with marinade; broil 8 to 10 minutes more, till fish flakes easily with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

Sausage-Krauters

Bring tasty caraway-kraut relish along from home to go onto the grilled sausages—

Knackwurst sausages
Smoked sausage links
Frankfurters
Toasted frankfurter buns
1 1-pound can (2 cups) sauerkraut
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup Italian salad dressing
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon caraway seed
Broil sausages and franks on grill over hot coals till heated through. Serve in buns; top with Sauerkraut Relish. Drain and snip sauerkraut. Add salad dressing, sugar, onion, and caraway; refrigerate 4 hours or overnight. Makes 2 cups.

Breakfast of losers.

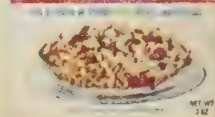

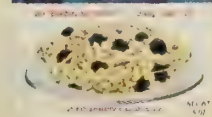

Here they are. Quaker Diet Frosted Wheat Puffs and Quaker Diet Frosted Rice Puffs.

Not just one but two cereals made especially for people who'd like to lose a few pounds, and still eat breakfast. (Or people who'd like to stay where they are, thank you, and still eat breakfast.)

What we do — and we're the only ones who do it — is take puffs of wheat and puffs of rice and sweeten them — without sugar. A pretty splendid idea. Especially when you think one serving of Wheat or Rice Puffs is only 56 calories.

And what do these not-just-one-but-two Puffs of ours taste like? Like you poured sugar all over them yourself. Like you're not on a diet.

Quaker Diet Frosted Wheat Puffs and Quaker Diet Frosted Rice Puffs. Two such happy ways to diet.

HOW TO REMODEL A WINDOW

If you don't like the size, shape or location of a window, change it. You can give stat to a small window, relieve glare of a window wall, uniform bank of windows. Build a frame to enclose the window (extend beyond the casing if you want to suggest a larger opening) paint to match walls and trim with decorative molding.

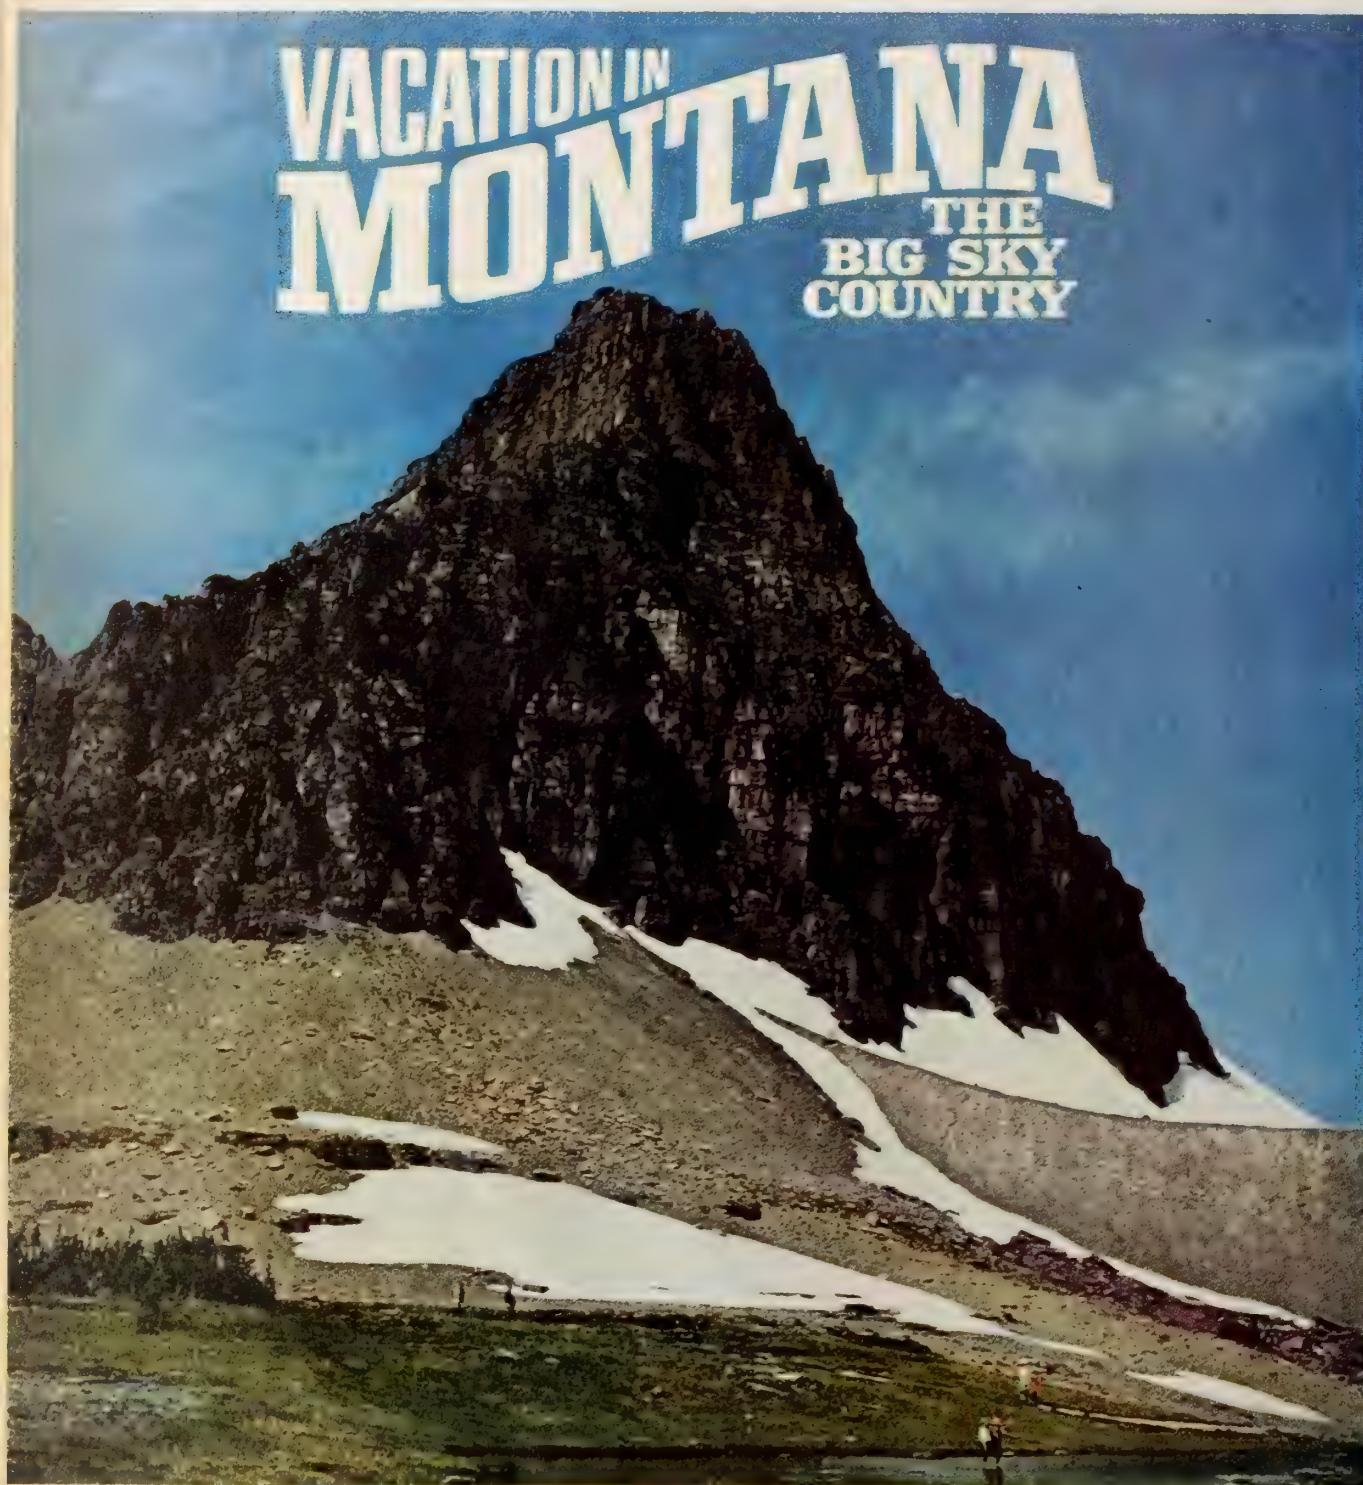

Here's how to make something special out of four narrow windows. Camouflage their conventional shape with an arched plywood frame. To soften the severity of this treatment, hang sheer draperies behind the frame. Then add short curtains of a heavier fabric to conceal the window sills and wall beneath.

If you want to introduce a spark of pattern, replace the draperies with window shades and laminate with a fabric to match the shorty cafes.

One way to avoid that glare stare that sometimes plagues a window wall—create decorative interest with a frame that features shelved sections for accessories. Outline inner edge with molding strips or fabric braid. Hang sheer draperies back of frame to filter light and insure privacy.

For a change of pace, you can fit filigree panels, metal or molded plastic inserts in the side niches of the frame.

FOR A BUDDING ARTIST

What to do with your child's works of art? Instead of sticking them on the refrigerator door or tacking them to a bulletin board in the basement, display them proudly on display — as shown below. You'll encourage your child's creative bent, and you'll also acquire some charming original art.

Photographs: Hopkins Artist: Allison Law

Delightful motifs on pillow, vase, and picture were all transferred from paper to felt, then stitched to background by hand or machine. The little book that's meant to be a book-stand, lower right, has a felt book cut out about one-half inch deep. Another idea: anchor several felt motifs onto a corkboard across the young artist's window. Or send just one to cheer a faraway grandparent on a special day.

Showcase some of those mini masterpieces by mounting and framing them for hanging. The mouse and tiger, drawn with felt marking pens on artist's sketch paper, were glued to pieces of half-inch plywood, then cut out with a jigsaw and mounted on fabric-covered boards. Remember, artwork like this shouldn't be part of a permanent collection — youngsters enjoy frequent changes. ■

SAVORY SAUSAGE MAIN DISHES

Sausage, a family favorite through the years, gets "glamour" treatment in these three recipes. Take your choice of fresh sausage links in a burgundy sauce, curried smoked links, or bulk sausage in a cheesy potato casserole.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Pork Sausage Bourguignon

You ladle a spicy wine sauce over fresh pork links—

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 pound fresh pork sausage links | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup burgundy |
| 1 tablespoon chopped onion | 2 tablespoons catsup |
| 1 small clove garlic, minced | 1 tablespoon snipped parsley |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ of a 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ -ounce can ($\frac{2}{3}$ cup) beef gravy | 1 teaspoon dijon-style mustard |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup light cream | $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon worcestershire sauce |

Place links in cold skillet; add $\frac{1}{4}$ cup cold water. Cover and cook 5 minutes; drain. Uncover and cook slowly 10 minutes, turning to brown. Drain off excess fat. Halve sausages cross-wise. Add onion and garlic; cook till tender but not brown. Combine beef gravy, cream, burgundy, catsup, parsley, mustard, and worcestershire. Add to sausage in skillet and heat just to boiling. Serve over rice. Makes 4 servings.

Smoked Sausage Curry

A new and delicious way to delight curry fanciers—

- | | |
|--|--|
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup slivered almonds | 1 tablespoon cornstarch |
| 2 tablespoons butter or margarine | 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons curry powder |
| 1 medium onion, cut in wedges | 1 12-ounce package smoked sausage links (8) |
| 2 medium apples, cut in wedges and cored | $\frac{2}{3}$ cup long-grain rice, cooked (2 cups) |
| 1 beef bouillon cube | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup raisins, plumped |
- In skillet, brown almonds in butter or margarine; remove.

In same skillet, brown onion and apples; remove. In same skillet, dissolve bouillon cube in 1 cup hot water; bring to boiling. Combine cornstarch, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup cold water, and the curry powder. Add to hot bouillon; cook and stir till mixture thickens and boils. Add smoked sausage links, onion and apple wedges. Cook, uncovered, over low heat 5 minutes or till apple and onion are tender. Combine hot cooked rice, almonds, and raisins; place on serving platter. Remove links from sauce and arrange atop rice mixture. Garnish with the apple and onion; spoon sauce over all. Makes 4 servings.

(Hint: to plump raisins, let stand in enough hot water to cover for 30 minutes; drain well.)

Scalloped Sausage and Potatoes

A familiar vegetable becomes a main course—

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1 pound bulk pork sausage | $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt |
| 4 medium potatoes, pared and thinly sliced (4 cups) | 4 ounces shredded sharp process American cheese (1 cup) |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup all-purpose flour | 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups milk |

In skillet, break sausage into small pieces; brown lightly and drain well. Place half of the potatoes in 2-quart casserole; sift half the flour over and sprinkle with half the salt. Top with half the sausage, then half the cheese. Repeat with remaining potatoes, flour, salt, sausage, and cheese. Pour milk over all. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350°) for 50 to 60 minutes or till potatoes are tender. Uncover and bake 10 minutes more. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Every airline promises you a great vacation. But TWA backs it up with a million dollars.

The best plans in the world don't mean a thing, without the service to make it work.

So this year, TWA has promised its people a million dollar bonus if they give you exceptional service anywhere in the U.S.A.

It's all part of our great summer vacation plan to make you happier than the other airlines, and our people are behind it one million per cent with more than just service.

We have some incredibly low Family Fares and a fantastic assortment of vacation packages for you to choose from, called TWA Adventures East and West. You'll not only be amazed with all the things you'll be able to see and do, but at the prices you'll be able to see and do them at. And with our TWA Discount Book, the $100 worth of coupons will save you even more money while you're there.

We're even prepared for children. On the plane,* we have hot dogs, hamburgers, books, games and a special stereo channel with songs and stories. For infants, there're bottle warmers, bassinets and diapers.

You can charge the trip with your TWA Worldwide Jet Credit Card, and take up to 2 years to pay.

So bring the wife, the kids, the baby, golf clubs, water skis. TWA will handle it all, and, with pleasure. After all, with TWA's bonus plan, the success of your vacation could mean as much to our people as it does to you.

CUSTOM-SIZE STORAGE

Photograph: Lisanti. Decorator: Bill Ketchum. Source: Susan Jones Medlock

Left: Adequate storage rates prime consideration when you are planning your child's bedroom. Here a built-in storage wall designed around two double-hung windows solves the "where-to-put-it" quandary. A room-width counter top of laminated plastic spans two capacious cabinets and partially conceals a trundle bed which slides under the shelf when not in use. Center section with slim drawer serves as a desk. Middle shelves of the bookcase adjust to accommodate varisized books, plus hobby and sports items. Roman window shade adds design interest and reflects the masculine tone of this boy's bedroom.

Photograph: Hedrich-Blessing. Source: Liz Nash

Above: This master bedroom boasts a dual-purpose solution to the storage problem. A floor-to-ceiling built-in closet replaces the conventional nightstand and also provides handy storage space for linens, blankets, and pillows. The closet, 18 inches deep, 22 inches wide, and 7 feet high, has a vertically paneled door with cross braces on the backside which closes flush with the side of the cabinet. An open niche facing the bed can hold books, clock, transistor radio, and other bedside comforts. A matching built-in occupies the opposite corner of this bedroom.

Now, the first and only Pineapple Upside-Down Cake Mix.

And double yum because it's extra Yum. juicy. This new Betty Crocker mix comes with delicious crushed Hawaiian pineapple from Dole.* So some of the juice melts down inside, and the rest keeps the topping moist and luscious to the last bite. Complete with brown sugar and a special cake to hold the juice. Don't wait to try this one!

Above: What boy ever has enough drawer space for all the rocks, marbles, and sundry items he collects? This multi-drawer unit is the perfect hiding place (and encourages neatness, too). Take a wall which backs a closet and cut an opening to your individual specifications. Frame with three-inch molding on room side. On backside, where drawers extend into closet, construct a frame of 2-inch molding, face with 1/4-inch plywood, and fasten to drawer unit. Pine drawers, similar to those commonly used in old-fashioned drug stores, can be picked up at an auction, or you can build your own.

TABLE - SETTING STORAGE

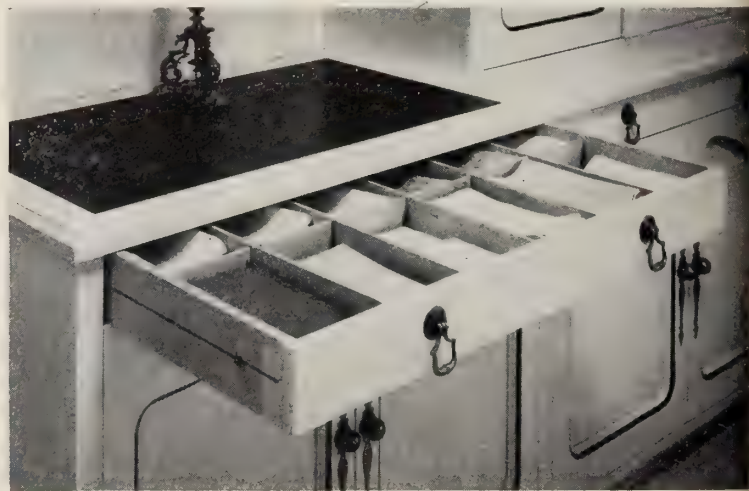

Although this handsome storage unit needs only 5½ feet of wall space, it holds an amazing amount of tableware because it is carefully outfitted to utilize every inch. It's conveniently located on the dining side of the kitchen, too.

Photograph: Lisanti Interior Designer Luis Cordano A.I.D. Source: Dot Rodenburg

Above: Linen shelves pull out between narrow hardwood strips. Mesh-curtained panels decorate tall glassware section; behind it, extra table leaves stand on end. A sectioned drawer, below, is lined with tarnish-resistant cloth for silverware. And there's still space to spare for large servers and centerpieces to the right of the linen shelves.

Below: Here's a good solution to the wrinkled-napkin problem. These twelve sections also help you choose a mix-or-match color scheme for your table. The serve counter is black marble, or you could use laminated plastic, adhesive-backed paper, or heat-proof ceramic tile. Storage unit is painted to blend with wall; accent color outlines each door.

FLAMBÉ WITH A FLOURISH

Have you ever marveled at the skill of the maitre d' in a fine restaurant as he flames crepes, suet or ignites a dinner-on-a-sword? You too can serve flambe food with theatrical flourish. And your drama won't turn into a comedy or—worse yet—tragedy if you follow these steps.

Table Service

For a glamorous effect, you'll want to flame the food right at the table or on a serving cart if the table is crowded. Clear the area for action—no paper flower centerpieces or napkins nearby. Insure your own safety too with long sleeves or frilly cuffs. You're the master of the flambeing.

Choice of Spirits

Choose an alcoholic spirit that complements the food to be flamed. The alcohol will burn, leaving only the characteristic flavor of the beverage. Cognac, rum, and fruit-flavored brandies are popular for flaming desserts. Choose a sweet spirit, a dry red or white wine, for the main course. Actually the kind of liquor is as important as the way to handle it. Almost any type of spirit will burst into a flame due to its alcoholic content. Of course, spirits with a higher concentration will produce a hotter, longer-lasting flame. Concentration is indicated by "proof." "100 proof" indicates 50 percent alcohol content, "50 proof" a 25 percent concentration, etc.) Even wine will give the desired effect and a delightful subtle flavor addition if flamed in the proper manner.

Temperature

The secret to success is the temperature of the liquor used. Before the food to be flamed and the liquor to be ignited should be warm. The food should be in a chafing dish, an electric skillet, or on a warm platter. Don't use glass since it may shatter from the heat. Place the food in a metal container with a long handle—a tiny pan, metal cup, or ladle. Then heat it till very warm, when small bubbles begin to form, but never so hot that it may ignite spontaneously. An electric warming tray or candle warmer will work.

Procedure

When the liquor is warm enough, hold a long fireplace match or lighted candle (the less variety) to the edge of the pan. Immediately pour the flaming spirit over the food. If you're preparing something with a flaming sauce, such as cherries jubilee, spoon the sauce over the dessert while it's still flaming. But if it's a meat to be carved or a dessert to be cut, let the flame extinguish itself before you serve the food.

When a chafing dish or similar container is used, you may find it more convenient to pour the warmed liquor over the food and then ignite it. Remember to hold the match just over the edge, not into the center, so your hand will not be in the sudden flame.

Finale

Ignite and serve your showpiece with as much professional flourish as you can manage. You may even want someone to dim the lights at just the right moment to show your masterpiece in all its glory! ■

SEVEN SALAD IDEAS

Are you in the tossed-salad rut? You must (and should) make salad one of the most colorful and interesting parts of the meal. To break the same-salad habit, challenge yourself to serve a different salad every day for a whole week!

When was the last time you made coleslaw for the family? By adding a little prepared mustard to your favorite coleslaw dressing, you make a wonderful accompaniment for hot dog, ham, or corned beef.

Cottage cheese and fruit will always be popular. For a change of pace, combine the cottage cheese with spiced apple rings, orange grapefruit sections, or pitted prunes.

For a hurry-up version of classic thousand island dressing, stir together chili sauce and mayonnaise and sprinkle with chopped hard-cooked egg. Ladle generously onto perky leaves of iceberg lettuce.

Combine your centerpiece fruit plate in one spectacular arrangement. Let the family help themselves. If you prepare the salad ahead, remember to dip apple wedges and banana or avocado slices in lemon, orange, or pineapple juice to prevent them from discoloring. Pass up yogurt, as is or sweetened lightly, for a refreshing fruit salad dressing.

Regarding leftover cooked vegetables as potential salad makers. Limas, green beans, peas, carrots, and the like are delicious when chilled in mayonnaise or salad dressing along with a sprinkle of chopped onion, dillweed, snipped parsley or dried crushed marjoram. Mark your next molded fruit salad by using lemon-lime carbonated beverage in place of cold water. Or whip plain vanilla gelatin and serve pieces of fruit alongside. Your family will appreciate the variety.

When tossed salad is on the menu, make it a mixture of mixed greens such as romaine, iceberg, leaf lettuce, or fresh spinach. Add a crunchy note with seasoned croutons. When practicing, toss the salad with the dressing at the table to give a flair to family meals. ■

It's a pretty, tough towel.

NONSTOP SERVING CENTERS

Plan it right and a serving center can do much more than just help you serve meals. It can function as a meal preparation area, a snack center, and a storage unit. Include this multipurpose center in the plans for your new home or add it to your present kitchen, if space permits.

Top: Right in the middle of the action; that's the best place for this versatile split-level island! It includes the best of everything—serving center, ample storage, and a snack area. And most important of all, it's convenient to all appliances and to the dining area—saves steps during meal preparation and serving!

Center: This handsome cook-top divider close to the eating area works as a serving center—and that's just the beginning. It provides useful storage for both the kitchen and eating area because drawers may be pulled through from either side. Built-up back of the divider conceals kitchen clutter.

Bottom: This serving area is a perfect place for using small appliances such as a blender or food warmer. When not in use, small appliances can be stored in the spacious cupboards above. Just slip a chair or stool under the recessed counter top, and you have a snack bar—and table service storage, too.

Smoldering romance set ablaze by gas barbecue

Linda Werner and Herbie Briggs, aglow over the gas barbecue that started it all.

It began with Herbie's invitation to a barbecue for two. He'd had his eye on Linda for some time, and knew his patio approach was a sure-fire winner.

Linda's heart was set aflame in immediate response to his quick-lighting barbecue. Herb turned on the barbecue and turned on the girl.

Masterful. Dependable. Timed to perfection.

He couldn't take his eyes off her—and he didn't need to, because gas barbecues don't need a lot of extra fire-watching. They not only start instantly, but they give a choice of even cooking heats. So Herbie could devote more time to Linda and less to the steaks.

She saw him in a new light: the soft, romantic glow of gas patio lights (lighting he had cleverly installed at minimal extra cost when he piped in gas for his barbecue). That was the clincher.

They set the date that very evening for another barbecue. Herb had swept her off her feet with his patio; the patio with the one irresistible difference: gas appliances.

Make your patio more persuasive. Call your PG&E office for information on where to shop for gas patio appliances. PG and E

TAIL-GATE KITCHEN

Here is a plan and an elevation look at the tail-gate kitchen shown on page 54. All interior partitions can be installed to meet your own needs. The bottom and the counter are $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch plywood; the rest is $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch plywood.

Elevation

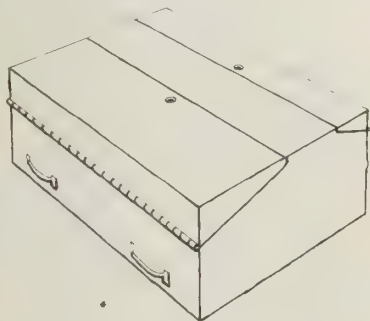

Designer: David Ashe

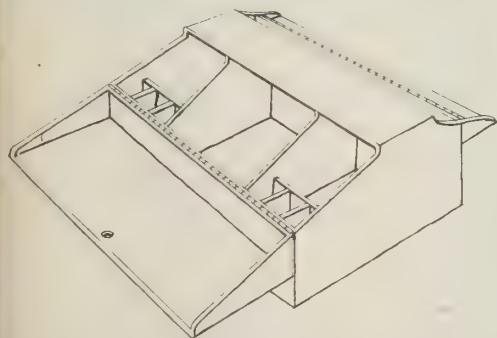

Plan

This unit is really very simple to build, and it will prove invaluable if you are given to spur-of-the-moment, weekend outings. You can leave utensils and paper goods inside at all times. Then when the unit is loaded into the back of your wagon, just add canned goods and fresh packaged products, and you're ready to go.

The lid becomes a counter; its plastic-laminate surface fends off spills and stains. The small door at the rear hides a camp stove, along with extra cylinders of butane. A gloss-enamel finish protects the box from the elements.

The tail-gate kitchen sits on 1x2-inch hardwood runners. Four big trunk handles—two front and two rear—make it easy for two people to load and unload. They also facilitate sliding the whole box onto the tail gate for use.

Before building, check your station wagon for available space. This unit should fit most wagons today, but you may want to modify it for your needs.

Now Possible To Shrink Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop Itching,
Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases—to stop burning itch, pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H®—there is no other formula like it for hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

HOW TO HANDLE A HEARING LOSS

its presence known in adolescence. It is generally believed that the tendency toward otosclerosis is inherited.

During adulthood: Though no age group is exempt from hearing loss, a person who passes the twenties unharmed is not likely to incur any damage until later in life when the hearing mechanism again becomes vulnerable. There are, however, some notable exceptions, one being excessive use of some drugs and chemicals, among them aspirin, quinine, and certain "wonder drugs." Streptomycin, one of the most valuable of antibiotics, happens also to be dangerous to hearing, and overdoses of this drug have caused instances of complete and irremediable loss of hearing. Two other factors responsible for adult hearing loss are Ménière's disease—and exposure to high levels of noise.

As essential as sound is, it can also be a destructive force. Given enough time, repeated or constant loud sound is bound to adversely affect the hearing. Many metropolitan taxi drivers, for instance, suffer a loss of hearing in their left ear due to the continual noise of traffic. Riveters, musicians, telephone operators, jet aircraft mechanics, and linotype operators are similarly subject to "occupational deafness," though the extent of loss due to noise is usually slight in most cases. And one piercing sound like a firecracker explosion or a gun blast, if it occurs at close-enough range, can produce permanent hearing loss.

Ménière's disease, which usually attacks the inner mechanism of one ear only, is marked by dizziness, nausea, as well as by impaired hearing and ringing noises. Its origin is as yet unknown.

Among older adults: The effects of otosclerosis increase from middle age on, but deterioration of the nerves of the inner ear is by far the most widespread cause of hearing loss among the elderly. The condition is called presbycusis, taken from the Greek words meaning "old" and "hearing." Its progress is slow, can begin in the early 40s, and always stops short of total deafness. Hardening of the arteries and other reductions or stoppages of blood to the inner ear can also take their toll of hearing acuity at this time of life.

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

In cases of impaired air or bone conduction, several things. Many impairments of this kind, having arisen from temporary infections, respond well to antibiotics and other drugs. Once the infection is cleared up and the Eustachian tube unblocked (sometimes by removal of tonsils and adenoids) the accumulated fluid either evaporates or can be withdrawn by suction. Impacted wax also may be aspirated, or flushed with water. All these procedures restore hearing, provided, of course, treatment is begun before the condition has led to more serious damage.

In other middle ear problems, new and safer surgical techniques have made it possible to treat hearing defects formerly considered inoperable. In otosclerosis, for example, the malfunctioning stapes bone can be replaced with a bit of plastic or stainless steel. The operation has dramatically improved hearing when undertaken in appropriate cases.

Two other operations, myringoplasty and tympanoplasty, also have been developed in recent years. The former entails a graft to repair a perforation of the eardrum; the latter a reconstruction of all three bones of the middle ear plus the eardrum.

Eliminating the underlying cause of a hearing loss, rather than merely alleviating it, is always preferable; when infection is present it is, of course, mandatory. But when cure or significant improvement cannot be brought about by known medical means, help is always available in the form of a hearing aid.

The nerve loss sufferer is not so lucky. The inner ear is largely taboo territory as far as surgery is concerned, and disorders that arise there seldom respond to treatment. One exception is Ménière's disease, and even here it is just the symptoms of the ailment that can be cleared up, not the damage it inflicts on the auditory nerves. Another example is the hearing impairment caused by the reduction of blood supply to the inner ear. Sometimes drugs that effectively dilate blood vessels improve the hearing.

Other than that, prevention, with emphasis on control of noise "pollution," vaccines against viral diseases, and early treatment of impaired air and bone conduction still constitute the best defense against nerve loss. That doesn't mean, however, that a nerve loss must be written off as a lost cause. A hearing aid, when properly fitted, is sometimes helpful in such cases.

Gaining full advantage from a hearing aid requires motivation on the part of the user. He must overcome any reservations he might have about wearing his aid, as well as negative feelings about learning to use it. Otherwise, he would do as well to take one comedian's advice and dangle a shoelace from a button in his ear in the hope that people will talk louder when they notice it. If nothing else, he will at least have saved himself the price of an aid.

The hearing aid user should know, too, that it takes time to become accustomed once again to hearing normal sounds after living in a hushed atmosphere, and to accept the less-than-perfect manner in which the aid reproduces them. Today's transistorized aids have come a long way from the cumbersome ear trumpet, but not yet far enough to duplicate nature. Nevertheless, adapting to an aid is not an insurmountable problem for the person who is willing to put forth the necessary effort.

Those who need assistance while adjusting to their aids can find it at hearing and speech centers. They offer courses in how to use the instrument efficiently and how to read lips as a supplement to amplification. At these centers anyone with abnormal hearing or speech can learn to communicate more effectively, regardless of whether he wears an aid or not.

In sum, no deaf person is beyond help. Medicine, surgery, electronics, rehabilitation, education—all are keys by which he may gain re-entry into the wonderful world of sound.

WHO'S WHO IN HEARING

In the course of his efforts to find help, the hard-of-hearing person is apt to encounter the following experts, each of whom is important to the "team" approach to hearing.

An otolaryngologist, better known as an "ear, nose, and throat specialist," is a physician who diagnoses and treats disease and malfunction in these areas. If his practice is limited to the care of the ears, he is called an otologist.

An audiologist has earned a Masters or Doctoral degree in hearing measurement and hearing rehabilitation (should possess the American Speech and Hearing Association's Certificate of Clinical Competence in Audiology.) The audiologist tests hearing, advises on the desirability of using a hearing aid, fits and recommends aids, and provides other guidance on compensating for hearing loss. ■

There was a time when master craftsmen made ceilings worth looking at.

Armstrong makes ceilings worth looking at again.

Pinehurst Cushiontone® Tile

Wood Grain Ceiling Plank

Today, most ceilings are nothing more than the top of a room. The only time you notice one is when there's something wrong with it.

A modern ceiling by Armstrong—the Ceiling Masters—can change all that. Beautifully.

Armstrong makes ceilings in over 30 interesting designs—designs with the smart look of swirled plaster, woven fabric, wood planking, and more. Every one is a beautiful way to solve an ugly ceiling problem.

And installing an Armstrong Ceiling is simple. Ceiling tiles can be stapled or glued right over most old ceilings. Or, if you have pipes and beams to hide, you can put up a suspended ceiling by hanging a metal grid and simply dropping in Armstrong Ceiling panels.

Armstrong Ceilings are surprisingly inexpensive, too. Materials for a 12-by-14-ft. room cost only between $35 and $70, depending on the ceiling you choose.

Some Armstrong Ceilings are acoustical. Some grease resistant. Some fire resistant. All are washable. All are available with matching Armstrong lighting fixtures.

And all make a ceiling worth looking at again. And again. And again.

Ask your building supply dealer to show you ceilings by Armstrong—the Ceiling Masters.

Free Booklet. All about the complete line of Armstrong Ceilings. Facts and full color photographs. Write to Armstrong, 6906 Sun Street, Lancaster, Pa. 17604.

If your hemorrhoids need something more effective than Pazo... maybe it's surgery.

Pazo not only shrinks hemorrhoids in most cases, but actually starts relieving throbbing pain on contact—and for hours.

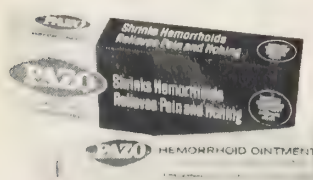

In fact, this soothing relief begins within seconds after you finish applying Pazo.

In moments, Pazo's anesthetic formula starts to ease the pain, quiets the itching and irritation.

And, Pazo lubricates the sensitive area thoroughly—in most cases, provides continuing relief for hours.

Try Pazo, in suppository or ointment form.

If your hemorrhoids need something more effective than Pazo... maybe it's surgery.

WIN MONEY FOR YOUR RECIPES

FAST OR FANCY WINTER FRUIT PIES

YOUR SPECIAL RECIPE for winter fruit pies could make you a prizewinner next January. We're looking for recipes featuring fresh fruits readily available in midwinter or those luscious canned, frozen, or dried fruits, in a flaky pastry, nut, or cereal crust. Enter your fastest or fanciest idea today. Two Cooks-of-the-Month receive $50 each. Four Runners-up receive $25 each, and 12 Honor Roll winners get $10 each. Selected winning recipes will be pictured on the Prize Tested Recipes pages next January. All 18 winners receive a framed Better Homes and Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

World's most comfortable sandals

ONLY $5.95

KOHLAPURI CHAPPALS

■ Designed by leather craftsmen of India, these fascinating sandals have become world-famous for their comfort and convenience. Sturdy water-buffalo hide is hand-fashioned for wonderful pliability and long wear. Then the sandals are hand-sewn (to eliminate nails), hand-tooled and processed to a rich, deep, natural patina that becomes more beautiful with wear. When they arrive, wet your chappals and wear them to permit the softened leather to mold itself to the contour of your feet. Sandals will keep their personalized shape forever. For men and women in full sizes from 5 to 12. If not sure of size send tracing of foot. Only $5.95 plus 50c postage. 2 pairs for $11.00 plus $1 postage. State sex, size. Order today on money-back guarantee.

AMAZING $1 ART OFFER

4 Proudly Uniformed Drummer Boys in the Colors of Their Country

HISTORICALLY AUTHENTIC ORIGINAL OIL PAINTINGS
REPRODUCED AS LARGE FULL COLOR FINE ART PRINTS

ALL FOR ONLY $1

Marching out of the pages of history with snap and spirit these delightful paintings that capture the full vigor of youthful pride and boyish determination are the ideal decorations for your home or office. Full of brilliant military colors, they are accurate down to last tassel and epaulet. The artist, Hawley, has been able to combine both the authenticity of the period and the fierce, yet fresh pride of these youthful drummers. Both as a decoration and as a valuable historical reference they make exciting decorations wherever they are hung. Unfortunately the small black and white illustrations here cannot possibly convey all the flash and drama of the originals, only when you see the superb full color reproductions can you fully appreciate their appeal and charm.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

We urge you to order your Historical Drummer Boy Panels now, while the supply lasts. All four fine art prints are a full 6"x15" decorator size. Each full color reproduction is sent to you on a full money back guarantee if you are not absolutely delighted. So hurry, order now, this offer will not be repeated this season in Better Homes & Gardens.

BROIL CHUCK STEAK TO TASTE LIKE FILET MIGNON — OR MONEY BACK!

REVOLUTIONARY NEW

VERT-I-BROIL

FLAVOR-SEALS
BOTH SIDES AT ONCE!

Breakthrough! Attractive new avocado-and-chrome broiler, thin as a toaster, broils, browns both sides of meat at same time. Instantly sears top and bottom, seals in juices, makes meat tenderer, more succulent. The secret — 2 newly developed, separate, powerful heating elements! No turning, no fat-draining. Grease drips safely down into bottom well, far removed from heating coils. Gives you lean, healthy eating; prevents meat shrinkage. Fits in anywhere; totes easily to patio, porch, buffet table, summer place, even to office (no more dull ham-on-rye!) 2-position self-adjusting heavy chrome rack broils everything from thick 2 1/2" he-man steaks to thin bacon. Great for burgers, franks, chops, fish, chicken, grilled cheese sandwiches. Comes apart in seconds—everything except heating elements goes right into sink or even dishwasher for easy cleanup. Easy to store. 12" w. x 10" h. x 3 1/2" d. FREE 10-day home trial offer—money back if you've ever had faster, more succulent broiled delicacies.

BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS, JUNE, 1969

My Man was a King-Size Problem

(Confessions of a Big Man's Wife)

My husband is big and handsome. I always enjoy going out with him, except for one thing - his clothes never fit him correctly. They weren't cheap clothes, either. They just weren't proportioned right for his size. His shirts and slacks were skimpy, his jackets never looked right and his shoes were not in style. I tried going shopping for him myself, but I'd just come home in tears. Then one day I saw the new KING-SIZE Catalog. 120 pages of smart, stylish clothing and shoes... sweaters, slacks, shirts, jackets, all specially designed for TALL and BIG men! Inseams to 42"; necks to 22"; sleeves to 38" including McGREGOR, ARROW, MANHATTAN, JANTZEN, WELDON. Shoes 10 to 16, AAA to EEE; DuPont Corfam, Hush Puppies, Bates Floaters and many others. Solve your tall man's problem. Write today for the FREE KING-SIZE Catalog.

EVERYTHING COMES WITH THE KING-SIZE GUARANTEE

Please rush your new 120 page Full-Color KING-SIZE Catalog of Apparel and Footwear for Tall and Big Men exclusively.

THE MAN NEXT DOOR

"You can say good-bye to permissiveness for the next two weeks."

Rosemary, who worries a lot about her father's appearance, says that I can wear my favorite gardening clothes in the backyard—but absolutely not while working on the front lawn, where her friends might see me.

Bill Jackson belongs to practically every civic organization in town. He finally admitted he was doing too much when he was called on to give a report at a recent meeting—and he couldn't remember whether he was the secretary, membership chairman, treasurer, or president of the club.

Christine feels she can help those mothers who complain that they never can find anything to say to their children. Her recommendation is, when in doubt, yell, "Clean up your room."

The high school commencement orator strongly urged the graduating seniors to go forth and conquer the world, which is fine. But I wish more of them would stay here in our town and do it.

Our ten-year-old Judy has been asked to be a member of Sue Norman's wedding party. But we're having trouble convincing her that a flower girl isn't some kind of hippie.

I think Christine and I anticipated the current vogue for Spanish decor. Years ago, we furnished our first apartment with Valencia orange crates.

Uncle Dodd Buckner has quit telling young people what's wrong with them. He realized they are the third generation he has told the same thing.

Burt, Jr., defends his mediocre pitching record this spring by pointing out that some of the opposing batters are so small they don't have a strike zone.

The family says that as a special Father's Day treat this year I don't have to barbecue. Instead, I get to take everybody out to dinner.

I suppose I can understand a man being so obsessed with his job that he never takes a vacation, but I can't understand his bragging about it.

A few years back, Martin Daley cut down his tennis playing from singles to doubles. Now he says he has reached the age when he wishes somebody would invent triples.

Everything else has speeded up, so I don't suppose I should be surprised that a generation, which used to last about 25 years, now becomes obsolete in only two or three.

Among my children, Bud obviously has the best chance of being President of the United States, but his little sister Judy might do a more efficient job. If Congress didn't let her have her way, she could threaten to hold her breath.

No phrase has more widely different interpretations than "a few simple tools" in the do-it-yourself instructions.

Christine is distressed because our living-room furniture is a casual mixture of several kinds of wood, even though Nature doesn't seem to think this is a handicap when arranging a forest.

One of the most durable items in the American credo, originating long before the Generation Gap became fashionable, is that children hate to be dragged in to say hello to their parents' friends, and that the friends hate to have the children inflicted upon them.

We have all been pretty well indoctrinated with the theory that nothing annoys young people like being forced to "make their manners" at an adult social occasion. And we have all heard the horror stories of grown-ups sitting through compulsory concerts by their hosts' untalented offspring.

A few couples were over at our house the other night. Judy came in to show her latest drawing to Ralph Tagliano, an architect with whom she shares an interest in draftsmanship. Burt, Jr., showed up after baseball practice with a report for Pat O'Leary, the old left-hander, on how things are shaping up. Rosemary, returning from a date, discussed her new dress with Elaine Cowan, who brings an air of style and verve into any gathering.

It all took only a few minutes.

I don't suppose our children or our friends are very different from anyone else, and I wonder if I should worry because they seem to like one another.

Is that un-American?
